Amos also describes himself as a "tender of sycamore fruit" (7:14). The sycamore fig tree bears thousands of figs very much like the common fig, but smaller and not as good. Before this fruit could ripen properly, a small hole had to be pierced in the bottom of its skin. This piercing was done by hand and was a tedious and time-consuming task. Why was Amos obliged to tend the sycamore? Western Judah, the oasis of Jericho, and lower Galilee were the regions where sycamore figs grew most abundantly. The shepherds needed to bring their flocks to one of these regions in late summer, after the desert pastures had dried up. Since this was the time for piercing the sycamore fruit, landowners would exchange grazing rights for labor. A shepherd could watch his flock while sitting on the broad limbs of the sycamore, piercing its fruit. Thus Amos was not a wealthy man. Wealthy sheepbreeders hired shepherds to tend their flocks. Amos followed his flock himself (7:15), and when that meant piercing sycamore fruit, he pierced sycamore fruit.

Amos prophesied during the reigns of Uzziah king of Judah and Jeroboam king of Israel. Uzziah was king of Judah from 792 to 740 B.C., though from about 752 on, he was stricken with leprosy and shared power with his son Jotham. Jeroboam II was king of Israel from 792 to 753 B.C. Uzziah and Jeroboam formed an alliance for much of their reigns and together ruled for a brief time an area nearly as large as the empire of David and Solomon.

When it was written, Amos's prophecy was dated to a time "two years before the earthquake" (1:1). It is impossible to tell what earthquake is meant, since there are no other historical references to it. However, this dating, along with Amos's dialogue with Amaziah, the priest of Jeroboam's temple at Bethel (7:10–17), reveals that the period of Amos's prophetic activity was very short, unlike many of the other prophets. Amos went to Bethel from Tekoa, delivered his prophetic oracles, and returned home. He probably stayed in Bethel only a few days. Amos's spoken oracles should be dated around 755–754 B.C. Within two or three years after the prophet's appearance at Bethel, Jeroboam II died, and Israel's rapid decline began. Within 30 years, Israel was conquered by the Assyrians.

Theme and Purpose The main theme of the Book of Amos is God's passionate concern for justice. Justice is not an abstract issue with God. Instead, justice is relational; it promotes good relations between people and between groups of people. Injustice breaks down good relationships and breeds anger, hostility, and violence. God created the human race to enjoy good relations with Him and with each other; therefore, injustice that breeds alienation in all of its varieties breaks God's heart.

The renewed prosperity of Israel based on the successes of Jeroboam II brought new wealth to the upper classes. They used that wealth to enlarge their landholdings and to build great houses for themselves. They violated the rights of the poor and the landed peasants, throwing many off their ancestral lands. Through God's provisions in the Mosaic covenant, the landed peasant class had been the foundation of Israel's society. But under Jeroboam's rule, this class virtually disappeared. As the rich became richer, the poor became poorer and more numerous; many were sold into slavery. Israel's social structure became thoroughly unstable.

The immediate purpose of Amos's prophetic ministry was to call the leaders of ancient Israel to repent and reform. Amos warned them that if they did not heed his call, their injustice against the poor and the weak would destroy the nation. God would not allow them to continue in their unrighteous, unjust course. Repentance or retribution were the only alternatives. It is no accident that what we often remember from Amos is his stirring call, "Let justice run down like water, and righteousness like a mighty stream" (5:24).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Though most of Amos's prophecy is about God's authority to judge an apathetic and ungrateful nation, he ends his book with the promise that God will restore His people and "raise up the tabernacle of David" (9:11). This obviously refers to more than just the kingdom of David and the temple his son Solomon built. It speaks of the fulfillment of the Davidic dynasty, which finds its focus in the Son of David—Jesus.

1:1—2:16 The Lord sent Amos, a Judean, to Bethel to prophesy of coming judgment on Israel. But in Bethel, Amos faced a hostile audience. Israel's first king, Jeroboam I, had made the town a center of pagan worship. Because the temple in Jerusalem was in Judah and not in the nation of Israel, Jeroboam had encouraged the Israelites to worship at Bethel instead of Jerusalem. Thus the Israelites who gathered at Bethel would regard Amos, a Judean, with suspicion. Yet Amos bravely condemned the sins of Israel's neighbors—the Syrians, Philistines, Phoenicians, Edomites, Ammonites, and Moabites. Then he went on to point out the iniquity of Judah and Israel: They had rejected the God who had covenanted with them. They too stood before God condemned by their own evil ways.

1:1 Tekoa was about ten miles south of Jerusalem, in a region well-suited for raising sheep and goats. The earthquake, mentioned again in Zech. 14:5, cannot be dated precisely.

1:2 The temple was on Mt. Zion, the oldest part of Jerusalem. When the LORD roared from there, the nation dried up at the heat of the fiery blast. The fact that the top of Carmel, a mountain on the coast of Israel in the north, withers indicates a great disaster. Mount Carmel was a garden spot, normally lush and flourishing year-round.

1:3 Thus says the LORD: There was no mistaking by whose authority these messages were spoken: this was the word of God Himself.

For three . . . and for four: This stylistic device indicated the exhaustion of God's patience—the Syrians had continued to sin. This device is repeated as Amos speaks God's words against nation after sinful nation. The transgressions of the neighbors of Israel and Judah were against the general revelation, or "law of nature," that all people recognize and acknowledge. Since the neighboring nations had not received God's special revelation, as Israel had at Mt. Sinai, Amos's oracles did not call them to account by that standard, but by the standard they had received. Damascus was the capital of Syria (also called Aram), a powerful kingdom that had been a frequent adversary of Israel throughout its history. Israelites listening to Amos would have been glad to hear of God's punishment of Damascus. Gilead was the region on the east side of the Jordan from the Yarmuk River to the Dead Sea. It had belonged to Israel since they had taken over the land, but Aram often had fought Israel for possession of northern Gilead, gaining control there in Israel's times of military weakness. Threshed . . . with implements of iron indicates extreme cruelty and inhumanity in warfare.

1:4 I will send a fire . . . Which shall devour the palaces: Fire in an ancient city was a real threat. Cities were crowded with houses close together on very narrow streets; there was too little water to effectively fight raging fires. Hazael and Ben-Hadad were kings of Syria who had been particularly harsh in their treatment of Israel.

1:5 The gate bar was the large timber that barred the city gate from the inside. If it was broken, the city would lose its security and could be captured easily. Aven . . . Beth Eden: Amos may have intended a play on words here. Aven means "Sin" in Hebrew; Damascus was a verdant oasis city on the edge of the desert that could be compared to Eden. However, Amos may also have been referring to the Beth Eden region on the north bank of the Euphrates River. Kir is where the Assyrian king Tiglath-Pileser III exiled the Syrians of Damascus in 732 B.C. Amos later referred to Kir as the place from which the Syrians had originally come (9:7).

⁶Thus says the LORD:

“For three transgressions of ^mGaza,
and for four,
I will not turn away its punishment,

Judgment on Judah

⁴Thus says the LORD:

“For three transgressions of ^eJudah,
and for four,

1:6 Gaza was one of the five principal cities of the Philistines, the traditional enemies of Israel who lived on the southwest coast of Canaan. they took captive . . . to deliver: The principal method of acquiring foreign slaves in the ancient Middle East was capturing them in war.

1:8 Ashdod and Ashkelon, coastal cities located north of Gaza, were two of the five major Philistine cities. Ekron, also one of the five major Philistine cities, was situated inland.

1:9 Tyre, the principal Phoenician city, was on the northwest coast of Canaan. The Phoenicians were master seafarers. Tyre and Israel had forged an alliance that was profitable for both. However, Tyre ignored the long-standing covenant of brotherhood, and sought commercial gain by selling Israelite slaves to Edom.

1:11 The nation of Edom, located southeast of the Dead Sea, controlled important caravan trade routes, and thus was deeply involved in commerce. his brother: The Edomites traced their ancestry to Esau, the brother of Jacob. But several times in the history of their stormy relationship, Edom took advantage of Israel's (or Judah's) misfortune to help others attack them.

1:12 Teman and Bozrah were principal Edomite cities.

1:13 The nation of Ammon, located east of Gilead on the edge of the desert, was descended from one of the sons of Lot, Abraham's nephew (see Gen. 19:36–38). Thus Ammon was related to Israel, although not as closely as Edom. ripped open . . . enlarge their territory: The Ammonites killed pregnant women in order to prevent the increase of the Israelite population in Gilead, which they were trying to wrest from Israel's control.

1:14 Rabbah was the capital of Ammon.

2:1 Like Ammon (1:13), Moab (located southeast of Israel) was descended from one of the sons of Lot. burned the bones: This act was believed to desecrate the remains of a deceased person, a heinous act in ancient times and a great dishonor to the person's memory.

2:2 Kerioth was a major town of Moab. It was the site of a temple of Chemosh, Moab's national god.

2:4 Judah was Israel's neighbor to the south. Israel and Judah shared a common heritage, a common language, a common faith, and a common covenant with the Lord. the law of the Lord . . .

His commandments: The basis of Judah and Israel's judgment was different from that of the nations Amos had just called to account before them (1:3—2:3). Judah and Israel had received God’s special revelation at Sinai; they were in a special covenant relationship with Him and were held to a higher standard of accountability.

2:6 I will not turn away its punishment: Here the focus shifted to Amos’s audience. This was Israel, God’s people who had violated their covenant relationship with Him. God was calling them to account for violations of the covenant. sell the righteous for silver: In His law, God had instructed the Israelites to work off their debts through indentured service—administered humanely and for a strictly limited time (see Lev. 25:39–43; Deut. 15:12). By Amos’s day, those in power in Israel were taking advantage of the courts to sell debtors as slaves, termed the righteous here because they were the innocent victims of the corruption of the courts. For a pair of sandals means for little or nothing.

2:7 pant after the dust: Amos used deliberate exaggeration to portray the greed of those oppressing the poor. Not satisfied with gaining their victims’ farms and selling the people into slavery for money, the greedy rich would not let the poor go until they had shaken the very dust from their heads. The humble, those without power or influence, should have been able to depend on the justice due them. Instead, justice was denied them. As a result, their life was turned to poverty, oppression, and insecurity. Go in to means to have sexual intercourse with. the same girl: Several possibilities have been suggested: (1) Both father and son visited the same temple prostitute in their worship of pagan gods. (2) A man bought a slave girl, made her his concubine, then gave his son sexual rights to her. (3) A man married a woman, his father seduced her, and they became lovers. All of these practices were unlawful.

2:8 Clothes taken in pledge, as security for a loan, were to be returned in the evening, for clothes were the bedding of the poor (see Ex. 22:26, 27). The powerful in Israel were spreading the clothes out as beds for themselves beside the altars, in a show of empty, merciless piety.

2:9 Yet it was I: This emphatic statement underscores the fact that God had been Israel’s Champion, and the nation’s success had not been its own doing. The Amorite refers to the previous inhabitants of the land of Canaan. Cedars were proverbial for their height, oaks for their strength. His fruit above and his roots beneath means “totally, completely.”

2:11, 12 Prophets were especially privileged; God spoke to them and gave them messages for the people. Nazirites dedicated themselves to God with a vow that entailed specific responsibilities and prohibitions, either for life or for a specified period (see Num. 6:1–21). Total abstinence from wine was one of the prominent features of the Nazirite vow.

2:13 Weighed down by you is a powerful metaphor of the burden of Israel’s sin on the Lord. This is the same God Isaiah describes as measuring the waters of the earth in the hollow of His hand, measuring the heavens with the span of His hand, and weighing the mountains in His balance (see Is. 40:12).

2:14–16 No resources of personal strength, no skill with weapons of war, not even the help of the mighty war horse would suffice for the military men of might to save themselves in that day, when God would bring His judgment upon them. If the strong could not save themselves, what would become of the rest of the people?

Authority of the Prophet's Message

3 Hear this word that the LORD has spoken against you, O children of Israel, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt, saying:

- 2 “You^a only have I known of all the families of the earth; ^bTherefore I will punish you for all your iniquities.”
- 3 Can two walk together, unless they are agreed?
- 4 Will a lion roar in the forest, when he has no prey?
Will a young lion ¹cry out of his den, if he has caught nothing?
- 5 Will a bird fall into a snare on the earth, where there is no ²trap for it?
Will a snare spring up from the earth, if it has caught nothing at all?
- 6 If a ³trumpet is blown in a city, will not the people be afraid?
^cIf there is calamity in a city, will not the LORD have done it?
- 7 Surely the Lord God does nothing, Unless ^dHe reveals His secret to His servants the prophets.
- 8 A lion has roared!
Who will not fear?
The Lord God has spoken!
^eWho can but prophesy?

Punishment of Israel's Sins

Says the LORD.

3:1 The whole family which I brought up emphasizes the personal, intimate relationship that God had with Israel.

3:2 You only have I known, in this context, means “You only have I chosen.” God’s relationship with Israel was not only intimate, it was exclusive. God had been faithful to Israel; yet Israel had not been faithful to God. For this reason, the nation would be judged.

3:3–6 This series of rhetorical questions illustrates the seriousness, certainty, and righteousness of God’s impending action against Israel. Each question is framed so as to require a resounding “no” as its answer.

3:7 This parenthetical statement interrupts, yet underscores, Amos’s point that God is sovereign and does what He wills: therefore, Israel’s judgment was certain.

3:8 Two more rhetorical questions complete the group of nine (vv. 3–6). It would do Israel no good to forbid prophecy (2:12; 7:13, 16); the true prophet must prophesy, just as certainly as God’s judgment must come to pass.

3:9, 10 Ashdod, one of the five principal cities of the Philistines, was on the Mediterranean coast southwest of Israel. For God to call Philistia and Egypt to witness His judgment of Israel implies that these pagan nations were relatively more righteous than Israel. They had not received God’s revelation at Sinai; yet Israel, having received it, had violated it grossly and repeatedly.

3:11 This verse pictures a formal sentencing of Israel in the presence of the witnesses whom God had called (v. 9). Sapping Israel’s strength was exactly what Assyria did in the years following Amos’s prophecies, finally putting an end to the nation in 722 B.C.

3:12 The hired shepherd was responsible to the owner for the safety of the sheep. He had to make good any loss, unless he could prove it was unavoidable. A lion taking a sheep was an unavoidable loss, but the shepherd had to prove that the lion had taken it. A couple of small bones or a piece of an ear was sufficient; the owner would recognize the lion’s work. As complete as the destruction of a sheep by a lion would be the destruction of Israel that God would bring.

3:14 the altars of Bethel: Jeroboam I had erected sanctuaries in Bethel and Dan to prevent Israelites from traveling to Jerusalem to worship and possibly returning their political allegiance to the house of David. Those sanctuaries of false worship had tempted many Israelites to be unfaithful to God. Horns represent strength. If the horns of the altar were cut off, it would symbolize the altar’s weakness and signal its destruction.

3:15 The four houses mentioned here were all symbols of oppression. Many small inheritances had been stolen to form the large estates of the wealthy and powerful, where they built their opulent houses.

4:1 Bashan, the region east and northeast of the Sea of Galilee, was (and is) a prime grassland area renowned for its cattle. Cows of Bashan refer to the sleek, fat, well-fed women of Samaria.

4:3 Broken walls were a symbol of the thoroughness of the destruction of the city and the homes that the people held so dear. In an undamaged city, the usual way in and out was the one main gate. But Samaria would be so ruined that the deportees would be driven straight through the breaches in the walls of their houses and their city.

4:4, 5 This passage is a bitterly sarcastic call to Israel to worship. Bethel, a city on the central ridge road just inside Israel's border with Judah, was the site of the most important shrine in southern Israel. Gilgal refers to a site in the Jordan valley where Israel had encamped before and after the taking of Jericho (see Josh. 5:10; 9:6). Thus, Gilgal had historical connections with Israel's early faith and early life in the land. For this you love: Ignoring God's desires, the Israelites did what they wanted. They loved the feasting that went with the festivals of sacrifice, but not God's calls for justice.

4:6–11 This passage describes a series of five calamities that God had already sent upon the Israelites in an effort to drive them to repentance. A striking feature of this narrative is God's emphatic claim that the Israelites had brought these disasters on themselves. Each stanza ends with the tragic refrain, “Yet you have not returned to Me.”

4:6 The first calamity was famine. Cleanness of teeth . . . and lack of bread indicated the exhaustion of all food supplies.

4:7, 8 The second calamity was drought. Lack of rain with still three months to the harvest meant the total ruin of the grain crops.

4:9 The third calamity was crop disease and locusts.

4:10 The fourth calamity was plague and warfare. After the manner of Egypt suggests that God was reminding Israel of the ten plagues that preceded their exodus from Egypt; these included epidemic diseases and other disasters. The stench of your camps resulted from lack of sanitation, from disease, from the putrefaction of wounds, and sometimes from corpses of men and of animals that could not be buried quickly enough.

4:11 The fifth calamity was the destruction of Israelite cities. The overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah was the scale by which many subsequent disasters were measured. It meant total destruction, meted out in judgment by the hand of God Himself (see Gen. 19:24, 25). A firebrand plucked from the burning refers to a stick snatched from a fire with one end already ablaze. Here it was a vivid metaphor for God's last-minute rescue of most of Israel from the fate He brought upon some of its cities and territories.

4:12 Because Israel had not returned to God through these five calamities, it would have to meet God Himself. To be confronted—inescapably—by the God it had scorned and rejected would be a fate more terrible than Israel could imagine.

4:13 Amos grounded God’s right to exercise judgment upon Israel on His character as Creator and Sustainer of all the earth, a more fundamental basis than His deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt. God is sovereign over all the earth; on that basis He called Israel, and can call any nation, to account. forms mountains: The Hebrew word forms is derived from the word often rendered “potter.” As easily as a potter forms vessels of clay, so God forms mountains. Wind also means “spirit.” The ambiguity in this word may be deliberate. God creates both the wind and the human spirit; therefore, He is sovereign over both.

5:2 The term virgin of Israel depicts the nation as a young maiden, cut off from her life before it had really begun. On her land is a reminder that the land had been God’s gift to Israel. By their faithlessness, the people had turned God’s gift into the place of their death and burial.

5:3 The lamentation continues with a different image of Israel’s destruction: the troops Israel would send out to defend its territory. Rather than saving Israel, its armies would themselves be decimated. 5:5 Beersheba, about 50 miles southwest of Bethel, was the site of a temple in Amos’s day.

5:6 The house of Joseph here refers to the whole nation.

5:7 Wormwood, a plant of the aster family with a very bitter taste, is used several times in the Bible as a metaphor for sorrow and bitterness.

5:8 Pleiades refers to a cluster of stars within the constellation Taurus, one of the 12 signs of the Zodiac. One of Israel’s idolatries was astral worship. Far from being deities, Amos asserted, the constellations also were God’s creations. Orion refers to a prominent constellation in the southern sky in the shape of a hunter, containing two stars of the first magnitude. He turns the shadow . . . dark as night: God designed and sustains the daily cycle of light and darkness through His own servant which is not a deity, the sun. He calls . . . the earth: God, not Baal, Tammuz, or any other fertility deity, designed and sustains the atmospheric water cycle by which the earth receives its necessary rainfall. The LORD is His name underscores the uniqueness of Israel’s God. He is not just a national God; He is the only God.

5:9 The God who created and sustains the processes of all the universe surely can bring His judgment to bear, even upon the strong of the earth and their fortresses.

5:10 The gate was the location of the town court, where justice was to be upheld in all legal proceedings, whether civil or criminal.

5:11 Taxes were collected in kind from those with few resources of silver and gold. To take grain taxes from the poor was to put

(Heb. darash) (5:4; Ezra 6:21; 7:10; Ps. 119:10; Is. 34:16; 55:6) Strong’s #1875

This Hebrew verb can be correctly translated “to inquire of,” “to ask,” and “to seek.” The term conveys the idea of “going to see” in the sense of personally verifying something said, or “searching for,” in the sense of pressing for an answer to a question. Amos encourages his audience to seek life in the living God, not in the dead idols of Bethel and Gilgal (5:4). The psalmist found help in times of trouble by seeking the Lord (Ps. 34:4; 77:2). On several occasions, the Israelites were encouraged to seek God by preparing their hearts for God through humble repentance (see 1 Chr. 16:11; 2 Chr. 30:19).

them at risk of starvation if the harvest had not been bountiful. Yet the rich and powerful had sufficient resources to build luxurious houses of hewn stone for themselves. God promised that the rich would not enjoy their luxury stolen from the lifeblood of the poor and powerless.

5:12 manifold . . . sins: Israel's leaders did not sin incidentally or furtively; they sinned brazenly and habitually, as though God had never revealed Himself and His standards of justice and mercy.

5:14 Seek good: The prophet interrupted himself, as it were, to plead with Israel to return to God and avoid the judgment He otherwise would bring upon them. As you have spoken: Worshiping in the Lord's name, the Israelites invoked the Lord's presence with them in their spoken prayers and blessings. If they began to live as God had taught them in the Law, He would indeed be with them. 5:16, 17 God's purposed action was that He would pass through the nation. A visit from God is a dreaded and mournful event for anyone not ready to meet Him. In all vineyards: A vineyard was typically a place of rejoicing and gladness.

5:18 The popular theology of Amos's day apparently looked forward to the day of the LORD as the time of Israel's restoration to military, political, and economic greatness, perhaps to the greatness of the reigns of David and Solomon. Amos declared such hopes futile, even pitiable. What the people looked forward to as a day of light and triumph would rise upon them instead as a day of darkness and ruin.

5:19 The images of a bear and a serpent evoke the terror that follows when a person escapes a terrible danger and is exhausted and relieved only to find a worse danger so close at hand that it is inescapable.

5:21-23 God had promised that if the Israelites honored Him with their lives, He would savor, accept, and regard Israel's sacrifices and hear their words. By stating He would no longer accept Israel's sacrifices or listen to them, God was rejecting Israel's worship as hypocritical, dishonest, and meaningless. Feast days and sacred assemblies refer, in general, to all of Israel's worship of God. burnt offerings . . . grain offerings . . . peace offerings: For more details on the sacrificial system, see Lev. 1-3.

5:24 After dismissing Israel's empty worship as noisy and tumultuous, God called for the honest tumult of the rolling waters of justice and the perennial stream of righteousness, the only foundation for true praise and worship of the Lord.

5:25 This verse is a rhetorical question with "yes" as the expected answer; Israel had worshiped God in the wilderness.

5:26 Israel had not worshiped the Lord exclusively, even in the earliest wilderness days. Sikkuth and Chiun are pagan deities; apparently Israel had made images of foreign gods. The true believer in the Lord understood, without question, that any gods made by human hands were not gods at all.

Pagan Gods of Bible Times
One of Amos's primary responsibilities as a prophet of God was to announce the "day of the LORD ," the time of God's judgment of wicked Israel. Idolatry, perhaps more than any other sin, was the reason for this impending punishment. The history of Israel is littered with apostasy, as the children of God pursued the false idols of their Canaanite neighbors. In 5:26, the prophet specifically identifies Chiun as the object of the people's worship. The following chart lists some of the pagan gods mentioned in the Old and New Testaments.

5:27 Since Israel insisted on worshiping other gods, including astral deities, God would send them into exile to lands where these deities seemed to rule supreme. Israel was exiled beyond Damascus, Syria's capital, to regions of Assyria and beyond. 6:1 Zion refers to Jerusalem, the capital of Judah (the southern kingdom). Samaria was the capital of Israel (the northern kingdom). At the time of Amos's prophecy, Israel and Judah together had enjoyed about a generation of military might and economic prosperity. It became natural for officials in Jerusalem and Samaria to regard themselves as notable persons. 6:2 It was the boast of Israel's elite that no other nation was greater than they were. Their boast came back upon their own heads, for just as Calneh, Hamath, and Gath were subjected to Assyrian rule, so Israel would also be subjugated by the Assyrians. Calneh, a city in northern Syria, was the capital of a small kingdom. Hamath, an important city in central Syria, was located north of Damascus. Gath, one of the five principal Philistine cities, was southwest of Israel. 6:3 You who put far off the day of doom refers to those who insisted that Israel was too strong for destruction to fall upon the nation any time soon. 6:4–6 This passage describes the extravagant living indulged in by the rich, and paid for with the wealth stolen from the poor. lambs ... calves: Meat was a luxury for most families of the ancient Middle East, consumed only on special occasions. Meat on a daily basis was the privilege only of the rich and powerful. The upper classes of Israel were so engrossed in their own privileges and luxuries that they cared nothing for the affliction of their fellow Israelites, though it was their transgressions that had caused it. 6:7 God's judgment would be both fitting and ironic. Those who had fancied themselves the leaders of the nation would lead their nation into exile. 6:8 If God takes an oath, He takes it by Himself, for there is none greater than He. In his oracles against the seven nations (chs. 1; 2), Amos had prophesied the destruction of their palaces. Now it was Israel's turn. Luxurious palace strongholds represented both the pride of Jacob in their own strength and the oppression of the 7 Thus the Lord God showed me: Behold, He formed locust swarms at the ¹beginning of the late crop; indeed it was the late crop after the king's mowings. ²And so it was, when they had finished eating the grass of the land, that I said:

Vision of the Locusts

“O Lord God, forgive, I pray!

“Oh, ² that Jacob may stand,
For he is small!”

³ So ^bthe LORD relented concerning this.
“It shall not be,” said the LORD.

Vision of the Fire

⁴Thus the Lord God showed me: Behold, the Lord God called ³for conflict by fire, and it consumed the great deep and devoured the ⁴territory. ⁵Then I said:

“O Lord God, cease, I pray!

“Oh, that Jacob may stand,
For he is small!”

⁶ So the LORD relented concerning this.
“This also shall not be,” said the Lord God.

Vision of the Plumb Line

⁷Thus He showed me: Behold, the Lord stood on a wall made with a plumb line, with a plumb line in His hand. ⁸And the LORD said to me, “Amos, what do you see?”

And I said, “A plumb line.”

Then the Lord said:

powerless, whose stolen wealth had financed the construction of these palaces. I will deliver up the city: God personally would see to the destruction of Samaria and its proud inhabitants.

6:10 This verse depicts the aftermath of God's judgment, when relatives came around to carry out the bodies. One inside the house may refer to the last survivor, sick but not yet dead himself. In this context, such a person might have been expected to invoke the name of God for help after answering, “None.” Before he could do so, however, the questioner would silence him, fearful of getting God's further attention by using His name. People who had not believed that God would come in judgment would now be afraid of what further disaster He might bring upon them.

6:12 By citing two obviously impossible actions in areas of life with which all Israelites would have been familiar, Amos hoped to get the people to see the moral impossibility of Israel's perversion of justice. As absurd and impossible in God's sight as horses running up vertical cliffs or oxen plowing the sea was Israel's—or any nation's—perversion of justice and righteousness. Gall is a bitter, poisonous herb.

6:13, 14 Israel's pride in its military strength would be its downfall. Lo Debar was a city east of the Jordan that Israel regained from Syria when Assyria crippled the strength of Damascus. Karnaim, a city east of the Jordan near the farthest limits of Israelite possession, was also regained when Assyria weakened Syria. God's punishment of Israel would fit its sin of pride. As the Israelites reckoned that they had extended their borders by their own military strength, God would allow them to be harassed and defeated from border to border. The Valley of the Arabah refers to the desert valley that was the southern limit of Israelite control. From north to south, from border to border, God would allow Israel to be defeated in battle; they would realize that their own strength was puny indeed.

7:1 locust swarms: Locusts are a kind of grasshopper. Joel 1:4—2:11 describes the devastation locusts bring to agriculture, stripping every green leaf and twig, and even killing trees. The late crop refers to the last growth of crops and pastures, evidently including hay, before the summer dry season. The king's mowings implies that the king took the first harvest of hay as a tax. Thus a swarm of locusts devouring the late crop would leave the people with nothing for themselves, inflicting a crippling economic blow.

7:2, 3 Oh, that Jacob may stand: If God carried out the threatened punishment, Jacob (the nation of Israel) might be destroyed. One function of the prophet was to serve as intercessor for the people before God. Amos prayed that the vision decreed in heaven might be halted before it was accomplished on earth. The basis of Amos's petition lay in the true assessment of Israel's position. They were not large and strong, as they thought; rather they were small and weak. In response to Amos's intercession, and out of His own love for Israel, God stayed His decree.

7:4–6 To call for conflict means to put on trial or to bring a lawsuit against Israel. To try by fire means that fire would have been both the instrument by which Israel's guilt would be judged and the instrument by which their punishment would be carried out. The great deep refers to the primordial waters that remained beneath the firmament after God fashioned it (see Gen. 1:6–8). These include the oceans and seas, and the subterranean waters that are the sources of springs and wells. For the deep to be dried up by fire means that the land would be devastated beyond hope. The territory refers either to the portion of the earth God had assigned to Israel or to Israel as God's portion among the nations of the earth. 7:7–9 A plumb line is a string with a weight tied to one end, used to establish a vertical line so that a wall can be built straight. what do you see: God asked Amos what he saw, then explained the vision's meaning. Unlike the first two visions, God did not give Amos opportunity to intercede, nor did He relent. These judgments would be executed. The plumb line of God's revelation in the law had been set in the midst of . . . Israel for many generations. Now God would stretch a plumb line to demonstrate how “crooked” the people's observance of His commands had been. The high places refer to temples, groves, and other shrines dedicated mostly to pagan deities. Isaac, the father of Jacob, represented all Israel in Amos's day. Jeroboam may refer to Jeroboam I, the first king of Israel, who instituted idolatry in the northern kingdom (see 1 Kin. 12:25–33), or to Jeroboam II, the monarch during the time of these prophecies. If it is Jeroboam I, then the house of Jeroboam is a metaphor for the nation. If it is Jeroboam II, then the prophecy specifically concerns the royal household. In v. 10, the prophecy is taken by Amaziah to refer to the current king. Jeroboam II himself did not die by the sword, but his son Zechariah was assassinated after reigning only six months (see 2 Kin. 15:8–10).

Amaziah's Complaint

¹⁰ Then Amaziah the ^hpriest of ⁱBethel sent to ^jJeroboam king of Israel, saying,

7:10, 11 Amaziah, the priest in charge of the temple at Bethel, informed the king about the prophet who was making threats against the king's house. Amaziah was reacting to Amos's third vision which ended with God's promise to bring the sword against the house of Jeroboam. Amaziah regarded Amos's words as a political threat and reported them not as a prophecy from God, but as Amos's call to revolt.
7:12, 13 After sending his report to Jeroboam, Amaziah turned his attention to Amos himself. Since Amaziah was an official of the king, his command to Amos to return to Judah would have amounted to making Amos officially unwelcome in Israel. Amaziah was not concerned at all that Amos had proclaimed a message from God, only that the king's interests should be protected from this seditious prophet.

7:14–17 Amos's answer to Amaziah came in two parts. First he denied being a prophet by profession. Nor was I a son of a prophet indicates not only that Amos's father was not a prophet, but also that Amos had not been trained in prophecy. the LORD took me: Amos made it clear that he had neither desired nor sought his prophetic task. The second part of Amos's answer was directed against Amaziah personally. Your wife shall be a harlot: The only way the spouse of an important official like Amaziah would be reduced to prostitution would be if all her family and all her resources were taken away and she were left to fend entirely for herself. The rest of Amos's oracle predicted that such a situation would happen to Amaziah's family. Your land shall be divided indicated that it would be assigned or sold to new owners. As a high official of the king, Amaziah certainly possessed large land holdings; he would retain none. Defiled land refers to the land of pagans.
8:1–3 summer fruit: The fruits that came at the end of the harvest in late summer included grapes, pomegranates, and figs. The end has come: Amos could not have discerned the meaning of this vision until God's pronouncement. Israel's wickedness was about to result in a harvest of judgment. Most good harvests are times of rejoicing. But in this one, the songs of the temple—the songs of thanksgiving—would be turned to wailing because the harvest would be death.

The Destruction of Israel

9 I saw the Lord standing by the altar, and He said:

“Strike the ¹doorposts, that the thresholds may shake,

8:4 Fail means essentially “to have no means of survival.”

8:5 The New Moon, the first day of the month on the Hebrew calendar, was a day of special sacrifices, a feast day, and a Sabbath day (see Num. 28:11–15; 1 Sam. 20:5). Rather than observing the New Moon and the weekly Sabbath with worship, thanksgiving, and rest, these people were impatient to resume their cheating and oppression of the poor. In biblical times, the ephah was the most common measure of dry volume. To make the ephah small, therefore, was to cheat the customer of value received for price paid. The shekel was a unit of money. To make the shekel large was to cheat the customer by taking too large a price (weight) of silver for value received.

8:6 Israel's system of indentured service for members of the covenant community was to be humane and limited in time (see Ex. 21:2, 3; Lev. 25:39–55). The rich and powerful of Amos's day were making slaves of Israel's poor, the people they had dispossessed of their lands. the bad wheat: The chaff and other refuse of the threshing floor, perhaps even moldy or mildewed wheat, were mixed in with the good wheat to stretch it further and make a greater profit.

8:7 The form of the Hebrew oath marks its seriousness: God will not forget. Their works refers to the economic injustices Amos spoke against in vv. 4–6, as well as other sins, including unfaithfulness to God.

8:8 The River and the River of Egypt refer to the Nile River. Heave and subside: The Nile rises and falls several feet in its annual flood. Amos may have intended to portray a severe earthquake in which the land's rise and fall would be as dramatic as the rise and fall of the Nile. Though the Nile's flood usually was quite gentle in Egypt, an earthquake that reminded one of it would be violent indeed.

8:9, 10 God's judgment would be a great reversal—of light to darkness, and joy to mourning. That day probably refers to the “day of the LORD” (5:18). Sackcloth, a coarse cloth of goat or camel hair, was uncomfortable to wear. Thus it was worn next to the skin as a sign of mourning or great distress. Shaving the head to create temporary baldness was another mourning sign.

8:11 In 4:6, Amos reminds Israel that God had sent famine upon them, yet they had not returned to Him. Now the famine would be, not of food, but of hearing the words of the LORD.

8:12, 13 From sea to sea means from the Dead Sea to the Mediterranean. to and fro: Those in Israel searching for the word of God would have to circle all of Israel's territory, but in vain. The fair virgins and strong young men are those who are most vigorous and apt to survive.

8:14 Dan in the far north and Beersheba in the far south were the limits of significant Israelite settlement. In Amos's day, Beersheba was in the kingdom of Judah. Israel could swear oaths by the Lord, claiming they loyally worshiped Him from the extreme north to the extreme south of His land, but that would not relieve the famine of God's word.

9:1 The people would have expected a vision of God by the altar to mean that He intended good for them, blessing them with His presence. Instead God would start at the altar, commanding that the destruction of the sinful nation begin there. them all . . . the last of them: The reference here is to faithless Israel.

9:2 hell . . . heaven: In this imagery, Israel’s fugitives from God’s judgment could escape neither up nor down; God would find them no matter where in the universe they fled.

9:3 If the universe could not hide the fugitives, neither could the earth. The top of Carmel represented the highest point on the earth. Whether as high as that, or as low as the bottom of the sea, the earth would provide no escape.

9:4 Even captivity in enemy lands would not provide a refuge from God’s further judgment upon Israel. I will set My eyes on them usually is a formula that expresses God’s blessing on Israel; here it alludes to the fulfillment of the curses for breaking the Mosaic covenant.

9:7 Ethiopia refers to the region near the southern horizon of Israel’s geographical knowledge, south of Egypt. God’s rhetorical question told Israel that they were not the only recipients of God’s attention and care. God loves all peoples, even the Philistines and Syrians. Caphtor refers to Crete, a large island in the Mediterranean Sea.

9:8 The sinful kingdom is Israel. I will not utterly destroy: This was a glimmer of hope in a long passage of judgment and doom. God’s judgment would be thorough, but a remnant would survive.

9:9 Sifting grain in a sieve was the final operation in cleaning grain before gathering it into storage. In winnowing, all the chaff was blown away; only pebbles and small clumps of mud remained with the grain. The sieve was constructed with holes that were sized so the grain fell through when it was shaken, but pebbles and other debris were retained in the sieve. Thus the smallest grain refers to the smallest pebble; it would not fall to the ground with the clean grain.

9:11, 12 The tabernacle of David: Amos pictures the royal house of David metaphorically as a “booth” fallen in disrepair. Judah was a fallen, ruined shelter, incapable of protecting its people from any significant storm. As in the days of old reflects the nostalgia of Israel’s people for the glory days of the kingdoms of David and Solomon, when they lived in strength, prosperity, and security. Gentiles refers to the peoples around Israel and Judah. Called by My name is a designation of sovereignty and ownership. Says the LORD who does this thing: God would take this task upon Himself.

9:13 Israelite farmers plowed at the beginning of the rainy season, from mid-October. They harvested the grain crop—first barley, then wheat—from late March to early June. For the plowman to overtake the reaper would mean such an abundant harvest that it would last all summer and would not be gathered until the plowing had started again. Grapes were harvested from midsummer to early fall. The grain crop was sown after the plowing in late fall. For the treader of grapes to overtake him who sows seed would mean the grape harvest would be so abundant that it would be extended for several weeks. The harvest of grapes would be so great that it would seem as though the mountains and hills themselves were flowing with rivers of sweet wine.

And the treader of grapes him who sows seed;
 And all the hills shall flow with it.

9:14 The promised restoration will be a total reversal of the punishment that God was bringing upon Israel.

9:15 As Israel planted vineyards, fields, and gardens, so God would plant the people in their land, never again to be pulled up in exile. Says the LORD your God are the final words of Amos's prophecy. God would do what He threatened through Amos—if Israel did not return to Him. God would also do what He promised through Amos in the last few verses of this book. God does not abandon His promises or His covenant, nor does He leave His people without hope. God's punishment is certain, but His restoration is just as certain. That word of hope for God's people of old is valid also for God's people of today.

THE BOOK OF

OBADIAH

THE BOOK OF OBADIAH is one of only two minor prophets that is addressed entirely to a nation other than Israel or Judah. It deals with the ancient feud between Israel and the nation of Edom, between the descendants of Jacob and those of his brother Esau. Through the prophet Obadiah, the Lord expressed His indignation at the nation of Edom. When they should have been helping their relatives, they were gloating over the Israelites' problems and raiding their homes. A day was coming—the day of the Lord—when all these wrongs would be righted. The Lord would bring justice to the world.

Author and Date The name Obadiah means “Servant of the Lord.” It is not known whether this was the prophet’s personal name or whether he used it as a title, preferring to remain anonymous. Nothing is known of Obadiah’s personal life or standing in Judean society.

Some scholars date the book very early, in the mid-ninth century B.C., following raids by the Philistines and Arabian tribes during the period of King Jehoram of Judah (see 2 Chr. 21:16, 17). This would make the Book of Obadiah the earliest of the prophetic books. However, most scholars date the book immediately following the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

Historical Setting In 586 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar’s army crushed Judah and destroyed Jerusalem and Solomon’s temple, ending Judah’s existence as an independent nation. Edom, as a closely related nation, should have helped Judah’s refugees. But instead of offering sympathy and help, Edom handed Judeans over to the conquering Babylonians. The Edomites even murdered some of the refugees. Such treachery to a related nation could not be overlooked. God gave Obadiah a stern message for Edom, a warning of God’s judgment on them for their callous treatment of the fleeing Judeans.

The Edomites’ pride and presumed self-sufficiency became their downfall. Their fortress capital of Sela, which they considered impregnable, became their tomb. Their Arab neighbors turned on them, taking over their land and their livelihood. The Edomites were pushed into what had been southern Judah. In the second century B.C., the resurgent Jewish kingdom under the Maccabees conquered the Edomites and forcibly converted them to Judaism. At that time they were called Idumeans.

Purpose While Obadiah’s short prophetic oracle was addressed to Edom, it is doubtful that Edomite leaders ever heard or read it. One purpose of the oracle was to comfort and encourage the surviving Judeans with the message that God had not abandoned them. Judah would be restored to its own land after the judgment of the Exile had been accomplished, and their enemies would be punished.

In the grand scheme of the biblical message of God’s redemption of fallen humanity, the Book of Obadiah may seem to be of little importance. But its portion of that message is tremendously vital. God is sovereign over all nations, whether they acknowledge His sovereignty or not. God desires that we show mercy and favor to our neighbors in their time of distress. Treachery against a relative is never justified and will be judged by the God of justice.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Obadiah's name means "Servant of the Lord," and like Jesus, the supreme Servant of God, this prophet has his work cut out for him. Like Jesus, Obadiah has the difficult task of representing Yahweh to those who don't want to hear what he has to say.

Obadiah is the Lord's mouthpiece as he stands up for Israel and sounds off against Edom. In his prophecy, this little known prophet anticipates the One who will come to judge the nations (vv. 15, 16). He also makes reference to the Savior of Israel. "But on Mount Zion there shall be deliverance, and there shall be holiness" (v. 17).

1 Vision, a word common in the prophets (see Is. 1:1; Nah. 1:1) indicates that the prophet “saw” the revelation. Obadiah means “The Servant of the Lord.” Thus says the Lord God: This phrasing is a strong affirmation that the prophetic oracle did not originate in the prophet’s own thinking; God was and is the Initiator. A national oracle is directed against Edom, a country east of the Dead Sea and south of Moab. The nations is the standard biblical term for the larger national entities of western Asia and northeast Africa. See Jer. 49:7–22 for a passage with many similarities to the Book of Obadiah. Ezekiel also contains prophecies against Edom that are similar to the message of Obadiah (see Ezek. 25:12–14; 35:1–15).

2 I will make you small: God would bring about a reversal of Edom’s inflated self-importance.

(Heb. zadon) (v. 3; Prov. 11:2; 13:10; Jer. 49:16) Strong’s #2087

The Hebrew noun is related to a verb that means “to boil up.” In the OT, the noun has the meaning of “acting proudly or presumptuously” (Deut. 18:22; 1 Sam. 17:28). The defining characteristic of the nation of Edom was pride (v. 3; Jer. 49:16). Interestingly, Jeremiah uses the word pride symbolically as a synonym for Babylon (Jer. 50:31, 32). Pride incites insolence and rebellion toward God, and it brings shame (Prov. 11:2) and destruction (Ezek. 7:10–12). The “pride of your heart” of which Jeremiah speaks is “presumptuous godlessness,” the arrogance of those who think that they can thrive without their Creator (see Prov. 11:2; 13:10; Jer. 49:16).

3 habitation is high: Some of the mountain peaks of Edom reach over six thousand feet; Jerusalem is about 2,300 feet above sea level.

Who will bring me down: Edom’s presumed physical safety led the Edomites to become haughty; this would be their downfall.

4 as high as the eagle . . . among the stars: Edom’s physical location became a metaphor for the proud and haughty spirit that the nation had displayed at the time of Judah’s distress. Trusting in its high places and mountainous strongholds, Edom reckoned that no one could bring it to account for its actions.

5, 6 If thieves had come: The implication is that Edom would be stripped of everything. The nation would have been better off if thieves and robbers had come. searched out: Rather than being robbed randomly, the nation would be systematically pillaged (see Jer. 49:7–10).

7 In your confederacy referred to the nations who were allied with Edom in a covenant relationship, at peace and eating bread with them.

8 Edom had a reputation for having many wise men among its citizens (see Jer. 49:7).

9 The name Teman comes from a son of Eliphaz, who was the first-born son of Esau (see Gen. 36:9–11). The word is often used as a synonym for Edom (see Jer. 49:7; Amos 1:12), and is thought to have been one of its principal cities. One of Job’s friends, also named Eliphaz, came from Teman (Job 2:11).

10 your brother Jacob: Esau and Jacob were brothers, the sons of Isaac and Rebekah (see Gen. 25:24–26). Edom was descended from Esau; Judah was descended from Jacob.

11 In the day refers to the time of Judah’s distress. strangers . . . foreigners: These words, used to describe Judah’s principal enemies, contrast with the words of v. 10, “your brother.” It was one thing for the Babylonians to attack Judah; for a nation like Edom to join the Babylonians against their own brothers was unthinkable.

12 Judah's defeat and destruction should have brought sorrow to its neighbors. Instead, Judah's brother nation had laughed aloud. More than that, Edom had helped to complete Judah's destruction, taking spoil, capturing those who were trying to escape the Babylonian onslaught, and turning them over to Nebuchadnezzar's soldiers.

Nor should you have spoken proudly: A literal translation would be, "You should not have made big your mouth."

13 The day of their calamity, repeated three times in this verse, refers to the day of God's judgment upon Judah, carried out by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar.

14 stood at the crossroads: The phrasing suggests deliberate actions on Edom's part. day of distress: This phrase, repeated from v. 12, is a synonym of "day of their calamity" in v. 13. delivered up those . . . who remained: The Edomites had captured those who were attempting to escape the Babylonian army and then had turned them over to their pursuers.

15 The day of the LORD is a technical term used by the prophets to indicate the day of God's judgment (see Amos 5:18–20). Here the term likely refers to the time when God would judge all the nations, including Edom, that had participated in Judah's destruction.

As you have done: The nature of God's judgment always reflects the nature of the sin being judged.

16 as you drank: The reference here is to the "cup of God's wrath" that was passed from Samaria to Judah, and finally to the nations—including Edom (see Jer. 25:27, 32, 33). The Lord still viewed Jerusalem as His holy mountain because He intended to reestablish His presence there (see Zech. 1:16).

17 Mount Zion and "My holy mountain" (v. 16) refer to the same place: Jerusalem.

18 The references to the house of Jacob and the house of Joseph signify a unified Israel. God intends to rejoin the kingdoms of Israel and Judah as one people again. For the LORD has spoken: These words add a dramatic certainty to the announcement of judgment (see Jer. 49:13).

19 The South refers to the Negev, the dry region around Beersheba, in the territory of Simeon and southern Judah. The Negev bordered on Edom to the east. According to this verse, southern Judah was going to possess the land of the Edomites. The Lowland, or Shephelah, is the lower hills in Judah between the central hill country to the east and the coastal plain to the west. Judah and Philistia fought fiercely over this region in the early part of Israel's history. But Judah would eventually prevail over the lands contested with Philistia (see Zeph. 2:4–7). Ephraim, Samaria, and Gilead were parts of Israel during the period of the judges and most of the monarchy. Ephraim and Samaria were the heartland of the northern kingdom of Israel during the time of the divided monarchy. But at the time of Obadiah's prophecy, all three regions had passed under foreign domination and had experienced a significant influx of foreign population. In the day of the Lord of which Obadiah prophesied, these regions again would come into the possession of the Israelites. The land of Israel would be restored to its rightful inhabitants.

20 Zarephath was a Phoenician city 14 miles north of Tyre (see 1 Kin. 17:8–24). Sepharad was a city to which some Judeans were exiled. The restoration of Judah from exile which these verses predict was a sign to Judah and all nations that the God of Israel was not just a local God. He had not been defeated by the Babylonian god Marduk. The fact that He could allow His people to be carried into captivity in a foreign land and then bring them back to their own land was proof of His power and sovereignty over all the earth.

 Shall possess the land of the Canaanites As ^a far as Zarephath. The captives of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad ^b Shall possess the cities of the ¹ South. 	 20 ^a 1 Kin. 17:9; Luke 4:26 ^b Jer. 32:44 ¹ Heb. Negev 21 ^c [James 5:20] ^d Ps. 22:28; [Dan. 2:44; 7:14; Zech. 14:9; Rev. 11:15] 	 21 Then ^c saviors² shall come to Mount Zion To judge the mountains of Esau, And the ^d kingdom shall be the Lord's.

21 Saviors means “deliverers” or “those who will bring about salvation” (see Neh. 9:27). The Judeans who had been taken into captivity would come back as deliverers, and they would reign over the people of Edom. the kingdom shall be the Lord’s: These were Obadiah’s last words against all human arrogance, pride, and rebellion. Edom had thought itself indestructible; but the Lord humbled that nation and restored the fallen Judah. Many people are tempted to consider themselves beyond the reach of God. But God will bring them low, just as He will lift those who humble themselves before Him. And one great day, He will establish His just rule over all.

THE BOOK OF JONAH

THIS HIGH-PROFILE BOOK has been described as a parable, an allegory, and a satire. The famous story of the “great fish” (often erroneously thought of as a whale) has led many to dismiss the book as merely a biblical “fish story.”

It is a mistake (based in part on the difficulty some readers have in coming to terms with the miraculous character of the story line) to assume that the events and actions of the book are not historical in nature. While the story line is unusual, it is presented as normal history. Further, Jesus used the story of Jonah as an analogy of His own impending death and resurrection (see Matt. 12:39–41). Jesus’ analogy depends on the recognition of two historical realities: (1) the historical experience of Jonah in the belly of the great fish, and (2) the historical experience of the repentance of the people of Nineveh based on the preaching of Jonah (see also Luke 11:29–32). Indeed, the phrase “the sign of the prophet Jonah” must have been a recurring phrase in the teaching of Christ, as it is found on more than one occasion in Matthew’s account of Christ’s ministry (see Matt. 16:4). Thus any view of the Book of Jonah that does not assume it describes historical events is obliged to explain away the clear words of Jesus to the contrary.

Author and Date The book does not specifically state who wrote it. But the tradition that it was written by Jonah as his own report of his foolish behavior and his final statement of coming to terms with the divine will is a likely possibility.

The prophet Jonah lived in the eighth century B.C., but we know very little about him apart from this book. He is mentioned in only one other passage in the Old Testament apart from the book that bears his name. Second Kings 14:25 announces the fulfillment of a prophecy of the living God that came through “Jonah the son of Amittai, the prophet who was from Gath Hepher.” This passage locates Jonah’s ministry in the northern kingdom of Israel during the reign of King Jeroboam II (792–753 B.C.). The text suggests that through Jonah’s ministry the Lord encouraged Israel and gave the nation a period of prosperity under Jeroboam. Yet we also know that during this period of political, geographical, and economic expansion, Israel forgot its past troubles, did not return to the Lord, and did not worry about Assyria’s growing power. Clearly, the historical passage presents Jonah in a positive manner. The Book of Jonah, however, presents the prophet in a negative light as it highlights his disobedience to the Lord, leading the reader to reject Jonah’s attitudes and actions.

The prophet Jonah was from Gath Hepher, a town in the territory of Zebulun (see Josh. 19:10, 13; 2 Kin. 14:25), several miles northeast of Nazareth. Nothing is known of his father Amittai. The name Jonah means “Dove.” We associate the dove with peace and purity; however, this positive meaning is not the only possible association. A “dove” could also be a symbol of silliness (see Hos. 7:11), a description that sadly applies to this tragicomical prophet.

Historical Setting By the time of the ministry of Jonah, Assyria was preoccupied with the mountain tribes of Urartu, and did not continue its westward campaigns until Tiglath-Pileser III came to power in 745 B.C. Israel rejoiced at this preoccupation of Assyria, and they aggressively pursued a policy of defense by strengthening their fortified cities, building up the army, and developing international relations.

Principal Message The Book of Jonah challenges God’s people not to exalt themselves over others. The Lord, the great King, is free to bless, to be gracious, and to be patient with all the nations of the earth. More than that, He may show compassion even on the wicked. Indeed, His mercy extends even to animals (4:11).

Jonah’s view of God was too restrictive. He believed that God was the Creator of everything, but that He was compassionate only toward the elect of Israel. Jonah believed that since God had chosen Israel from among the wicked nations, He had to show mercy to Israel, even if the people were rebellious. Jonah had failed to appreciate that the Lord may be equally forbearing with other nations as He was with Israel.

The Book of Jonah affirms God’s freedom, sovereignty, and power. God is sovereign because He is the Creator of everything (1:9). His power extends over all creation (the storm, the fish, the vine, the worm). God is free and He can never be bound by human misconceptions.

The self-righteous make the grave mistake of rejoicing only in their own deliverance (2:9) and in God’s answers to prayer (4:6). They miss out by narrowing God’s grace and mercy to themselves. Like Jonah, they cannot share in God’s delight in saving the sailors and the city of Nineveh, including infants and even animals (4:11). They confess that God is Creator and King of the whole cosmos, but restrict His involvement to judgment, justice, and retribution. In this manner they do not see His acts of compassion, righteousness, and forbearance. The Lord’s final proclamation to Jonah (4:10, 11) sums up the prophetic message of the book: God is free to bestow His mercy on anyone and anywhere He wills. His concern and mercy extend to all creation.

Jonah’s story contains a strong warning to all godly people. The elect may miss the blessing of seeing God’s grace extended outside their own sphere because of their imposition of limits on God. While Jonah was praying anxiously for his personal deliverance, the sailors had already been experiencing the love of God for three days. Likewise, the people of Nineveh who repented of their sin rejoiced that the impending judgment had not come. Jonah, however, was miserable. As we laugh at him, we may need to wince at ourselves. Jonah’s silly sin is finally no laughing matter. We are condemned along with him if we share in his provincial folly.

Literary Form As already noted, the literary form of the Book of Jonah differs from that of other prophetic books. It has no prophecies. Instead, the book is largely narrative. Chapter 2 is a song of deliverance, a lovely, vibrant lyric prayer like many in the Book of Psalms.

It is best to understand the book as a prophetic parable. The events in the book are historical, but its place among the prophets leads us to interpret it as a prophetic writing. As a prophetic book, it is unique in that the message of the book centers on the negative interaction between the Lord and His prophet. As a parable, the book draws attention to the grace of God and to the folly of Jonah. The prophet's folly encourages the godly reader to avoid Jonah's negative example and to be a messenger of God's mercy and judgment to the nations.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Like Jesus, Jonah proclaims the need to repent. The book also illustrates that God is merciful and withholds His punishment when people respond to Him. Jesus taught the same.

Could that be why Jonah is the only prophet Jesus identified as a symbol of Himself? Jesus said, "An evil and adulterous generation seeks after a sign, and no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah" (Matt. 12:39). And then we see how much Jonah's story is a type of Jesus' life, death, and resurrection. "For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the great fish, so will the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth . . . and indeed a greater than Jonah is here" (Matt. 12:40, 41).

sea, to lighten ²the load. But Jonah had gone down ⁱinto the lowest parts of the ship, had lain down, and was fast asleep.

⁶So the captain came to him, and said to him, “What do you mean, sleeper? Arise, ^jcall on your God; ^kperhaps your God will consider us, so that we may not perish.”

⁷And they said to one another, “Come, let us ^lcast lots, that we may know for whose cause this trouble has come upon us.” So they cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonah. ⁸Then they said to him, ^m“Please tell us! For whose cause is this trouble upon us? What is your occupation? And where do you come from? What is your country? And of what people are you?”

⁹So he said to them, “I am a Hebrew; and I fear ³the LORD, the God of heaven, ⁿwho made the sea and the dry land.”

1:1 the word of the LORD came: This phrase affirms the divine source of the message to Jonah (see also 1 Kin. 17:8; Jer. 1:4; Hos. 1:1; Joel 1:1; Mic. 1:1; Zeph. 1:1; Hag. 1:3). The name Jonah means “dove.”

1:2 Nineveh, located on the Tigris River (see Gen. 10:11, 12), was the capital of ancient Assyria (see 2 Kin. 19:36) for about a century (Zeph. 2:13–15; see also the Book of Nahum). Nineveh was over five hundred miles from Gath Hepher, Jonah’s home near Nazareth in Israel. Their wickedness refers to Nineveh’s pride, greed, brutality, and adultery (see 3:8; Nah. 2:11, 12; 3:1–4). has come up before Me: This figurative language pictures evil swelling up to confront the Lord (see Gen. 18:21; compare Lam. 1:22).

1:3 flee to Tarshish: The location of this port city is uncertain, but it could be Tartessus on the southeast coast of Spain. The city represents the most distant place known to the Israelites. Joppa, a non-Israelite port town, was west of Jerusalem and about 50 miles southwest of Jonah’s hometown of Gath Hepher.

1:4, 5 But the LORD sent out a great wind: Throughout the Book of Jonah, the Lord shows Himself sovereign over every aspect of creation. In this case, the storm at sea was so ferocious that even the experienced mariners were afraid. The Phoenicians were the primary mariners of the ancient Middle East, so this was probably a Phoenician ship. Jonah was so sure he had averted God’s will that he was fast asleep in the ship’s hold.

1:6 your God: The ship’s captain, a pagan, urged Jonah to pray to whatever god he might believe in. Of course, Jonah’s “god” was the true God, who had caused the storm in the first place (v. 4).

1:7 cast lots: The sailors turned to practices common among them in an attempt to find the will of the gods. the lot fell on Jonah: Jonah was singled out as the guilty party (see Josh. 7:12–18; 1 Sam. 14:40–42).

1:8 The sailors fired a series of questions at Jonah, seeking to discern the reason for the storm. In regard to Jonah’s occupation, the sailors may have wanted to know the prophet’s reason for being on board the ship.

1:9 I am a Hebrew: With these words, Jonah identified himself with the people of the Lord’s covenant (see Gen. 14:13). I fear the LORD: Fear here indicates an ongoing activity of awe before the Lord, of piety in His presence, of obedience to His word, and of sav-

Jonah: A Reluctant Missionary

Sometimes the prophets of the Lord tried to challenge His wisdom in calling them for divine service (see Moses in Ex. 4; Jeremiah in Jer. 1). However, Jonah is the only case in the record of Scripture where a true prophet of the Lord (see 2 Kin. 14:25) tried hard to thwart the will of God by fleeing from the task that God had given him (1:3). In contrast to Elijah’s obedience to the Lord (see 1 Kin. 17:8–10), Jonah tried to go as far as he could in the opposite direction from where God had commanded him. Jonah hoped that Nineveh would get just what it deserved. He was afraid that if he announced judgment the people of Nineveh might respond in a manner that would prompt God to change His mind (4:2). So, in an attempt to restrain God from being merciful to his national enemies, Jonah ran away.

There is something humorous in this account. How could a prophet of God hide from the Creator of the universe? The location of Tarshish may have been the southeast coast of Spain. In any case it represents the farthest place known to the people of ancient Israel. It is similar to going “to the ends of the earth.”

Yet there is also something frightening here: Were a prophet of God directly to disobey the Sovereign God, he might place not only himself, but others connected with him, in dire jeopardy. Sadly, Jonah was not on a mission of mercy, even if he had achieved his goal. He was, in a way, an antimissionary; one who resisted God’s call to go to the nations. The repetition of the words “from the presence of the LORD” emphasizes Jonah’s attempt to remove himself as far as possible from his service to the Lord. When we remember that the people of Israel were not a maritime people, but rather had a great fear of the sea (see Ps. 93), we are all the more amazed at Jonah’s risky action. Jonah’s natural aversion to the ocean was overcome by his greater distaste for the thought that Nineveh might escape God’s threatened doom.

Thankfully, God did not allow Jonah to succeed, so there is something reassuring here as well. God accomplished His work despite the resistance of His reluctant worker.

Jonah Thrown into the Sea

¹⁰ Then the men were exceedingly afraid, and said to him, “Why have you done this?” For the men knew that he fled from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them. ¹¹ Then they said to him, “What shall we do to you that the sea may be calm for us?”—for the sea was growing more tempestuous.

¹² And he said to them, ^a“Pick me up and ⁴throw me into the sea; then the sea will become calm for you. For I know that this great tempest is because of me.”

¹³ Nevertheless the men rowed hard to return to land, ^bbut they could not, for the sea continued to grow more tempestuous against them. ¹⁴ Therefore they cried out to the LORD and said, “We pray, O LORD, please do not let us perish for this man’s life, and ^qdo not charge us with innocent blood; for You, O LORD, ^rhave done as it pleased You.” ¹⁵ So they picked up Jonah and threw him into the sea, ^sand the sea ceased from its raging. ¹⁶ Then the men ^tfeared the LORD exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice to the LORD and took vows.

Jonah’s Prayer and Deliverance

¹⁷ Now the LORD had prepared a great fish to swallow Jonah. And ^uJonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

2 Then Jonah prayed to the LORD his God from the fish’s belly. ² And he said:

“^a I cried out to the LORD because of my affliction,
^b And He answered me.

“Out of the belly of Sheol I cried,
 And You heard my voice.

³ ^c For You cast me into the deep,
 Into the heart of the seas, ing faith (see Gen. 22:12; Ex. 20:20; Prov. 1:7). Yet Jonah’s actions contradicted his words. God of heaven: The Lord is not merely a local deity worshiped by an obscure people; He is the Supreme Ruler over all people and all creation (see 2 Chr. 36:23; Ezra 1:2; Neh. 1:4, 5; compare also Gen. 24:3, 7; Deut. 10:14). Jonah may have intended to distinguish God from Baal, the Canaanite “god of the sky” whom so many Israelites worshiped (see 1 Kin. 18:20–29; 2 Kin. 21:3; 2 Chr. 17:3). who made the sea and the dry land: In the midst of the storm, Jonah proclaimed that his God is Lord over the sea (see Ex. 15:1–8; Ps. 89:9; 93:3, 4; 95:5).

1:10 exceedingly afraid: This is the same term for fear that Jonah used in his statement of piety (v. 9). But here the word means to be in terror; it refers to overwhelming dread (v. 16). God, the Creator of the universe, was after Jonah. And because God was after Jonah, He was after the sailors as well. They had every right to be afraid (see Gen. 12:18; Judg. 15:11).

1:12 throw me into the sea: Jonah knew that the only way for the storm to abate was for the sailors to toss him overboard. Jonah was ready to die (see 4:3, 8; 1 Kin. 19:4; Job 3:1; 7:16). His words, because of me, are an admission of guilt and show a sense of resignation.

1:14 they cried out to the LORD: Ironically, the pagan sailors prayed to the Lord on behalf of the Lord’s rebellious prophet. Jonah needed God’s grace as much as Nineveh did. as it pleased You: The narrator skillfully uses the sailors’ words to express one of the book’s themes: the Lord is free to act as He wills.

1:15 The sailors did as Jonah had said (v. 12), but only when they saw there was no other option (vv. 13, 14). With a sense of permission from the God of heaven and Creator of the seas (v. 9), the sailors threw Jonah into the sea.

1:16 Then the men feared the LORD exceedingly: In the Hebrew text, the words of this part of v. 16 are precisely the same as in v. 10, with one exception: the object of the sailors’ fear. In v. 10 these words described the sailors’ overwhelming dread of the raging sea; in this verse they feared the LORD, indicating piety and believing faith. The sailors had the same reverential awe of God that Jonah had claimed to have (v. 9). In spite of Jonah’s failure, the sailors became converts (see Ps. 103:11, 13, 17). offered a sacrifice: The text does not say where this happened, but it may have been after the ship reached land. The important point is that their sacrifice was made to the God of Israel.

1:17 the LORD had prepared a great fish: God sent the fish—not a whale, as is commonly thought—to rescue Jonah from drowning, not to punish him (ch. 2). Three days and three nights may refer to one full day and portions of two more (see 3:3; Gen. 30:36; Ex. 3:18; 1 Sam. 30:12; Esth. 4:16; Luke 2:46; 24:21). Jesus Christ said His death and resurrection were foreshadowed by Jonah’s experience (see Matt. 12:39, 40; 16:4; Luke 11:29; 1 Cor. 15:4).

2:1 Jonah prayed to the LORD his God: In his psalm (vv. 2–9), Jonah acknowledges God’s help and thanks him for it. The phrase the LORD his God shows that Jonah, even though he was disobedient, was a true believer in God.

2:2 I cried . . . I cried: These terms come from two different verbs. The first is a more general term meaning “to call aloud,” with a wide range of usage in the Bible. The second is a term that means a “cry for help,” particularly as a scream to God (see Ps. 5:2; 18:6, 41; 22:24; 28:1; 30:2; 31:22; 88:13; 119:146). Jonah was terrified. Out of the belly of Sheol: When the sailors threw Jonah into the sea, he seemed to be “as good as dead.” Thus for Jonah, the sea became like Sheol, the place of death (see Gen. 37:35; Ps. 16:10; 88:4, 5; Prov. 9:18; Is. 28:15).

2:3 Jonah’s use of the pronouns You and Your in this verse are not accusations, but acknowledgments of the Lord’s sovereign control of his life (see Ps. 88:6–18).

2:4 I will look again toward Your holy temple: The man who had run from God’s presence (1:3) was alone, yet he clung to the

(Heb. manah) (1:17; 4:6–8; Ps. 147:4) Strong’s #4487

This Hebrew verb basically means “to count” or “to assign.” The psalmist uses this verb to praise God for knowing the number of stars and naming each one (see Ps. 147:4). In the Book of Jonah, it signifies “to appoint” or “to ordain,” and describes God’s intervention in natural events to bring about His will. By preparing the fish, the plant, and the worm, God made sure that Jonah’s mission was not left to chance. God exercised sovereignty not only over the plant and animal world, but also over Jonah’s life, using animals as small as a worm to teach Jonah about His great mercy (4:6–8).

Nineveh

No one knows the precise age of Nineveh, but the city is mentioned in Babylonian records that extend back to the twenty-first century B.C. Nineveh was also mentioned in the records of Hammurabi, who lived between 1792 and 1750 B.C. From 1100 B.C., Nineveh was a royal residence. During the reign of Sargon II (722–705 B.C.), it served as the capital of Assyria. Sennacherib (705–681 B.C.) made it the chief city of his empire. It had massive walls and an aqueduct that brought water from the mountains 35 miles away.

Nineveh was destroyed in August 612 B.C. It fell after a two-month siege carried out by an alliance among Medes, Babylonians, and Scythians. The attackers destroyed Nineveh by releasing the Khoser River into the city, where it dissolved the buildings' sun-dried brick. This was a remarkable fulfillment of Nahum's prophecy (Nah. 2:6).

Jonah Preaches at Nineveh

3 Now the word of the LORD came to Jonah the second time, saying,
²“Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and preach to it the message that I tell you.” ³So Jonah arose and went to Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an exceedingly great hope that God would not abandon him. The temple, the sanctuary in Jerusalem (see v. 7; Deut. 12:5–7; Ps. 48; 79:1; 132; Heb. 9:24), was the symbol of God's presence.

2:5 The deep: This is the same term used in Gen. 1:2 to describe the mysterious and terrifying sea. In the Bible, the sea is described as a part of God's creation (see Gen. 1:10) that brings Him joy (see Ps. 104:24–26), but it also appears as a symbol for hostile forces (see Ps. 74:12–15; Is. 27:1) which the Lord nevertheless holds in His firm control (see Ps. 93).

2:6 Jonah pictures himself so deep in the sea that it is as if he had found the moorings of the mountains. pit: This term, along with Sheol (v. 2), is used to describe the realm of the dead (see Job 33:24; Ps. 30:9; 49:9).

2:7 I remembered: Jonah reaffirms his faith in the Lord and renews his commitment to Him (see Ps. 22:27; 63:6; 106:7).

2:8 worthless idols: This phrase (also found in Ps. 31:6) condemns every alternative to God. Idols here means “vapor,” that which passes away quickly. These vaporous gods (see Ps. 86:8–10; Jer. 10:15; 51:18) were without value. Mercy (loyal love), the term that so often describes God's faithfulness to His covenant and to His people (see Ps. 13:5; 59:10, 17; 89:1–3) is used as a name for the Lord (4:2).

2:9 I will sacrifice to You with the voice of thanksgiving: This vow of praise is common in the Psalms (see Ps. 13:6; 142:7). I will pay what I have vowed: Jonah declares that he will keep his promise, a pledge both to sacrifice and to acknowledge God's help (see Job 22:27; Ps. 22:25; 50:14; 66:13; 116:14, 17; see also Rom. 6:13, 19; 12:1; 1 Pet. 2:5). Salvation: It is the Lord who delivers His people. God acts on behalf of His creation and the redeemed community to insure a relationship with them (see Ex. 15:2, 17, 18; Ps. 88:1; 89:26; 140:7; Is. 12:2). Chapters 1 and 2 both end with vows of sacrifice and thanksgiving.

2:10 the Lord spoke to the fish: The focus in the story of Jonah is on the Lord's sovereign control over creation to bring about His purpose.

3:1, 2 Jonah's new commission was essentially the same as the one he had received in 1:1, 2.

3:3 In contrast to 1:3, Jonah obeyed the command of the Lord the second time and made the journey to Nineveh. a three-day journey in extent: The city wall of Nineveh had a circumference of about eight miles, indicating that Nineveh was an exceedingly large city for the times. But the reference to “three days” likely refers to the larger administrative district of Nineveh, made up of several cities, with a circumference of about 55 miles.

city, ¹a three-day journey in extent. ⁴And Jonah began to enter the city on the first day's walk. Then ^ahe cried out and said, "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown!"

The People of Nineveh Believe

⁵So the ^bpeople of Nineveh believed God, proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest to the least of them. ⁶Then word came to the king of Nineveh; and he arose from his throne and laid aside his robe, covered himself with sackcloth ^cand sat in ashes. ^{7d}And he caused it to be proclaimed and published throughout Nineveh by the decree of the king and his ²nobles, saying,

3:4 Jonah proclaimed that there were only forty days before the destruction of Nineveh. Both the announcement and the specified delay show God's mercy. It was this mercy that bothered Jonah (4:1–3).

3:5 believed God: The term used for God here is the general term for deity. In contrast, the sailors in ch. 1 proclaimed faith in the Lord, using the personal, covenant name for God (1:16). The fact that the writer does not use the personal name for God here may suggest that the Ninevites had a short-lived or imperfect understanding of God's message. History bears this out: We have no historical record of a lasting period of belief in Nineveh. Eventually the city was destroyed, in 612 B.C.

3:5, 6 fast ... sackcloth ... ashes: These are expressions of mourning and lamentation (see 2 Kin. 19:1; 2 Chr. 20:3; Is. 58:5–9; Jer. 36:6–9; Joel 1:13, 14; 2:12–18).

3:7 proclaimed and published: The king's edict reached all of Nineveh.

3:9 God will turn and relent: The reversal of the threat to destroy Nineveh depended solely on the grace and mercy of the Lord. At times, the announced judgment of God is not His real intent (see 4:2; Jer. 18:7, 8; Amos 7:3). Such announcements usually include offers of mercy and forgiveness (see Zeph. 2:1–3).

3:10 God relented: The Ninevites' repentance moved the Lord to extend grace and mercy to them.

4:1 Jonah ... became angry: In contrast to God, Jonah had no compassion on the people of Nineveh. displeased: Jonah's irritation belied the good news that the city would be spared. Jonah himself had just been spared God's fair judgment, but he was unable to appreciate the parallel.

4:2 I know: Jonah himself had experienced the excellencies of Nineveh and Tarshish represented opposite ends of the Mediterranean commercial sphere in ancient times. The story of Jonah extends to the boundaries of OT geographic knowledge and provides a rare glimpse of seafaring life in the Iron Age. pared a worm, and it so damaged the plant that it withered. ⁸And it happened, when the sun arose, that God prepared a vehement east wind; and the sun beat on Jonah's head, so that he grew faint. Then he wished death for himself, and said, ^e"It is better for me to die than to live."

⁹Then God said to Jonah, "Is it right for you to be angry about the plant?"

And he said, "It is right for me to be angry, even to death!"

¹⁰But the LORD said, "You have had pity on the plant for which you have not labored, nor made it grow, which ³came up in a night and perished in a night. ¹¹And should I not pity Nineveh, ^fthat great city, in which are more than one hundred and twenty thousand persons ^gwho cannot discern between their right hand and their left—and much livestock?"

God. Gracious and merciful may be rephrased as "marvelously gracious." Lovingkindness can also mean "loyal love." This is the same word that Jonah had used in his praise of God in 2:8. One who relents from doing harm: In this recital of God's blessed character, Jonah built on the revelation of the Lord to Moses (see Ex. 34:6, 7).

4:3, 4 please take my life: Contrast Jonah and Elijah: Jonah's death wish came from disgust at the people's repentance; Elijah's came from a yearning for the people's repentance (see 1 Kin. 19:4). Only a few days before Jonah had screamed for God to keep him alive.

4:5 till he might see what would become of the city: In his continuing stubbornness and lack of compassion, Jonah held out hope that God would judge Nineveh. This was God's chief complaint against him (see Ps. 58).

4:6 the LORD God prepared: The same verb was used in 1:17 to describe the Lord's preparation of the great fish. The term is also used in v. 7 regarding the worm and in v. 8 regarding the east wind. The repeated use of prepared is a subtle reference to the sovereignty of God. a plant: The nature of this plant is unknown. Some have speculated that it was a castor-oil tree or a bottle-gourd vine. It may have been a species that grew especially fast. to deliver him: The Lord had rescued Jonah from drowning (1:17); now He wished to relieve His prophet from the misery of the sun. The reach of God's mercy to the undeserving is a theme that continued to elude Jonah even as he experienced it.

4:7 God prepared a worm: The Book of Jonah depicts the Lord as both sovereign and free to act in creation. God placed the worm in the plant to serve as His agent in Jonah's life.

4:8 vehement east wind: The scorching sirocco wind that blows in from the desert draws moisture from plants, causing them to wither (see Is. 40:7, 8).

4:9 The word translated is it right comes from the verb meaning "to be good," "to do well," or "to be pleasing." Here, as in Gen. 4:4, the expression has to do with ethical behavior (see also Lev. 5:4; Ps. 36:3; Is. 1:17; Jer. 4:22; 13:23). Jonah's anger (v. 1) did not arise from a desire for justice but from his own selfishness. He continued to justify his rebellious attitude. And again, God was merciful.

4:10 Pity describes an expression of deeply felt compassion (see Ps. 72:13; Ezek. 20:17; Joel 2:13, 14). However, Jonah pitied himself more than the plant.

4:11 pity: The same word used to describe Jonah's feeling toward the plant in v. 10 is used of God's feeling toward the people of Nineveh. People are of more value than animals, and animals of more value than plants, but the Lord has a concern that extends to all of His creation. The Lord's pity comes from His character (v. 2; compare Joel 2:13, 14). livestock: If Jonah could take pity on a plant, which is even less important than an animal, it only made sense that God would take pity on human beings, who are made in God's image. The Book of Jonah ends on this note of contrast between Jonah's ungracious heart and the kind heart of the Lord.

(Heb. 'arek; 'aph) (4:2; Num. 14:18; Prov. 14:29) Strong's #750; 639

The idiom for anger in the OT translated literally is "the nose burns" or "the nose becomes hot" (see Gen. 30:2; Ex. 4:14). The Hebrew idiom for "patient" or "slow to anger" is literally "long of nose" (Ps. 86:15; 103:8). The nose is symbolic of anger because an angry person breathes heavily or noisily. The Hebrew idiom for slow to anger is frequently applied to God to describe His great mercy and kindness (Ps. 145:8; Joel 2:13).

THE BOOK OF MICAH

OLD TESTAMENT PROPHETS are often thought of as providing not much more than “doom and gloom” predictions, but the Book of Micah presents an impassioned and artistic interplay between oracles of impending judgment and promises of future blessing on Israel and Judah. The peoples of both nations had broken covenant with their Lord. Through His messenger Micah, the Lord confronted His people, but He also promised to bring future blessing through the One who would be coming. This One would be the true Shepherd of God’s flock.

Author and Date Little is known about the prophet Micah beyond his name, his place of origin, and the personal tone of his book. Micah was born in the rural village of Moresheth Gath in the lowlands of Judah, near the region of Philistia, setting him apart from his more illustrious contemporary Isaiah, who was from Jerusalem.

The Book of Micah has numerous points of similarity with the much longer Book of Isaiah. In fact, virtually the same passage is found in both books (compare 4:1–3 with Is. 2:2–4). Some attribute this unusual phenomenon to one prophet borrowing from the other, but it is difficult to argue for the priority of either Micah or Isaiah from the texts. More likely both prophets made use of the same source, perhaps a psalm of confidence.

It is often asserted that the Book of Micah was written by his disciples and followers many years after his ministry. However, the tone of Micah’s prophecies against Jerusalem indicates that they had not yet come to pass. It appears that Micah prophesied that the Assyrians would destroy Jerusalem in the same way they had already destroyed the city of Samaria (compare 1:6 with 3:12). While the Assyrians under Sennacherib did lay siege against Jerusalem in the campaign of 701 B.C., they did not finally destroy the city. Jerusalem was not destroyed until over a century later by the Babylonians (586 B.C.). It is almost inconceivable that disciples of Micah would collect, record, and promote his prophecies long after the fact if those prophecies had not come to pass as anticipated. It is far more likely that the prophecies of Micah were compiled by the prophet as an anthology of his own lengthy preaching career.

Historical Setting The career of Micah extended over the last third of the eighth century B.C., during the reigns of Jotham (752–736 B.C.), Ahaz (736–720 B.C.), and Hezekiah (729–699 B.C.). The Book of Micah centers on the threat of the Assyrian invasions that occurred throughout this period, beginning around 730 B.C. against Israel and culminating in 701 B.C. against Judah. Much of Micah’s preaching warned Judah about an impending national disaster. Yet the religious leaders of Jerusalem were falsely confident that no evil would come to them because of the inviolable presence of the holy temple in their midst. Micah sternly confronted their arrogance and their mistaken notions of God: not even the temple on Mount Zion would be spared the onslaught of God’s wrath (3:12).

The lengthy delay in Micah’s prophecies against Jerusalem may be attributed to several causes. First, God may have decided to spare the city, even though it was He who had condemned it (see Jer. 26:16–19; compare God’s judgment on Nineveh in the Book of Jonah). The significant delay in the judgment against Jerusalem may be attributed to the mercy of the Lord, much as the delay of the judgment of God against Nineveh is attributed to His mercy by the prophet Jonah (see Jon. 4:1–3). Second, although the judgment of Jerusalem was postponed, it was finally realized in the destruction of the city by the Babylonians in 586 B.C.

Themes The interplay of texts of wrath and mercy in the Book of Micah mirrors the character of God, for even in His wrath He remembers mercy. In the darkest days of impending judgment on the nations of Israel and Judah, there was always the possibility of a remnant being spared. Although the Lord was determined to maintain His holiness, He was equally intent on fulfilling His loving promises to Abraham (see Gen. 12; 15; 22). The Lord would balance His judgment with mercy. Consequently Micah also balances his oracles of judgment with oracles of promise.

In doing so, Micah points back to the covenant and also forward to the coming One. The book begins with the language of a court. Micah calls the peoples of earth to come to hear the Lord's case against Israel, for the nation had broken the covenant (3:1; 6:1–3). The language recalls the language of the covenant or contract the Lord established with His people. The Lord was judging His people according to the terms of the covenant. But in the middle of the oracles of judgment, Micah reveals the Lord's wonderful promises of a glorious future. There would be a time when the coming King would gather His people together (2:12, 13), when He would establish peace (4:3), and when He would bring justice to the earth (4:2, 3). Remarkably, Micah prophesies that this coming Messiah would be born in Bethlehem (5:2). The fulfillment of this prophecy in Jesus' birth in Bethlehem gives us confidence that the prophecies of Jesus' glorious future will also be fulfilled (see Matt. 2:1).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Unlike the Book of Jonah, which took the burial and resurrection of Jesus for Israel to make sense out of what had occurred, Micah's reference to the Messiah was quite explicit. From the time he verbalized God's rebuke at the way the Jews were treating the poor until the time a poor carpenter and his fiancée arrived in Bethlehem, devout Jews knew that King David's birthplace was where the Messiah would also be born.

Micah wrote the following about the town of Bethlehem seven hundred years before Jesus was born: "Though you are little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of you shall come forth to Me the One to be Ruler in Israel, whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting" (5:2). And of that Ruler, he prophesied, "He will teach us His ways, and we shall walk in His paths. . . . Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore" (4:2, 3).

The Church of the Nativity, built on the traditional location of the birth of Christ. Micah prophesied that the Messiah would come from Bethlehem (Mic. 5:2).

The Coming Judgment on Israel

- ² Hear, all you peoples!
Listen, O earth, and all that is in it!
Let the Lord God be a witness

The Lord from ^cHis holy temple.

Like waters poured down a steep

What is the transgression of Jacob?
Is it not Samaria?
And what are the ^ehigh places of Judah?
Are they not Jerusalem?

1:1 Micah means “Who Is Like the Lord?” The question presents a major biblical theme, the idea that God is incomparable (see 7:18; Deut. 4:32-40; Ps. 113:4-6). Micah’s ministry centered on the Assyrian threat to Samaria, the capital of Israel that was destroyed in 722 B.C., and Jerusalem, the capital of Judah.

1:2 all you peoples: All the earth was to know that God was witnessing against His people. This announcement of judgment is based on the people’s breach of covenant. The faithlessness of the people provoked the Lord God to enter into a judicial dispute with them.

1:3 the Lord is coming: This is the language of epiphany, the dramatic coming of God to earth, here in a solemn procession of judgment. In other texts the language of epiphany is used to describe God’s dramatic acts of deliverance (see Ps. 18:7-19). The expression high places is ironic. Jerusalem and Samaria were the “high places,” or elevated capitals, of Judah and Israel; but “high places” were also sites of idolatrous worship.

1:5 Jacob is used to refer to the northern kingdom Israel, whose transgression was centered in its capital, Samaria. Judah’s sins were centered in its capital, Jerusalem. In this verse, the intent of the term high places (v. 3) is made plain. Jerusalem, which was once “beautiful in elevation” (see Ps. 48:2), was nothing more than another platform of pagan worship, like the “high places” of the Canaanites.

1:6 a heap of ruins: God’s judicial decision was to destroy Samaria so thoroughly that it would be a place fit only for vineyards among the rubble.

1:7 Idolatry is often described in the Hebrew Bible as spiritual adultery (see Jer. 3:1; Hos. 4:15). Israel is pictured as a wife who is unfaithful to her husband (see Jer. 2:20). This is not just a metaphor, however; the worship system of Canaan was sexual in nature. The word idols here has the sense of “disgusting images,” probably referring to the explicit sexual nature of these idols. But there is comic justice at the end of the verse. The pagan symbols of Israel’s worship would be reused by the nation’s conquerors (Assyria) in their own debased temples.

1:8 I will wail . . . I will go stripped: Micah’s immediate response to God’s message was an overwhelming sense of dread (7:1). naked: Micah’s words describe mourning rites in which outer garments were laid aside in deep humility. The mourning person thought no longer about himself but only about the calamity that had overcome his senses.

1:9 her wounds: At first the reference is to the wounds of Israel, the northern kingdom. But the disease spread to Judah. My people: The pronoun My refers to both the prophet and His Lord. The distress of the prophet is a mirror of the distress of God.

1:10 in Gath: The reference here is to the lament of David in his mourning over the death of Saul and Jonathan (see 2 Sam. 1:20). Just as it was unseemly then to have the bad news of God’s people profaned in a foreign city, so it would be in the present circumstance. The Hebrew word translated tell in this verse sounds like the Hebrew place name Gath. Beth Aphrah means “House of Dust”; appropriately, the inhabitants would roll themselves in the dust, an act of extreme mourning.

1:11 The name Shaphir means “Beautiful.” Ironically, its inhabitants would be shamed by their nakedness. Zaanah: This name speaks of “sheep” who “go out on their own.” However, this would no longer be the case for the citizens of Zaanah, who would no longer go out because of their fear.

Lying Prophets

So they shall not prophesy ⁶to you;
⁷They shall not return insult for insult.

From those who trust you, as they pass by,
Like men returned from war.
- 9 The women of My people you cast out

From their children
You have taken away My glory forever.

1:12 Maroth means “Bitterness.” The name Jerusalem suggests “Peace.” Thus the inhabitants of the town of bitterness would be sickened with dread, and the inhabitants of the town of peace would experience God’s judgment.

1:13 Lachish: This famous guard city to Jerusalem was judged as being among the first places in Judah to adopt the sins of Baal worship. daughter of Zion: Jerusalem is the daughter of the Lord.

1:14 Moresbeth Gath, which means “The Possession of Gath,” was Micah’s hometown (v. 1). The presents were farewell gifts; the city was soon to be lost.

1:15 The words heir and the glory of Israel might lead one to assume that this is a messianic verse, a promise of hope in the midst of despair. Yet the context is judgment (v. 16). The point here may be that the situation would be so bad that the proper heir and glory of the nation—the members of the royal family—would have to flee in terror to remote hiding places. Mareshah is an alternative spelling for Moresbeth Gath of v. 14.

1:16 In a culture in which a man’s hair was highly valued, to cut off one’s hair was the ultimate sign of mourning.

2:1, 2 devise iniquity . . . covet: The ethical teaching of the prophets regularly included oracles of judgment against greed, theft, and oppression, actions of the powerful in attacking the weak. To covet is not just to have a passing thought; it is a determination to seize what is not one’s own.

2:3 devising disaster: While the wicked devised iniquity (v. 1), God made some plans of His own. your necks: The idea here is that the disaster of God would be inescapable.

2:4 A proverb was a taunt song. To a turncoat: God would take the property rights from those who had seized them illegally and give them to people who were even more reprobate than they were.

2:5, 6 no one to determine boundaries: Land-grabbers would no longer have a legitimate claim among God’s people. God would dispossess them even as they had dispossessed others. Do not prattle: These words may have been a strong warning to Micah not to be like the lying prophets who counseled that all was well in the land.

2:7 The words of God were different from the words of the lying prophets (v. 6). The words of God bring good to the righteous even as they bring judgment against the wicked.

Micah: A Picture of the Gospel
The essential message of the Bible remains the same no matter whether we are reading about the patriarch Abraham or the apostle Paul, Deborah the judge or Mary the mother of Jesus. Like a spotlight, the Scripture reveals the stain of sin in our lives. But it does not leave us exposed; it offers a way to become clean. Even Micah, a prophet who spent most of his time warning the Israelites of coming judgment, spoke of God's salvation.
God's Standard	The People's Sin	God's Salvation
"He has shown you, O man, what is good; and what does the LORD require of you but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with your God?" (6:8)	Idolatry (1:7; 5:13, 14); evil plans (2:1); coveting, violence, oppression (2:2); hating good and loving evil (3:2); greedy priests and prophets (3:11); deceit (6:11, 12); unfaithfulness (7:2); family friction (7:6)	"Who is a God like You, pardoning iniquity and passing over the transgression of the remnant of His heritage? He does not retain His anger forever, because He delights in mercy. He will again have compassion on us, and will subdue our iniquities. You will cast all our sins into the depths of the sea." (7:18, 19)
"Therefore you shall be perfect, just as your Father in heaven is perfect." (Matt. 5:48)	"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God." (Rom. 3:23)	"In [Christ] we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace." (Eph. 1:7)

Wicked Rulers and Prophets

3 And I said:
“Hear now, O heads of Jacob,
And you ^arulers of the house of Israel:
^bIs it not for you to know justice?
2 You who hate good and love evil;
Who strip the skin from ⁱMy people,
And the flesh from their bones;
3 Who also ^ceat the flesh of My people,
Flay their skin from them,
Break their bones,
And chop them in pieces
Like meat for the pot,
^dLike flesh in the caldron.”
4 Then ^ethey will cry to the LORD,
But He will not hear them;
He will even hide His face from them
at that time,
Because they have been evil in their deeds.
5 Thus says the LORD ^fconcerning the prophets
Who make my people stray;
Who chant ²“Peace”
³ While they ^gchew with their teeth,
But who prepare war against him
^h Who puts nothing into their mouths:

2:10, 11 The lying prophets (v. 6) spoke of rest when utter destruction was decreed by the Lord. They spoke of wine and drink at a time of disaster. It is also possible that the words of v. 11 speak of false prophets who were willing to prophesy “good words” in exchange for wine and beer.
2:12, 13 assemble . . . gather . . . put them together: The verbs are emphatic, demonstrating the certainty of God’s determination to bring to pass His good pleasure on His people (see Deut. 30:1–6).
breaks open . . . break out: These phrases speak of regathering Israel from wherever the people may have been scattered.
3:1 Is it not for you to know justice: The idea here is that one might not expect justice from pagan leaders in a faraway place. But the rulers of the people of God were expected to emphasize justice. Justice is one of the key concepts of the Law (see Deut. 10:18; 32:4; 33:21). Perverting justice was strongly prohibited by God (see Deut.

16:19; 24:17). Yet this was precisely what the leaders of Judah were doing. They had used their authority to destroy justice rather than to establish it among the people.
3:2, 3 Micah used an image of barbaric cannibalism to describe the horrendous actions of the leaders against the people. It was as if the leaders were eating the flesh from the people’s bones.
3:4 He will not hear them: The wickedness of the people was so great that last-minute repentance would not suffice (see Jer. 11:11).
3:5–7 This oracle of judgment was presented against the false prophets who proclaimed peace, causing the people to be unprepared for trouble. These prophets would have neither true prophetic insight (vision), nor help from the forbidden arts of divination. Finally they would have nothing to say, for there would be no answer from God.

- 6 “Thereforeⁱ you shall have night without⁴ vision,
And you shall have darkness without divination;
The sun shall go down on the prophets,
And the day shall be dark for^j them.
- 7 So the seers shall be ashamed,
And the diviners abashed;
Indeed they shall all cover their lips;
^kFor there is no answer from God.”
- 8 But truly I am full of power by the Spirit of the LORD,
And of justice and might,
^lTo declare to Jacob his transgression
And to Israel his sin.
- 9 Now hear this,
You heads of the house of Jacob
And rulers of the house of Israel,
Who abhor justice
And ⁵pervert all equity,
- 10^m Who build up Zion with ⁿbloodshed
And Jerusalem with iniquity:
- 11 ^oHer heads judge for a bribe,
^pHer priests teach for pay,
And her prophets divine for ⁶money.
^qYet they lean on the LORD, and say,
“Is not the LORD among us?
No harm can come upon us.”
- 12 Therefore because of you
Zion shall be ^rplowed like a field,
^sJerusalem shall become heaps of ruins,
And ^tthe mountain of the ⁷temple
Like the bare hills of the forest.

The LORD's Reign in Zion

- 4 Now ^ait shall come to pass in the latter days
That the mountain of the LORD's house

3:8 full of power: Unlike the silenced false prophets (vv. 5–7), Micah was divinely empowered (see 1 Cor. 2:13; 2 Pet. 1:21). Justice and might may be rephrased as “powerful justice,” a contrast to the ineffective leaders of Israel (v. 1).

3:11 bribe . . . pay . . . money: The wicked leaders and prophets of Israel “worked” only when they could gain something from it. Needless to say, if justice had to be paid for, it would not be justice. Is not the LORD among us: Many people of Jerusalem believed that they would not be affected by God's judgment because God Himself dwelled in the holy temple in Jerusalem. They reasoned that despite their evils, as long as God was in His temple, they were safe—even from divine judgment. What the people refused to believe was that God might leave His temple because of the sinfulness of the people. The Book of Ezekiel describes a vision of the glory of God leaving the temple as a prelude to His judgment on the city (see Ezek. 10).

3:12 This verse was quoted by Jeremiah (see Jer. 26:18). While the false prophets and the wicked rulers believed that they were untouchable and that Mt. Zion was inviolable, the prophet Micah announced that Zion (Jerusalem) would be plowed like a field, indicating complete devastation of the city.

4:1 The phrase in the latter days is an indication of a prophecy of end times. The mountain of the LORD's house describes the temple in Jerusalem. The text projects a future change in the topography of Jerusalem. Originally the temple site in Jerusalem was located on one of several hills that make up the general area. In the latter days the temple site will be elevated above the hills (see Zech. 8:1–3; 14:1–11).

4:2 Many nations: When non-Israelites came to true faith, it would be in the God of Jacob. He will teach: As God spoke to Moses on Mt. Sinai (see Ex. 19; 20) so He will speak to all from Jerusalem. we shall walk: Unlike the people of Micah's generation who were strangers to justice (3:1), the peoples of the coming kingdom will be obedient to God.

4:3 judge . . . rebuke: These are actions of the Savior King who will rule with a rod of iron (see Ps. 2; 110). swords . . . spears: All weapons of destruction will be recycled into tools of production. There will finally be an end to conflict. War will not even be a subject for study anymore.

4:4 The vine and fig tree are symbols of peace and prosperity (see Zech. 3:10). no one shall make them afraid: Fear, like war (v. 3), will become a thing of the past.

4:6, 7 In that day: This wording connects this section with the end times referred to in v. 1. lame . . . outcast: Those who were abused by the wicked leaders of Israel would be exalted by the Lord. afflicted: Those whom God had driven from the land would be the people of His new kingdom. This is a remarkable surprise—a surprise of

Judgment on Israel's Enemies

When the Assyrian comes into our land,

grace. remnant: The majority of people in Israel did not live their lives in faith and dedication to the Lord. However, true faith never really died out in Israel, even in the worst of times.

4:8 Tower of the flock is a description of Jerusalem in the ideal sense. A tower was a vantage point for protecting a flock of sheep. Likewise, Jerusalem is the stronghold or defense point for the flock of God (2:12).

4:9, 10 Micah addressed the city of Zion (Jerusalem) as though it were a woman in labor. The troubles of the present moment would lead finally to the birth of a deliverer. To Babylon you shall go refers to the Exile.

4:13 Arise and thresh: The nations would be gathered by the Lord like sheaves on the threshing floor (v. 12). This is a way of speaking of the final victory over all of Israel's foes.

5:1 gather yourself in troops: The reference here seems to be to the assaults of the enemies of Judah on the people of God before their final defeat. strike . . . on the cheek: One day the enemies of the Savior would strike Him (see Mark 15:19); but on a still-future day, He will strike all of His enemies (see Rev. 19).

5:2 Bethlehem means “House of Bread” (see Ruth 1:1). Ephrathah locates the village in a known region in Judah (see Gen. 35:16). This prophecy figures significantly in the NT story of the visit of the wise men to the Christ child (see Matt. 2:1-12). Governments would be overturned to make it necessary for Mary while still pregnant to make the journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem. The specific detail of this oracle about Bethlehem is similar to the Lord's prophetic announcements of the name of Josiah to Jeroboam I (see 1 Kin. 13:2), and of Cyrus to Isaiah (see Is. 44:28—45:7). goings forth: The birth of this Savior King would be unlike the birth of any other, because He was preexistent. He is from everlasting.

5:3 The future of Israel is pictured here in terms of the birth, life, and ministry of the Savior King. The two advents of the Savior are seen as one event by Micah. Whereas v. 2 speaks of the birth of the Savior in His First Coming, vv. 3-5 speak of the time of the rule of Jesus in the Second Coming. She who is in labor probably refers to Zion (4:10). The metaphor refers to the deliverance in the end time of those who will be able to delight in the coming of God's kingdom (4:9—5:1). the remnant: This minority will never be forgotten by the Lord.

5:5, 6 And this One shall be peace: Isaiah 9:6 refers to this One as the Prince of Peace. When the Assyrian comes: The principal threat against Israel and Judah at the time of Micah was Assyria. Micah used the nation as a symbol of all of Israel's enemies and of God's final victory over each of them. Seven shepherds and eight princely men: These are in contrast to the wicked rulers that Micah condemned in ch. 3.

- And when he treads in our palaces,
Then we will raise against him
Seven shepherds and eight princely men.
- 6 They shall ³waste with the sword the land of Assyria,

5:7–9 This section concerns God’s blessing on the remnant of Jacob. The wickedness of the people would bring about God’s judgment, but He would not cast them off completely. In the midst of many peoples describes the spread of the Jewish people throughout the earth in the time of God’s judgment. Twin images are used to describe the effect of the Jewish people on the nations in which they lived. Verse 7 describes the Jewish people as dew and showers—that is, blessings from God on their neighbors. Verse 8 describes the Jewish people as a lion—that is, a powerful force that eventually would triumph.

5:10 I will cut off: It was God’s intention to destroy the evils in Israel’s society. Horses and chariots represent the pride of Israel’s military power. Israel’s tendency was to rely on its own military power rather than on the Lord.

5:12 Sorcery and soothsaying had been strongly condemned by God (see Deut. 18:10).

5:13, 14 The second commandment had forbidden the use of carved images in Israel (see Ex. 20:4). Sacred pillars refers to phallic poles used in Canaanite sexual worship rites. Wooden images refers to the Asherah groves. Both of these items had been condemned strongly in the Law (see Deut. 16:21, 22).

The King’s Hometown

Almost two years after Jesus was born, a dusty and majestic caravan made its way into Jerusalem. The members of the caravan stopped for directions. Their simple question shook the city: “Where is He who has been born King of the Jews?” (Matt. 2:2). A strange star had announced the birth.

King Herod knew the wise men had no interest in him. But he also realized that if their quest was legitimate, his own reign was about to be eclipsed by the arrival of another King, the long-awaited Messiah. He was not going to give up his throne without a fight.

Among the prophecies of the Old Testament, God had clearly revealed the birthplace of the Messiah. The Jewish religious leaders that Herod gathered to answer the strangers’ question pointed immediately to Micah 5:2 for the location of the Savior’s hometown, Bethlehem. They knew. Micah had left written directions hundreds of years before. But they were not ready to believe. Curiously, no one volunteered to go with the wise men to look for the Messiah.

God offered a clear invitation to His people through Micah: Watch Bethlehem! The people remembered the invitation, but failed to take it seriously. Given an opportunity to discover truth, the people of Jerusalem let someone else take the risk of disappointment. Herod even killed the children of Bethlehem in a vain attempt to eliminate his rival.

Other prophecies of Micah surround the passage pinpointing Bethlehem as the Messiah’s hometown. Some of the prophecies were fulfilled by the return of the Israelites from Babylon (4:10). Others have yet to be fulfilled (4:1–5). But Bethlehem remains a symbol of God’s working out of His purposes in history.

Micah’s invitation still rings true. But our response must be different from that of the people of Jerusalem. The people in Jesus’ time were waiting for something to happen, but they missed it because of unbelief. We can look back at Jesus’ death and miss it just as seriously through our own unbelief. A crucial chapter in God’s story of salvation begins in Bethlehem. God gave more than a hint of that salvation in Micah.

Punishment of Israel's Injustice

⁹ The LORD's voice cries to the city—
Wisdom shall see Your name:

6:1, 2 God (the Judge) calls for the people (the defendants) to plead their case. The mountains and hills were among the witnesses to the covenant that God made with His people (see Deut. 4:26; 32:1; Is. 1:2). He will contend: If the people were silent before the mountains, the Lord Himself would speak against their sin.
6:3 what have I done: The Lord was entirely innocent of misbehavior against His people (see Jer. 2:5).
6:4, 5 The Lord summarized His great mercies to Israel, including His saving works in bringing the people from Egypt in the Exodus and His deliverance of Israel from the evils that Balak and Balaam had planned (see Num. 22–24).
6:6, 7 Come before means “to make an approach in true worship” (see Ps. 15). burnt offerings . . . calves a year old: These were among the divinely prescribed sacrifices of true biblical worship (see Lev. 1:3; 9:3). The words of v. 7 go far beyond any demand of the Law, and even go against the Law in the suggestion that God may not be satisfied except by an offering of one’s own child. Micah uses hyperbole (deliberate exaggeration) to emphasize the necessity of a right attitude in the true worship of God. be pleased: The idea of bringing pleasure to God through sacrifice is found elsewhere in the Bible. God is pleased with those who do as He commands (see Gen. 4:1–8).

6:8 This verse speaks of the underlying attitudes that must accompany all true worship. what does the LORD require of you: The idea here is that God seeks certain characteristics of true worship from His people. do justly . . . love mercy . . . walk humbly: These phrases summarize biblical piety in true worship. The majority of the people of Israel had violated each of these standards repeatedly. The rulers did not know justice (3:1), had no interest in mercy (3:2, 3), and demonstrated no humility (3:11). with your God: It is the Lord who ultimately gives a person strength, courage, and ability to exercise the virtues of godly living.
6:9 The rod is a messianic image. It is possible that this verse is based on Ps. 2 (see Ps. 2:9, 11, 12).

- “Hear the rod!

6:10–12 The people of Judah were abusing others with false measures, with violence, and with lies. Such practices were far removed from the description of true worship in v. 8. This is the divine vindication of the Lord's determination to bring judgment on Jerusalem, despite the fact that His holy temple was there (3:11, 12). The worship that was being offered, although it followed the form of the Law, did not come from true biblical attitudes and practices of piety.

6:16 The spiritual history of the northern kingdom reached its lowest point under the rules of Omri and Ahab. Whereas Jeroboam I had combined the worship of God with the nature and sexual worship rites of Baal (see 1 Kin. 12:25–33), Ahab and his wife Jezebel (in a marriage arranged by Omri) brought about the state worship of Baal and Asherah (see 1 Kin. 16:21–34). For these reasons, and despite the presence of the temple, God was about to bring utter shame on His people.

7:1, 2 Micah was moved by the oracles of judgment that God delivered through him (1:8). no cluster: For Micah, the harvest was over. There was nothing around him but undesirable fruit. The faithful man has perished: The norms of society had broken down; everyone was out to destroy someone else.

7:3, 4 with both hands: The people were pursuing evil with gusto. The leaders of the state were leading the way in evil (3:11). The day of your watchman refers to a time when people needed to be alert for the approach of an enemy army. In this context, judgment was imminent.

(Heb. rib) (6:2; Judg. 12:2; Prov. 17:14; 18:6; Jer. 11:20) Strong's #7379

This word can mean “dispute” or “quarrel” in the sense of a feud (Judg. 12:2), “controversy” or “strife” (Prov. 17:14; 18:6) prompted by a rebellious spirit (Num. 20:13; Prov. 17:14; 18:6), or even a “legal case” or “lawsuit” (Job 31:13, 35; Jer. 11:20). The prophets frequently used this word as a technical, legal term in contexts pertaining to the Lord's covenant relationship with Israel (Jer. 25:31; Hos. 4:1; 12:2). In this chapter, Micah was informing Judah that God had registered a formal, legal complaint against His people. He was ordering them to stand trial for violating covenant stipulations forbidding idolatry and requiring social justice (6:2–16).

I will ^jwait for the God of my

My God will hear me.

7:7 Therefore I will look: These words are a pun on the words of v. 4. While there would need to be a watchman for the coming of an enemy army, Micah was going to be a watchman for the advent of the LORD.

7:8, 9 The speaker in these verses is the nation Israel after it comes to repentance. I have sinned is the confession of the people in saving faith. He pleads my case: Here the Lord is speaking on behalf of the people (compare ch. 6). As God had delivered Israel in the past because of His righteousness, so He would deliver a repentant Israel in the future.

7:10 The people of Israel knew that they would suffer indignities at the hands of their enemies in the period of divine judgment. However, God's judgment of His people was designed to bring about their repentance.

7:11, 12 In the day: These words call attention to a future day, the time of the end. You here is Zion (Jerusalem). This is a prophecy of the return of the remnant (2:12, 13; 4:1-4, 6-8; 5:3, 7, 8). The River is the Euphrates. The idea of these verses is a universal regathering of God's people in His land (see Deut. 30:1-6).

7:14, 15 Micah prayed that God the Shepherd would care for His flock. Micah requested that the greatest wonders of the relationship between God and His people at the time of the Exodus would be realized anew.

7:16, 17 The response of the wicked nations to the renewed mercies of God on His people would be terror. The nations would be humiliated because they had taunted Israel in the day of its trouble (vv. 8-10).

7:18 Who is a God like You: These words speak of the incomparability of God. There is nothing in all of creation to compare with God (see Is. 40:25). Pardoning iniquity: These words come from the revelation of God to Moses in Ex. 34:6-9.

7:20 This last verse is reminiscent of God's promise to Abraham in Gen. 12; 15; 22 and His promises to Jacob in Gen. 32. The Lord had sworn to fulfill His promises to the patriarchs. He would not—He could not—leave His promise unfulfilled (see Ps. 89:33).

(Heb. racham) (7:19; Ex. 33:19; Prov. 28:13) Strong's #7355

The Hebrew word translated here as compassion means “to love from the womb” and is frequently translated mercy (Is. 14:1). The noun form of this verb means “womb,” and consequently this verb depicts the tender love of a mother for her own helpless child (1 Kin. 3:26). “From the womb” speaks of the depth of emotion associated with this expression of love. God loves His people with a deep compassion and love that is almost beyond description. God used a form of this Hebrew word to reveal His character and name to Moses: “And the LORD passed before him and proclaimed, ‘The LORD, the LORD God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abounding in goodness and truth’” (see Ex. 34:6).

THE BOOK OF NAHUM

THIS IS THE SECOND of two books of the minor prophets that centers on Nineveh, the capital city of Assyria. In the Book of Jonah, written in the eighth century B.C., we behold a man of God who was called to preach to Nineveh. He was one of the few prophets who despaired when his listeners heeded his warning. The people of Nineveh repented, and God demonstrated His great compassion by not judging the city. In the Book of Nahum, written in the seventh century B.C., we find another prophet called by God to preach to Nineveh. Evil again reigned in the capital. Tragically, the people of Nineveh this time ignored Nahum's warning.

Author and Date Nahum, the author of this book, is not known apart from the three chapters of this prophecy. Even the location of the place of his birth, Elkosh (1:1), is in doubt. However, since Nahum wrote considerably after the destruction of Israel in 722 B.C., we may assume that Elkosh was in Judah.

The fall of Thebes in 663 B.C. (3:8) determines the limit for the earliest date of the book. The fall of Nineveh, which the book predicts, took place in 612 B.C., not long before the final destruction of the Assyrian Empire in 609 B.C. This means the Book of Nahum was composed sometime before 612 B.C. perhaps under the reform of Josiah in 622 B.C.

Historical Context The people of the northern kingdom of Israel had been sinning grievously against God and ignoring the warnings of punishment given through God's prophets. Finally God used the nation of Assyria, with its capital city in Nineveh, to destroy the nation and carry the people into captivity. A century after the fall of Samaria in 722 B.C., the Book of Nahum was written to express a major truth of the prophets. Even when God uses a nation for His own purposes of judgment, this does not excuse that nation from its own guilt before the Lord. It was Nineveh's turn to feel the wrath of God. The last great emperor of Assyria was Ashurbanipal (669–627 B.C.). After his death, the nation did not last much longer, for the Lord was against it (2:13; 3:3).

Theology How does the mood of the Book of Nahum accord with the sentiment of the Sermon on the Mount? Although the Lord Jesus certainly spoke of loving one's enemies (see Matt. 5:43–48), He strongly warned of the inevitability of judgment (see Matt. 5:21, 29, 30; 7:13, 23). He said that "all who take the sword will perish by the sword" (see Matt. 26:52). If ever the words of Jesus concerning the sure destruction of those who live by violence had a direct application, it was to Nineveh. In the conquest of the ancient world, the Assyrians were merciless and cruel. Their atrocities included everything from burning children to death to chopping off hands. In many ways, the Book of Nahum is a theology of the maxim of the sword. Nineveh had an international reputation for bloodthirsty acts of repression, destruction, and wantonness. God could not be good if He failed to call such an evil nation to account. The theology of the Book of Nahum is a theology of the goodness of God in bringing about the final destruction of those who oppose His will and abuse His people.

Nineveh was not only a city in the ancient world that received the promised judgment of God, it is also a prototype for the coming judgment of God on all workers of wickedness. Those who know that the Lord is good may rejoice in the fact that He avenges aggressive acts against His people (1:7, 8).

The seriousness of coming judgment is never a call for complacency among God's people. Implicit in any announcement of doom is a call for holy living on the part of God's people and an urgent call for them to bring the message of salvation to those who, apart from salvation, will experience the wrath of God. Judgment is God's "unusual act" (see Is. 28:21), but it ultimately arises out of the goodness and justice of God.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Nahum himself is a type of Christ. His name means "comfort," yet this one called a comforter does not offer soft love. Nahum, like Jesus, expects responsible action on the part of those who are loved by God. Such action is a way to prove that they acknowledge His love.

Because Nahum's name means "comfort," it is legitimate to say he pictures the Holy Spirit's subsequent ministry of instruction and comfort that Jesus promised His followers. Jesus promised that the Holy Spirit "will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all things that I said to you" (John 14:26). But sadly, similar to the rejection Jesus faced at the hand of the scribes and Pharisees, the Ninevites do not act on what Nahum teaches them.

1:1 Most of the biblical prophets directed their judgment oracles against the sinning peoples of Israel and Judah. Nahum, however, brought the word of God's judgment against Nineveh. The term burden was sometimes used by the prophets (see Hab. 1:1; Mal. 1:1) to describe the “heaviness” of their message of judgment.

1:2 avenges . . . furious: The repetition of words and the use of parallel terms are typical devices in Hebrew poetry for intensifying and sharpening the poet's message.

1:3 Slow to anger indicates the patience of the Lord (see Ex. 34:6, 7). However, God's patience is not a reason to disbelieve His final judgment (see Ps. 10). whirlwind . . . storm . . . clouds: The peoples of the ancient Middle East worshiped nature gods, particularly deities associated with storms, clouds, and rainfall. In Canaan, this fixation on storms was centered in the worship of Baal and his consorts Anat and Asherah. The Scriptures testify that there are no gods but the Lord; it is He who rules and is above all creation.

1:4 sea . . . rivers: The Lord's control extends to all bodies of water and to places of lush vegetation—including Bashan, Carmel, and Lebanon.

1:5, 6 quake . . . melt . . . heaves: The people of God had experienced such demonstrations of God's presence at the foot of Mt. Sinai when the Lord descended with His law (see Ex. 19). indignation . . . anger . . . fury: Grouping these three terms causes the force of the words to be felt more deeply. In other words, God's anger burned intensely against the sinful people of Nineveh.

1:7 The LORD is good: For the righteous, this is the best news of all. Because we know that the Lord is good, we can endure the tribulations of life.

1:8 flood . . . end . . . darkness: The judgment of the Lord will be inescapable. The word flood is both a poetic term for overwhelming devastation and a specific reference to the actual manner of Nineveh's fall. It is believed that the invaders of Nineveh entered the city through its flooded waterways (2:6).

1:9, 10 What do you conspire against the Lord: Who is wise enough, experienced enough, and strong enough to fight the power of God? No one, of course. At their very best, the enemies of God will be comic figures. Their best plans will be merely a tangle of thorns; their finest moves will be only the sloppy walk of drunkards.

1:11 Wicked is one of the harshest terms in biblical language, nearly a curse word. The term speaks of someone who is utterly worthless.

1:12, 13 Thus says the Lord: Here is an oracle of deliverance from God to His people. The present sense of safety and power that the enemy felt would not last; the past judgments of God on His nation would not continue. The Lord promised to break off the yoke that the enemy had placed on His people (see Is. 9:4).

(Heb. qanno') (1:2; Josh. 24:19) Strong's #7072

This Hebrew term is related to a root word that can mean “to be eager, zealous for” (1 Kin. 19:10, 14), or even “to be furious” (Zech. 8:2). One of God's names is Jealous (Ex. 34:14). When the expression “the LORD your God is a jealous God” is used in the OT, it is usually associated with an injunction against idol worship (Ex. 20:5; Deut. 4:24; 5:9; 6:15). God's jealousy for His people is a claim for exclusive allegiance rooted in His holiness (Josh. 24:19) and His role as their Creator and Redeemer (Ps. 95:6, 7; 96:2-5). We tend to associate jealousy with a self-serving emotion that usually results from feelings of inadequacy. God's jealousy, in contrast, proceeds from His holiness. Because He alone is the Holy One (see Is. 6:3; 40:25), He will tolerate no rival (Ex. 20:5).

- When he passes through.

I will afflict you no more;

1:14 Here God spoke to His people's enemy—the nation of Assyria typified by its capital city Nineveh (v. 1). In destroying the nation's name, God would remove its power. Further, the Lord swore to destroy their false religious system, with its pagan temples, idols, and disgusting practices. You are vile: The only thing to be done with Nineveh was to dig a grave and bury it. This prophecy came true literally—the city was destroyed so completely that its very existence was questioned until its discovery by archaeologists in the nineteenth century (3:13–15).

1:15 Behold . . . The feet: The image is that of a herald of peace (see Is. 52:7). O Judah: With the promise of future deliverance from oppression, the prophet called for the people to live in righteousness and expectation. There is nothing better for the people of God in any age than to live in obedience to Him and in anticipation of His coming deliverance.

2:1 Man the fort: These were sarcastic words to the people of Nineveh and its leaders, as if they would be able to protect themselves against the wrath of the Lord.

2:2 The Lord will restore: The wrath of God against the enemies of His people means that one day the enemies will be destroyed and the people of God will be restored. Excellence means “majesty,” “beauty,” or “wonder” (see Is. 4:2). The ruin of Israel would not last forever.

2:3–13 This passage presents a description of the siege of Nineveh. The fall of Nineveh predicted by Nahum took place only a few years after this prophecy—in 612 B.C., followed by the final destruction of the Assyrian Empire in 609 B.C.

2:3 red . . . scarlet . . . flaming torches: These images speak of blood, violence, and warfare. Isaiah refers to the custom the Assyrians had of rolling their outer garments in blood before a battle (see Is. 9:5) to strike terror in the hearts of their opponents. Here the tables would be turned. While others would have shields, chariots, and spears, the people of Nineveh would be bathed in blood—their own blood.

2:4 The chariots rage: The Assyrians used chariots as formidable war machines. The proficiency of the chariot drivers underlies the imagery of this verse. But as in the case of the shields and spears of v. 3, the chariots of Nineveh would not prevail no matter how fast they drove.

2:5 stumble: The people within the city would be so stunned to be under attack that they would appear helpless in their actions. Nobles may be used with sarcasm here; these people do not seem very impressive.

2:6 gates of the rivers: The destruction of Nineveh is believed to have taken place when the besiegers entered the city through its flooded waterways. The attack came at flood time, when rivers undermined the walls and defenses of the city. Archaeologists have found evidence of flood debris that may be associated with the destruction of the city. Thus the words of Nahum were fulfilled exactly. 2:7, 8 She shall be led away: The nation that had made so much of taking captives would be made a captive by others. Halt! Halt!: No one would listen to their shouts of panic.

2:9, 10 spoil: Assyria had despoiled many nations, including Samaria and the cities of Israel. There seemed to be no end to the loot that could be found within its walls. Nonetheless, even Nineveh was exhausted of its treasures. At long last, it was empty.

There is no end of treasure,
Or wealth of every desirable prize.
10 She is empty, desolate, and waste!
The heart melts, and the knees shake;
Much pain is in every side,
And all their faces ^eare drained of color.

11 Where is the dwelling of the ^blions,
And the feeding place of the young lions,
Where the lion walked, the lioness and lion's cub,
And no one made them afraid?
12 The lion tore in pieces enough for his cubs,
⁷Killed for his lionesses,
^cFilled his caves with prey,
And his dens with ^dflesh.

13 "Behold, ^dI am against you," says the LORD of hosts, "I will burn ^gyour chariots in smoke, and the sword shall devour your young lions; I will cut off your prey from the earth, and the voice of your ^emessengers shall be heard no more."

11 You also will be ^pdrunk;
You will be hidden;
You also will seek refuge from the enemy.

2:11, 12 Nineveh was the city of lions (v. 13). Yet despite all the horrors that the lion of Nineveh had brought to other nations, it would no longer need to be feared by anyone.

2:13 Although the Babylonians conquered the city, they were only God's instruments. Nineveh's greatest foe was the Lord of hosts Himself.

3:1-19 Chapter three of Nahum is a woe oracle explaining the reasons for the siege and destruction of Nineveh.

3:1 the bloody city: Nineveh was known throughout the Middle East as a city that excelled in violence and bloodshed.

3:2, 3 Horses and chariots were instruments of war. Verse 3 describes the horrors of the nation's war machine, which resulted in countless corpses.

3:4 Harlotries refers to paganism. Any worship of gods other than the God of Scripture is an act of spiritual prostitution. Nineveh was so adept at pagan practices that the city earned the descriptive title, the mistress of sorceries.

3:5 I am against you: This repetition of this phrase from 2:13 is more chilling each time it is heard. Who could survive the Lord's opposition? lift your skirts: The Lord would publicly humiliate Nineveh.

3:6, 7 The Lord described the fate of Nineveh as comparable to a person on whom unspeakable filth was cast. When Nineveh lay in ruins, no one would bemoan her. The nations would be glad that the city was gone.

3:8 No Amon . . . the River: The destruction of the city of Thebes near the Nile River in 663 B.C. was going to be a template for the destruction of Nineveh. No Amon is the Hebrew name for Thebes, derived from the Egyptian name meaning "City of [the god] Amon." The argument seems to suggest that before its destruction, no one would have even dreamed of the fall of Thebes. But the destruction had happened—not long before the writing of the Book of Nahum. The city of Thebes was rebuilt only to be destroyed later during the Roman period (29 B.C.). Nineveh, however, would never be rebuilt.

3:9, 10 The city of No Amon had many powerful allies, but they were not sufficient to protect her in her hour of need. Who would ally with Nineveh to fight off the Lord's attack?

3:11 drunk . . . hidden . . . seek refuge: Nineveh would be like a helpless drunk hoping for refuge but finding nowhere to turn for it.

3:12 Nahum satirically describes the strongholds of Nineveh as being so easily defeated that they would be like fruit trees that drop their figs into waiting mouths.
3:14, 15 Nahum taunted Nineveh by telling the people to prepare for their siege. The actual siege of Nineveh continued over two years.
3:16, 17 Despite the great economic and military strength of Nineveh, there was nothing lasting in the city's power. When the

3:18 Your shepherds slumber: When the shepherds are not alert, the sheep cannot be saved from danger.
3:19 All who hear: Every nation and people that had suffered under the abusive power of Nineveh would shout and clap upon hearing of the city's destruction. There would be no mourning for Nineveh.

THE BOOK OF HABAKKUK

“O LORD, how long shall I cry, and You will not hear?” (1:2). Habakkuk was unique among the prophets in that he asked questions of God. Most prophets were filled with messages: “Hear the word of the Lord.” Even if everyone doubted the Lord’s word, the prophet would still believe. And if the prophet did have any misgivings, he kept them to himself.

But again, Habakkuk was different. To raise these questions was—for our sake—part of his message. His questions were, “Why does evil in Judah go unpunished?” “How can a just God use a wicked nation like Babylon to punish His chosen people?” Habakkuk wanted to know, just as we do, what God was doing and why. There seemed to be too much evil among the “righteous” and too much freewheeling power among the wicked.

God did not strike Habakkuk down for these questions. He answered. The Lord Himself will establish His kingdom. He will hold all people and nations accountable. The present may be filled with wickedness and chaos, but the future belongs to the righteous—the truly righteous. God will bring in His kingdom, give rest and salvation to His children, and judge His people’s adversaries.

Author and Date We know very little about the prophet Habakkuk. The reference to music (see 3:1, 19; 1 Chr. 25:1–8) may mean that he was a Levite associated with the temple singers. The designation the prophet is an official title, showing that others recognized him as a prophet of the Lord. His name Habakkuk appears twice in the book (1:1; 3:1). Some scholars have associated the name with the Hebrew word for embraced. Thus his name may mean “Embraced by God.”

Habakkuk prophesied during the fall of Nineveh in 612 B.C. and the rise of Babylon as the Neo-Babylonian Empire. By 605 B.C., Assyria and Egypt had been defeated by Babylon at Carchemish. Judah’s days were numbered, and Babylon’s power was rapidly expanding. In addition, the death of King Josiah in 609 B.C. brought an end to an era of religious reform in Judah. It seemed that the wicked were prevailing both inside and outside Judah. Habakkuk cried out against the violence, lawlessness, and injustice he saw all around him.

Structure The Book of Habakkuk contains two prophetic laments (1:2–4, 12–17) in which Habakkuk questions God’s righteousness. The Lord responds by explaining His plans to judge (1:5–11; 2:1–4). This is followed by five woes that taunt those who have committed evil with their certain doom (2:6–20), as if to say, “Don’t worry, Habakkuk—God is righteous; He will judge.” The book ends with the prophet’s prayer of praise and his acknowledgment of God’s sovereignty over all outcomes.

Theology Nations are given to greed, power, idolatry, and to immorality. People treat one another in an inhumane fashion. Often it seems as if power and success come to those who break God’s laws and reject His legitimate claims on creation. Yet according to Habakkuk, the Lord remains sovereign; He sits in His holy temple watching the earth. He will eventually judge each person for his or her life (2:20). While people may be seduced into wickedness by the allure of power and success (2:6–20), a glorious future awaits those who submit to God (2:4). Habakkuk’s prophetic vision (2:2) and prayer (3:1) provide a proper perspective for viewing the injustices of this world. The Almighty is in control. He will establish His righteous kingdom in the end. In that day, all wrongs will be made right: The wicked will be judged for their sinfulness, and the righteous will be saved. Believers look forward to this day with great joy (3:18, 19).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

But Habakkuk’s name is also appropriate because he calls attention to the salvation by which God embraces those who “live by faith.” The word “salvation” appears three times in reference to his prediction of the Anointed One. “You went forth for the salvation of Your people, for salvation with Your Anointed. . . . I will joy in the God of my salvation” (3:13, 18).

Interestingly enough, that Hebrew word for “salvation” is the root word from which the name “Jesus” comes (Matt. 1:21). Whether the prophet sees the full extent to which Jesus will accomplish the world’s salvation is uncertain. But he definitely sees an artist’s rendering of the reign of Christ. He writes, “The earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea” (2:14).

- ² O LORD, how long shall I cry,

 And You will ^cnot save.
- ³ Why do You show me iniquity,
 And cause me to see ²trouble?

 Which marches through the breadth of the earth,
 To possess dwelling places that are not theirs.
- ⁷ They are terrible and dreadful;

- ¹³ You are of purer eyes than to behold

 treacherously,

1:1 A burden refers to a prophetic oracle, usually addressed to a foreign nation (see Is. 13:1).

1:2 Habakkuk spoke to God using His covenant name LORD (see Ex. 3:14, 15). how long: This question is phrased as a formal complaint (see Ps. 13:1, 2).

1:3 iniquity . . . trouble: The deterioration of society had become a cause of frustration and disappointment for the godly. plundering and violence: Abuse of power, acts of injustice, and oppressive deeds were common in Judah. strife . . . contention: The people of Judah argued with each other and were involved in destructive litigation.

1:4 the law is powerless: The revelation of God given at Mt. Sinai had little impact on the hearts of people whose lives were focused on material success. These people had little interest in living by God's definition of what is fair and humane. wicked: God's chosen people committed and tolerated heinous acts through corruption of the courts. righteous: There were always people who were faithful to the Lord, a righteous remnant. Here the godly were restricted in what they could say and do because of the evil that surrounded them. perverse judgment: The powerful people of Israel corrupted justice.

1:5 Look among the nations: The international scene during Habakkuk's lifetime was full of turmoil, with Assyria on the decline and Babylonia on the rise. work a work: The Hebrew words suggest that something ominous and impressive was about to occur.

1:6 I am raising up: God controls the nations for His own purposes (see Dan. 2:21), sometimes indirectly and at other times directly. Chaldeans is another word for Babylonians. bitter: The Babylonians were harsh and oppressive in their rule. hasty: Under Nebuchadnezzar, Babylon quickly had become the dominant power of the day.

1:7 terrible and dreadful: Far from being humane, the Babylonians prided themselves on their arrogant use of raw power. Their judgment and their dignity proceed from themselves: The Babylonian system of law and order had no regard for other legal systems.

1:8 The Babylonians' use of horses and chariots made them fearsome in the ancient world. fierce . . . wolves: The Babylonians were powerful and tyrannical. eagle: The Palestinian eagle is a bird of prey, a vulture. These images from the animal kingdom present a vivid picture of the ferocious nature of this world power.

1:9 Habakkuk had observed violence in Judah (v. 2), but Babylon relished violence. gather captives like sand: The Babylonians resettled numerous conquered peoples with little regard for them as individuals.

1:10 scoff . . . scorned: The Babylonians did not respect authorities and powers other than their own. deride every stronghold: The Babylonians mocked human systems of fortification, bursting through any defense they encountered.

1:12 Are You not . . . my Holy One: Habakkuk's point seems to be that God's holiness should have prohibited Him from using a “dirty” instrument like Babylon to accomplish His purposes in judging and reproving His own people.

1:13 purer eyes: Habakkuk wondered how God could look on as the wicked Babylonians perverted justice. A person more righteous than he: This was the ethical dilemma that faced Habakkuk: The Judeans were less corrupt and idolatrous than the Babylonians, who were being used to judge them for their sins.

- And hold Your tongue when the wicked devours
A person more righteous than he?
14 Why do You make men like fish of the sea,
Like creeping things that have no ruler over them?
- 15 They take up all of them with a hook,
They catch them in their net,
And gather them in their dragnet.
Therefore they rejoice and are glad.
16 Therefore ⁿthey sacrifice to their net,
And burn incense to their dragnet;
Because by them their share is ⁶sumptuous
And their food plentiful.
17 Shall they therefore empty their net,
And continue to slay nations without pity?

2 I will ^astand my watch
And set myself on the rampart,
And watch to see what He will say to me,
And what I will answer when I am corrected.

The Just Live by Faith

- ²Then the LORD answered me and said:

And make it plain on tablets,
That he may run who reads it.

But at the end it will speak, and it will ^dnot lie.

1:14 Habakkuk’s charges against the Lord became even more daring. The prophet charged the Lord with reducing humans to the level of fish or insects and with causing chaos among the nations.

1:16 they sacrifice to their net: This phrase speaks of the contemptuous pride of the Babylonians in their devices of destruction.

1:17 Habakkuk wanted to know how God could allow the brazen activity of the Babylonians to continue unabated. The prophet reasoned that God surely had a desire to punish the Babylonians for their pride.

2:1 my watch . . . on the rampart: Habakkuk stationed himself as a watchman to look at the nations, as God had commanded him (1:5). The prophet also waited expectantly for God’s response to his three charges in 1:12–17. what He will say to me: Habakkuk’s faith is seen in his anticipation of a response from God. when I am corrected: This phrase indicates the prophet’s submission to God.

2:2 The command to write the revelation is unusual. Generally prophets spoke the word of the Lord first. The term vision here is related to the verb translated “saw” in 1:1. The noun speaks of a prophetic revelation (see Is. 1:1). he may run who reads it: Messengers would proclaim the divine oracle.

2:3 An appointed time speaks of a determined time in God’s eyes. Though it tarries, wait for it: God knows His plan and the outworking of all things in accordance with His purposes. The godly are responsible to study and proclaim His revelation while awaiting its fulfillment. it will surely come: The assurance of fulfillment lies in God Himself. It will not tarry: The fulfillment of the vision would not take any longer than God had planned.

2:4 The proud refers to the Babylonians, who exalted themselves and boasted of their conquests and power. His soul is not upright in him: The Babylonians had no regard for God, His commandments, or His people. the just shall live by his faith: True righteousness before God is linked to genuine faith in God. A proud person relies on self, power, position, and accomplishment; a righteous person relies on the Lord.

2:5 proud man: This arrogant and boastful person is a personification of Babylon (v. 4). The term hell is used here as a personification of death which, like a greedy person, is never satisfied (see Prov. 30:15, 16). all nations . . . all peoples: These peoples of the earth should have been gathered together before the Lord in holy worship (see Ps. 117:1); instead, they became morsels for the rapacious appetite of Babylon.

2:6 A woe oracle is an oracle of judgment consisting of two parts: a declaration of the wrong and a notice of impending judgment. The judgment usually applies the principle of the law of retaliation: a wrong would come back to haunt the wrongdoer. increases . . . what is not his: The Law prohibited lending for the purpose of charging interest (see Deut. 23:19). pledges: The practice of pledging something as a guarantee for repayment was permitted under the Law, but with limitations to ensure the humane treatment of people (see Ex. 22:26, 27; Deut. 24:10–13).

2:7 The Hebrew term for creditors has the idea of “those who bite,” suggesting sudden, hurtful attacks (see Mic. 3:5).

And the violence of the land and the city,
And of all who dwell in it.

9 “Woe to him who covets evil gain for his house,
That he may ^kset his nest on high,
That he may be delivered from the ⁵power of disaster!

10 You give shameful counsel to your house,
Cutting off many peoples,
And sin against your soul.

11 For the stone will cry out from the wall,
And the beam from the timbers will answer it.

12 “Woe to him who builds a town with bloodshed,
Who establishes a city by iniquity!

13 Behold, is it not of the LORD of hosts
That the peoples labor ⁶to feed the fire,
And nations weary themselves in vain?

14 For the earth will be filled
With the knowledge of the glory of the LORD,
As the waters cover the sea.

And ⁹be exposed as uncircumcised!
The cup of the LORD’s right hand will be turned against you,
And utter shame will be on your glory.

17 For the violence done to Lebanon will cover you,
And the plunder of beasts which made them afraid,
Because of men’s blood
And the violence of the land and the city,
And of all who dwell in it.

18 “What profit is the image, that its maker should carve it,
The molded image, a teacher of lies,
That the maker of its mold should trust in it,
To make mute idols?

19 Woe to him who says to wood, ‘Awake!’
To silent stone, ‘Arise! It shall teach!’
Behold, it is overlaid with gold and silver,
Yet in it there is no breath at all.

20 “But ^mthe LORD is in His holy temple.
Let all the earth keep silence before Him.”

2:9 evil gain: Gaining property through extortion and the abuse of power was strictly prohibited in the Law of Moses (see Deut. 16:19). his nest: As a bird builds a nest far away from people and wild animals, so the rich work hard at avoiding threats to their fortune.

2:11 the stone will cry out . . . the timbers will answer it: The whole structure of Israel’s society called out for justice; every part reverberated with the need for righting wrongs.

2:12 Micah also spoke against the leaders of Judah, who were developing the city and kingdom at the expense of humane treatment of others, and of justice (see Mic. 3:10).

2:13 LORD of hosts speaks of God as the commander of the armies of the heavens (see Hag. 1:5).

2:14 God’s future kingdom on earth will feature a reign of righteousness (see Is. 2:1–4; Mic. 4:1–5). All humanity on the renewed earth will know the Lord and live in accordance with His will. The structures of human systems, adequate as they are for the present, will fall under God’s judgment because they encourage a spirit of independence from Him. knowledge: What Satan fraudulently promised in Gen. 3:5, God will deliver. The glory of the LORD speaks of the full manifestation of His person, significance, presence, and wonder. The true knowledge of God in the time of His kingdom on earth will be like the waters—all-embracing, inescapable, and fully enveloping.

2:16 Only God’s kingdom is glorious. The glory of human kingdoms, such as Babylon, will be transformed into disgrace. be exposed: In their nakedness the Babylonians would expose themselves as being uncircumcised, not part of God’s people nor recipients of His mercy. The cup of the LORD’s right hand represents the wrath of God (see Is. 51:17, 22; Rev. 14:10; 16:19).

2:18 teacher of lies . . . trust in it: Idolatry begins with deception, encourages deception, and calls for a commitment to deception (see Is. 44:20).

2:20 the LORD is in His holy temple: These words are not set in a context of worship of God by His people. The Lord is sovereign and holy. He looks at the nations and holds them accountable. keep silence before Him: The call to silence is not an invitation to worship, but a command to reflect on the terrible state of all who fall into the hands of the angry God (see Zeph. 1:7).

(Heb. pesel) (2:18; Lev. 26:1; Deut. 5:8; 2 Kin. 21:7; Is. 42:17) Strong’s #6459

This term is related to a verbal root meaning “to hew out stone” or “to cut or carve wood” (see Ex. 34:4). A pesel is an image or idol in the likeness of a human being or animal made from stone, wood, or metal. God prohibited the Hebrews from making such idols at Mt. Sinai (Ex. 20:4). God intended the lack of images among the Hebrews to be one distinguishing feature of their true religion. Tragically, Israel followed the example of their pagan neighbors and worshiped carved images (Judg. 18:30; 2 Chr. 33:7). The psalmist describes such images as worthless and those who worship them as shameful (Ps. 97:7). Both Isaiah (Is. 40:19, 20; 44:9–20) and Habakkuk (2:18, 19) mock those who would put their trust in images made with mere human hands. They have no capacity to see, hear, speak, or do anything for their devotees.

3:2 I have heard: Habakkuk knew the stories of God's mighty acts as celebrated in song and in the feasts and festivals of Israel. These mighty acts included the Exodus from Egypt, the miracles by the Red Sea, and the conquest of the land. Speech here signifies the message of God's great acts, rather than the communication process. afraid: As he meditated on God's work in human affairs, Habakkuk was overcome with an awe-inspiring sense of the greatness of the Lord. revive . . . make it known: Habakkuk prayed for God's renewed involvement in Israel. In the midst of the years: This was a way of calling for a quick response.

3:3 Teman is a poetic reference to God's appearance at Sinai (see Deut. 33:2). Selah is probably a musical term, but its exact meaning is unknown. It may indicate a sudden shouting of "Amen," a moment of silence, or a musical chord.

3:4 Habakkuk compared the appearance of God at Sinai (v. 3) to a thunderstorm, with its darkness and flashing lights (see Ps. 18:9-14). His power was hidden: While God reveals evidence of His power, its totality and greatness remain hidden.

3:5 pestilence . . . fever: These plagues are personified as messengers of judgment (see Deut. 28:21, 22).

3:6 everlasting mountains . . . perpetual hills: The prophets often portrayed nature quaking, mountains shaking, and creation in turmoil at the coming of God (see Is. 24:1-3; Jer. 4:24-26; Mic. 1:3, 4; Nah. 1:5).

3:7 Cushan . . . Midian: These tribes are representative of the quaking nations.

3:8 rivers . . . sea: The Lord had divided the Red Sea and the Jordan River for His people to cross (see Ex. 14:26-15:5; Josh. 3:14-17). chariots of salvation: The appearance of the Lord was for the purpose of bringing deliverance to His people.

3:11 The sun and moon stood still: This is an allusion to the battle of Gibeon (see Josh. 10:12, 13). Habakkuk portrayed God as a Warrior armed with a bow, arrows, and a spear (see Ex. 15:3; Ps. 18:14; 77:17).

3:13 The Lord's acts of vengeance against the nations would comfort His people, because those acts would lead to Israel's salvation (see 2 Thess. 1:7). The people of God as a nation were anointed (see Ex. 19:6; Ps. 114:2). The house of the wicked is an allusion to Israel's redemption from Egypt.

3:16 Habakkuk was overcome with a sense of awe at God, as well as a sense of his own weakness. rest in the day of trouble: The prophet encouraged the godly not to be anxious in adversity.

3:19 The LORD God: Here the divine name Yahweh is tied to the term Adonai, which means "Lord." my strength: God will strengthen those who trust in Him (see Ps. 18:32, 39). He will give those who live by faith the same confidence that a surefooted deer has in climbing mountains (see Mal. 4:2). Like a victorious army, the righteous with God's strength will occupy the high hills.

THE BOOK OF ZEPHANIAH

WE HAVE A WORD for people who predict terrible times ahead: doomsayer. It's an unflattering word, meant to poke fun at the bearers of bad news. We don't really want to believe their predictions of doom, so we caricature them. Maybe they will feel ashamed and go away. Sometimes it helps a little when the prophet of doom offers a solution. The unspoken question "Is there any hope?" is on everyone's mind.

Zephaniah's message had both halves of the bad-news-good-news equation. His first words were bad news indeed: The day of the Lord was coming and that meant terrible judgment. The Israelites had acted like their pagan neighbors—they had scorned God's law, worshiped false gods, and sinned without remorse long enough. Now it was time to repent: They had to turn back to their God or face the consequences.

It was the "turn back to God" part of Zephaniah's message that offered a ray of hope. And to those who listened and responded to his call, the good news wiped out every line of bad. God would restore those who sought Him.

History tells us that it worked. The Book of Zephaniah tells about events that took place in the city of Jerusalem in the late seventh century B.C., when Josiah was king. The northern kingdom Israel had been destroyed nearly a century earlier by the Assyrians. The southern kingdom Judah had suffered under the extraordinarily wicked rules of Manasseh (697–642 B.C.) and Amon (642–640 B.C.). The evils of their reigns had made doom appear certain. But the godly King Josiah led an important revival that affected all Judah. Scripture reports that this revival, though short-lived, delayed God's judgment, the invasion by Babylon (2 Chr. 34:27, 28).

Zephaniah's message announced the day of the Lord—a coming day of doom—in the darkest of terms, but it also promised the blessing of future glory in a picture as bright as the doom was dark.

Author and Date The prophet Zephaniah traced his ancestry back four generations to Hezekiah, most likely Judah's famous king. After the long and evil reign of Manasseh (697–642 B.C.) and his son Amon (642–640 B.C.), Josiah began his rule of Judah. Zephaniah began ministering as prophet in Jerusalem in the same year as the great prophet Jeremiah (627 B.C.). They and Hulda the prophetess (see 2 Chr. 34:14–28) witnessed the religious reform that Josiah started, a reform that unfortunately did not last. After Josiah's death, the people returned to their errant ways; less than 50 years later (around 586 B.C.), God used Babylon to discipline them.

Themes Many books of prophecy in the Bible speak of “the day of the Lord” (especially the Book of Joel). This day is a time of judgment that includes both God’s people (Israel and Judah) and the surrounding nations. The prophet Zephaniah scolded Judah’s leaders for countless acts of wickedness (3:1–7). His prophecies against the nations included Philistia (2:4–7), Moab and Ammon (2:8–11), Ethiopia (2:12), and Assyria (2:13–15). These nations were judged because of pride and arrogance against God’s people and because of their continuing idolatry.

But the last section of Zephaniah’s prophecy contains words of hope (3:8–20): promises of protection for the remnant and promises for the future of those who know Him truly. In a future day, peoples of all nations will come to worship the Lord (2:11; 3:9). His own people will be renewed in righteousness (3:11–13). And the King of kings Himself will rule in their midst (3:15; see Rev. 21:1–6). That day of the Lord’s return will be a day of song and gladness. Even God will burst out in joyful singing (3:16, 17). The raging anger of the Lord (1:1, 2) will be replaced by His happy singing, for salvation will finally have come to His people.

Ashkelon tell. A tell is a hill formed by the accumulated debris of many ancient settlements one above the other. Ashkelon is one of the towns that Zephaniah predicted would be destroyed (Zeph. 2:4).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Jesus seized on Zephaniah’s picture of the day of the Lord. On one occasion He referred to Zephaniah 1:3, when He spoke of His second coming and gathering “out of His kingdom all things that offend, and those who practice lawlessness” (Matt. 13:41). On another occasion, Jesus no doubt envisioned Zephaniah’s description of “a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of devastation and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of trumpet and alarm” (Zeph. 1:15, 16).

Although Zephaniah doesn’t specifically name the Messiah as the subject of these scenarios, it is assumed. Who else could, as the prophet foretells, gather His people and reign in victory?

1:1 The word of the LORD which came: The messages of the OT prophets did not arise from the prophets’ own will, but from God Himself (see 2 Pet. 1:20, 21). Zephaniah means “Hidden in the Lord,” a name that relates to the principal message the prophet presented (2:3). The names of the prophets were often significantly associated with the message that God gave them to present to the people. Hezekiah most likely refers to the notable king of Judah (see 2 Kin. 18–20). Thus Zephaniah the prophet was related to King Josiah.

1:2, 3 utterly consume: The message of Zephaniah begins with a pronouncement of universal judgment (see Gen. 6–8). These words not only introduce the particular judgment that would be pronounced upon Judah (v. 4), but they also speak of the final judgment that will usher in the kingdom of God on earth (see Rev. 19). Stumbling blocks here refers to idolatry, or substitutes for God in the life and affections of a person. Because there is nothing in the universe that really may be compared to the Creator (see Is. 40:25), God abhors all forms of idolatry. Says the LORD: This phrase added gravity to the prophetic oracle and assured the hearer of the source of the message.

1:4–6 The message of God’s impending judgment on the nation of Judah and its capital city Jerusalem must have been startling to those who believed that God would never destroy the site of His holy temple (v. 12). every trace of Baal: Baal worship and its evils had led to the destruction of Israel and its capital Samaria in 722 B.C. Likewise, Baal worship and its associations would lead to the destruction of Judah and its capital Jerusalem in 586 B.C. Milcom is a reference to an Ammonite deity whose worship included acts of infant sacrifice (see 2 Kin. 23:10; Jer. 32:35). turned back: The people had experienced God and then turned away from Him.

1:7 Be silent: This prophetic call for silence was for solemn preparation for the horror of divine wrath (see Hab. 2:20; Zech. 2:13). The day of the LORD describes a period of unusual activity on the part of God in the affairs of His people. sacrifice: The people of God were expected to prepare sacrifices for the Lord as acts of contrition and celebration. But rebels, scofflaws, idolaters, and apostates would themselves become God’s sacrifice. His guests may be the birds of the heavens—vultures and buzzards who feed on carrion (see Rev. 19:21).

1:8, 9 Foreign apparel here suggests two things: (1) acts of greed and extortion against the populace, amassing funds for exotic clothing; (2) participation in foreign religious rites associated with exotic clothing. Leap over the threshold may refer to a pagan practice like the one mentioned in 1 Sam. 5:5. The priests of Dagon would not step on the doorway of the temple to Dagon because the hands and the head of Dagon had fallen there.

1:10, 11 On that day is a common way of referring to the coming time of judgment (or blessing) on the day of the Lord. Maktesh: Zephaniah shows his familiarity with the various quarters of Jerusalem as he mentions certain gates, sections, and districts of the city. Maktesh refers to a market district. Every area of the city would be affected by God’s judgment.

1:12, 13 The LORD will not do good, nor will He do evil: The complacency of the wicked people led them to believe that God is similarly complacent. Foolishly these people believed that the Lord would be inactive, neither blessing nor cursing, neither benefiting nor punishing His people.

‘The LORD will not do good,
Nor will He do evil.’
13 Therefore their goods shall become booty,
And their houses a desolation;
They shall build houses, but not inhabit them;
They shall plant vineyards, but ^anot

14 ^rThe great day of the LORD is near;
It is near and hastens quickly.
The noise of the day of the LORD is bitter;

There the mighty men shall cry out.
15 ^sThat day is a day of wrath,
A day of trouble and distress,
A day of devastation and desolation,
A day of darkness and gloominess,
A day of clouds and thick darkness,
16 A day of ^ttrumpet and alarm
Against the fortified cities
And against the high towers.

17 “I will bring distress upon men,
And they shall ^uwalk like blind men,
Because they have sinned against the LORD;
Their blood shall be poured out like dust,
And their flesh like refuse.”

18 ^vNeither their silver nor their gold
Shall be able to deliver them
In the day of the LORD’s wrath;
But the whole land shall be devoured
By the fire of His jealousy,
For He will make speedy riddance
Of all those who dwell in the land.

A Call to Repentance

2 Gather^a yourselves together, yes, gather together,
O ¹undesirable nation,
2 Before the decree is issued,
Or the day passes like chaff,
Before the LORD’s fierce anger comes upon you,
Before the day of the LORD’s anger comes upon you!
3 ^bSeek the LORD, ^call you meek of the earth,
Who have upheld His justice.
Seek righteousness, seek humility.
^dIt may be that you will be hidden
In the day of the LORD’s anger.

Judgment on Nations

4 For ^eGaza shall be forsaken,
And Ashkelon desolate;
They shall drive out Ashdod ^fat noonday,
And Ekron shall be uprooted.
5 Woe to the inhabitants of ^gthe seacoast,
The nation of the Cherethites!
The word of the LORD is against you,
O ^hCanaan, land of the Philistines:
“I will destroy you;
So there shall be no inhabitant.”
6 The seacoast shall be pastures,
With ²shelters for shepherds ⁱand folds for flocks.
7 The coast shall be for ^jthe remnant of the house of Judah;
They shall feed their flocks there;
In the houses of Ashkelon they shall lie down at evening.

1:14–16 The language of this passage is quite similar to Joel 2:1–11, on which it may be based in part. Near describes the imminence of the coming judgment. The references to clouds and darkness resemble Canaanite poetry in which clouds and thunder are associated with the false god Baal. The poets of the Bible used this language to describe the true God, who would send forth His judgments like lightning bolts from a dark mass of clouds (see Ps. 97:2–6). The references to fortified cities and high towers speak of the extent of God’s judgment. There would be no adequate defense against the Lord’s searing judgments.

1:17, 18 like blind men: God’s judgment would be so sudden and so overwhelming that the survivors would be in a state of shock, stumbling around in the dark.

2:1–3 The people doomed for judgment in the day of the Lord (1:14–18) were commanded to gather together, perhaps in repentance.

Seek the LORD: This is the language of true repentance, renewal, and regeneration. you will be hidden: Zephaniah used a play on words with the meaning of his own name, “Hidden in the Lord.” Even in the midst of the most calamitous of judgment scenes, the mercy and grace of the Lord is still available to a repentant people.

2:4, 5 The focus of the book moves from the description of God’s judgment on Judah and Jerusalem to a description of divine judgment on the surrounding nations. The judgment begins with the nation to the west, Philistia, and its major cities and seafaring industries. The five main cities of the Philistines were Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron, and Gath. All but Gath are mentioned here. Cherethites is another name for the Philistines. Canaan is the ancient name for the land of the people of Israel, derived from its prior inhabitants. A later name of the land was Palestine, a term derived from Philistine.

2:6, 7 The seacoast shall be pastures: The coastal cities of Philistia and the coastal plain that the Philistines dominated for so long would one day become the possession of the Hebrews. The same God who brought destruction upon the people of Judah (1:14–18) would restore their fortunes.

This Hebrew word may be translated humble (Ps. 34:2) or meek (Ps. 37:11; see also Matt. 5:5) and is derived from a verb meaning “to be afflicted” or “to be bowed down” (Ps. 116:10). Forms of this word occur twice in 2:3: first translated as meek and then as humility. The word frequently refers to the poor or oppressed (see Prov. 14:21; Amos 2:7). But it also signifies strength of character in enduring suffering without resentment. Such character is rooted in a strong faith in God and His goodness and a steadfast submission to the will of God.

2:8, 9 The peoples of Moab and Ammon to the east of Judah were hostile to the Hebrews from the earliest times. Moab shall be like Sodom: Here is God’s promise of retribution (see Gen. 19:12–29). 2:10, 11 The LORD will be awesome to them: There may be a double meaning in these words. For the righteous people of Judah and Jerusalem, there would be a response of awe and wonder before God, who had responded to the prayer of His servant. But for the wicked there would be quite another response, one of terror and dread. People shall worship Him: Not only would there be a righteous remnant in Judah, there would also be people coming to God from the nations of the earth. 2:13–15 Assyria was to the east. But the ancient armies could not march across the desert. Therefore they went around the desert and entered the land of the Hebrews from the north. The pelican and the bittern were birds found in remote areas (see Is. 34:11). Their presence in the ruins of Nineveh attest to the severity of the destruction announced on these people. the rejoicing city: The rejoicing here is ironic, seen as an act of the city’s complacency. Soon the judgment of God would descend suddenly, and the region would be useful only for herding animals. 3:1–4 The addressee of the prophetic word here is Jerusalem, the city of David. Jerusalem had become a center of oppression, rebellion, and apostasy. It would soon be marked by destruction. The expression of grief is reflective of God’s own heart. The princes, judges, prophets, and priests, whom God had especially designated to work for righteousness, were more wicked than the “regular” citizens of Jerusalem. These leaders were destroying and defrauding the weak, the needy, and the helpless. 3:5–7 Because He is absolutely righteous, God had no place in the midst of such an evil people. cut off nations: God’s punishment of Judah’s neighbors should have brought the people to their senses.

3:8 the fire of My jealousy: God’s response to the wickedness of Jerusalem was to declare His judgment. He would use other nations to punish the city for its rebellion.
3:9–13 The focus of the text moves to a time of national regeneration and restoration. Pure language refers to language used in the pure worship of God. One day human language will become a unifying element in the true worship of God. My worshipers: God’s people would come from all nations to worship Him.

Beyond the Rivers of Ethiopia

Christians of African descent may be interested in Zephaniah’s prophecy that the Lord would restore His “dispersed ones” from “beyond the rivers of Ethiopia” (3:10). This was a remarkable promise, given the map of the world in Zephaniah’s day. As far as we know, Ethiopia represented the southwestern limits of Judah’s knowledge of the world. The interior of Africa, “beyond the rivers of Ethiopia,” was literally “off the map” for the ancient Israelites. It was uncharted territory for them.

To what, then, was Zephaniah referring? The context shows that he was anticipating the day when the Lord would bring people from the ends of the earth to form a holy people who would worship and serve Him with true hearts (3:9, 12, 13). Among them would be people from “beyond the rivers of Ethiopia.”

The prophet called this new people “the daughter of My dispersed ones” (3:10) and “the remnant of Israel” (3:13). Thus Zephaniah’s vision seems to tie in with Jeremiah’s predictions of a scattering of the Jews throughout the world, followed by an eventual restoration (Jer. 30:10, 11, 18–22; 31:1–40).

Beginning in the sixth century, many Jewish colonies were established along the Nile and the Mediterranean coast of Africa. In fact, some have suggested that Zephaniah’s prophecy pertains to the Jewish community in northern Abyssinia. However, the prophecy may look beyond a strictly Jewish restoration. It seems to correspond with a prediction by David that Ethiopians would someday “stretch out [their] hands to God” (Ps. 68:31).

As far as we know, Zephaniah himself had no idea of the vast tribes of people living “beyond the rivers of Ethiopia.” But every time one of their descendants turns to faith in Christ, Africa adds one more member to the “peoples [of] a pure language” who are called to serve the Lord “with one accord” (Zeph. 3:9).

A sixteenth-century map showing Jerusalem at its center. Zephaniah knew even less about the world, and “beyond the rivers of Ethiopia” was literally “off the map.”

3:14–17 The people of God would be called to sing because their deliverance had come. Daughter of Zion is an affectionate title for the city of Jerusalem. In that day: The people are first commanded to abstain from fear, to keep from hanging their arms in a posture of resignation. Instead, they were to take encouragement and strength from the new reality that their God lived among them.

give you fame and praise: Ordinarily Scripture speaks of the praise that should be brought to God. Here we find the praise that God will bring to His people. As in the beginning of His dealings with Abraham and Sarah (see Gen. 12:1–3), where God promised blessing, honor, and a renowned name, so here God promises fame and praise to each individual in His family. Says the LORD: This is a solemn vow of God to do what He has promised. Zephaniah begins and ends with the strong assertion that the Lord is speaking. The implication is clear: “Listen and live!”

THE BOOK OF HAGGAI

HAGGAI was a prophet to the Jews who had returned from the Exile in Babylon. His first task was to force them to see where their hearts and priorities really lay. He urged them to do what they should have done from the start: to rebuild the temple with a willing heart. To these admonitions he added the promise of God to be with them. With this promise, the people could return to their first enthusiasm and carry out God's purposes for them. Then their worship would be joyful and sincere.

Author and Date Little is known of the prophet Haggai except what is in the book that bears his name. Ezra mentions him briefly in association with the prophet Zechariah (see Ezra 5:1; 6:14) and the rebuilding of the temple. The name Haggai means "Festival," an appropriate meaning given the prophet's work in restoring temple worship. But what is most remarkable about Haggai's ministry is its brevity; his messages were given in the span of only four months in 520 B.C.

Historical Setting When some of the Israelites returned from the Babylonian captivity beginning in 538 B.C., they determined to restore the worship of God to its rightful place at the center of their lives. They planned to build a new temple in Jerusalem (see Ezra 1). Sadly, however, their resolve seems to have vanished shortly after their arrival in Jerusalem. They built an altar on the original temple site and later laid the foundations for the new temple. But when enemies who lived in the vicinity applied pressure, the Persian king ordered the work on the temple to cease. A later emperor of Persia, Darius I, lifted the restrictions that had been placed on the rebuilding of the temple and told them to proceed. But even when the barriers were lifted, the people lapsed into spiritual lethargy. They were not the idolaters that their ancestors had been, but they had lost their early passion for the worship of the living God. They explained their behavior by advancing the time-honored excuse of procrastination: It just doesn't seem to be the right time (see 1:2).

When Haggai confronted the people, he addressed the problems of his day: the infertility of the land and the hard economic times (1:6). But he did not blame these problems on poor fiscal planning. Instead, he exhorted the people to focus on their spiritual condition. They were focusing on insignificant matters like the decoration of their homes, while every day they ignored God's temple lying in ruins. The temple was more than a building. It was the site of the people's meeting with the living God, the symbol of the abiding presence of the Creator of the universe. If the people ignored the physical ruin of the temple, they were ignoring the spiritual wreckage in their souls as well.

Zerubbabel the governor and Joshua the high priest, along with the people of God, responded quickly to the message of Haggai (1:12). Three weeks after Haggai gave his first message, they began their work on the temple (520 B.C.). Anticipating a positive response, Haggai came with another message. This was a simple one, but it had profound implications: Haggai assured them that the Lord was with them (1:13). This was the same message that Moses had brought to the Israelites in Egypt (Ex. 3:8). Indeed this would be the name of the coming Messiah—Immanuel, God with us (Is. 7:14). When the people chose to make God the center of their lives, the Lord could Himself remain in their midst even without a physical building.

Theology To emphasize some key points about the people's attitude towards God, Haggai posed a couple of questions. One of these was about the laws concerning what was clean and unclean (2:10–14). These laws had several purposes: (1) they protected people from diseases; (2) they taught certain spiritual lessons; (3) they created in the people an instinctive sense of right and wrong. In other words, they underscored the message that the Lord, and not any person, determines what is good or evil. Haggai asked the priests if cleanness or holiness might be transmitted through touch. The priests answered that it could not. Then the prophet asked if uncleanness could be transmitted through touch. The answer was yes. Haggai applied this principle to the nation. An indifferent attitude toward the construction of the temple had polluted everything the people touched. Their attitude made the work of their hands unacceptable to the Lord. Even though the temple work had begun, the people's hearts left them unclean in the eyes of the Lord. Even so, God in His great grace would still bless His people.

In a question-and-answer format (2:15–19), Haggai also encouraged the people to think about their circumstances before they started to build the temple. None of their past work had resulted in success: "Is the seed still in the barn?" (2:19). But from that day God would bless His people, because they had reordered their priorities. They had put the worship of the Lord before their own welfare (1:4, 14). Out of the bounty that the Lord would provide, the Israelites would be able to bring the proper sacrifices of true worship into the new temple.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

When Haggai writes "The glory of this latter temple shall be greater than the former" (2:9), he is certainly referring to the reconstructed temple Herod would enlarge. When Jesus set foot inside, the presence of the incarnate God filled that "latter temple" with the glory of which Haggai spoke.

Beyond this prophet's words, we also see the Messiah represented in one of Haggai's peers whom we meet in the book. Zerubbabel is the governor of Judah after the exiles return. Based on what the Lord has told him to say, Haggai declares that Zerubbabel will become the signet ring of the Most High. In other words, he will be the proof of God's authority. Although Jesus will be the eventual Signet, Zerubbabel becomes the center of the Messianic line for a time. Like a king's ring, he seals both the preexilic and postexilic branch of David's lineage together.

Signet rings were used in the ancient Near East to sign one's name. The impression of the ring would be pressed into wax or clay to sign legal documents. In Haggai 2:23, the Lord tells Zerubbabel, "I will make you like a signet ring, for I have chosen you."

The Command to Build God's House

In ^athe second year of King Darius, in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came by ^bHaggai the prophet to ^cZerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to ^dJoshua the son of ^eJehozadak, the high priest, saying, ²“Thus speaks the LORD of hosts, saying: “This people says, “The time has not come, the time that the LORD’s house should be built.””

⁷Thus says the LORD of hosts: “Consider your ways! ⁸Go up to the ^kmountains and bring wood and build the ²temple, that I may take pleasure in it and be glorified,” says the LORD. ⁹“You looked for much, but indeed it came to little; and when you brought it home, ^mI blew

The People's Obedience

¹²^qThen Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the LORD their God had sent him; and the people feared the presence of the LORD. ¹³Then Haggai, the LORD’s messenger, spoke the LORD’s message to the people, saying, ^r“I am with you, says the LORD.” ¹⁴So ^sthe LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, ^tgovernor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; ^uand they came and worked on the house of the LORD of hosts, their God, ¹⁵on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of King Darius.

The Coming Glory of God's House

² In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month, the word of the LORD came ¹by Haggai the prophet,

1:1 second year . . . sixth month . . . first day: The date for this first message of God through Haggai is August 29, 520 B.C. The prophecies of Haggai are among the most precisely dated in the OT. Zerubbabel was the governor of Jerusalem at the time of Haggai’s ministry and the governor of the first group of returning exiles from Babylon (see Ezra 3:2; Neh. 7:7).

1:2 The time has not come: The people had decided that rebuilding the Lord’s dwelling among His people was not important.

1:4 The principal building material in Jerusalem was stone. Those who wanted to make their houses elaborate installed wood panels. The people of Haggai’s time were making their homes elegant, rivaling royal residences and the holy temple itself. But they still did not feel that the “time was right” to begin working on the renewed temple. While this verse is not a blanket condemnation of elegant living among God’s people, it certainly calls for a reevaluation of priorities.

1:5 Consider your ways: The people were asked to mull over their habits and activities and to ask whether their attitude was sensible before the Lord.

1:6 God asked the people to take stock of their lives. Though they ate and drank, they never seemed satisfied. Though they put on clothes, they never felt warm. Wage earners constantly felt as though their pockets had holes in them through which their money was lost.

1:8 The people were instructed to go to great lengths to get wood for paneling the temple of the Lord (v. 4). that I may take pleasure in it: God’s joy in the temple is related to His pleasure in the people who would worship Him there. be glorified: Clearly God does not need to receive more glory (see Ps. 24:7–10); however, He gladly receives the adoration of His people.

1:9 runs to his own house: Because of their preoccupation with personal comfort, the people were ignoring the central spiritual concerns of their lives. Their faulty principle of life was being shaken by the Lord. The Savior Jesus later proclaimed the true and abiding principle for the life of faith: “But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you” (see Matt. 6:33).

1:10 The blessing and cursing formula of the Lord’s covenant with His people comes into play here (see Deut. 28). Dew is a poetic way of speaking of rainfall.

1:12 The remnant of the people were literally those who had made the trek back to Judah from their place of captivity in Babylon; it also refers to those within a larger population who are faithful to the Lord.

1:13 I am with you: God’s promise to Moses was, “I will certainly be with you” (see Ex. 3:12). God’s promise to the people of Judah was that the name of the Coming One would be Immanuel, meaning “God is with us” (see Is. 7:14). Here God repeated the same message of comfort and encouragement.

1:14 This verse bears witness to the work of God’s Spirit on the human spirit of His leaders and His people to accomplish His tasks. It is reminiscent of God’s work in stirring up the people to build the original tabernacle (see Ex. 35:29; 36:2). remnant: Always within Israel a remnant existed. Paul stated there was such a remnant in Elijah’s time (see Rom. 11:2–4; compare 1 Kin. 19:18).

2:1 twenty-first of the month: By our calendar this would be October 17, 520 B.C. In the ancient Jewish calendar this day was the last day of the Feast of Tabernacles or Succoth (see Lev. 23:33–44).

saying: ²“Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the remnant of the people, saying: ^{3a}‘Who is left among you who saw this ²temple in its former glory? And how do you see it now? In comparison with it, ^bis this not in your eyes as nothing?’ ⁴Yet now ^cbe strong, Zerubbabel,’ says the LORD; ‘and be strong, Joshua, son of Jehozadak, the high priest; and be strong, all you people of the land,’ says the LORD, ‘and work; for I am with you,’ says the LORD of hosts. ^{5d}‘According to the word that I covenanted with you when you came out of Egypt, so ^eMy Spirit remains among you; do not fear!’

⁶“For thus says the LORD of hosts: ^f“Once more (it is a little while) ^gI will shake heaven and earth, the sea and dry land; ⁷and I will shake all nations, and they shall come to ^hthe ³Desire of All Nations, and I will fill this ⁴temple with ⁱglory,’ says the LORD of hosts. ⁸‘The silver is Mine, and the gold is Mine,’ says the LORD of hosts. ^{9j}‘The glory of this latter ⁵temple shall be greater than the former,’ says the LORD of hosts. ‘And in this place I will give ^kpeace,’ says the LORD of hosts.”

¹⁵ And now, carefully ^oconsider from this day forward: from before stone was laid upon stone in the temple of the LORD— ¹⁶since those days, ^pwhen one came to a heap of twenty ephahs, there were but ten; when one came to the wine vat to draw out fifty baths from the press, there were but twenty. ^{17q}I struck you with blight and mildew and hail ^rin all the labors of your hands; ^syet you did not turn to Me,’ says the LORD. ¹⁸Consider now from this day forward, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, from ^tthe day that the foundation of the LORD’s temple was laid—consider it: ^{19u}Is the seed still in the barn? As yet

During this holiday the people of Israel lived in booths, or temporary shelters, commemorating their departure from Egypt when they lived in temporary shelters in the wilderness.

2:2 Speak now: Haggai was called again to address the leaders Zerubbabel and Joshua (1:1) and the true people of God (1:12).

2:3 The temple of Solomon was one of the wonders of the ancient world (see 1 Kin. 6). The older temple would have loomed large and magnificent, far outstripping the present structure. So even though the building was completed, there may have been the sense among some of the people that it was as nothing.

2:4 I am with you: The Lord’s words to the people (1:13) were the same as His great words to Moses (see Ex. 3:12). The words of this verse draw a comparison between the events of this period and the events of the first Exodus. God brought the people back from Babylon as He had brought them back from Egypt. The message to the first set of leaders, Moses and Aaron, and to the second, Zerubbabel and Joshua, was the same: God would be present with them. Finally, the mission in the Promised Land was the same, to build a place for the true worship of God.

2:5 According to the word: The same covenant that related the people to God in their departure from Egypt bound them still. The events surrounding the decline of the nation and the people’s captivity in Babylon had not rescinded the covenant relationship that insured God’s presence with His people (see Ex. 29:42–46).

2:6 I will shake: This is another way of speaking of the day of the Lord. The purpose of the day of the Lord is to prepare the earth for the glorious reign of Jesus Christ on earth (see Matt. 24:29; Rev. 6:12–17).

2:7 Desire of All Nations: Some interpret these words as a messianic title that speaks of the joy of the redeemed of the nations at the time of the rule of King Jesus. Others observe that the Hebrew word meaning desire is used principally for objects (as in 2 Chr. 32:27; Hos. 13:15; Nah. 2:9) rather than persons. However, the word is used occasionally for persons (see 1 Sam. 9:20).

2:8 silver . . . gold: God owns the cattle on a thousand hills, the gold in all coffers, and the wealth of all nations.

2:9 Peace includes good health, well-being, and an abundant life. The term speaks of everything being as it ought to be.

2:10 The twenty-fourth day of the ninth month corresponds to December 18, 520 B.C. on our calendar.

2:11 The responsibilities of the priests included leading public worship and instructing the people in the nature and meaning of God’s law.

2:12 will it become holy: Since the role of the priest was to interpret God’s law, it was reasonable that questions on holiness should be addressed to them. Haggai asked whether holiness could be transferred by contact. The answer was no.

2:13, 14 It shall be unclean: The priests were asked if a religiously unclean person, someone who had touched a corpse, could contaminate someone else by touch. The answer was yes (see Num. 19:11–13). The people had worked hard to rebuild the temple, only to be told that their worship would be unacceptable in the new temple. The existence of the temple itself guaranteed nothing. The hearts of the people had to be in harmony with the sacrifices being made.

2:16, 17 you did not turn to Me: Despite God’s acts of withholding His blessing, the people still had not turned fully back to Him.

2:18, 19 from this day: God determined to bring His blessing on His people, but He demanded that they recognize Him as the source of their great productivity.

the vine, the fig tree, the pomegranate, and the olive tree have not yielded fruit. But from this day I will “bless you.””

Zerubbabel Chosen as a Signet

²⁰ And again the word of the LORD came to Haggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month, saying, ²¹ “Speak to Zerubbabel, ¹⁰ governor of Judah, saying:

Every one by the sword of his brother.

²³ ‘In that day,’ says the LORD of hosts, ‘I will take you, Zerubbabel My servant, the son of Shealtiel,’ says the LORD, ^a ‘and will make you like a signet ring; for ^b I have chosen you,’ says the LORD of hosts.”

2:22 I will overthrow: Haggai focused on the power of God to do as He wills among the nations (see Dan. 2:21). These words speak both in a general way of the sovereignty of God over the nations throughout history, as well as more specifically of God’s final judgment on the wicked nations at the time He institutes the rule of His Son as King of kings (see Ps. 2; 110; Rev. 19).

2:23 A signet ring was an item of great value in the ancient world. The owner used it much like we use our personal signature on checks or other important documents. God used this imagery to indicate that Zerubbabel was in His hand, that he was highly valued, and that he represented God’s authority in his leadership of the people. Even though the people had been told they were still unclean in God’s eyes (see 2:10–14), their leader Zerubbabel was encouraged to guide them through those spiritually trying times.

(Heb. chotham) (2:23; Gen. 38:18; 1 Kin. 21:8; Jer. 22:24) Strong’s #2368

The Hebrew noun signet ring is derived from a verbal root meaning “to affix a seal,” “to seal up,” or “to fasten by sealing.” The signet in OT times was an engraved stone set in a gold or silver finger ring, bracelet, or armband (see Song 8:6). When pressed upon wax or soft clay, the ring left the impression of the personal insignia of the bearer (see Ex. 28:11, 21, 36; 39:6, 14, 30). The signet ring was like an identification card or badge in the ancient world (Gen. 38:18). It symbolized status or position and the binding nature of the authority attached to items sealed by the ring (1 Kin. 21:8; Job 38:14). Haggai’s comparison of Zerubbabel to a signet ring (2:23) has messianic implications, since Zerubbabel would overturn the curse of Jeremiah on King Jehoiachin’s dynasty and restore royal authority to the line of King David (Jer. 22:24–30).

ZECHARIAH

ENCOURAGEMENT and hope are the underlying themes of the prophecies of Zechariah. The prophet Zechariah was one of the three prophets, along with Haggai and Malachi, who ministered to the exiles returning to Jerusalem. These exiles faced the ruins of what had once been a splendid city and a glorious temple. There was much to be sad about, but Zechariah encouraged the exiles with visions of judgment on Israel's enemies and of the complete restoration of the city of Jerusalem. Yet the most thrilling vision of all was the prediction of a coming King—the Messiah who would bring eternal salvation and the promised eternal kingdom.

Author and Date The name Zechariah means “Yahweh Remembers.” This powerful phrase communicates a message of hope: The God of Israel will mercifully remember His people. The prophet is identified as “the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo.” Iddo was among the heads of the priestly families that returned from Babylon to Judah. Zechariah, then, was a member of the tribe of Levi and probably served as both a priest and a prophet. He entered his prophetic ministry two months after his contemporary Haggai had concluded his first oracle.

Those who question the unity and single authorship of Zechariah usually argue that chapters 9–14 date from the Hellenistic period (331–167 B.C.) or the Maccabean period (167–73 B.C.). The reference to “Greece” in 9:13 has often been cited as evidence for a late date, after Alexander's conquests (c. 330 B.C.). However, Greek influence was strong in the ancient Middle East as early as the seventh century B.C. Greece is mentioned by the eighth-century prophet Isaiah (see Is. 66:19, where Greece is referred to as Javan) and the sixth-century prophet Ezekiel (see Ezek. 27:13, 19 for Javan). Those who hold to the unity of the book generally date its completion between 500 and 470 B.C. Zechariah began his prophetic ministry in the second year of the Persian king Darius (522–486 B.C.) and his last dated prophecy was delivered two years later, in 518 B.C.

Historical Setting Zechariah lived and prophesied during the period following the Babylonian captivity (597–538 B.C.). Jeremiah had predicted that the Israelites would return to the Promised Land after 70 years of discipline in exile. God began fulfilling this promise when He raised up Cyrus king of Persia, whose military exploits brought about the capture of Babylon in 539 B.C. Following his victory, Cyrus decreed that all exiled peoples could return to their homelands. The people of Judah were among those who benefited from this reversal of Babylonian policy. The first group of Jews returned under the leadership of Sheshbazzar (Ezra 1:8) in 537 B.C. The altar for the temple was erected in the fall of that year, but construction of the temple itself did not begin until the spring of 536 B.C.

Opposition to the temple rebuilding by enemies of the Jews living in and around Judah resulted in the abandonment of the work until 520 B.C. During these 16 years of neglect the people of Judah lost their vision and sense of spiritual purpose. Their procrastination resulted in divine chastening (Hag. 1:11; 2:17). Although the crops failed and the people languished, they did not repent until God raised up two prophets to turn the people back to Himself. In 520 B.C., Haggai called for the Israelites to recognize their spiritual priorities and rebuild the temple. Zechariah began his prophetic ministry just two months after Haggai (compare 1:1 with Hag. 1:1).

The ministries of Haggai and Zechariah did not cease when work began in earnest on the temple. The prophets continued to encourage the people. Haggai's messages were delivered in 520 B.C.; Zechariah's last dated prophecy was given in 518 B.C. (7:1). With the people committed to restoring the worship of the Lord and the temple, God poured out His blessing on a repentant and spiritually revitalized people. The temple was completed in 515 B.C. and rededicated with great rejoicing.

Purpose and Themes Zechariah's prophecies had two purposes. First, they challenged the returning exiles to turn to the Lord, to be cleansed from their sins and to experience again the Lord's blessing (see 1:3). Second, Zechariah's words comforted and encouraged the people regarding the rebuilding of the temple and God's future work among His people (1:16, 17; 2:12; 3:2; 4:9; 6:14, 15).

In the first several chapters, Zechariah encourages the people by focusing on God's choice of Jerusalem (1:17; 2:12; 3:2). The Lord had not set aside His ancient covenant people. Through Zechariah, God not only reaffirmed Jerusalem's divine election, but promised to come among His returning people and live in their midst (see 2:10, 11; 8:3, 23). It was through His personal presence among His people that God would accomplish a miraculous work. In the second half of the book, Zechariah details God's future dealings with His chosen people, revealing the overthrow of Israel's enemies, the future glories of Zion, and the universal reign of the Messiah. This is the overarching theme of the book: The complete restoration of God's people would occur in the redeeming and delivering work of the coming Messiah.

Theology Zechariah teaches a great deal concerning the First and Second Comings of Jesus the Messiah. He refers to the Messiah as the "BRANCH" (3:8), God's "Servant" (3:8), and God's "Shepherd" (13:7). There is also an allusion to the Messiah's ministry as a Priest-King in 6:13 (see Heb. 6:20—7:1). Furthermore, he prophesied the Messiah's entrance into Jerusalem on a colt (9:9; see Matt. 21:4, 5; John 12:14–16), His betrayal for 30 pieces of silver (11:12, 13; see Matt. 27:9, 10), the piercing of His hands and feet (12:10; see John 19:37), and the cleansing from sin provided by His death (13:1; see John 1:29; Titus 3:5). In fact, chapters 9–14 of Zechariah are the most quoted section of the Prophets in the narratives of the Gospels.

Concerning the Messiah's Second Coming, Zechariah prophesied such future events as the conversion of Israel (12:10—13:1, 9; see Rom. 11:26), the destruction of Israel's enemies (14:3, 12–15; see Rev. 19:11–16), and the reign of Christ in a new Jerusalem (14:9, 16; see Rev. 20:4–6).

Along with his emphasis on the Messiah, Zechariah appropriately gives an important message about God's plan for salvation. The importance of repentance and returning to the Lord of Hosts is emphasized in the introduction (1:3–6). And then in 3:1–5, Zechariah provides a striking illustration of the removal of sin and the imputation of righteousness. The removal of the high priest's filthy garments and the provision of clean festal robes illustrates the work of Christ. Through His atoning death, Christ strips us of our filthy sins and clothes us with His own righteousness. In this way we can approach our holy God.

True religion, according to Zechariah, is not found merely in external acts of religious piety, but is based upon a personal relationship with God (7:5–7). Such a relationship with God should change one’s attitude to one’s neighbors. Like the prophets before him, Zechariah condemned the oppression of the widow, the orphan, the stranger, and the poor (7:10). As a preacher of righteousness, he called God’s people back to the virtues of justice, kindness, compassion, and truth (7:9; 8:16).

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Zechariah includes clear passages that point to God’s Anointed One. Jesus is portrayed in His first and second comings as both Servant/King and Man/God respectively. He appears as the Angel of the Lord (3:1, 2), the Branch (3:8; 6:12), and the King–Priest (6:13).

Predictions about Jesus are found in several places—9:9, 10 anticipates the Savior’s Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem on that first Palm Sunday; 11:11–13 describe Jesus betrayed for 30 shekels of silver; 12:10 predicts the Messiah’s piercing (12:10) and 13:7 his abandonment. Chapter 14 prophesies Jesus as the coming Judge and righteous King.

A Call to Repentance

In the eighth month ^a of the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came ^b to Zechariah the son of Berechiah, the son of ^cIddo the prophet, saying, ²“The LORD has been very angry with your fathers. ³Therefore say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: “Return ^d to Me,” says the LORD of hosts, “and I will return to you,” says the LORD of hosts. ⁴“Do not be like your fathers, ^eto whom the former prophets preached, saying, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: ^f“Turn now from your evil ways and your evil deeds.”’ But they did not hear nor heed Me,” says the LORD.

- ⁵ “Your fathers, where are they?
And the prophets, do they live forever?
⁶ Yet surely ^gMy words and My statutes,
Which I commanded My servants
the prophets,
Did they not overtake your fathers?

“So they returned and said:

- ^h“Just as the LORD of hosts determined to do to us,
According to our ways and according to our deeds,
So He has dealt with us.’ ”

Vision of the Horses

⁷On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to Zechariah the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo the prophet: ⁸I saw by night, and behold, ⁱa man riding

The LORD Will Comfort Zion

1:1 The eighth month corresponds to October–November on our calendar. Darius ruled Persia from 522 to 486 B.C. Thus his second year was 520 B.C. The name Zechariah means “Yahweh Remembers,” emphasizing God’s faithfulness to His covenant promises and to His people.

1:2 The fathers refers to the ancestors of the present generation who had disobeyed God and come under His judgment (see 2 Chr. 36:15, 16).

1:3 The words return to Me remind us of the depth of God’s unconditional love. says the LORD of hosts: The personal name translated “LORD” speaks of God’s gracious nature as He relates to His people (see Ex. 3:15); the hosts are the angelic armies that await His every command.

1:4 The former prophets refers to men like Habakkuk, Zephaniah, and Jeremiah, who had lived during the last years of the Judean monarchy and had warned of coming judgment.

1:5, 6 Their fathers had been killed or exiled and even the prophets had perished. The previous generation had been overtaken by God’s judgment (see Deut. 28:15–68).

1:7–6:15 This section contains a sequence of eight night visions concerning Israel’s future, followed by the symbolic crowning of the high priest Joshua. Here Zechariah pursues the same end as Haggai, rebuilding the temple as the center of worship and world rule, and as a place of pilgrimage for the nations (8:20–23; Hag. 2:7–9). The eight night visions follow a general pattern. Zechariah describes what he sees, then asks the question, “What does this mean?” Finally he is given an explanation by an accompanying angel.

1:7 The eleventh month (Shebat) is the Babylonian name) corresponds to January–February, 519 B.C. the word of the LORD: Here the phrase refers to a prophetic vision.

1:8 Myrtle is an evergreen tree that was once very common in the vicinity of Jerusalem (Neh. 8:15).

1:12, 13 The prophet overhears a conversation between the Angel of the LORD and God. This may be a conversation between the pre-incarnate Jesus and the first Person of the Trinity, God the Father (see Ps. 110). It is certainly an allusion to Jesus’ role as Intercessor. As the author of Hebrews states, Jesus lives to make intercession for us (Heb. 7:25) at the right hand of the Father. The seventy years refers to the period of exile during which the temple lay in ruins (586–515 B.C.; see Jer. 25:7–14).

1:14 the angel who spoke with me: This is the interpreting angel in the dramatic vision, not the Angel of the Lord (v. 11). I am zealous: The passion of the Lord can be seen in His defense of His special relationship with Israel and Jerusalem.

1:15 I am exceedingly angry: Here the anger of God was against the nations that He had used to punish His unrepentant people.

1:16 God promised to show compassion on His people and to rebuild the Jerusalem temple (My house). A surveyor’s line was

My 'house "shall be built in it," says the LORD of hosts,
"And 'a surveyor's line shall be stretched out over Jerusalem."

Vision of the Horns

¹⁸Then I raised my eyes and looked, and there were four ^yhorns. ¹⁹And I said to the angel who talked with me, "What are these?"

So he answered me, ^z"These are the ⁶horns that have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem."

²⁰Then the LORD showed me four craftsmen. ²¹And I said, "What are these coming to do?"

So he said, "These are the ^ahorns that scattered Judah, so that no one could lift up his head; but ⁷the craftsmen are coming to terrify them, to cast out the horns of the nations that ^blifted up their horn against the land of Judah to scatter it."

Vision of the Measuring Line

2 Then I raised my eyes and looked, and behold, ^aa man with a measuring line in his hand. ²So I said, "Where are you going?"

Future Joy of Zion and Many Nations

used to make measurements in preparation for new construction. The stretching of the line was a promise that the work would begin and that the completion of the task would follow.

1:17 again choose Jerusalem: Jerusalem's election is a prominent emphasis in Zechariah (2:12; 3:2). The word Zion describes Jerusalem in an affectionate way (see Zeph. 3:14).

1:18 Animal horns were often used by poets and prophets as symbols of powerful nations and their kings (see Dan. 7:7, 8, 24). The horns that persecuted Israel and Judah included Assyria, Babylon, Medo-Persia, and later Greece.

1:20, 21 four craftsmen: The craftsmen or "smiths" destroyed the horns (v. 19). Historically, Babylon destroyed Assyria, Medo-Persia conquered Babylon, Greece conquered Medo-Persia, and Rome overcame Greece. These are dominant themes in the prophecies of Daniel (see Dan. 2, 7).

2:4, 5 This young man refers to Zechariah. Here the words may indicate that Zechariah was young when he began his prophetic ministry (see Jer. 1:6). towns without walls: Jerusalem will have no need for defensive fortifications because God's presence will guarantee its safety and security. These words refer ultimately to the future Jerusalem under the rule of its glorious king (see Zeph. 3:15–19). I will be the glory: These words drive us to the vision of the New Jerusalem (Rev. 21:1–3, 10, 11, 22, 23).

2:6 Although Babylon was east of Israel, travelers typically followed the Euphrates River and approached Israel from the north.

2:7 The name Zion may have first applied to the Jebusite stronghold captured by David (2 Sam. 5:7). It was later used for the temple mount (Ps. 78:68, 69) and became a synonym for Jerusalem (Is. 40:9; Mic. 3:12). Daughter of Babylon signified the people living in the city of Babylon.

2:8, 9 The word touches refers to a touch that produces harm. The apple of His eye refers to the pupil—this is an endearing expression, suggesting how enormously important the Hebrew people are to God because of His covenant with them. Just as we protect our eyes from even the smallest particles of dust, so God protects and cares for His people. Then you will know: The fulfillment of this prophecy would authenticate Zechariah's commission as God's spokesman (see Deut. 18:21, 22).

2:10 daughter of Zion: As elsewhere, we may think of this phrase as a particularly affectionate manner of addressing Jerusalem and its people as the daughter of the Lord (see Zeph. 3:14).

2:11 Many nations refer to Gentiles who will enter into a relationship with God and become His people (Gen. 12:3; Joel 2:28; Amos 9:12; Rev. 21:24). The words My people are used elsewhere in the context of the renewal of God's covenant with His believing people (Jer. 31:33; 32:38; Hos. 2:23; see also Ex. 3:7; Deut. 4:20; 14:2; 26:19).

2:12 Surprisingly, the familiar phrase the Holy Land occurs in the OT only here. The land is holy because of the presence of God among His believing people.

2:13 God had aroused Himself from His heavenly sanctuary and ⁵And I said, “Let them put a clean ^hturban on his head.”

So they put a clean turban on his head, and they put the clothes on him. And the Angel of the LORD stood by.

was about to intervene on behalf of His people. Hence be silent was not an anticipation of worship, but calls for terror at the judgment that was about to be unleashed from God’s glory (see Zeph. 1:7).

3:1 Zechariah saw a heavenly courtroom where Joshua, representing the people of Judah, was standing before the Angel of the LORD and was being accused by Satan. This is not the Joshua who succeeded Moses, but the high priest who returned to Jerusalem with the exiles (Ezra 3:2). Satan: The Hebrew is literally “the Satan,” meaning “the Accuser.” The picture is not unlike that of Job 1, where Satan stands before the Lord making accusations against people who follow God.

3:2 The LORD rebuke you, Satan: These words presuppose an earlier conversation in which Satan made accusations against the people and their priest. We are reminded that Satan is not sovereign; He is subject to the Sovereign Lord who will handle him. The brand plucked from the fire refers to Judah, delivered from the fire of Babylonian captivity. Joshua, their priest, represented the nation, a people of God’s favor.

3:3 The high priest represented the people before God (see Ex. 28:29) and under no circumstances was to become defiled or unclean (Ex. 28:2; Lev. 21:10–15). Joshua’s filthy garments were literally “befouled with excrement.”

3:4, 5 The cleansing of Joshua was not complete with the removal of his sin-soiled garments. God replaced the dirty clothes, dressing Joshua in clean garments that represented the gift of God’s righteousness. As sin is removed by the work of Christ, so His righteousness is placed in the believer’s account (see Rom. 5:18, 19; 2 Cor. 5:21). We are clothed in the garments of Christ’s righteousness. The fact that Joshua had no part in his cleansing indicates that this work was totally by God’s grace.

3:7 Joshua was recommissioned as the nation’s high priest. For his faithfulness he was promised the privilege of exercising authority over God’s temple—My house—and its courts.

3:8 The coming Messiah is depicted as God’s Servant (Is. 53:11). He is also referred to as the BRANCH. Isaiah used this word and a similar one to describe the Messiah who will grow out of the root of the family of Jesse as a tender sprout shoots up from the ground (see 6:12; Is. 4:2; 11:1; 53:2). Joshua and his companions were a sign because the reinstitution of the priesthood made public God’s continuing intention to fulfill His promises to His people.

3:9 stone: Like the priest Aaron, who possessed a jeweled ephod (see Ex. 25:7; 35:9), so the new priest possessed a lustrous stone, a symbol of the authority of his office. The eyes may be symbolic of wisdom and of the endowment of the Holy Spirit (see 4:10; Is. 11:2).

3:10 Sitting under the vine and under the fig tree is an image of peace and tranquility characteristic of the messianic kingdom (Mic. 4:4).

4:1 wakened me: It appears that these night visions came in the course of a single night.

4:2, 3 The lampstand of solid gold would remind the people of the lampstand in the tabernacle and the temple.

(Heb. mal'ak) (4:1; 2 Sam. 2:5; 24:16; Ps. 34:7; Is. 37:9) Strong’s #4397

This noun may refer to angelic beings (4:1, 5; Gen. 19:1; Ps. 91:11), human messengers (Gen. 32:3; Deut. 2:26), or ambassadors (Is. 30:4; Ezek. 17:15). A special use is the manifestation of the Godhead known as the Angel of God in the OT (2:6; see Gen. 21:17; Ex. 14:19). In the OT, prophets (Hag. 1:13) and priests (Mal. 2:7) function as messengers from God. In Zechariah, angels bring revelations from God about the future and interpret the meaning of dreams and visions (1:14; 6:4, 5). Jesus identified the messenger who prepared the way for the day of the Lord, forecast in Mal. 3:1, as John the Baptist (Matt. 11:10, 11).

4:6 The rebuilding of the temple, which had at last begun in earnest (Ezra 5:1, 2; Hag. 1:14), would be accomplished not by human strength or resources, but by the power of God’s Spirit.

4:7 The great mountain was a figurative reference to the great obstacles the people faced in rebuilding the temple (Ezra 5:3–17). The setting of the capstone would mark the completion of the project. The words Grace, grace to it may be understood as a prayer for God’s favor, or as a cry of admiration over the grace and beauty of the newly built temple.

4:9 His hands: The promise concerning Zerubbabel is significant; the task that he began he would also complete.

4:10 the day of small things: There is nothing wrong with a small work. Little can indeed be much if God is in it. These seven, a number used symbolically to represent the idea of completeness, are identified as the eyes of the Lord (see “eyes” in 3:9). The fact that these eyes will rejoice at the plumb line in Zerubbabel’s hand suggests the delight of God over the rebuilding of the temple.

4:11–14 The two olive branches are identified as two anointed ones, representatives of the religious and political offices in Israel, or of priest and king. Many identify the two branches with the high priest Joshua and the governor Zerubbabel.

5:2 A scroll was made of rolled parchment or leather and was the ancient equivalent of a book (see Jer. 36:1–8). A cubit was about 18 inches. The scroll, approximately the size of a billboard, measured about 15 by 30 feet.

5:3 The writing on the scroll was a message of judgment. The curse refers to the judgments spoken of in the Mosaic covenant (Deut. 30:7). The message on the scroll warned that the curses described in the covenant as a result of the people’s disobedience would be executed upon the whole land.

5:4 And consume it: God’s great love does not preclude the exercise of His judgment on those who violate His will. The judgment upon the disobedient would be certain and severe.

5:6 The word translated basket is literally ephah, a unit of dry measure of about half a bushel. The word translated resemblance was understood as iniquity in some ancient versions.

The Command to Crown Joshua

⁹Then the word of the LORD came to me, saying: ¹⁰"Receive the gift from the captives—from Heldai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah, who have come from Babylon—and go the same day and enter the house of Josiah the son of Zephaniah. ¹¹Take the silver and gold, make ⁱan ²elaborate crown, and set it on the head of ^jJoshua the son of Jehozadak, the high priest. ¹²Then speak to him, saying, 'Thus says the LORD of hosts, saying:

^mAnd He shall build the temple of the LORD;

¹³ Yes, He shall build the temple of the LORD.

He ⁿshall bear the glory,
 And shall sit and rule on His throne;
 So ^oHe shall be a priest on His throne,

And the counsel of peace shall be between ⁴them both."

5:7, 8 The woman sitting inside the basket is Wickedness, a personification of sin.

5:9 Next Zechariah saw two women, God's agents, disposing of the wicked woman in the basket. the wings of a stork: The stork is a migratory bird frequently seen traveling north along the Jordan valley in the spring of the year.

5:11 Shinar was an ancient name for the district in which the cities of Babylon (Babel), Erech, Accad, and Calneh were located (Gen. 10:10; 11:2). The fact that a house was built for the woman suggests that the removal of wickedness (v. 8) from Israel was permanent.

6:1 chariots: In ancient times two-wheeled and four-wheeled horse-drawn carts served as vehicles for transportation and for warfare. The war chariots usually had a crew of two or three men including a driver, an archer, and a defender who used a shield to protect the others.

6:5 These chariots and their teams represented four spirits of heaven, probably angels.

6:6, 7 The horses were eager to take the four spirits on their mission to bring divine judgment on the peoples of the earth.

6:8 The activity of the chariot teams would give rest to God's Spirit because His agents would be executing His judgment on the nations that threatened Israel. Cyrus's overthrow of Babylon in 539 B.C. may well have been a part of this judgment (Is. 13:1–22; 45:1–6).

6:10, 11 The captives refer to the new arrivals from Babylon, who brought gifts of silver and gold to help the restored community of Israelites. The elaborate crown was possibly a composite crown made up of several circlets. The crown was to be placed on the head of Joshua the high priest.

6:12 The Messiah Himself will build the temple of the Lord. Since the restoration temple (the second temple) was already being built and would be completed by Zerubbabel (see 4:9), the temple referred to here may be the future temple of the messianic kingdom (see Is. 2:2–4; Ezek. 40–42; Mic. 4:1–5; Hag. 2:7–9). The temple of Zerubbabel was a prophetic symbol of the temple that is still to come.

6:13 He will sit and rule and be a priest. In the Messiah the two offices of king and priest will be united (John 1:49; Heb. 3:1).

BRANCH

(Heb. tsemach) (3:8; 6:12; Is. 4:2; Jer. 23:5) Strong's #6780

The Hebrew term translated as BRANCH here means "Shoot" or "Twig." This is one title for the coming Messiah, the "Branch" who would "shoot" up from the royal stock of David, a dynasty that had been interrupted with the Babylonian exile (Is. 11:1). Many of the prophets promised that a King from David's line would reign in righteousness (Jer. 23:5, 6) and as a priest would reestablish true worship of the Lord (6:12, 13). In His ministry, Jesus Christ fulfilled these predictions by taking on both a royal (see John 12:13–15; 1 Tim. 6:13–16) and a priestly role (see Heb. 4:14).

¹⁴“Now the ⁵elaborate crown shall be ^pfor a memorial in the temple of the LORD ⁶for Helem, Tobijah, Jedaiah, and Hen the son of Zephaniah. ¹⁵Even ^qthose from afar shall come and build the temple of the LORD. Then you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent Me to you. And this shall come to pass if you diligently obey the voice of the LORD your God.”

Obedience Better than Fasting

⁴Then the word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying, ⁵“Say to all the people of the land, and to the priests: ‘When you ^cfasted and mourned in the fifth ^dand seventh months ^eduring those seventy years, did you really fast ^ffor Me—for Me? ^{6g}When you eat and when you drink, do you not eat and drink for yourselves? ⁷Should you not have obeyed the words which the LORD proclaimed through the ^hformer prophets when Jerusalem and the cities around it were inhabited and prosperous, and ⁱthe ⁶South and the Lowland were inhabited?’”

Deut. 4:27; 28:64; Neh. 1:8

6:15 Those from afar include Gentile peoples (see 8:22; see Hag. 2:7-9; Eph. 2:13).

7:1 The fourth year of Darius was 518 B.C. The ninth month or Chislev (the Babylonian name) corresponds to November-December.

7:2 The words translated house of God may also mean “Bethel,” a town 12 miles north of Jerusalem. Over two hundred Jews from Bethel returned from Babylon in 538 B.C. (Ezra 2:28; Neh. 7:32), and the city was reoccupied during the restoration period (Neh. 11:31). It seems most likely that the people of Bethel sent a delegation to ask a question of the priests in Jerusalem.

7:3 The house of the LORD of hosts refers to the temple in Jerusalem. The fast in the fifth month (July-August) commemorated the destruction of the temple in 586 B.C. (2 Kin. 25:8). The delegation from Bethel wanted to know if it was necessary to continue this annual fast as it had been observed during the Babylonian captivity.

7:5, 6 did you really fast for Me—for Me: The rhetorical question was designed to confront the people and priests with the selfish motives of their self-righteous fasting. Biblical fasting is meant to be time taken from the normal routines of preparing and eating food to express humility and dependence on God during a time of prayer. There was only one required fast in the Law of Moses, the fast on the Day of Atonement (see Lev. 16:29). The fast during the seventh month lamented the slaying of Gedaliah (2 Kin. 25:25). The seventy years (see 1:12; Jer. 25:11; 29:10) refer to the period of time while the people were in exile and the temple lay in ruins. for yourselves: Their fasting and their feasting were both motivated by self-interest rather than a desire to honor God.

7:7 The former prophets were those who ministered before the Exile (1:4; see 2 Chr. 36:15, 16). The South is the Negev, the dry region of Judah around Beersheba. The Lowland is the transitional region between the hill country of Judah and the coastal plain.

7:9, 10 Zechariah’s four admonitions highlight the practical social concerns that many of the prophets emphasized (Is. 1:11-17; Hos. 6:6; Mic. 6:6-8). Execute true justice: Judicial decisions must be made without partiality or bias. Show mercy and compassion: Loving commitment and concern should guide our relationships with others. Do not oppress: No advantage is to be taken of the helpless and less fortunate. Let none of you plan evil: Evil scheming against others is prohibited. Sacrifices and worship are of little interest to God if they are not accompanied by practical piety.

7:11-14 Zechariah describes the response of the disobedient Judeans living in the land before the Babylonian exile. The consequence was God’s judgment—they were scattered.

8:1-3 The Lord again states that He is zealous for Jerusalem (1:14; see Nah. 1:2). This theme in Zechariah emphasizes the Lord’s great passion for His people. He longed to bless them with His presence and in turn desired their worship. Zion is the poetic equivalent of Jerusalem (see 2:7). The label City of Truth will be valid only when the Messiah brings His righteous reign to that city. Then the land will be holy (see 2:12).

8:4, 5 Zechariah predicts that in the future messianic era, Jerusalem will be inhabited and secure. The longevity of the citizens and the presence of children at play in its streets suggests the city’s future prosperity and divine blessing.

8:6 The rhetorical question implies that nothing is too marvelous or difficult for God.

8:7, 8 The terms east and west represent all parts of the earth. The expressions My people and their God (see 2:11) occur in the descriptions of God’s covenant relationship with His people (Ex. 19:5; 29:45; Lev. 26:12; Hos. 2:23). With these words, Zechariah anticipates a renewal of God’s covenant with His people (see Jer. 31:31–34).

8:9 The foundation of the second temple was laid in 536 B.C. (see Ezra 3:8–13).

8:10 no wages . . . no peace: Zechariah recounts the desperate situation in Judea before the work on the temple resumed in 520 B.C. (see Hag. 1:1, 6, 10, 11; 2:16, 17).

8:11–13 In the past, the people had been subject to God’s discipline. In view of their recent obedience with regard to rebuilding the temple, they could now anticipate His blessing. Let your hands be strong: In view of God’s gracious purposes and future plans for His people, they were called to be diligent in their present efforts to serve Him with sincere hearts (see 1 Cor. 15:58).

8:16, 17 Zechariah set forth the ethical obligations of a life of faith. He upheld the positive values of truth and justice and condemned evil plans and false oaths. The words speak each man the truth are quoted by Paul in Eph. 4:25.

9:9 This prophecy was fulfilled on the day of the Triumphal Entry, when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on the colt of a donkey (Matt. 21:2–7; John 12:12–15). The donkey was the mount of princes (Judg. 5:10; 10:4; 12:14) and kings (2 Sam. 16:1, 2).

9:10 Instruments of warfare—the chariot and the battle bow—will be destroyed and universal peace will be established. Ephraim refers to the northern tribes of Israel. The River refers to the Euphrates, the northeast boundary of the Promised Land (Gen. 15:18).

9:11, 12 The release of prisoners announced here would serve as a great encouragement for the Jewish people still in exile. Even though the prisoners were living in a well-watered place in Persia (see Ezek. 1:1), they were in a place akin to a waterless pit in terms of their opportunity for spiritual nourishment. They were exhorted to return to the stronghold Jerusalem.

9:13 Zechariah used a bold metaphor likening Judah and Ephraim to a bow and arrow prepared by the Lord to be used against Greece, literally Javan (see Is. 66:19).

9:14 whirlwinds: This description, patterned after God’s appear-

The Coming King

Luke tells us that after Jesus ascended to heaven, the disciples returned to Jerusalem (Luke 24:52). They also went back to the Scriptures. The Old Testament suddenly blossomed with good news. Everywhere they looked they found evidence that pointed toward the specifics of Jesus’ life and ministry. When they wondered why they had missed the connections before, they must have also remembered Jesus’ promise, “When He, the Spirit of truth, has come, He will guide you into all truth” (John 16:13).

When the Gospel writers recorded the details of Jesus’ life, they often used references from the Old Testament to illustrate how clearly Jesus fulfilled the character of the promised Savior and the prophecies regarding His ministry. They particularly enjoyed quoting Old Testament passages that clearly predicted the suffering and rejection aspects of the Messiah’s role. For them, it was the central theme that set Jesus apart from the popular ideas of a conquering and powerful political messiah.

Zechariah 9:9, 10 presents a prophecy whose fulfillment was clearly set in motion (although not completed) by Jesus’ arrival in Jerusalem on a colt, the well-known Triumphal Entry. Both Matthew and John mention this passage. John even notes that the disciples saw no immediate connection between Jesus riding on the colt and His identity as the Messiah prophesied in Zechariah. After Jesus was glorified, “then they remembered that these things were written about Him” (John 12:16).

These verses in Zechariah include an important transition. The arrival of the saving King is followed immediately by a description of the effects of His long-term reign. This is an example of “prophetic compression.” Viewed from the broader context of prophecy, Zechariah was mentioning together two stages in God’s plan which are actually separated in time. The coming King would arrive twice. Jesus came first as a humble King of peace and salvation, accomplished in Jesus’ earthly ministry and His death on the Cross. Second, Jesus will come as a victorious Ruler over all the world who will “speak peace to the nations.” We should rejoice over Jesus’ first coming and anticipate the complete fulfillment of Zechariah’s prophecy at Christ’s glorious return.

Zechariah 9:9, 10 presents a prophecy whose fulfillment was clearly set in motion by Jesus’ arrival in Jerusalem on a colt.

9:15 Zechariah describes the victory banquet of God's people in celebration of His victory over the nations and securing of Jerusalem. The people will be filled with drink like sacrificial basins were filled with blood, and they will be filled with meat like the corners of a sacrificial altar (see Ps. 110).

9:17 The abundance of grain and new wine suggests the prosperity and blessing of this future day (see 3:10; 8:4, 5; see also Amos 9:13).

10:1 The latter rain (Deut. 11:14) refers to the rain that comes in late spring and is essential for an abundant grain harvest.

10:2 Idols refers to household gods (see Gen. 31:19). Diviners, like Balaam, interpreted omens as a means of foretelling the future (Josh. 13:22; 1 Sam. 6:2). no shepherd: The metaphor of shepherd was often used in the ancient Middle East to represent a king or ruler (see Ezek. 34:6–8, 23, 24). Here the emphasis was on the lack of spiritual leadership.

10:3 While Israel lacked national leadership, there were plenty of tyrants seeking to rule God's people. These goatherds will be judged. By way of contrast, God will strengthen the house of Judah as an instrument to overthrow these oppressors.

10:4, 5 The poetic metaphors in these verses reflect the strength, stability, and victory that God will impart to His people (vv. 3, 6).

Cornerstone is an image of steadfast strength or stability, coupled with beauty and honor (Is. 28:16; see also Ps. 118:22). tent peg: A peg firmly in place suggests permanence and endurance (Is. 22:23). battle bow: This image pictures the strength necessary for military conquest (2 Kin. 13:17).

10:6 The house of Judah indicates Israel's southern territory. The house of Joseph is Israel's northern territory, dominated by Ephraim (v. 7) and Manasseh, tribes named after Joseph's sons (Gen. 41:51, 52). The promise I will bring them back is a promise of restoration. The dispersed remnant of Israel would return to the Promised Land (see Matt. 24:31).

10:7 What was promised to Judah in v. 5 is here promised to Ephraim, as if with wine: Wine is used here as a symbol of abundant joy (Ps. 104:15; see Amos 9:13; John 2:1–11).

10:8 As a shepherd signals his sheep, so the Lord will whistle for His people to return to the land. For I will redeem them: God will deliver them from sin (3:4, 9) and from the bondage of captivity (Matt. 24:31).

10:9 Being sown among the peoples was God's punishment of the exiles for their disobedience (Deut. 28:63, 64). The words they shall remember Me anticipate their turning to the Lord in repentance.

They shall live, together with their children,

Prophecy of the Shepherds

⁴ Thus says the LORD my God, “Feed the flock for slaughter, ⁵ whose owners slaughter them and ^c feel no guilt; those who sell them ^f say, ‘Blessed be the LORD, for I am rich’; and their shepherds do ^g not pity them. ⁶ For I will no longer pity the inhabitants of the land,” says the LORD. “But indeed I will give everyone into his neighbor’s hand and into the hand of his king. They shall ² attack the land, and I will not deliver them from their hand.”

⁷ So I fed the flock for slaughter, ³ in particular ^h the poor of the flock. I took for myself two staffs: the one I called ⁴ Beauty, and the other I called ⁵ Bonds; and I fed the flock. ⁸ I ⁶ dismissed the three shepherds ⁱ in one month. My soul loathed them, and their soul also abhorred me. ⁹ Then I said, “I will not feed you. ^j Let what is dying die, and what is perishing perish. Let those that are left eat each other’s flesh.” ¹⁰ And I took my staff, ⁷ Beauty, and cut it in two, that I might break the covenant which I had made with all the peoples. ¹¹ So it was broken on that day. Thus ^k the ⁸ poor of the flock, who were watching me, knew that it was the word of the LORD. ¹² Then I said to them, “If it is ⁹ agreeable to you, give me my wages; and if not, refrain.” So they ^l weighed out for my wages thirty pieces of silver.

¹³ And the LORD said to me, “Throw it

Shall live implies more than mere survival. God promises spiritual life and blessing to the repentant.

10:10 Assyria is the region of northern Mesopotamia. Egypt and Assyria had been lands where Israel was captive. Gilead is the territory east of the Jordan and southeast of the Sea of Galilee. Lebanon is the region north of Galilee. The future restoration will be so complete that the land will be filled with people.

10:11 God would remove any impediment to Israel’s return. Zechariah used imagery from the Exodus—the sea, the River—to illustrate the kinds of obstacles God would overcome (see Ex. 14:21–31; Josh. 3:14–17).

10:12 I will strengthen them: The regathering will be accomplished by God’s power as He gives strength to His people. they shall walk . . . in His name: In the last days, Israel will return to the land as a believing nation (v. 8; 12:10—13:1; Rom. 11:26).

11:1 Lebanon was known for its beautiful and fragrant cedars, trees used by Solomon in building his palace and the temple.

11:2, 3 The cypress, or juniper, will wail for the cedars of Lebanon. The shepherds will wail because the grazing lands will be ruined. The lions will roar because of the destruction of the pride of the Jordan, the jungle thicket that was their shelter.

11:4 Zechariah was commanded to feed or pasture the flock of God’s people Israel, knowing it was destined for slaughter.

11:6 The petty tyrants and oppressors (v. 5) will fall victim to foreign kings who attack the land.

11:7 In obedience to God’s command (v. 4), Zechariah pastured the flock doomed for slaughter. As shepherds carried implements to guide and protect the sheep (Ps. 23:4), so Zechariah had two staffs.

Their names Beauty and Bonds suggest that he wanted the flock to enjoy God’s favor and to experience national unity. According to Canaanite legend, the god Baal was given the two clubs named Driver and Chaser to battle the dark deities of the sea. It is appropriate that God’s messenger Zechariah is given shepherd’s staffs to guide the people, instead of clubs for fighting.

11:8 three shepherds: Some have suggested that the three shepherds represent classes of rulers in Israel: kings, priests, and prophets. Others suggest that they refer to the last three kings of Judah or to certain high priests of the Maccabean era.

11:9 Let what is dying die: The judgment which God has decreed should be accepted, not resisted. eat each other’s flesh: Cannibalism was one of the horrors of famine that resulted from siege warfare (Deut. 28:54–57; Lam. 4:10).

11:10 The breaking of the staff Beauty symbolizes the end of God’s protection of His people. break the covenant: God’s unconditional promise to Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3) or to David (2 Sam. 7:12–16) would never be broken. Like Ezekiel’s covenant of peace (Ezek. 34:25), the covenant here may refer to an agreement with the Gentile nation on Israel’s behalf.

11:12 Zechariah, taking the role of the messianic shepherd, requested his wages for service rendered. His wage was calculated as thirty pieces of silver, the price of a slave (Ex. 21:32). This was the price paid to Judas for betraying Jesus (see Matt. 27:6–10).

11:13 The command throw it to the potter is further illuminated by Zechariah’s action. He threw them into the house of the LORD for the potter. Potters may have been connected with the temple because of the continual need for sacred vessels (Lev. 6:28).

to the ^mpotter”—that princely price they set on me. So I took the thirty pieces of silver and threw them into the house of the LORD for the potter. ¹⁴Then I cut in two my other staff, ¹Bonds, that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

¹⁵And the LORD said to me, “Next, take for yourself the implements of a foolish shepherd. ¹⁶For indeed I will raise up a shepherd in the land who will not care for those who are cut off, nor seek the young, nor heal those that are broken, nor feed those that still stand. But he will eat the flesh of the fat and tear their hooves in ^opieces.

⁷“The LORD will save the tents of Judah first, so that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall not become greater than that of Judah. ⁸In that day the LORD will defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; the one who is feeble among them in that day shall be like David, and the house of David shall be like God, like the Angel of the LORD before them. ⁹It shall be in that day that I will seek to ^hdestroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

11:14 The rejection of the messianic shepherd, represented by Zechariah, meant that the national unity the Israelites hoped for would not be achieved at this time. But one day the two nations Judah and Israel will be united (Ezek. 37:16–28).

11:15, 16 To take the implements of a foolish shepherd means to behave like one. Eat the flesh and tear their hooves expresses the savagery of a foolish shepherd.

11:17 The worthless shepherd will be judged. His arm, which should have been used to protect the sheep, will wither. His right eye, which should have watched over the sheep, will be blinded.

12:1 As in 9:1, the burden is a weighty judgment that the prophet must discharge. Three phrases are used here in describing the greatness of God as Creator of the heavens, the earth, and the spirit of man.

12:2 Jerusalem is depicted as a cup of wine or strong drink which causes drunkenness. The cup is a common metaphor for God’s wrath (see Is. 51:17; Jer. 25:15; Ezek. 23:33; Rev. 14:10; 16:19). Siege warfare involved encircling a city to prevent the inhabitants from fleeing and to cut off all supplies of food and water.

12:3 Jerusalem is compared to a heavy stone that brings injury to anyone who tries to remove it from its place.

12:5 The governors or leaders of Judah would affirm God’s power to deliver through His people. The people’s strength would be in the LORD (see Phil. 4:13).

12:6 Judah is likened to (1) a firepan used to carry hot coals for the purpose of starting a fire, and (2) a fiery torch that could quickly ignite a field of cut grain.

12:7 Tents of Judah alludes to Jews living outside Jerusalem in the rural districts of the land. The house of David means David’s descendants.

12:8 With bold analogy, Zechariah likens David’s descendants to God. The Angel of the LORD is clearly a divine being (Ex. 23:20; Num. 22:22; Judg. 2:1; 13:15–22).

12:9 All the nations that have attacked Jerusalem (v. 2) will be judged and destroyed (Matt. 25:31–46).

12:10 pour: This metaphor is derived from the deluge of winter rains and speaks of abundant provision (Job 36:28; Is. 44:3; Lam. 2:19). Spirit of grace refers to the gracious working of the Holy Spirit that leads to conviction and repentance (John 16:8–11). supplication: The Spirit will stimulate an attitude of repentance and prayer for God’s mercy. There are many significant ministries of the Holy Spirit in the period of the Hebrew kingdom. Me whom they pierced: Jewish commentators often regard this as a corporate reference to the Jews killed in the defense of Jerusalem (12:1–9). The Jewish Talmud views the text as referring to the Messiah who will be pierced in battle. The messianic view is favored by the fact that Jesus was pierced with a spear after His death on the Cross (John 19:34). 12:11 Hadad Rimmon may have been the site of some tragedy whose grief was still vividly remembered. Or the place may have been associated with religious rites involving mourning.

14 Behold, ^athe day of the LORD is coming,

And your ¹spoil will be divided in your midst.

12:12-14 All of Israel will mourn for the Messiah, including members of the royal family and the priests, the house of David and the house of Levi. wives by themselves: These words are quoted in the Talmud as an argument for separating men and women in worship. But the verse seems to indicate that each mourner will face his or her sorrow alone, without the comfort of companionship. Shimei was Levi’s grandson (Num. 3:18, 21).

13:1 The fountain is an image of abundant, overflowing provision. Cleansing from the impurity of sin was made available by Christ at the Cross. At the time of Christ’s second coming, the repentant and believing remnant of Israel will appropriate that provision and enter into the benefits of the New Covenant (Jer. 31:31-34; Ezek. 36:25-28). Paul anticipated this great day in Rom. 11:26.

13:2 cut off the names of the idols: In ancient times, a person’s name reflected his or her reputation. Zechariah anticipated the complete removal of the reputation and acknowledgment of false gods.

13:3 According to the Law of Moses (Deut. 13:5; 18:20), a false prophet must be put to death. The startling thing here is that the false prophet’s parents must confront the offender and carry out the penalty.

13:4 False prophets will deny that they are prophets for fear of punishment and will refuse to wear a robe of coarse hair, the traditional prophet’s clothing (2 Kin. 1:8; Matt. 3:4).

13:5 Instead of laying claim to prophetic office, they will say they have been farmers from their youth. This seems to be a parody of Amos 7:14.

13:6 It is likely that the wounds betrayed the profession of an ecstatic prophet who slashed himself on the back or breast. The words between your arms refer to the body, either the back or the chest. Self-inflicted wounds were thought to gain the attention and blessing of the gods (see 1 Kin. 18:28). Under questioning, the man declares that the wounds were received from friends so that he will not be found out as a false prophet and be put to death (v. 3).

13:7 The sword, an instrument of death, is likened to a warrior being roused for action. The Lord commands the sword to strike the Messiah, My Shepherd. This clearly indicates that the death of Jesus was no accident, but was divinely determined. My Companion: This term is used elsewhere of one who is a near neighbor or close companion (Lev. 6:2; 18:20; 19:15). It suggests a relationship of equality. The little ones may be first-century disciples, unbelieving Jews of all ages, or a faithful remnant of the future. Since Jewish people have suffered throughout history (the Crusades, the Spanish Inquisition, the Nazi Holocaust), this passage may be taken as a general prophecy of persecution and suffering for the shepherdless people of Israel.

13:8 Zechariah revealed the devastating result of God’s dealing with His errant flock. The scattered flock will face a great judgment in which only one-third will survive.

13:9 The remnant that survives will be purged, purified, and re-established in a covenant relationship with God. refined: The smelting pot uses intense heat to separate the dross from pure metal. tested: Once refined, precious metal must be analyzed to determine its value. The expressions this is My people and the LORD is my God recall the covenant (Lev. 26:12) and speak here of a covenant renewal to a spiritually revitalized Israel (Ezek. 36:28; Hos. 2:23; Rom. 11:26, 27).

14:1 Some have suggested that this spoil refers to what is seized from Israel’s enemies, apparently anticipating the victory mentioned

- 2 For ^bI will gather all the nations to battle against Jerusalem;
The city shall be taken,
The houses ²rifled,
And the women ravished.
Half of the city shall go into captivity,
But the remnant of the people shall not be cut off from the city.
- 3 Then the LORD will go forth
And fight against those nations,
As He fights in the day of battle.
- 4 And in that day His feet will stand ^con the Mount of Olives,
Which faces Jerusalem on the east.
And the Mount of Olives shall be split in two,
From east to west,
^dMaking a very large valley;
Half of the mountain shall move toward the north
And half of it toward the south.
- 5 Then you shall flee through My mountain valley,

- ¹¹ The people shall dwell in it;
And ^ono longer shall there be utter destruction, ^pBut Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited.
- ¹²And this shall be the plague with which the LORD will strike all the people who fought against Jerusalem:

in v. 14. The immediate context, however, indicates that the spoil was taken from Jerusalem by her enemies (v. 2).

14:2 The remnant of the people who survive the attack are evidently the one-third that will be brought through the refiner’s fire (13:8, 9).

14:3 The LORD will turn Jerusalem’s defeat into a victory. God the Warrior (Ex. 15:3) will intervene on Israel’s behalf against the attacking nations.

14:4 Zechariah provides further details about how Jerusalem’s deliverance will come about. The Mount of Olives, located east of Jerusalem and the Kidron Valley, is a north-south hill about 2,700 feet in elevation. The Messiah will return to the Mount of Olives, the very mountain from which He will have ascended after His time on earth (Acts 1:10, 11). On the day of Messiah’s return, the mount will be split by a deep east-west valley.

14:5 The splitting of the Mount of Olives will provide a way of escape for the besieged and defeated people in Jerusalem. The site of Azal has not been identified but must be somewhere in the desert east of Jerusalem. The flight of the surviving remnant from Jerusalem is likened to what took place following the earthquake in the days of Uzziah. The saints are literally the “holy ones,” angels who will accompany Jesus at His return (Mark 8:38; 2 Thess. 1:7).

14:6, 7 Cosmic upheaval is associated with the Second Coming. The glory of the Messiah’s kingdom is preceded by dark days of judgment. there will be no light: The imagery of darkness as a portent of judgment is common in the prophets (Is. 5:30; 8:22; 13:9, 10; Ezek. 32:7, 8; Amos 5:18, 20; Zeph. 1:14, 15).

14:8 The term living waters describes running water from a spring or river, in contrast to the stale and stagnant water of a cistern (Jer. 2:13). The water will flow from Jerusalem toward the eastern sea (the Dead Sea) and the western sea (the Mediterranean). In contrast with the seasonal streams that flow only during the rainy season, these streams will irrigate the land both summer and winter.

14:9 Zechariah anticipates the glorious day when the LORD will reestablish His reign on this earth, where it was first challenged by Satan (see Rev. 20:1-3; also Ps. 93:1; 97:1; 99:1). This will be the answer to the prayers of all those who pray Jesus’ words, “Your kingdom come” (Matt. 6:10). The words the LORD is one speak of His unity and His uniqueness (see Deut. 6:4).

14:10 Geba was 6 miles northeast of Jerusalem. Rimmon was about 35 miles southwest of Jerusalem. Benjamin’s Gate was most likely the gate in the north wall of the city. The First Gate has not yet been identified. The Corner Gate probably marked the northwest limit of Jerusalem. The Tower of Hananel was probably a defensive fortification on the north wall.

14:11 people shall dwell in it: This is a contrast to the time of Nehemiah when the population of Jerusalem was sparse (Neh. 7:4; 11:1). In the Lord’s coming kingdom, the city will be inhabited and its citizens secure.

14:12 plague: This word was used to describe the judgments of God upon the Egyptians (Ex. 7:17—12:30).

Their flesh shall ⁸dissolve while they stand on their feet,
Their eyes shall dissolve in their sockets,
And their tongues shall dissolve in their mouths.

- ¹³ It shall come to pass in that day

14:14 As the attackers are destroyed, the people of Judah will join the citizens of Jerusalem in recovering the spoil taken by the enemy (v. 1) and capturing additional booty (see Hag. 2:7, 8).

14:16 Repentant and believing people among those nations that had attacked Jerusalem (vv. 1, 2) will worship the King (Jesus the Messiah) and celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles, a fall harvest festival that commemorated the wilderness experience of Israel (Lev. 23:33–43). This feast of thanksgiving is the only one of the many feasts that will still be appropriate in the new kingdom—the others will have been fulfilled, but thanksgiving will be a continual theme in Messiah’s kingdom.

14:17–19 The nations that are unwilling to come to Jerusalem to worship King Messiah and celebrate the feast will be subject to divine judgment. Egypt is used as an example, since it was a traditional enemy of Israel.

14:20, 21 In Messiah’s kingdom, the people of Judah and Jerusalem will fulfill their destiny as a holy, priestly nation (Ex. 19:6). The words HOLINESS TO THE LORD will be inscribed on the gold headband worn by the high priest (Ex. 28:36). Holiness will so permeate Mes-siah’s kingdom that even the lowly cooking pots will be holy. The name Canaanite here refers to the merchants who frequented Jerusalem and the temple courts with their wares (see Neh. 13:19–22; Matt. 21:12; John 2:14). None will profiteer in the worship of God in the coming age. God’s search for true worshipers will be realized in a company of devoted, holy people.

THE BOOK OF

MALACHI

THIS FINAL BOOK of the Old Testament is about the error of forgetting the love of God. When people forget God's love, it affects their attitudes, home, and worship. With God's love and loyalty in doubt, sacred commitments no longer remain sacred. God sent Malachi to rouse the people from their spiritual stupor and to exhort them to return to the living God. But the Book of Malachi reveals a people who question the reality of their sin and the faithfulness of God, a people hardened through and through. Thus the book ends on a poignant note, a confrontation between a disappointed God and a disappointed people. In a sense, the Book of Malachi shows that the Old Testament comes to a chasm, with the bickering voices of the people on one side and the stern warnings of God on the other. Only the Lord Himself could provide a way out of this impasse. Malachi looks forward to this deliverance, for he speaks of the one who would prepare the way for the Messiah. The promised Messiah was the only One who could bridge that widening chasm between the people and their God.

Author Nothing is known of the prophet Malachi apart from this book. We are not even sure that Malachi was the name of the prophet. The word means "My Messenger," and it is possible that the first verse should be translated, "The burden of the word of the LORD to Israel by My Messenger." In any case, Malachi's name identifying him as a messenger of God highlights one of the major themes of the book. Malachi prophesies that God would send a "messenger," a prophecy of John the Baptist, and "the Messenger of the covenant," a prophecy of Jesus (3:1).

In 2:7 the role of a priest is described as "messenger of the LORD of hosts." Based on that description, a priest-prophet in the temple might have used the designation "My Messenger" for himself. Because of the writer's apparent concern with the priesthood, it may be argued that the author of the book was a priest to whom God also gave a prophetic message.

Date Wide agreement exists that the Book of Malachi was written during the last half of the fifth century B.C. Some even pinpoint the date between 420 and 415 B.C. This would place the Book of Malachi about one hundred years after the ministries of Haggai and Zechariah. There are numerous ties in the book to the concerns of Nehemiah, who was governor in Judah around 440 B.C. These include marriages with foreign women (Neh. 13:23–27), not paying tithes (Neh. 13:10–14), neglecting the Sabbath (Neh. 13:15–22), a corrupt priesthood (Neh. 13:7–9), and injustice (Neh. 5:1–13).

Historical Setting After the great turmoil of the wars of the Assyrians, Babylonians, and the Medes and Persians, a period of comparative peace came to Israel's part of the ancient world. The books of the preexilic prophets were formed in the flaming crucible of international wars and catastrophes. But under Persian rule the people were allowed to return to the land in peace. The constant threat of international conflict did not loom over their heads. The Persians collected taxes, but otherwise they were content to leave the Jews alone. Yet economic shortages were still common during this period.

Themes The history of the Jewish people is a story of a recurring pattern of captivity, exodus, and restoration into which Malachi also falls. There are two captivities in the Old Testament story, and two accounts of an exodus of the Jewish people from captivity. The first captivity and the great Exodus is Israel's experience with Egypt at the beginning of Israel's history; the second is Israel's experience with Babylon.

In the account of the first Exodus, Moses and Aaron occupy themselves to a significant degree with the issue of the proper worship of the living God, which was centered in the tabernacle. A significant portion of the Book of Exodus, the whole of Leviticus, and parts of Numbers and Deuteronomy provide guidance for worship at the tabernacle. The point of the Exodus was the creation of the people of God as a worshiping community (see Ex. 5:1).

Similarly, two of the books of the second exodus, the return of God's people from Babylon, concern themselves with the proper worship of God. These two books, Haggai and Malachi, focus on worship centered on the rebuilt temple. Haggai exhorted the people to rebuild the temple in Jerusalem in 520 B.C. Thus this book parallels the Book of Exodus in which God gave instructions for the construction of the tabernacle. Similarly, Malachi parallels the Book of Leviticus in that both are concerned with how the people and the priests should act in the temple. Yet there are significant differences. Leviticus emphasizes what the people should do, what offerings they should bring, and what calendar they should keep in their worship of God. Malachi's emphasis is on the attitude of those who bring their worship to God. In Leviticus one reads about how to worship God; in Malachi the focus is on the heart of those who worship.

The priests of Malachi's time were indifferent to the rules of worship (1:6–14), and the people themselves had become apathetic about their offerings to God (3:6–12). Where did this neglectful attitude come from? In a critical introductory verse, God said to the people, "I have loved you." The response of the people was, "In what way have You loved us?" (1:2). The people's suspicion about the motives of God toward them resulted in their halfhearted response to Him. Their apathy toward God was also reflected in their relations with other people—especially their spouses. It had become common at this time for men to divorce their wives. Such men ignored the fact that the Lord was a witness to their marriages, and as a result God ignored their offerings. The prophecy of Malachi is God's response to this "loveless" condition.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Malachi's name means "My Messenger." His life's calling from God was to clarify the message the priests had bumbled. But he also predicts the coming of another messenger whose ministry will precede the Messiah and clear the way for His coming: "Behold, I send My messenger, and he will prepare the way before Me" (3:1). In his mind, this messenger would be someone like Elijah—one who would call parents to repent and turn the hearts of the children to their fathers (4:5, 6). From our perspective we know that he was referring to Jesus' cousin John (who resembled Elijah).

Still, Malachi is not only referring to the first appearance of Jesus. He also gives us a glimpse of Jesus' encore performance as the returning and reigning king. "But who can endure the day of His coming? And who can stand when He appears? For He is like a refiner's fire and like launderers' soap" (3:2). We see specific references to Jesus as the Sun of Righteousness rising "with healing in His wings" (4:2).

Malachi’s ministry

In Malachi 3, God challenges the people, promising them that if they bring the whole tithe into the storehouse, He will prevent their vines from dropping their fruit.

1:1 As in the case of Nahum (see Nah. 1:1), the prophetic message of Malachi was like a burden from which he needed deliverance (see also Is. 13:1; Jer. 23:33–38; Hab. 1:1). to Israel: In the postexilic period, the use of the word Israel for the people of Judah expresses the hope that the Lord was in the process of reasserting the fullness of His original promises to His people. The name Malachi means “My Messenger.”

1:2 I have loved you: God is like a loving parent who speaks with fatherly affection. However, His chosen people were like rebellious children who challenged His words of love for them.

1:3 But Esau I have hated: The contrast between the words love and hate here and in v. 2 seems much too strong. But on many occasions in the OT, the verb hate has the basic meaning “not to choose.” God’s love for Jacob was expressed in His electing grace in extending His covenant to Jacob and to his descendants (see Gen. 25:21–26; Is. 44:1–5). In His sovereign purpose, God set His love on the one and not the other. The term hate may carry the idea of indifference as well.

1:4, 5 Edom has said . . . we will return: Edom was a nation descended from Esau, and they shared Esau’s unbelief and self-confidence. Destruction made Israel reexamine her relationship to God. But destruction for Edom resulted only in continued pride and self-effort. LORD of hosts: This expression describes God as the supreme commander of the universe. The hosts are His heavenly armies.

1:6 A son honors his father: Here the Lord uses truisms: A father and a master can expect honor from those beneath them, but God was not receiving the honor due Him. I am the Father: The image of God as Father is common in the NT but less frequent in the OT (see Is. 63:16; 64:8). who despise My name: In ancient Israel, a name was a symbol of a person’s character, works, and reputation. Therefore, this charge was most serious. But the people dare to ask: In what way have we despised Your name?

1:7 God’s answer to the question posed in v. 6 was in terms of defiled food. The word defiled describes bread that was not prepared properly. The bread (see Ex. 25:23–30) and the table on which it was displayed were holy symbols, but the priests were treating them like ordinary things.

1:8 the blind . . . lame and sick: The demands of holy worship of God had been made clear in the Law. Only the very best should be presented as an offering to the Lord (see Lev. 1:3); no one was to come with an offering that was blemished or unclear (see Lev. 7:19–21).

1:10 shut the doors: In a choice between service without gratitude and no service at all, God chose the second. pleasure: The word describes the desire of God to smile, even to laugh with joy at true worship from a godly people (see Ps. 40:6–8; 147:10, 11).

1:11 great among the Gentiles: God would one day receive praise from all the nations. Even the despised Gentiles would offer praise, while God’s own people were profaning His holy name (see Ps. 87:117).

My name shall be great ^aamong the Gentiles;
^rIn every place ^sincense shall be offered to My name,
And a pure offering;
^tFor My name shall be great among the nations,”
Says the LORD of hosts.

12“ But you profane it,
In that you say,
^u“The table of the ⁵LORD is defiled;
And its fruit, its food, is contemptible.”
13 You also say,
“Oh, what a ^vweariness!”
And you sneer at it,”
Says the LORD of hosts.
“And you bring the stolen, the lame,
and the sick;
Thus you bring an offering!”
^wShould I accept this from your hand?”
Says the LORD.
14“ But cursed be ^xthe deceiver
Who has in his flock a male,
And takes a vow,
But sacrifices to the Lord ^ywhat is blemished—
For ^zI am a great King,”

Corrupt Priests

2 “And now, O ^apriests, this

² ^bIf you will not hear,
And if you will not take it to heart,
To give glory to My name,”
Says the LORD of hosts,

4 Then you shall know that I have sent

Says the LORD of hosts.
5 “My ^fcovenant was with him, one of life and peace,
And I gave them to him ^gthat he might fear Me;

1:12 you profane it: The people were treating God with contempt by their careless attitudes concerning their offerings.
1:13 The demands of God were neither understood nor appreciated; they seemed to be mere busywork. stolen . . . lame . . . sick: The gifts of the priests were not presentable; some were stolen goods, and others were animals that were useless. To sacrifice something of no value was not a sacrifice at all.
1:14 Can anyone really deceive the Lord? The deception is only in the eyes of the deceiver. I am a great King: The reputation of the Lord among His people was to have been the means whereby all the nations would be drawn to worship Him as well.
2:1 The address to the priests shows that the section begun in 1:8 continues in this chapter.

2:2 If you will not . . . give glory: The behavior of the priests was defiling the name of God. I will send a curse: At the passage of the people into the Promised Land, the Levites spread before the people the blessings of obedience and the curses on disobedience (Deut. 27; 28). But the priests were not obeying the Law that they were supposed to uphold. They would therefore receive the curses.
2:3 Refuse was the dung in the sacrificed animal that should have been removed when the animal was prepared for sacrifice to the Lord.
2:4 My covenant with Levi: The Levites had been given the privilege of serving the tabernacle (Deut. 33:8–11).
2:5 The covenant of God was with Phinehas, a descendant of the tribe of Levi (Num. 25:1–14). life and peace: The basic meaning of

Blemished Sacrifices

Why should the condition of a sacrifice matter to God? He created all things, defective animals as well as the healthy ones. Why would He not accept gifts that were flawed? And why did God care about this enough to have his messenger Malachi speak so strongly?

The imperfect sacrifices of the priests and people demonstrated the content of their hearts. The people were not sincere. To sacrifice a perfect, healthy animal looked to them like a waste, and they considered the work of preparing their gifts properly to be a foolish use of time and energy. Malachi confronted this attitude with the Law of God, which clearly demanded unblemished sacrifices and sincere hearts (see Lev. 1:3; 3:1; Deut. 17:1). Malachi also confronted the people with God’s judgment of their actions. God was perfectly aware of what they were doing and the condition of their hearts. No sacrifices at all would have been better than second-rate and insincere ones. The people were not giving “sacrifices”; they were merely doing what was convenient, just enough to appear to obey God. Then they would turn around and pat themselves on the back for being righteous.

But even though God’s people had broken their covenant with Him, God remained true to His promises (see Is. 53). He did not shrink from sending His only Son to a cruel death on the Cross. Jesus was the true, unblemished sacrifice to which the Old Testament sacrifices pointed (Heb. 7:26–28). He was perfect—free from all sin. And through Jesus’ sacrificial death the Lord provided salvation for all of our sins. In doing this, the Lord demonstrated His sincere love for us because He sacrificed the very best to save us (see John 3:16).

- So he feared Me
And was reverent before My name.

Says the LORD of hosts.
- 9 “Therefore ⁿ I also have made you contemptible and base
Before all the people,
Because you have not kept My ways
But have shown ^o partiality in the law.”

the word peace is fullness, completeness, things as they really ought to be. that he might fear Me: The context here means holding God in reverential awe, responding properly to His wonder, and worshiping Him in spirit and in truth (see 3:5, 16; 4:2).

2:6 the law of truth: The priests of the OT period had a twofold responsibility—they were to represent the people in holy worship before the living God, and they were to teach and apply God's law to the people. in peace and equity: This refers to complete moral virtue in all things before the Lord.

2:7 In the OT, a prophet was commonly called a “messenger of the Lord.” But this is apparently the only time in the OT that priests are specifically called the messengers of the Lord (see also 3:1).

2:8 departed . . . caused many to stumble: The judgment on the departed religious leader would be more strict because of the ripple effect of that one person's sin. the covenant of Levi: God made this covenant with the tribe of Levi and specifically with Phinehas (see v. 4). Other passages also presuppose a covenant (Neh. 13:29; Jer. 33:20, 21).

2:9 The priests had the truth but had not kept it or practiced it. When they acted as judges, they showed partiality, making their sin even worse (see Deut. 17:9–11; 19:17).

2:10 one God created us: The use of the term create calls to mind the great creation text in Gen. 1:26–28. deal treacherously: Because God is the Creator of all humanity (Gen. 1:27), He requires that humans deal equitably with one another.

2:11 The term abomination is a strong word indicating a stomach revulsion; the people had done something so awful as to make one ill. institution which He loves: The term institution is supplied by the translation; a more literal translation might be, “God's holy thing, that He loves.” The text presents the ideas of affection and revulsion which we usually think of in the verbs to love and to hate. Marriage is something God loves; divorce is something He hates (v. 16). The Lord's people had polluted something in which God takes great pleasure. daughter of a foreign god: The question of intermarriage in ancient Israel was not racial nor ethnic but spiritual: lack of faithfulness to God Himself.

2:12 cut off: The phrase may refer to banishment or even death. being awake and aware: The phrase is difficult but may refer to a deliberate offense against the Lord (see Lev. 10:1–3).

2:13 the second thing: The prophets at times spoke of the compounding sins of the people (see Jer. 2:13). Tears here seem to be judged as hypocritical acts of insincere repentance (see Is. 1:10–15).

He does not regard the offering: When right things are done for the wrong reasons or with the wrong attitudes, God does not accept them (see Ps. 40:6–8). goodwill: The Hebrew suggests God's pleasure and enjoyment. God's pleasure is in sacrifices offered with attitudes of humility, faithfulness, and joy.

2:14 For what reason: The feigned surprise of the people fooled no one, certainly not the Lord. witness: There are some whose witness may be challenged, but the Lord is not among them (see also 3:5). wife of your youth: These men had not only married pagan wives, but they had divorced their first wives to make room for their new ones. Companion describes a permanent partnership.

by covenant: The union of a marriage is formal, public, legal, and sacred, a binding contract.

2:15 make them one: Here the prophet recalls the words from Gen. 2:24, “one flesh.” a remnant of the Spirit: This somewhat difficult phrase most likely indicates the work of God's Holy Spirit in the life of the married couple. God has joined them, and by His Spirit He has worked on their behalf to strengthen them. godly offspring: God

Therefore take heed to your spirit,
And let none deal treacherously with the wife of his youth.

16^a “For ^xthe LORD God of Israel says

seeks godly children even as He seeks for true worshipers (see John 4:23, 24). take heed to your spirit: We must control our attitudes so that they will be in line with those of God’s Spirit.

2:16 treacherously: To the Lord, attitudes of indifference to marriage vows and duties are the actions of a traitor.

2:17 God is wearied by people who do not submit to Him but who argue their points against His revelation. When justice comes, they will be sorry they asked (see 3:5).

3:1 prepare the way: This verse resembles the prophecy of Mic. 5:2 concerning the birthplace of the Messiah. Matthew and Mark identify the messenger of this verse as John the Baptist (see 4:5; Matt. 11:10; Mark 1:2, 3). The Lord refers here to Jesus Christ (as is the case in Ps. 110:1). There are three persons in view in this verse: The Father (the Lord) speaks of sending a messenger (John the Baptist) who will prepare the way for the coming of the Lord (Jesus). suddenly . . . His temple: Both the righteous and the wicked will be surprised when the Messiah arrives. Messenger of the covenant: This is a messianic title, referring to the One who will initiate the New Covenant (see Jer. 31:33, 34; Matt. 26:28; Heb. 12:24). He is coming: As in Ps. 96:13, this dramatic wording indicates something that was just about to occur. However, it would be four hundred years before these words would be fulfilled.

3:2 In this verse Malachi turns to the second coming of the Messiah. This second advent will be one of judgment and purification (Joel 2:11; Amos 5:18; Luke 21:36; Rev. 19:11–21). refiner’s fire . . . launderers’ soap: These two images are vivid illustrations of the purifying process. The Savior King Himself will sift all people to prepare for His reign.

Malachi: A Portrait of Spiritual Indifference
When the prophet Malachi began preaching to the Israelites, he found that the people had cold hearts. They were indifferent and apathetic. When he confronted them with their sin, they asked a series of questions that reveal volumes about their spiritual condition.
Question	Significance	Application
"In what way have You loved us?" (1:2)	This question reveals an alarming lack of trust in God. The Israelites were implying that God had been unfaithful to His covenant. "If You really love us, why are we still under foreign oppressors, waiting for the promised kingdom?"	Do we demand proof of God's love for us?
"In what way have we despised Your name?" (1:6); "In what way have we defiled You?" (1:7)	This question shows the halfheartedness and the rationalizations of the nation's religious leaders. They were saying, in effect: "We've been making the required sacrifices. What more do you want?" But as Malachi pointed out, the sacrifices offered to God were unfit animals (1:8–10).	Do we offer God our best in worship, or do we just go through the motions?
"In what way shall we return?" (3:7)	This question reveals an appalling blindness to sin and an arrogant attempt to floss over wrongdoing. "We don't know what You want us to do, because we don't see what we have done wrong."	When faced with our sin, do we make excuses?
"In what way have we robbed You?" (3:8)	This question underscores the people's greed. They did not view their possessions as God's possessions to be used for His glory.	Do we gladly give to God?
"What have we spoken against You?" (3:13)	This question displays the Israelites' callousness. They had said it was "useless to serve God" (3:14). But they continued to think that their external observance of religious ceremonies would satisfy God's demands on their lives.	Do we wholeheartedly serve God?

3:3 purify the sons of Levi: Since the priests had come under such strong censure in this book (1:6–2:9), and since the prophet himself was likely a priest, these words would have had a special significance for him.

3:4 The Hebrew word translated pleasant refers to things that are sweet and pleasing. God derives joy from the end result of His work.

3:5 judgment: The same word may be translated justice (see 2:17). The people had wondered where the God of justice was; now they will know. Sorcerers were people who made potions. fear Me: Holding God in reverence and awe also means obeying Him (see 2:5; 3:16; 4:2).

3:6 I do not change: We might expect these opening words to ensure the nation’s doom; instead, they give assurance of God’s continuing mercy.

3:7 The history of Israel is not a record of ever-increasing obedience. Instead, it is a long, sad story of recurring departure from God. Return: This is the key term in the Hebrew prophets for repentance, renewal, and restoration (see Is. 55:11; Jer. 4:1; Zech. 1:3).

3:8 The tithes were the gifts to the Lord that the Law required. There were three: two that were annual and one that came every three years. The tithe supported the priests and Levites, and also widows, orphans, and foreigners (Deut. 14:28, 29).

3:9–11 The people were cursed with poor production from their land and animals. A key verse from the Law of Moses reads that the curse will come “because you did not serve the LORD your God with joy and gladness of heart, for the abundance of everything” (Deut. 28:47). The forces that caused loss of production are pictured collectively as the devourer.

3:12 One of the ways in which all nations would be drawn to the worship of the Lord was by seeing how the people of Israel fared with the Lord as their God. a delightful land: The adjective indicates enjoyment, life that is genuinely pleasurable (see 1:10; see also the related verb in 3:1). Faithfulness to God would lead to fruitfulness in the land.

(Heb. bachan) (3:10; Gen. 42:15, 16; Ps. 26:2; Jer. 9:7) Strong’s #974

This Hebrew verb means “to try,” or “to put to the test” (Job 23:10; Ps. 139:23; Zech. 13:9). The word can mean “to test” in the sense of separating or discriminating one thing from another (Job 34:3). When this word is used to depict God’s “testing” of people, it means the proving of individuals in such a way that their faith becomes more established (see Ps. 66:10–12; Jer. 17:10; 20:12). Malachi’s challenge to the Israelites to try God is a rare instance in which people are encouraged to test the faithfulness of the Lord (3:10). This word for try can be contrasted with another Hebrew verb for testing, nasah. That latter word is frequently used in a negative sense, to describe the way Israel was testing God with their unbelief (Ex. 17:7; Ps. 78:18; 95:9). The Law of Moses warned the Israelites not to tempt God (Deut. 6:16; Ps. 95:9); it was a mark of spiritual adultery (Matt. 12:38, 39). According to James, God tests people in order to grant them the crown of life—but He tempts no one (James 1:12–14).

3:13 In this verse God addresses not just their words but the thoughts that prompted them.

3:14 What profit: The people secretly entertained doubts about the value of following the Lord. In fact, they had not really kept His ordinance anyway. The proper attitude is encouraged in 4:4.

3:15 the proud: This word refers to godless, rebellious people (see 4:1; compare Ps. 119:21; Prov. 21:24; Jer. 43:2).

3:16 There were other voices, those of people who did place themselves under the Law, those who feared the LORD. God did not ignore those who were faithful to Him. a book of remembrance: God never forgets His promises. God teaches us to remember and value the good that people do (Phil. 4:8); He does the same as He commands us. Those who meditate fear the Lord, think highly of Him, and ponder His significance as it relates to their lives.

3:17 The excitement of these words is that we can sense the pride God has in His children. The Hebrew word translated jewels could be rendered “special treasure.” It is a wonderfully endearing term that is used in the OT only of the people of Israel as they are valued by the living God (see Ex. 19:5; Deut. 7:6; Ps. 135:4).

3:18 one who serves God: Serving God means putting Him first, obeying His commands, and finding one’s chief joy in life as the advancement of the glory of His name.

4:1 Scripture consistently describes a coming day when God will arrive as a Judge and will deal with the wicked (see v. 5; compare Is. 13:6–10; Joel 1:15; 2:1–11; Zeph. 1:2–2:3; Zech. 14). the proud: What some people thought about the “blessedness of the proud” is exposed as a grave error (3:15).

4:2 you who fear My name: This is the righteous remnant who held God in wonder and awe, responded to Him in obedience, and lived for Him with constant faith. With healing in His wings: The prophet compares the Savior to a bird whose comforting wings bring healing to the chicks that gather underneath (see Ps. 91:1–4).

4:3 trample the wicked: The victory of the righteous over the wicked is a promise of the living God that transcends the two testaments (see Ps. 110:4–6; compare Rev. 19:11–21). On the day that I do this: The identity of the Victor is already known.

4:4 Remember: This word means more than simply “to recall.” The command is to act on the teaching that had come from the living God. the Law of Moses: The Law had its origin in the Lord, and Moses was the divinely appointed transmitter of God’s will and word to the people (see John 1:17).

(Heb. yom) (4:5; Gen. 7:11; Prov. 25:13; Amos 5:8, 18) Strong’s #3117

The Hebrew noun yom has a variety of uses in the OT. It can refer to the daylight hours in contrast to the night (Amos 5:8), or to a 24-hour day, such as a certain day of the month (Gen. 7:11). It may also refer to a time period, such as the “time” of harvest (Prov. 25:13), or even to a year (2 Sam. 13:23). The word is used in the significant phrase “the day of the LORD” (see Is. 2:12; Ezek. 13:5; Joel 1:15; Zeph. 1:14). For the prophets, the day of the Lord was the future day when God would decisively triumph over all His foes. That day will be a day of great rejoicing and blessing for God’s faithful servants (Is. 2), whereas for God’s enemies it will be a day of “darkness” (Amos 5:18).

4:5 Elijah the prophet: The story of the prophet Elijah is found in 1 Kin. 17–2 Kin. 2. The NT identifies John the Baptist as this Elijah (see Matt. 11:14; 17:10; Mark 9:11–13; Luke 1:17). There are three ways in which this prophecy might be fulfilled: (1) John the Baptist, whom Malachi had already prophesied (see 3:1), was the first to fulfill the promise of the Elijah figure. John, like Elijah, was a minister of the Lord calling people to repent and prepare for the coming of the Messiah (see Matt. 11:14). (2) Elijah appeared in person along with Moses at the Transfiguration, a stunning vindication of the messianic role of Jesus (see Matt. 16:28—17:8). (3) An Elijah-like figure will appear at the end times; he will call fire down from heaven just as Elijah did (see 1 Kin. 18:36–40; Rev. 11:1–7).

4:6 Malachi ends with both a promise and a warning. fathers to the children . . . children to their fathers: As in every act of God announcing judgment, there is also an offer of His mercy (see Jon. 4:2). a curse: The term is one of the harshest in Scripture. The Hebrew word suggests complete annihilation. This is the term translated doomed in the account of the destruction of Jericho (see Josh. 6:17).

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

SUCCESSION TO A THRONE is often a time of conflict and uncertainty. David's son Absalom tried to usurp the throne (2 Sam. 15:1—18:18). Solomon's choice of successor lost more than half the kingdom to a traitor (1 Kin. 12:20). Menahem assassinated his predecessor in Israel (2 Kin. 15:14). Royalty is a dangerous business.

This is no less true when the heir is the King of kings. If ever there was a high-stakes succession, this was it. A Man claims to be Israel's own Messiah; of course all Israel sits up and takes notice. Of course He must prove His credentials: Who wants an impostor? The Book of Matthew presents Jesus' credentials. It presents Jesus as the King, but King of a totally different kingdom—the kingdom of heaven.

Author and Date This Gospel does not name its author, but it does contain clues. The author knew the geography of Palestine well (2:1; 8:5; 20:29; 26:6). He was familiar with Jewish history, customs, ideas, and classes of people (1:18, 19; 2:1; 14:1; 26:3; 27:2). He was well acquainted with the Old Testament (1:2–16, 22, 23; 2:6; 4:14–16; 12:17–21; 13:35; 21:4; 27:9). And the terminology of the book suggests that the author was a Palestinian Jew (2:20; 4:5; 5:35; 10:6; 15:24; 17:24–27; 18:17; 27:53).

Other details point specifically to Jesus' disciple Matthew as the writer of this Gospel. As a tax collector, Matthew would have been literate and familiar with keeping records of money. Appropriately, this Gospel contains more references to money than any of the others. Furthermore, Matthew's hometown was Capernaum, a village that is given special attention in this Gospel. When Capernaum is mentioned, some special description is usually attached to it (4:13; 11:23).

Matthew wrote the Gospel before the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. He describes Jerusalem in the book as the "holy city" and as though it was still standing (4:5; 27:53), and he speaks of the customs of the Jews as continuing until "this day" (27:8; 28:15). Furthermore, Jesus' prophecy (recorded in 24:2) of Jerusalem's destruction includes no indication that it had already occurred when Matthew wrote Jesus' words. In light of all of this, it is reasonable to conclude that the book was written sometime between A.D. 50 and 60.

Emphases The Gospel of Matthew has many Jewish overtones. For example, the term "kingdom of heaven" appears 33 times and the term "kingdom of God" four times. No other Gospel lays such stress on the kingdom; the restoration of the glories of David's kingdom was a burning hope for many Jews at the time. Matthew clearly identifies Jesus with that hope by using the Jewish royal title "Son of David" nine times in his Gospel. Furthermore he calls Jerusalem "the holy city" (4:5; 27:53) and the "city of the great King" (5:35), both uniquely Jewish ways of referring to it. First-century Jews emphasized righteousness, and Matthew uses the words "righteous" and "righteousness" more often than the Gospels of Mark, Luke, and John combined.

Matthew also discusses the law, ceremonial cleanness, the Sabbath, the temple, David, the Messiah, the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies, and Moses—all from a Jewish point of view. He has 53 Old Testament citations and more than 70 allusions to the Hebrew Scriptures. Thirteen times, the book emphasizes that Jesus' actions were a direct fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies. The genealogy of chapter 1 is recognizably Jewish, tracing the lineage of Jesus back through David to Abraham, the father of the Jewish people. Furthermore the Gospel mentions Jewish rulers (see 2:1, 22; 14:1) and customs such as ceremonial washing (see 15:2) without explanation, indicating that Matthew expected his predominantly Jewish audience to be familiar with such practices.

Purposes Matthew's Gospel serves several purposes beyond presenting a mere biography of Jesus. One purpose is to prove to Jewish readers that Jesus is their Messiah and promised King. The genealogy in chapter 1 points to Christ as the One who inherited God's promises to David of an eternal dynasty. Jesus' use of a familiar messianic psalm in Matthew 22:41–44 would have clearly implied to any Jew that He was the heir of the Davidic throne. Even though many Jews of Jesus' time were blind to Jesus' identity, Gentiles (such as the wise men) identified Him as Israel's promised King when He was a baby. Finally, the charge that hung above Jesus' head on the Cross clearly highlights His royalty: THIS IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JEWS (27:37). But most important, the Book of Matthew proves Jesus' legitimate authority by highlighting His wise teaching and righteous life (7:28, 29).

Another purpose of the book is to outline the characteristics of the kingdom of God, both for Israel and the church. Orthodox Jews would typically scoff at any assertion that Jesus is their Messiah, let alone their King. They would retort, "If Jesus is King, where is the promised restoration of the kingdom of Israel?" Many Jews of Jesus' day rejected Him as Messiah, even though both Jesus and John the Baptist continually preached that the kingdom was "at hand" (3:2; 4:17; 10:7). This rejection of Jesus by the Jews is a dominant theme of Matthew (11:12–24; 12:28–45; 21:33–22:14). Because of this rejection, God postponed the fulfillment of His promises to Israel and subsequently extended His blessings to both Jew and Gentile in the church.

Matthew is the only Gospel writer who speaks directly of the church (16:18; 18:17). He points to the Gentile composition of this church by including several stories of the Gentiles' faith in Jesus: the wise men, the centurion, and the Canaanite woman. He records Jesus' prediction that the gospel will be preached to all nations (24:14), and the commission to the disciples to "make disciples of all the nations" (28:19). Jesus' teaching pointed to the blessings of the kingdom being extended to Gentiles. But one day, Israel will be restored to its place of blessing (see Rom. 11:25–27; 15:8, 9).

A final purpose of Matthew is to instruct the church. An obvious clue to this is in the Great Commission: "teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you" (28:20). The discipling process involves instruction in the words of Christ, and the Gospel of Matthew revolves around five of Jesus' discourses (5:1–7:28; 10:5—11:1; 13:3—53; 18:2—19:1; 24:4—26:1). Instead of emphasizing a narrative of Jesus' life as Mark does, Matthew uses the narrative elements in his Gospel as a setting for Jesus' sermons.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Matthew, as a Jew, unashamedly shapes his account about Jesus' life so it is understood by a Jewish audience. His goal is to convince his peers that the King of kings has come. With this in mind, he uses terms and names that Jews will resonate with. By quoting more passages from the Old Testament than any other New Testament writer, he attempts to validate that Jesus is indeed the promised Messiah. No less than 12 times Matthew presents Jesus as Israel's Messianic King (1:23; 2:2, 6; 3:17; 4:15—17; 21:5, 9; 22:44, 45; 26:64; 27:11, 27—37).

Also unique to Matthew is the expression, "that it might be fulfilled" which was spoken by various prophets. By footnoting familiar passages the Jews accepted as God's inspired Word, Matthew builds his case for Christ with the precision of a former tax collector. Examine for yourself how he substantiates the prophecies that pointed to Jesus' miraculous and obscure birth, His birthplace, His exile to Egypt and return to Israel, and His rejection and suffering. No wonder Matthew begins his book with an impressive genealogy of Jesus' link to King David.

1:1 Genealogy means “origin.” Genealogies were very important to first-century Jews. A genealogy (1) proved that a person was indeed an Israelite, (2) identified the tribe to which he or she belonged, and (3) qualified certain Jews for religious duties such as Levitical and priestly service (see Ezra 2:61, 62). Christ’s genealogy is crucial to historic Christianity. Matthew traced the lineage of Christ Jesus back to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to show that He was a Jew, but also back through David to inform the readers that Jesus is qualified to rule on the throne of David (see 2 Sam. 7:12), an event still in the future (19:28).

1:3-6 The mention of women in a Jewish genealogy is unusual. But in addition to Mary, four women are listed in this catalog of names. The extraordinary emphasis is underscored by the kind of women Matthew mentions: Tamar, who was involved in a scandal with Judah (Gen. 38); Rahab, the Canaanite harlot of Jericho (Josh. 2); Ruth, who was not an Israelite, but a Moabite (Ruth 1:4); and Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah, a woman involved in a sin of horrendous proportions (2 Sam. 11:1—12:23), and who may have been a Hittite. At the beginning of his Gospel, Matthew shows how God’s grace forgives the darkest of sins and reaches beyond the nation of Israel to the world. He also points out that God can lift the lowest and place them in royal lineage.

1:16 Joseph the husband of Mary was a direct descendant of David. Matthew, however, was careful not to identify Jesus as the physical son of Joseph. The Greek pronoun translated of whom is feminine and refers to Mary. Christ and the word messiah both mean “Anointed One”; the first term is from Greek; the second is from Hebrew. In the OT, anointing signified two things: God’s choice and His empowerment for a task. Israelites were traditionally anointed to three different offices: prophet, priest, or king. Although the Lord Jesus was God’s Anointed for all three, Matthew places the most stress on Jesus’ royalty.

1:17 Abraham . . . Christ: The genealogy is broken down into three groups of names with fourteen generations in each list. The name

David in Hebrew has a numerical value of 14. Because the heading of the list is “Son of David” (v. 1), Matthew may have been drawing attention to the Davidic emphasis in these names. In the first group, the Davidic throne is established; in the second group, the throne is cast down and deported to Babylon; in the third group, the throne is confirmed in the coming of the Messiah. Further, a basic covenant is set forth in each of these three periods: the Abrahamic covenant in the first (vv. 2–5); the Davidic covenant in the second (vv. 6–11), and the New Covenant in the third (vv. 12–16).

1:18 betrothed: Universally, the basic element of marriage is a contract (see Mal. 2:14). In Jewish culture, this covenant was made about a year before the consummation of the marriage. It was during the one-year period of betrothal that Mary was found to be pregnant. The fact that Mary was a virgin at this time is clearly implied by the phrase before they came together, and by the righteous character of Joseph and his desire to divorce Mary when her pregnancy became known (v. 19). The virgin birth, which can be deduced from Matthew’s account, is stated clearly in Luke 1:34, 35.

1:19 In agreement with the popular Jewish understanding of Deut. 24:1 (5:27–32; 19:3–9; see also Jer. 3:1, 8), Joseph wanted to divorce Mary on the grounds of infidelity. A divorce would be necessary because they had already made a marriage covenant, even though they had not yet known each other physically. Joseph could have made the divorce a public matter, or he could have gone through a private ceremony before two witnesses. Being a gracious and just man, Joseph decided to keep it private.

1:20 conceived . . . of the Holy Spirit: Verses 1–17 establish Jesus as a legal son of Joseph; vv. 18–25 deny that Joseph was Jesus’ physical father. The first was necessary to establish Jesus’ lineage to David and His royal right to be King. The second was necessary to establish His qualifications to be the Savior of all people: Jesus was God’s Son and not merely Joseph’s. Matthew elaborated on Jesus’ kingship while Luke detailed His miraculous conception by the Holy Spirit (Luke 1:26–56).

wife, ^afor that which is ⁷conceived in her is of the Holy Spirit. ^{21b}And she will bring forth a Son, and you shall call His name ⁸Jesus, ^cfor He will save His people from their sins.”

²²So all this was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying: ^{23d}“Be-hold,⁹ the virgin shall be with child, and bear a Son, and they shall call His name Immanuel,” which is translated, “God with us.”

The Wise Men

The Greek word for wise men in this account (magoi) is rendered as “astrologers” where it occurs in the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the OT (Dan. 1:20; 2:2) and as “sorcerer” in its other occurrences in the NT (Acts 13:6, 8). The Greek historian Herodotus, writing in the fifth century B.C., identified the magi as a caste of Medes who had a priestly function in the Persian Empire. In the Book of Daniel the “astrologers” (magoi) are grouped with magicians, sorcerers, and Chaldeans as advisers to the court of Babylon with responsibility for interpreting dreams.

The role of the star in Matthew 2 suggests a connection with astrology. These astrologers, pursuing their observations of the stars in the heavens, encountered a sign of God, who broke through their misguided system to make the great event known.

chief priests and ^fscribes of the people together, ^ghe inquired of them where the Christ was to be born.

⁵So they said to him, “In Bethlehem of Judea, for thus it is written by the prophet:

1:23 Behold . . . Immanuel: This is a quotation from Is. 7:14. In this verse, the prophet Isaiah consoles King Ahaz of Judah. A coalition of two kings, King Rezin of Aram and King Pekah of Israel, was opposing Ahaz. Isaiah tells Ahaz not to fear, for the plans of his enemies would not succeed. As a sign to Ahaz, a son would be born of a woman, and before that boy reached the age where he could tell right from wrong, the two kings would no longer be a threat to Ahaz. Some interpretations view Isaiah’s prophecy as directly prophetic of Jesus’ birth and nothing else. According to this view, only the miraculous birth of Jesus can be considered a sign. Since the Hebrew noun translated virgin in Is. 7:14 can also mean “young woman,” some have suggested that Isaiah was prophesying about a son born during the lifetime of Ahaz—perhaps Isaiah’s son Maher-Shalal-Hash-Baz (Is. 8:3). Others have interpreted Isaiah’s prophecy as a prediction that a virgin, a contemporary of Isaiah, would marry and have a child. The sign to Ahaz was the sudden dissolution of Rezin and Pekah in the face of Assyria. Even though uncertainty surrounds how this prophecy was fulfilled during Isaiah’s lifetime, Matthew makes it clear that Isaiah’s words find their ultimate fulfillment in the virgin birth of Jesus, a sign to people of all ages that God was with them.

1:25 Joseph did not know Mary physically until she gave birth to Jesus. The clear implication of this verse is that Mary was a virgin only until the birth of Jesus. The brothers and sisters of Jesus were probably younger siblings born to Joseph and Mary after Jesus’ birth (13:55, 56). Joseph could not have had children by a previous marriage, as some suppose, for then Jesus would not have been heir to the Davidic throne as the oldest son of Joseph.

2:1 The events of ch. 2 probably took place some months after Jesus’ birth. Several reasons may be offered to support this conclusion: (1) Joseph and Mary were living in a house (v. 11); (2) Jesus is referred to as a child, not an infant (v. 11); (3) Herod murdered all the male children two years old and under (v. 16); and (4) it would have been strange for Joseph and Mary to offer the sacrifice of the poor, a pair of turtledoves or pigeons (see Lev. 12:8; Luke 2:24), if the wise men had just given them gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Thus the wise men must have arrived after the ritual sacrifice described in Luke 2:22–24, 39. Herod the king is Herod the Great, who reigned over Palestine from 37 B.C. until his death in 4 B.C. A crafty ruler and lavish builder, Herod had a reign marked by cruelty and bloodshed. The word translated wise men can refer either to fraudulent sorcerers (see Acts 8:9, 11; 13:6, 8) or, as here, to a more honorable class of astrologers.

2:2 born King of the Jews: These words would have struck both terror and fury into the heart of Herod. His star in the East may refer to a star supernaturally introduced into the heavens, discernible only to students of the sky. The star reappeared to guide the wise men to where Christ was (v. 9). The fact that it was called “His star” indicates that the wise men identified the star with the arrival of the King of the Jews.

2:4 chief priests: This first mention of the Jewish council—“all the chief priests and scribes of the people”—reveals that the Jewish leaders were alerted early to the coming of the Messiah. Their quick recital of Mic. 5:2 showed their prophetic astuteness concerning the messianic prophecies (v. 6).

2:5 Matthew clearly records how the Jewish religious authorities, who became Christ’s enemies later, unintentionally affirmed that

(Gk. Iêsous) (1:21; Luke 1:31; Acts 2:36; 4:18; 13:23; 17:3) Strong’s #2424

The Greek name Iêsous is the equivalent of the Hebrew name Yeshua, meaning “The Lord Shall Save.” Although a common name among the Jews (see Luke 3:29; Col. 4:11), the name expresses Jesus’ work on earth—to save and to deliver. This is affirmed by the explanation the angel gives Joseph after telling him to name the virgin-born child Jesus: “for He will save His people from their sins” (1:21). After Jesus was crucified for the sins of His people and raised from the dead, the early apostles proclaimed Jesus as the one and only Savior (Acts 5:31; 13:23).

The Prophecies of Jesus’ Birth

Jesus fulfilled hundreds of Old Testament prophecies. Many of these prophecies involved the circumstances surrounding His birth. Below is a list of several such prophecies. Note the irrefutable similarities between the Old Testament predictions and their New Testament fulfillment.

Jesus had fulfilled a messianic prophecy in His birth. God sometimes uses the words of His opponents to speak the truth (see John 11:49–52).

2:10 The wise men undoubtedly would have been discouraged by their failure to find the King in Jerusalem, by the lack of knowledge concerning the birth of the Messiah among the leaders, by the disinterest among Israel, and by the weariness from the long journey. The reappearance of the star must have brought great joy and encouragement to them.

2:11 Gold symbolized royalty; frankincense was a fragrance; myrrh was the ointment of death. These gifts provided the financial resources for Mary and Joseph’s flight to Egypt.

2:12 warned in a dream: Five dreams of divine guidance emphasize God’s orchestration of these perilous events (1:20; 2:12, 13, 19, 22).

2:15 fulfilled: This is the second fulfillment of prophecy recorded in ch. 2. The first, in v. 6, is a direct fulfillment of Micah’s prophecy about the birthplace of Jesus; this is a typological fulfillment. The prophecy quoted here, from Hos. 11:1, refers to the nation of Israel as God’s son coming out of Egypt in the Exodus. Jesus is the genuine Son of God, and, as Israel’s Messiah, is the true Israel (see John 15:1); therefore, He gives fuller meaning to the prophecy of Hos. 11:1.

Mark 1:2-6; Luke 3:3-6

3 In those days ^aJohn the Baptist came preaching ^bin the wilderness of Judea, ²and saying, “Repent, for ^cthe kingdom of heaven is at hand!” ³For this is he who was spoken of by the prophet Isaiah, saying:

^d “*The voice of one crying in the wilderness:
^e ‘Prepare the way of the LORD;
Make His paths straight.’*”

⁴ Now ^fJohn himself was clothed in camel’s hair, with a leather belt around his waist; and his food was ^glocusts and ^hwild honey. ⁵ ⁱThen Jerusalem, all Judea, and all the region around the Jordan went out to him ⁶^jand were baptized by him in the Jordan, confessing their sins.

The Preaching of John the Baptist

Mark 1:7-9; Luke 3:7-9, 16, 17

⁷ But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said to them, ^k“Brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from ^lthe wrath to come? ⁸Therefore bear fruits worthy of repentance, ⁹and do not think to say to yourselves, ^m“We have Abraham as our father.’ For I say to you that God is able to raise up children to Abraham from these stones. ¹⁰And even now the ax is laid to the root of the trees. ⁿTherefore every

2:18 This prophecy comes from Jer. 31:15, in which Rachel, who had been entombed near Bethlehem some 13 centuries before the Babylonian captivity, is seen weeping for her children as they were led away to Babylon in 586 B.C. In the slaughter of the male infants at the time of Christ’s birth, Rachel once again is pictured as mourning the violent loss of her sons.

2:22 When Herod died, his kingdom was parceled out to his three sons: Archelaus, who ruled over Judea where Bethlehem was; Antipas, who became tetrarch of Galilee, Perea, Samaria, and Idumea; and Philip, who was tetrarch of Iturea and Trachonitis (see Luke 3:1). Like his father, Archelaus was violent and cruel. The Romans tolerated his savagery for ten years and finally deposed him in A.D. 6, after a Jewish delegation took their protest to Rome. Joseph, aware of Herod Archelaus’s reputation and guided by God in a dream, turned north to Galilee.

2:23 Nazareth was the location of the Roman garrison in northern Galilee. Those who lived there were suspected of compromise with the enemy.

3:1 As Christ’s forerunner, John the Baptist preceded the Lord Jesus in birth, ministry, and death. Luke describes John’s birth (see Luke 1), but Matthew jumps directly into the account of John’s proclamation of the coming of the kingdom of heaven. John is called “the Baptist” because he baptized people. Unlike the common practice of proselytes and Jews administering ceremonial cleansings to themselves, John baptized those who came to him professing repentance and identifying with his message.

3:2 The Greek verb translated repent indicates a change of attitude and outlook which well may result in sorrow for sins. But the basic idea is a reversal of thinking which changes one’s life (see v. 8). The kingdom of heaven is most likely synonymous with “the kingdom of God.” Both terms seem to be used consistently throughout the NT to refer to God’s heavenly kingdom coming to earth in the person of Jesus Christ. This kingdom begins with the incarnation of Christ, continues with the inception of the church, and will be fully manifested when Christ returns. The kingdom was at hand because it was being offered to Israel in the person of the Messiah. John’s preaching assumed that judgment would precede the coming of the kingdom, a fact that was taught by the OT prophets (see Is. 4:4, 5; 5:15, 16; 42:1; Jer. 33:14–16; Ezek. 20:33–38; Dan. 7:26, 27; Joel 1:14, 15; 3:12–17; Zeph. 1:2–18; 3:8–13; Zech. 13:2, 9; Mal. 3:1–5; 4:1–6). At this point, John assumed that the nation of Israel would repent and the kingdom would come.

3:3 As roads were repaired, smoothed, straightened, and leveled before a king came, so John was preparing a spiritual road for the Messiah before His arrival. The quotation is from Is. 40:3, where the prophet announces the need to prepare a highway for the return of the Jewish exiles from captivity to their homeland, Israel.

3:7 The Pharisees and Sadducees were two prominent groups in Judaism during the time of Christ. Both groups claimed to be true followers of Judaism, but their beliefs were considerably different. The Pharisees were primarily associated with the laymen of Israel. In doctrine, they held not only to the Law of Moses and Scriptures, but also to a whole body of oral tradition. Their activities were centered in the synagogue. On the other hand, the Sadducees were associated with the priestly caste, for whom worship was centered in the temple. Extremely conservative, they based their beliefs essentially on the Pentateuch—the books of Genesis through Deuteronomy (see Acts 23:6–10).

3:10 the ax is laid to the root of the trees: John likened his ministry to God’s ax, clearing His orchard of dead wood—especially that which did not bear the fruit of repentance.

tree which does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. ¹¹ I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance, but He who is coming after me is mightier than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry. ¹² He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit ¹ and fire. ¹² His winnowing fan is in His hand, and He will thoroughly clean out His threshing floor, and gather His wheat into the barn; but He will ¹ burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire.”

¹⁴ And John tried to prevent Him, saying, “I need to be baptized by You, and are You coming to me?”

¹⁵ But Jesus answered and said to him, “Permit it to be so now, for thus it is fitting for us to fulfill all righteousness.” Then he allowed Him.

¹⁶ When He had been baptized, Jesus came up immediately from the water; and behold, the heavens were opened to Him, and ² He saw ^v the Spirit of God descending like a dove and alighting upon Him. ¹⁷ And suddenly a voice came from heaven, saying, ^x “This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.”

3:11 He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit: John identified people with himself and his message of repentance by water baptism; the One coming after him was so much greater that He would unite people to Himself by means of the Holy Spirit. John knew that the kingdom to come would be characterized by a great display of the Holy Spirit in the lives of God’s people (see Is. 32:15; 44:3; Ezek. 11:19; 36:26; 39:29; Joel 2:28; Zech. 12:10). It would be the work of the Messiah to accomplish this, to baptize His people in the Spirit. But those who rejected Him the Messiah would baptize with fire, which is probably a figure for God’s judgment (vv. 10, 12). In His first advent, Christ baptized in the Spirit. When He comes again, He will baptize with fire.

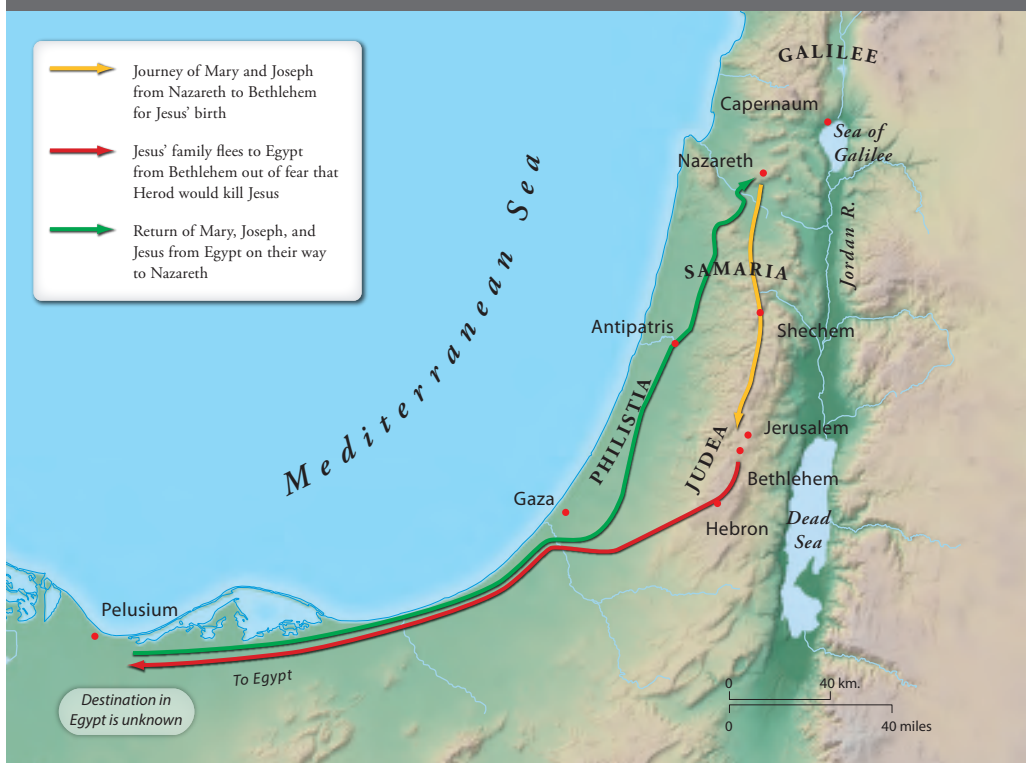

3:15 to fulfill all righteousness: This phrase does not suggest that Jesus came for baptism because He had sinned; the Lord Jesus was without sin (see 2 Cor. 5:21; Heb. 4:15; 7:26). Jesus’ baptism probably served several purposes: (1) Jesus joined with the believing remnant of Israel who had been baptized by John; (2) He confirmed the ministry of John; and (3) He fulfilled the Father’s will.

3:16 the Spirit of God descending: This was God’s official recognition of Jesus as the Messiah.

3:17 This is My beloved Son, a reference to Ps. 2:7, implies that others heard the voice of the Father. In whom I am well pleased recalls the prophecy of Is. 42:1. Matthew 3:16, 17 demonstrates the simultaneous existence of all three Persons of the Godhead. This passage also points to the Son’s voluntary humiliation, the Father’s delight in Him, and the Spirit’s desire to glorify Christ.

4:1 Satan did not lead Jesus to the temptation; the Holy Spirit did. This temptation took place immediately after Jesus’ baptism (see Mark 1:12). Spiritual victories are often followed by testing (see 1 Kin. 19).

4:3, 4 It is written: Jesus’ response to all three temptations was to quote the Word of God, showing His followers the power of Scripture in battling the Evil One (see Deut. 6:13; 8:3; Ps. 91:11, 12). There was nothing morally wrong with turning stones to bread; Satan was tempting Jesus to do a miracle outside of the Father's will. This explains why Jesus quotes Deut. 8:3. Bread alone does not sustain life; ultimately God is the One who sustains all life. Thus it is our responsibility to trust God and remain in His will.

4:6 throw Yourself down: In quoting the protective promise of Ps. 91:11, 12 to Jesus, Satan omitted the words “to keep you in all your ways.” Satan tempted Jesus to gain public attention through spectacle rather than through His righteous life and message.

⁷Jesus said to him, “It is written again, ^g*‘You shall not ¹tempt the LORD your God.’*”

4:7 Deuteronomy 6:16 emphasizes that one should not test God. The Lord asked the Israelites to put Him to the test in only one area: tithing. By giving to Him they could test whether He would fulfill His promises to bless them (Mal. 3:10).

4:10 Christ rebuked the devil for asking for worship, a temptation to do exactly the opposite of what every Israelite was called upon to do (see Deut. 6:13, 15). Specifically in reference to Jesus, Satan was

(Gk. peirazō) (4:1; Luke 4:2; Mark 1:13; Heb. 4:15) Strong's #3985

The word means “to try” or “to make proof of,” and when ascribed to God in His dealings with people, it means no more than this (see Gen. 22:1). But for the most part in Scripture, the word is used in a negative sense, and means to entice, solicit, or provoke to sin. Hence the name given to the wicked one in this passage is “the tempter” (4:3). Accordingly “to be tempted” here is to be understood both ways. The Spirit conducted Jesus into the wilderness to try His faith; but the agent in this trial was the wicked one, whose object was to seduce Jesus away from His allegiance to God. This was temptation in the bad sense of the term. Yet Jesus did not give in to temptation; He passed the test (see 2 Cor. 5:21; Heb. 7:26).

offering a crown without the cross. Jesus’ experience serves as a pattern in spiritual warfare today: Jesus resisted Satan (see Eph. 6:11, 13, 14; James 4:7; 1 Pet. 5:9), then He defeated Satan with consistent, meaningful use of the Scriptures (see Eph. 6:17).

4:11 angels came and ministered: Having rejected Satan’s offer of bread, assistance from angels, and earthly kingdoms, Jesus was immediately visited by angels who helped Him.

4:13 Matthew omits the incident reported in Luke 4:16–30 of Jesus’ rejection in His hometown. Matthew simply indicates that Capernaum, located at the northern end of the Sea of Galilee, became Jesus’ home and base of operation.

4:15, 16 The passage quoted here, Is. 9:1, 2, foretells the reign of the Messiah in the coming kingdom. The ministry of Jesus in Galilee was a preview of what was yet to come. Galilee was a fertile, populous area with two major trade routes. The way of the sea was one of those routes.

4:17 The phrase from that time Jesus began occurs twice in the Book of Matthew (see 16:21). Each reference marks a crucial direction in the book. This one looks to the beginning of His earthly ministry, while 16:21 anticipates His crucifixion and resurrection. Jesus’ exhortation was identical to that of John the Baptist (3:2).

4:18–20 I will make you fishers of men: This allusion to Jer. 16:16 was used to call Peter and Andrew to discipleship and a life of ministry.

4:23 Teaching ... preaching ... healing summarizes Jesus’ earthly ministry. His teaching is illustrated by His discourses; His preaching is illustrated by the announcement in v. 17; His healing is illustrated by His many miracles.

Herod's Temple

20 B.C.–A.D. 70

Begun in 20 B.C., Herod's new structure towered 15 stories high, following the floor dimensions of the former temples in the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. The high sanctuary shown here was built on the site of the former temples of Solomon and Zerubbabel.

The outer courts surrounding the temple mount were not completed until A.D. 64. The entire structure was demolished by the Romans in A.D. 70.

Dimensions of rooms, steps, doorways, cornices, and exterior measurements are mentioned in history (Josephus and the Mishnah) but are subject to interpretation.

5:1 The multitudes were found at the beginning and end of Jesus’ Sermon on the Mount (the term is translated the people in 7:28). Yet this verse implies that Jesus left the multitude. Evidently He went away from the crowds so that He could instruct the disciples. As He taught the disciples, the crowds came to where He was. when He was seated: It was normal for a teacher or rabbi to sit while he taught, with his audience gathered around. The mountain, probably a high hill on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee, would have served as a natural amphitheater. disciples: Jesus had many disciples in addition to the crowds who followed Him and listened to His teaching. From the many disciples, He selected 12 to receive special instruction and power.

5:2 He . . . taught them: This Sermon on the Mount recorded by Matthew (chs. 5–7) is slightly different from the sermon preached to the multitude in Luke 6. The essence of this sermon was probably preached many times during Jesus’ early ministry. The Sermon on the Mount was not given as the way of salvation for the lost, but as the way of life for true children of the kingdom. It was instruction for those who had responded to Jesus’ invitation to “repent” (4:17). These disciples were probably confused as to the true nature of righteousness and God’s kingdom. In this address, Jesus clarified both the heart of the law and the nature of true religion in God’s kingdom (see Mic. 6:8). In a sense, Jesus turned the law, which was mainly negative, inside out to show its positive core (v. 17).

5:3–12 The Beatitudes are comprised of three elements: a pronouncement of blessing, a quality of life, and a reason why the

Jesus' Baptism and Temptation

Events surrounding Jesus’ baptism reveal the intense religious excitement and social ferment of the early days of John the Baptist’s ministry. Herod had been cruel and rapacious; Roman military occupation was harsh. Some agitation centered around the change of governors from Gratus to Pilate in A.D. 26. Most of the people hoped for a religious solution to their intolerable political situation, and when they heard of a new prophet, they flocked out into the desert to hear him. The religious sect (Essenes) from Qumran professed similar doctrines of repentance and baptism. Jesus was baptized at Bethany on the other side of the Jordan (see John 1:28). John also baptized at “Aenon near Salim” (John 3:23).

For Jesus’ temptation, see notes on Matt. 4:1–11; Luke 4:1–13.

Many interpreters place John’s baptismal ministry at a point on the middle reaches of the Jordan River, where trade routes converge at a natural ford not far from the modern site of Tel Shalem.

recipient should be considered blessed. The first element is found in the word Blessed (see Ps. 1:1), which introduces each beatitude.
The second element does not describe different groups of people, but a composite picture of the kind of person who will inherit Christ’s kingdom. The third element looks ahead to some aspect of the coming kingdom.

5:3 Blessed are the poor in spirit: The idea of God blessing the humble and resisting the proud can also be found in Prov. 3:34;
James 4:6.

5:5 Earth can also be translated land (see Ps. 37:3, 9, 11, 29; Prov. 2:21).

5:13 Pure salt maintains its flavor. In Israel, some salt was mixed with other ingredients. When it was exposed to the elements, the salt would be “leached out.” Such leached-out salt was used for coating pathways.

5:16 Let your light so shine: The believer does not have inherent light; rather we have reflective light. As we behold the glory of the Lord, we reflect it. Therefore, we need to make sure that nothing comes between us and the Lord’s light (see 2 Cor. 3:18; Phil. 2:14–16).

5:17, 18 Do not think that I came to destroy: Jesus rejected the Pharisees’ charge that He was nullifying the law. The law was both temporary (see Gal. 3:19; Eph. 2:15; Heb. 7:12) and eternal (see 5:18; Rom. 3:31; 8:4). The word fulfill means “to fill out, expand, or complete.” It does not mean to bring to an end. Jesus fulfills the law in several ways: (1) He obeyed it perfectly and taught its correct meaning (vv. 19, 20); (2) He will one day fulfill all of the OT types and prophecies; and (3) He provides a way of salvation that meets all the requirements of the law (Rom. 3:21, 31). one jot or one tittle will by no means pass: This statement of Jesus provides us with one of the strongest affirmations in the Bible of the inerrancy of Scripture.

It is absolutely trustworthy.

5:20 The righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees was essentially external adherence to rules. God demands more than this. Jesus’ words must have shaken His disciples, since the meticulously righteous deeds of the scribes and Pharisees were regarded as being far above those of the average person. However the only righteousness that satisfies God’s standard is faith in Jesus Christ (see Rom. 3:21, 22).

5:21 You have heard refers to the teaching of various rabbis rather than to that of Moses. Jesus was questioning the interpretation of the Jewish scholars, not the OT itself.

(Gk. makarios) (5:3; Luke 6:20–22; Rom. 4:7, 8; James 1:12, 25) Strong’s #3107

This Greek word is derived from the root mak, which means “large” or “lengthy,” and means “fortunate” or “happy.” The Greek word was used in Greek literature, in the Septuagint
(the Greek translation of the OT), and in the NT to describe the kind of happiness that comes from receiving divine favor. The word can be rendered happy. In the NT it is usually passive; God is the One who is blessing or favoring the person.

tittle

(Gk. kerasia) (5:18; Luke 16:17) Strong’s #2762

In Hebrew, sometimes the smallest stroke or mark distinguished a letter from a similar one. Matthew uses the Greek word that literally means “horn,” or one hook of a letter, to refer to this stroke. The rabbis had defended the importance of retaining even the slightest stroke and the smallest letter—yodh in Hebrew and iota in Greek—in the Law of Moses. Jesus made it clear that He heartily concurred with the rabbis’ respect for the Law. Not even the smallest dot over an “i” would disappear until the Law was fulfilled.

5:22 The scribes and Pharisees said that a person who referred to another as Raca, meaning “empty head,” was in danger of being sued for libel before the council (or the Sanhedrin). On the other hand, Jesus said that whoever calls another a fool will have to answer to God. That is not to say that calling someone a fool will condemn a believer to eternal punishment in hell. Rather Jesus was saying that to utter such words is to place oneself in a worse condition at the time of judgment (see 1 Cor. 3:12–15).

5:25 It is wise not to have enemies. One should make peace as soon as possible because enemies are capable of doing great damage.

5:28 to lust for her: A man who gazes at a woman with the purpose of wanting her sexually has mentally committed adultery.

5:29, 30 The hyperbole (exaggerated saying) about tearing out one’s eye is similar to the phrase in Prov. 23:2, “Put a knife to your throat if you are a man given to appetite.” In striking overstatement, Jesus advises removing every temptation to evil, no matter what the cost. The warning of hell (v. 22) indicates that those whose lifestyle is characterized by uncontrolled immorality are not heirs of the kingdom (see 1 Cor. 6:9, 10).

5:31, 32 Sexual immorality is a general term that includes premarital sex, extramarital infidelity, homosexuality, and bestiality (19:3–12).

5:33, 34 Do not swear at all: This does not forbid solemn, official oaths (see Gen. 22:16; Ps. 110:4; 2 Cor. 1:23), but only oaths made in common speech. Such oath-taking suggests that a person’s normal words cannot be trusted. God’s law says, “Do not lie under oath” (see Lev. 19:12; Num. 30:2); Jesus was telling His followers not to lie under any circumstances. The phrase to the Lord could be used as a cover-up for falsehood. Any oath with God’s name in it was legally binding; however, an oath without God’s name was not legally binding. This explains the emphasis of vv. 34–37.

5:38 This important OT law (see Ex. 21:24, 25; Lev. 24:20; Deut. 19:21), known as the lex talionis (the law of retaliation), covered what type of punishment should be meted out to transgressors. It limited the retribution that an offender would have to endure.

5:39–42 The Lord seems to be speaking in hyperbolic terms to teach the lesson of non-retaliation. Generally He commands us to have a generous and compassionate attitude toward the needy. He makes this application in four areas: physical attacks (v. 39), legal suits (v. 40), government demands (v. 41), and financial requests (v. 42).

5:41 Compels is a technical term that refers to the law of impressment. The Roman government could press anyone into its service to carry a load as far as one mile. Matthew records a Roman officer doing this to Simon of Cyrene in 27:32.

5:43 Hate your enemy is not found in Moses’ writings. This was a principle drawn by the scribes and Pharisees from Lev. 19:18.

your enemy.⁴⁴ But I say to you, ^alove your enemies, bless those who curse you, ^bdo good to those who hate you, and pray ^cfor those who spitefully use you and persecute you, ⁴⁵that you may be sons of your Father in heaven; for ^dHe makes His sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust. ⁴⁶For if you love those who love you, what reward have you? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? ⁴⁷And if you greet your ⁷brethren only, what do you do more than others? Do not even the ⁸tax collectors do so? ⁴⁸Therefore you shall be perfect, just ⁹as your Father in heaven is perfect.

Charitable Deeds

6 “Take heed that you do not do your charitable deeds before men, to be seen by them. Otherwise you have no reward from your Father in heaven. ²Therefore, ^awhen you do a charitable deed, do not sound a trumpet before you as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory from men. Assuredly, I say to you, they have their reward. ³But when you do a charitable deed, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, ⁴that your charitable deed may be in secret; and your Father who sees in secret ^bwill Himself reward you ¹openly.

5:45 To be a “son of” was to be like someone or something. That you may be sons of your Father in heaven means “that you may be like the Heavenly Father who displays His love without discrimination.”

5:48 This verse, which comes from Deut. 18:13, refers to completeness. In the context of 5:43–48, it seems to mean that Jesus’ followers are to be as perfect as God in the ways that they love. God does not lower the standard to accommodate our sinfulness. He gives us the power to keep His righteous standard.

6:2 they have their reward: The verb translated have was used in receipts and is similar to “paid in full.” The only reward the hypocrites will ever receive is glory from men (vv. 5, 16). Contrast that with the heavenly rewards of Christ given to His followers (see 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 22:12).

6:5–8 Those who pray with improper motives have their reward—like those who do charitable deeds with improper motives (v. 2).

6:7 From the motives for praying (vv. 1–6), Jesus turned to methods of praying. Why one prays determines how one prays. Nothing is wrong with repeating prayers (26:39, 42, 44). Here Jesus was referring to the empty recitation of words.

6:9 In this manner does not mean to pray using only these words, but to pray in this way. People often reduce this prayer to empty recitation—exactly what the Lord said not to do (v. 7). The prayer is composed of six requests. The first three ask for the kingdom to come (vv. 9, 10) and the last three are for God to meet the needs of His people until the kingdom arrives (vv. 11–13). Hallowed be Your name is not an ascription of praise to the Father. The verb is an imperative and means “May Your name be hallowed.” This recalls Ezekiel’s prophecy in Ezek. 36:25–32, where the prophet says Israel has profaned God’s name among the nations. One day God will gather His people from the nations, cleanse them, and by this means vindicate the holiness of His great name. The hallowing of the Father’s name means the arrival of God’s kingdom.

6:11 Daily bread is a reminder of God’s daily supply of manna to Israel in the wilderness.

6:13 The doxology at the end of the prayer is from 1 Chr. 29:11. Some ancient manuscripts of the Scriptures omit this doxology.

Luke 11:34-36; 12:22-34

¹⁹“Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal; ²⁰but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust destroys and where thieves do not break in and steal. ²¹For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

²²“The lamp of the body is the eye. If therefore your eye is ⁷good, your whole body will be full of light. ²³But if your eye is ⁸bad, your whole body will be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in you is darkness, how great is that darkness!

²⁴“No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. ^xYou cannot serve God and ⁹mammon.

²⁵“Therefore I say to you, ^ydo not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink; nor about your body, what you will put on. Is not life more than food and the body more than clothing? ²⁶Look at the birds of the air, for they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they? ²⁷Which of you by worrying can add one ¹cubit to his ²stature?

²⁸“So why do you worry about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin; ²⁹and yet I say to you that even Solomon in all his glory was not ³arrayed like one of these. ³⁰Now if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will He not much more clothe you, O you of little faith?

6:19, 20 Do not lay up . . . but lay up may be rephrased as “Do not give priority to this, but give priority to that.” This passage does not mean that it is sinful to have such assets as insurance, retirement plans, and savings accounts. After all, parents are to save for their children (see Prov. 13:22; 2 Cor. 12:14).

6:24 Mammon refers to wealth, money, or property. No one can serve two masters because a time will come when they make opposing demands. Jesus advises us to invest in our future with Him by giving of ourselves; mammon encourages us to collect material objects for our present enjoyment.

6:27 Stature here probably means “length of life,” or age. Cubit then means a “length” of time, not a distance.

6:32 Gentiles refers to non-Jews or to the heathen—those who do not know God (see 3 John 7). The Jewish people, because of God’s revelation to them, were supposed to think differently than the Gentiles.

6:33 To seek . . . the kingdom of God and His righteousness means to desire God’s righteous rule on this earth (vv. 9, 10).

7:1 This restriction does not mean that a disciple never judges. After all, some kind of judgment is required in order to obey the command in v. 6. The point of this verse is that a Christian should not have a spirit of carping criticism and fault-finding.

7:2 Every judgment that a person makes becomes a basis for his or her own judgment (see James 3:1, 2).

7:6 Dogs and swine refer to people who are enemies of the gospel, as opposed to those who are merely unbelievers. Such enemies are to be left alone (see 15:14; 2 Cor. 6:14–18). One example of such a person was Herod Antipas, who heard John gladly (see Mark 6:20), but then beheaded him (see 14:1–12; Mark 6:14–28; Luke 9:7–9). Later when Christ stood before Herod, He said nothing (see Luke 23:8, 9). In the context of this verse, Herod had become a “dog” or a “pig.”

Golden Rule

¹²Therefore, ⁱwhatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for ^jthis is the Law and the Prophets.

Two Ways of Life

¹³^k“Enter by the narrow gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction, and there are many who go in by it. ¹⁴³Because narrow is the gate and ⁴difficult is the way which leads to life, and there are few who find it.

False and True Teaching

Luke 6:43-45

¹⁵^l“Beware of false prophets, ^mwho come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly they are ravenous wolves. ¹⁶ⁿYou will know them by their fruits. ^oDo men gather grapes from thornbushes or figs from thistles? ¹⁷Even so, ^pevery good tree bears good fruit, but a bad tree bears bad fruit. ¹⁸A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. ¹⁹^qEvery tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. ²⁰Therefore by their fruits you will know them.

²⁴“Therefore ^wwhoever hears these sayings of Mine, and does them, I will liken him to a wise man who built his house on the rock: ²⁵and the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house; and it did not fall, for it was founded on the rock.

²⁶“But everyone who hears these sayings of Mine, and does not do them, will be like a foolish man who built his house on the sand: ²⁷and the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house; and it fell. And great was its fall.”

Response to the Sermon

²⁸And so it was, when Jesus had ended these sayings, that ^xthe people were astonished at His teaching, ²⁹^yfor He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

The Leper Is Cleansed

Mark 1:40-44; Luke 5:12-14

8 When He had come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed Him. ²^aAnd behold, a leper came and ^bworshiped Him, saying, “Lord, if You are willing, You can make me clean.”

³Then Jesus put out His hand and touched him, saying, “I am willing; be cleansed.” Immediately his leprosy ^cwas cleansed.

⁴And Jesus said to him, ^d“See that you

7:12 The phrase the Law and the Prophets echoes 5:17. This so-called “Golden Rule” is the practical application of Lev. 19:18: “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

7:15–20 Beware of false prophets: Deuteronomy 13:1–11; 18:20–22 provide information on discerning and responding to false prophets. The way to tell false teachers from teachers of truth is by their fruits. Fruits here refers to more than their deeds; it includes their doctrine (see 16:12; 1 John 4:1–3). A person speaking in the name of God is to be tested by the doctrines of Scripture. The same principle still holds true today. Speakers and teachers should be tested against the truths in God’s Word (see Jude 3; Rev. 22:18, 19).

7:21–23 Because so many people teach the wrong way, there is a tendency to ask how so many people could be wrong. Such doubts are especially strong when false teachers prophesy, cast out demons, and perform wonders in Jesus’ name. However, it is important to remember that the Word of God is superior to any miracle.

7:24–27 The key difference in the two houses is not their external appearance. Pharisees and scribes may seem to be as righteous as the heirs of the kingdom. The key in the story is the foundations. The house on the rock pictures a life founded on a proper relationship to Christ (16:18; 1 Cor. 10:4; 1 Pet. 2:4–8). It will stand the test of Christ’s judgment, but the house on the sand will fail the test (see 1 Cor. 3:12–15).

7:29 not as the scribes: Scribes would often cite authorities in order to lend credence to their statements. Jesus’ words were self-authenticating. Note His phrase “I say to you” in 5:20, 22, 26, 28, 32.

8:2, 3 Before this miracle, the only record of an Israelite being healed of leprosy was the case of Miriam in Num. 12:10–15. The phrase if You are willing is important because it indicates genuine faith. It does not necessarily mean that if one simply believes, God will do something, but that He can do it (see Dan. 3:17, 18). Normally, touching a leper would result in ceremonial defilement (see Lev. 14:45, 46; Num. 5:2, 3; Deut. 24:8). In this case, Jesus touched the leper, and the leper became clean.

8:4 See that you tell no one: Perhaps Jesus gave this command so that the healed person would first obey the Law before he became preoccupied with telling others about his healing. Jesus’ command to show yourself to the priest involved no small undertaking for the cleansed leper. He would need to make the journey from near the Sea of Galilee to Jerusalem, and there offer the sacrifice required by Moses (see Lev. 14:4–32). The purpose of Christ’s command was tell no one; but go your way, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that ^eMoses ^fcommanded, as a testimony to them.”

The Centurion's Servant Is Healed

Luke 7:1-10

^{5g}Now when Jesus had entered Capernaum, a ^hcenturion came to Him, pleading with Him, ⁶saying, “Lord, my servant is lying at home paralyzed, dreadfully tormented.”

⁷And Jesus said to him, “I will come and heal him.”

⁸The centurion answered and said, “Lord, ⁱI am not worthy that You should come under my roof. But only ^jspeak a word, and my servant will be healed. ⁹For I also am a man under authority, having soldiers under me. And I say to this one, ‘Go,’ and he goes; and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes; and to my servant, ‘Do this,’ and he does it.”

¹⁰When Jesus heard it, He marveled, and said to those who followed, “Assuredly, I say to you, I have not found such great faith, not even in Israel! ¹¹And I say to you that ^kmany will come from east and west, and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. ¹²But ^lthe sons of the kingdom ^mwill be cast out into outer darkness. There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” ¹³Then Jesus said to the centurion, “Go your way; and as you have believed, ⁿso let it be done for you.” And his servant was healed that same hour.

¹⁸And when Jesus saw great multitudes about Him, He gave a command to depart to the other side. ¹⁹^rThen a certain scribe came and said to Him, “Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go.”

²⁰And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head.”

²¹^sThen another of His disciples said to Him, “Lord, ^tlet me first go and bury my father.”

²³Now when He got into a boat, His disciples followed Him. ²⁴^uAnd suddenly a great tempest arose on the sea, so that the boat was covered with the waves. But He was asleep. ²⁵Then His disciples came to Him and awoke Him, saying, “Lord, save us! We are perishing!”

²⁶But He said to them, “Why are you fearful, O you of little faith?” Then ^vHe arose and rebuked the winds and the

not only to obey the Law of Moses, but also to be a testimony to the religious authorities in Jerusalem that the Messiah had arrived. Jesus also commanded the man to keep quiet because He did not want the Jewish people to act too hastily on preconceived, erroneous ideas of the Messiah and His kingdom (see John 6:14, 15).

8:5-9 In the NT, centurions (officers in charge of one hundred soldiers) are consistently looked upon in a favorable light. These soldiers were the equivalent of a present-day sergeant. The centurion's response to Jesus indicated his clear understanding of authority. 8:10 He marveled: Only one other time does Scripture say Jesus marveled: when His own townspeople rejected Him (Mark 6:6). I have not found . . . not even in Israel: This commendation of the faith of the Gentile centurion was a strong rebuke of the Jewish people. The Israelites thought that they would have priority in the coming kingdom (see Is. 45:14; Zech. 8:23; Rom. 9:3-5; Eph. 2:11, 12). Jesus made it clear that just being a physical descendant of Abraham did not guarantee entrance into His kingdom.

8:11 Sit down literally means “recline,” as at a banquet table. The coming kingdom is commonly portrayed in terms of a feast, particularly a wedding feast (see 22:1-14; Is. 25:6; Rev. 19:7-10).

8:12 Sons of the kingdom refers to the Jews who had the covenants and the promises, and who should have been heirs of the kingdom. The idea that Gentiles would take their place in the coming kingdom was unthinkable to the Jews. Outer darkness, meaning “the darkness outside,” speaks of the experience of those who do not endure and so will not reign in the kingdom (see 22:13; Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12, 13; 2 John 8; Rev. 3:11).

8:17 This verse quotes Is. 53:4. took our infirmities . . . bore our sicknesses: Jesus healed because He had compassion on the people (see 9:36; 14:14; 20:34; Mark 1:41; 5:19; Luke 7:13). Our physical infirmities are ultimately the result of the Fall with its impact on our lives through the Curse. Jesus took our infirmities and bore our sicknesses by suffering and dying for our sins on the Cross.

8:20 Son of Man: Jesus used this messianic title (drawn from Dan. 7:13, 14) over 80 times to refer to Himself.

8:21, 22 This passage most likely describes a follower whose father was still alive, because by Levitical law the man would not be out in public if his father had just died. His father was aged, so the man wanted to go to his home, wait for his father to die, and then follow Christ. Jesus' answer means that we must never make excuses for refusing to follow Him. There is no better time than the present.

sea, and there was a great calm. ²⁷So the men marveled, saying, ²⁸“Who can this be, that even the winds and the sea obey Him?”

Mark 5:1-17; Luke 8:26-37

²⁸When He had come to the other side, to the country of the ³Gergesenes, there met Him two demon-possessed men, coming out of the tombs, exceedingly fierce, so that no one could pass that way. ²⁹And suddenly they cried out, saying, “What have we to do with You, Jesus, You Son of God? Have You come here to torment us before the time?”

³⁰Now a good way off from them there was a herd of many swine feeding. ³¹So the demons begged Him, saying, “If You cast us out, ⁴permit us to go away into the herd of swine.”

³²And He said to them, “Go.” So when they had come out, they went into the herd of swine. And suddenly the whole herd of swine ran violently down the steep place into the sea, and perished in the water.

³³Then those who kept them fled; and they went away into the city and told everything, including what had happened to the demon-possessed men. ³⁴And behold, the whole city came out to meet Jesus. And when they saw Him, ^xthey begged Him to depart from their region.

The Paralytic Is Forgiven

Mark 2:1-12; Luke 5:17-26

⁹So He got into a boat, crossed over, ^aand came to His own city. ²^bThen behold, they brought to Him a paralytic lying on a bed. ^cWhen Jesus saw their faith, He said to the paralytic, “Son, be of good cheer; your sins are forgiven you.”

³And at once some of the scribes said within themselves, “This Man blasphemes!”

⁴But Jesus, ^dknowing their thoughts, said, “Why do you think evil in your hearts? ⁵For which is easier, to say, ‘Your

Tax Collectors

In Jesus’ day, the Roman government collected several different taxes from the people of Palestine. Tolls for transporting goods by land or sea were collected by private tax collectors, who paid a fee to the Roman government for the right to assess these levies. The tax collectors made their profits by charging a higher toll than the law required. The licensed collectors often hired minor officials called publicans to do the actual work of collecting the tolls. The publicans extracted their own wages by charging a fraction more than their employer required. The disciple Matthew was a publican who collected tolls on the road between Damascus and Acco; his booth was located just outside the city of Capernaum. Matthew also collected taxes from fishermen who worked along the Sea of Galilee and boatmen who brought their goods from cities on the other side of the lake.

⁸Now when the multitudes saw it, they ^emarveled ¹ and glorified God, who had given such power to men.

Matthew Is Called

Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27, 28

⁹^fAs Jesus passed on from there, He saw a man named Matthew sitting at the tax office. And He said to him, “Follow Me.” So he arose and followed Him.

⁹ ^f Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27

8:28 The country of the Gergesenes may refer to (1) the village of Khersa, near the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee; (2) Gerasa, about 30 miles southeast of the Sea of Galilee; or (3) Gadara, about six miles away. This was Gentile territory.

8:29 We learn several things about demons in this passage: (1) they recognize the deity of Christ; (2) they are limited in their knowledge; (3) they know they will ultimately be judged by Christ (see 25:41; James 2:19; 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6; Rev. 12:7-12); (4) they cannot act without the permission of a higher authority—Christ.

9:2 Their faith refers to the faith of the paralytic as well as that of the men who were carrying him.

9:5, 6 Jesus’ tactic caught the leaders off guard. Though these leaders might deny His ability, or right, to forgive sins, the outward physical healing could not be denied. It was far easier to say Your sins are forgiven you because there would be no visible proof that the sins were forgiven. The healing of the paralytic, however, was proof that forgiveness of sins had occurred as well. Neither physical nor spiritual healing pose any difficulty for God’s Son.

9:9 Matthew is called Levi in Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27. The tax office was a toll booth set up alongside a highway to levy taxes on merchandise transported on that road. Matthew probably worked for Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee. Tax collectors were considered traitors by the Jews. They were despised because they generally collected more than necessary and pocketed the difference, vastly enriching themselves.

The Disciples Eat with Sinners

Mark 2:15-17; Luke 5:29-32

¹⁰ Now it happened, as Jesus sat at the table in the house, that behold, many tax collectors and sinners came and sat down with Him and His disciples. ¹¹ And when the Pharisees saw it, they said to His disciples, “Why does your Teacher eat with ^h tax collectors and ⁱ sinners?”

¹² When Jesus heard that, He said to them, “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. ¹³ But go and learn what this means: ^j I desire mercy and not sacrifice.’ For I did not come to call the righteous, ^k but sinners, ² to repentance.”

¹⁴ Then the disciples of John came to Him, saying, ^l “Why do we and the Pharisees fast ³ often, but Your disciples do not fast?”

¹⁵ And Jesus said to them, “Can ^m the ⁴ friends of the bridegroom mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and ⁿ then they will fast. ¹⁶ No one puts a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old garment; for ⁵ the patch pulls away from the garment, and the tear is made worse. ¹⁷ Nor do they put new wine into old wineskins, or else the wineskins ⁶ break, the wine is spilled, and the wineskins are ruined. But they put new wine into new wineskins, and both are preserved.”

Life Is Restored

Mark 5:21-43; Luke 8:40-56

¹⁸ While He spoke these things to them, behold, a ruler came and worshiped Him, saying, “My daughter has just died, but come and lay Your hand on her and she will live.” ¹⁹ So Jesus arose and followed him, and so did His ⁿ disciples.

²⁰ And suddenly, a woman who had a flow of blood for twelve years came from behind and ^r touched the hem of His garment. ²¹ For she said to herself, “If only I may touch His garment, I shall be made

Sight Is Restored

²⁷ When Jesus departed from there, ^y two blind men followed Him, crying out and saying, ^z “Son of David, have mercy on us!”

²⁸ And when He had come into the house, the blind men came to Him. And Jesus said to them, “Do you believe that I am able to do this?”

³⁰ And their eyes were opened. And Jesus sternly warned them, saying, ^a “See that no one knows it.” ³¹ But when they had departed, they ⁷ spread the news about Him in all that ⁸ country.

Speech Is Restored

³² As they went out, behold, they brought to Him a man, mute and demon-possessed. ³³ And when the demon was cast out, the mute spoke. And the multitudes marveled, saying, “It was never seen like this in Israel!”

³⁴ But the Pharisees said, ^d “He casts out demons by the ruler of the demons.”

The Need for Delegation of Power

³⁵ Then Jesus went about all the cities and villages, ^e teaching in their synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease ⁹ among the people. ³⁶ But when He saw the multitudes, He was moved with compassion for them, because they were ⁱ weary and scattered,

9:13 Jesus quoted Hos. 6:6 (and again in 12:7) to make the point that God is more interested in a person’s loyal love than in the observance of external rituals. Jesus refers ironically to the Pharisees as the righteous. They were not righteous; that was only how they perceived themselves because of their pious and scrupulous law-keeping (see Phil. 3:6). But Jesus explained, quoting from the familiar words of an OT prophet, that God had already judged sacrifices without mercy as worthless.

9:15 Jesus used the picture of marriage to illustrate God’s relationship with Israel (see Is. 54:1–8; Jer. 3:1–20; Hos. 2:1–3:5). In referring to Himself as a bridegroom, Jesus was describing Himself as the Messiah. Will be taken away from them anticipates the violent death the Lord would experience.

9:30 See that no one knows it: Jesus wanted to discourage the masses from coming to Him for physical healing alone, because His primary purpose was spiritual healing. Physical healing simply served to authenticate His claim to be the promised Messiah.

9:34 The Pharisees could not deny the reality of the miracles, so they attributed them to the ruler of the demons. The same rationalization is found in 12:24.

Mark 6:7; Luke 9:1

10 And ^awhen He had called His twelve disciples to Him, He gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all kinds of sickness and all kinds of disease. ²Now the names of the twelve apostles are these: first, Simon, ^bwho is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother; ³Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the tax collector; James the son of Alphaeus, and ¹Lebbaeus, whose surname was Thaddaeus; ^{4c}Simon the ²Cananite, and Judas ^dIschariot, who also betrayed Him.

The Twelve Apostles Are Instructed

Mark 6:8-13; Luke 9:2-6, 12:2-10

⁵These twelve Jesus sent out and commanded them, saying: ^e“Do not go into the way of the Gentiles, and do not enter a city of ^fthe Samaritans. ^{6g}But go rather to the ^hlost sheep of the house of Israel. ⁷ⁱAnd as you go, preach, saying, ^j“The kingdom of heaven ³is at hand.” ⁸Heal the sick, ⁴cleanse the lepers, ⁵raise the dead, cast out demons. ^kFreely you have received, freely give. ^{9l}Provide neither gold nor silver nor ^mcopper in your money belts, ¹⁰nor bag for your journey, nor two tunics, nor sandals, nor staffs; ⁿfor a worker is worthy of his food.

9:37, 38 The harvest will mark the beginning of the kingdom age. For the lost it will mean doom; for the saved it will mean blessing.

10:2 The twelve are called “disciples” in v. 1; here they are called apostles. The word apostle emphasizes delegated authority (see 1 Thess. 2:6); the term disciple emphasizes learning and following. Because the disciples had been given authority, they were now called apostles.

10:2-4 The disciples are named in pairs and probably were sent out that way (see Mark 6:7).

10:5, 6 While He was on earth, Jesus focused His ministry on the Jews. After His resurrection, He commanded His disciples to take the Good News to all the world. Paul used the same strategy. In every city he visited, he preached first to Jews and then to the Gentiles (see Rom. 1:16).

10:9, 10 The disciples’ mission was short-term. In essence, they were to do a national religious survey to determine the people’s response to Jesus as Messiah. For the Twelve to cover an area that is at most 75 miles by 125 miles would not take very long. Thus they did not need extensive provisions.

10:11 Because the testimony of the apostles was at stake, they were to seek out homes with good reputations. Furthermore, they were not to be constantly trying to find a more desirable residence.

10:12, 13 To greet a household was to pronounce a blessing on it, “Peace to you.” These messengers were to assume the best of their hosts when they arrived; however, if the home proved to be unworthy (the occupants rejected the message of the apostles), the apostles were to remove the pronouncement of blessing.

10:15 This verse, together with 11:22, 24, implies that there will be degrees of judgment and torment for the lost.

10:16 Snakes are commonly thought of as wise, perhaps because they are silent and dangerous, or because of the way they move (see also Gen. 3:1). In the midst of wolves meant that the apostles would be exposed to hatred and violence from men. Harmless literally means “unmixed,” which may also indicate purity and innocence.

10:18 God would use Jewish rejection and persecution of the messengers to bring the gospel message to Gentiles. This occurred with Paul in Acts 21:26-36; 24:1-21; 25:13-26:32.

⁷Beelzebub, how much more will they call those of his household! ²⁶Therefore do not fear them. ¹For there is nothing covered that will not be revealed, and hidden that will not be known.

11 Now it came to pass, when Jesus finished commanding His twelve disciples, that He departed from there to ^a teach and to preach in their cities.

10:28 Fear Him refers not to Satan, but to God. Destroy does not indicate annihilation, but ruination. The same verb is used in 9:17 of wineskins being ruined.

10:32, 33 Every act of our lives will be evaluated at the judgment seat of Christ (see 2 Cor. 5:10). To refuse to speak up for Christ because of intimidation or persecution will result in the believer’s loss of reward and consequent loss of glory in the kingdom (see Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12).

10:34–36 To the disappointment of many Christians throughout the ages, it has often been those closest to them who have rejected them and their message, even to the point of betrayal. The Lord Himself experienced these feelings with the betrayal of Judas and the denial of Peter.

10:37 not worthy of Me: Those who will be glorified with Christ in His kingdom reign are those who have suffered for Him (see Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12). Those who refuse that kind of discipleship will experience great loss (see 1 Cor. 3:15; 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 3:11, 12).

10:38 Taking up a cross here stands for commitment to the extent of being willing to die for something.

10:42 These little ones refers to the disciples. reward: Jesus does not want His disciples to lose the joys of the next life by focusing on the pleasures of this world.

11:2 John probably expected the Messiah immediately to judge Israel and establish His kingdom (3:2–12). Christ’s failure to do what John anticipated may have planted seeds of doubt in John’s mind about whether Jesus was the Messiah.

Beelzebub	Christ
(Gk. Beelzeboul) (10:25; 12:24–27; Mark 3:22; Luke 11:15–19) Strong’s #954	(Gk. Christos) (11:2; 16:16; John 1:41; Acts 2:36; 2 Cor. 1:21) Strong’s #5547
Most of the Greek manuscripts read Beelzeboul , which is probably the right form of this word. The other reading probably came from the OT word Baal-Zebub—an idol, the god of Ekron (see 2 Kin. 1:2). All idolatry was regarded as devil worship (Lev. 17:7; Deut. 32:17; Ps. 106:37; 1 Cor. 10:20), so there seems to have been something peculiarly satanic about the worship of this hateful god, which caused his name to be a synonym of Satan. Though we nowhere read that Jesus was actually called Beelzebub, He was charged with being in league with Satan under that hateful name (12:24, 26), and more than once was charged with being possessed by “an unclean spirit” or “demon” (Mark 3:30; John 7:20; 8:48).	Many speak of Jesus Christ, but do not realize that the title Christ is in essence a confession of faith. The word literally means “the Anointed One.” In the OT, forms of its Hebrew equivalent messiah were applied to prophets (1 Kin. 19:16), priests (Lev. 4:5, 16), and kings (1 Sam. 24:6, 10), in the sense that all of them were anointed with oil, the symbol that God had set them aside for their respective offices. But the preeminent Anointed One would be the promised Messiah, for He would be anointed by God’s Spirit to be the ultimate Prophet, Priest, and King (Is. 61:1; John 3:34). With his dramatic confession, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God” (16:16), Peter plainly identified Jesus as the promised Messiah.

of his disciples ³ and said to Him, “Are You ^d the Coming One, or do we look for another?”

⁴ Jesus answered and said to them, “Go and tell John the things which you hear and see: ^{5e} The blind see and the lame walk; the lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear; the dead are raised up and ^f the poor have the gospel preached to them. ⁶ And blessed is he who is not ^g offended because of Me.”

^{7h} As they departed, Jesus began to say to the multitudes concerning John: “What did you go out into the wilderness to see? ⁱ A reed shaken by the wind? ⁸ But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Indeed, those who wear soft clothing are in kings’ houses. ⁹ But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Rejection of Chorazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum

^{20s} Then He began to rebuke the cities in which most of His mighty works had been done, because they did not repent: ²¹ “Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago ^t in sackcloth and ashes. ²² But I say to you, ^u it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of judgment than for you. ²³ And you, Capernaum, ^v who ⁵ are exalted to heaven, will be brought down to Hades; for if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. ²⁴ But I say to you ^w that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than for you.”

Invitation to Come to Jesus

11:3 The Coming One is a title for the Messiah (see Ps. 118:26; Mark 11:9; Luke 13:35; 19:38; Heb. 10:37).

11:7–15 In the light of John’s question, some may have questioned his commitment to the Messiah. This may have prompted Jesus’ supportive statements about John.

11:9, 10 John was more than a prophet in that he alone was the forerunner who announced the coming and presence of the Messiah. In doing so, he fulfilled Mal. 3:1.

11:11 Born of women means that John had a human mother. A very similar expression is used of the Lord Jesus in Gal. 4:4. The least in the kingdom refers to those who will be living in the coming kingdom. As great as John was during Jesus’ day, his position as forerunner was inferior to that of the least person in the kingdom of heaven, because that person will have seen and understood the finished work of Christ on the Cross and through His resurrection—events that John would not live to see. Little wonder that Jesus gave such strong exhortations in 10:32–42 not to miss out on His future reign.

11:12 The violent take it by force in this context probably means that violent people forcibly oppose the kingdom with their hostility (23:13). As Christ’s kingdom advances, so do the attacks against it.

11:13 The prophets and the law refers to the OT, which anticipated the coming of the Messiah. Because John the Baptist was the forerunner of Christ, the OT anticipated John’s ministry as well.

11:16–19 Because of their hardness of heart, Israel failed to accept either the ministry of John the Baptist or that of the Lord Jesus Christ.

11:21 Woe: Jesus pronounced a direct judgment on Israel. Chorazin was a village about two and a half miles north of Capernaum; Bethsaida was about three miles east. Both of these cities were in Galilee and both had witnessed Jesus’ ministry firsthand. They would be judged for seeing the Messiah and then rejecting Him.

11:23 Capernaum, on the north shore of the Sea of Galilee, was the base of operations for Christ’s ministry. In 9:1, Capernaum is called “His own city.”

12 At that time ^aJesus went through the grainfields on the Sabbath. And His disciples were hungry, and began to ^bpluck heads of grain and to eat. ²And when the Pharisees saw it, they said to Him, “Look, Your disciples are doing what is not lawful to do on the Sabbath!” ³But He said to them, “Have you not read ^cwhat David did when he was hungry, he and those who were with him: ^dhow he entered the house of God and ate ^dthe showbread which was not lawful for him to eat, nor for those who were with him, ^ebut only for the priests? ⁵Or have you not read in the ^flaw that on the Sabbath the priests in the temple ¹profane the Sabbath, and are blameless? ⁶Yet I say to you that in this place there is ^g*One* greater than the temple. ⁷But if you had known what this means, ^h*‘I desire mercy and not sacrifice,’* you would not have condemned the guiltless. ⁸For the Son of Man is Lord ²even of the Sabbath.”

Pharisees Plan to Destroy Christ

Mark 3:6-12; Luke 6:11

¹⁴Then ^kthe Pharisees went out and plotted against Him, how they might destroy Him.

¹⁵But when Jesus knew it, ^lHe withdrew from there. ^mAnd great ³multitudes followed Him, and He healed them all. ¹⁶Yet He ⁿwarned them not to make Him known, ¹⁷that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying:

18 “Behold!^o My Servant whom I have chosen,
My Beloved^p in whom My soul is well pleased!
I will put My Spirit upon Him,
And He will declare justice to the Gentiles.
19 He will not quarrel nor cry out,
Nor will anyone hear His voice in the streets.
20 A bruised reed He will not break,
And smoking flax He will not quench,
Till He sends forth justice to victory;
21 And in His name Gentiles will trust.”

Pharisees Blaspheme the Holy Spirit

Mark 3:22-27; Luke 11:17-23

^{22q}Then one was brought to Him who was demon-possessed, blind and mute;

11:28 You who labor and are heavy laden describes the Jews as suffering under a load of religious responsibilities laid on them by priests, rabbis, scribes, and Pharisees (see 23:4; Acts 15:10). Rest is relief from this burden.

12:2 The way Jesus observed the Sabbath was a primary point of contention between Himself and the religious authorities. The Pharisees and scribes recognized that the Sabbath was the sign of the Mosaic covenant. Therefore, to desecrate the Sabbath was to flaunt disobedience to the entire Law of Moses (see Num. 15:30–36). While reaping was forbidden on the Sabbath (Ex. 34:21), the disciples were picking grain to eat, not for profit. They were not breaking God’s law. The Pharisees had established 39 categories of actions to be forbidden on the Sabbath, and according to them, the disciples were “harvesting” and therefore breaking the Sabbath. The Pharisees were trying to make Jesus into a lawbreaker and accuse Him of wrongdoing.

12:5 profane the Sabbath: On the Sabbath the priests carried out their work of ministry, showing that their official service had priority over the normal Sabbath observance.

12:7 For a similar use of Hos. 6:6, see 9:13.

12:14 Because of Jesus’ view of the Sabbath, the Pharisees concluded that He was trying to overthrow the entire Mosaic system, and therefore had to be destroyed. Their antagonism toward Jesus was growing.

12:15 withdrew: From this point on, the Lord’s ministry was characterized by opposition, withdrawal from that opposition, and continued ministry to His followers.

12:18–21 This quotation of Is. 42:1–4 shows that the Messiah’s quiet withdrawal was in keeping with the prophet’s portrayal of Him. The most significant aspect of this prophecy is that Jesus’ reserve in the face of Jewish opposition would lead to blessings on the Gentiles.

and He healed him, so that the ⁴blind and mute man both spoke and saw. ²³And all the multitudes were amazed and said, “Could this be the ⁷Son of David?”

²⁴sNow when the Pharisees heard it they said, “This fellow does not cast out demons except by ⁵Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons.”

²⁵But Jesus ¹knew their thoughts, and said to them: “Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will not stand. ²⁶If Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself. How then will his kingdom stand? ²⁷And if I cast out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your sons cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges. ²⁸But if I cast out demons by the Spirit of God, ^usurely the kingdom of God has come upon you. ²⁹vOr how can one enter a strong man’s house and plunder his goods, unless he first binds the strong man? And then he will plunder his house. ³⁰He who is not with Me is against Me, and he who does not gather with Me scatters abroad.

³⁸dThen some of the scribes and Pharisees answered, saying, “Teacher, we want to see a sign from You.”

³⁹But He answered and said to them, “An evil and ^eadulterous generation seeks after a sign, and no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. ⁴⁰fFor as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the great fish, so will the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. ⁴¹gThe men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment with this generation and ^hcondemn it, ⁱbecause they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and indeed a greater than Jonah is here. ⁴²jThe queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with this generation and condemn it, for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and indeed a greater than Solomon is here.

⁴³k“When an unclean spirit goes out of a man, ^lhe goes through dry places, seeking rest, and finds none. ⁴⁴Then he says, ‘I will return to my house from which I came.’ And when he comes, he finds it empty, swept, and put in order. ⁴⁵Then he goes and takes with him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter and dwell there; ^mand the last state of that man is worse than the first. So shall it also be with this wicked generation.”

12:23 Could this be the Son of David may also be translated “This one can’t be the Son of David, can he?” The question expected a negative answer.

12:25–28 Jesus’ defense was in three parts. First, a kingdom, city, or even a family cannot continue to exist if it is divided against itself. Second, when the followers of the Pharisees exorcised demons, the Pharisees claimed it was accomplished by the power of God. Third, the casting out of demons by the Messiah indicated the nearness of the kingdom.

12:29 This verse shows how Jesus the King was confronting the kingdom of Satan. In His exorcisms, Jesus was binding Satan bit by bit; when He comes suddenly to establish His kingdom, He will bind Satan quickly and completely (see Rev. 20:1–10).

12:31, 32 The sin which will not be forgiven is the stubborn refusal to heed the Holy Spirit’s conviction and accept the forgiveness that Christ offers. Particularly in reference to the leaders of Israel, Jesus had offered them all the proof that could be expected—the ministry of John, the testimony of the Father, the prophecies of the OT, His own testimony, and the substantiation of the Holy Spirit. Because the leaders rejected all proofs regarding Jesus as Messiah, nothing else would be given.

12:39 The demand for signs is evidence of unbelief rather than faith. The sign of the prophet Jonah is explained in v. 40 as the Resurrection.

12:40 Three days and three nights does not necessarily indicate three full days. In ancient Israel, a part of a day was considered a whole day (see Esth. 4:16; 5:1); so a period of 26 hours could be called “three days.”

12:41, 42 The men of Nineveh and the queen of the South represent Gentiles who came to faith because of the words of God’s prophets and kings, lesser people than Jesus Christ, God’s only Son. 12:43–45 This difficult analogy most likely describes the moral reformation that took place in Israel as a result of the ministries of John the Baptist and Jesus. The reformation, however, was not genuine (3:7–10); therefore, Israel’s unbelief and hardness of heart were worse than before.

Jesus and the True BrethrenMark 3:31-35

⁴⁶While He was still talking to the multitudes, ^ahehold, His mother and ^bbrothers stood outside, seeking to speak with Him. ⁴⁷Then one said to Him, “Look, ^pYour mother and Your brothers are standing outside, seeking to speak with You.”

⁴⁸But He answered and said to the one who told Him, “Who is My mother and who are My brothers?” ⁴⁹And He stretched out His hand toward His disciples and said, “Here are My mother and My ^qbrothers!” ⁵⁰For ^rwhoever does the will of My Father in heaven is My brother and sister and mother.”

Parable of the SoilsMark 4:1-20; Luke 8:4-15

13 On the same day Jesus went out of the house ^aand sat by the sea. ^{2b}And great multitudes were gathered together to Him, so that ^cHe got into a boat and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

³Then He spoke many things to them in parables, saying: ^d“Behold, a sower went out to sow. ⁴And as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside; and the birds came and devoured them. ⁵Some fell on stony places, where they did not have much earth; and they immediately sprang up because they had no depth of earth. ⁶But when the sun was up they were scorched, and because they had no root they withered away. ⁷And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up and choked them. ⁸But others fell on good ground and yielded a crop: some ^ea hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty. ^{9f}He who has ears to hear, let him hear!”

¹⁰And the disciples came and said to Him, “Why do You speak to them in parables?”

¹¹He answered and said to them, “Because ^git has been given to you to know the ¹ mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given. ^{12h}For whoever has, to him more will be given, and he will have abundance; but whoever does not have, even what he has will be taken away from him. ¹³Therefore I speak to them in parables, because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear, nor do they understand. ¹⁴And in them the prophecy of Isaiah is fulfilled, which says:

ⁱ“Hearing you will hear and shall not understand,

And seeing you will see and not ^jperceive;

¹⁵ For the hearts of this people have grown dull.

Their ears ^kare hard of hearing,

13:3 He spoke many things to them in parables: This teaching method, often used by the rabbis, utilized common scenes from everyday life to teach new truths about the kingdom.

13:4 Some seed fell by the wayside speaks of soil hardened by much human and animal traffic, that failed to allow penetration of the seed, leaving it fair game for the birds.

13:5 Stony places refers to shallow soil resting on a shelf of rock. The thin layer of dust or dirt accelerated the seed’s growth under the hot sun, but the plant could only live a short time because of the shallow soil.

13:7 Among thorns suggests good soil occupied with wild growth.

13:8 Good ground refers to prepared or tilled soil that allows prosperous growth.

13:11–15 It has been given to you: The purpose of this parable was both to reveal (v. 11) and to conceal the truth (v. 13). This hiding of the truth was a judgment for unbelief, as happened during Isaiah’s ministry (see Is. 6:9, 10).

13:11 The mysteries of the kingdom of heaven refers to new truths about the promised kingdom.

13:12 whoever has, to him more will be given: Just as the failure to respond to truth brings blindness, so a positive response is rewarded with further understanding (see Luke 8:16–18). This principle is applied to the leaders of Israel in fulfillment of many OT prophecies—especially Is. 6:9, 10. The leaders’ rejection of the message of Jesus further blinded them to the spiritual nature of Christ’s kingdom. Parables then became Jesus’ effective tools for both revealing truth to the faithful and concealing it from those who would reject it. As emphasized by Mark 4:11, 12, Jesus’ parables revealed the truths of His kingdom as well as the unbelief of many.

thorns is he who hears the word, and the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and he becomes unfruitful. ²³ But he who received seed on the good ground is he who hears the word and understands it, who indeed bears ²⁴ fruit and produces: some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty.”

²⁴ Another parable He put forth to them, saying: “The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field; ²⁵ but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat and went his way. ²⁶ But when the grain had sprouted and produced a crop, then the tares also appeared. ²⁷ So the servants of the owner came and said to him, ‘Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? How then does it have tares?’ ²⁸ He said to them, ‘An enemy has done this.’ The servants said to him, ‘Do you want us then to go and gather them up?’ ²⁹ But he said, ‘No, lest while you gather up the tares you also uproot the wheat with them. ³⁰ Let both grow together until the harvest, and at the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, “First gather together the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them, but ³¹ gather the wheat into my barn.”’”

Parable of the Mustard Seed

Mark 4:30-32; Luke 13:18, 19

Parable of the Leaven

Luke 13:20, 21

^{33a} Another parable He spoke to them: “The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three ³ measures of meal till ^b it was all leavened.”

^{34c} All these things Jesus spoke to the multitude in parables; and without a parable He did not speak to them, ³⁵ that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying:

^d “*I will open My mouth in parables;
I will utter things kept secret from the foundation of the world.*”

Parable of the Tares Explained

³⁶ Then Jesus sent the multitude away and went into the house. And His disciples came to Him, saying, “Explain to us the parable of the tares of the field.”

13:24 The kingdom of heaven is like: This phrase introduces new truth regarding God’s coming kingdom. The introductory formula does not mean that the kingdom is to be exactly identified with a man, or a mustard seed (v. 31), or leaven (v. 33). It simply means that some truth regarding the kingdom is found in the story. A parable was primarily intended to teach one point, not to be picked apart to find meaning in all of its details.

13:25 his enemy came and sowed tares: Tares closely resemble wheat, but are poisonous to human beings. They are indistinguishable from wheat until the final fruit appears. Farmers would weed out tares just before the wheat harvest. Until Christ returns, both genuine believers and counterfeits will be allowed to remain together.

13:31, 32 The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed: The parable of the wheat and tares (vv. 24–30) reveals that the kingdom of heaven will be preceded by an age in which good and evil coexist. The parable of the mustard seed affirms that during that time period, the number of people who will inherit the kingdom will be very small at first. But though it begins like the smallest of seeds, the nucleus will enjoy growth completely out of proportion to its initial size. The birds of the air do not represent evil as they do in the parable of the soils (vv. 4, 19). In the OT, a tree large enough to support nesting birds was considered prosperous and healthy

(see Ps. 104:12; Ezek. 17:23; 31:6; Dan. 4:12, 21). The kingdom, though having only a small number of people at the beginning of the age, will ultimately be large and prosperous.

13:33 The kingdom of heaven is like leaven: Although leaven sometimes symbolizes evil, here the kingdom of heaven is being compared to the dynamic character of yeast. When yeast is kneaded into the dough, it expands by itself. Rather than being powered by outward armies or organizations, the kingdom of God will grow by an internal dynamic, the Holy Spirit, overcoming all opposition. As the parable of the mustard seed (vv. 31, 32) addresses the extent of the kingdom’s growth, this parable concerns the power and process of its growth.

13:35 The quotation of Asaph in Ps. 78:2 serves as a prophecy of Jesus’ use of parables.

13:36 Jesus sent the multitude away: The parables of vv. 1–35 were addressed to the multitude. The phrase went into the house indicates that the parables of vv. 44–52 were for the disciples only. During this “private instruction,” Jesus explained His previous stories and added four more.

13:38 Sons of the kingdom refers to heirs of the kingdom.

13:39 The end of the age speaks of the time when the Son of Man will come to set up His righteous kingdom.

The World of the Fishermen

Fishing on the Sea of Galilee was big business. This body of water, eight miles wide and 13 miles long, lay beside a fertile plain renowned for its agriculture. In Jesus' day, nine cities crowded its shorelines, each with no less than fifteen thousand citizens, possibly making the region's total population greater than Jerusalem's. The names of the towns reflect the importance of fishing to the life and economy of the area. For example, Bethsaida—from which at least four fishermen left their nets to follow Jesus (Matt. 4:18–22; John 1:44)—means “fish town”; most of the town was employed in the fishing industry.

Shoals just offshore were a fisherman's paradise. In Jesus' day, hundreds of fishing boats trawled the lake. Galileans ate little meat besides fish. It came highly salted because there was no other way to preserve the “catch of the day.”

Parable of the Householder

⁵¹⁴Jesus said to them, “Have you understood all these things?”

They said to Him, “Yes, ⁵Lord.”

⁵²Then He said to them, “Therefore every ⁶scribe instructed ⁷concerning the kingdom of heaven is like a householder who brings out of his treasure ^sthings new and old.”

⁵³Now it came to pass, when Jesus had finished these parables, that He departed from there.

13:44 the kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field: The parables of vv. 44–52 concern kingdom values and responsibilities. They are especially directed at believers. The first two are recorded by Matthew alone and appear to belong together.

Stripped of their grand dreams of an immediate, powerful kingdom of David and facing the prospect of much opposition on all sides, the disciples were forced to count the cost. In the first story a man stumbles on a treasure trove, which he makes every effort to obtain. The central truth being taught is the immense value of the kingdom, which far outweighs any sacrifice or inconvenience one might encounter on earth.

13:45, 46 the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking beautiful pearls: This second parable on kingdom values was evidently given to further underscore Jesus' optimism for the despondent disciples. His double encouragement indicates their great need at that time. This parable has a slightly different emphasis. Though the first individual found his treasure by accident, the second found his by diligent search. No matter how a person is led to Christ's kingdom, its values and delights will be beyond estimation.

13:47–50 the kingdom of heaven is like a dragnet: The last two parables speak of kingdom responsibilities for disciples. First, Jesus describes a large seine net, which would encircle a large area and drag the bottom of a lake. Such a net gathers fish of every kind, without discrimination. Similarly, the responsibility of disciples would be to catch as many “fish”—of every kind—as possible. The work of judging or ferreting out the false catch, however, is a job that disciples are neither called nor equipped to do. That work is assigned to angels at Christ's return.

13:51, 52 Things new and old refers to truths about the kingdom that were found in the OT and those that were freshly revealed in these parables. This parable calls for action on the part of the disciples in view of what they had learned. They were to be responsible stewards and dispensers of these kingdom treasures.

⁵⁴ When He had come to His own country, He taught them in their synagogue, so that they were astonished and said, “Where did this Man get this wisdom and these mighty works? ⁵⁵ “Is this not the carpenter’s son? Is not His mother called Mary? And ^v His brothers ^w James, ⁸ Josés, Simon, and Judas? ⁵⁶ And His sisters, are they not all with us? Where then did this Man get all these things?” ⁵⁷ So they ^x were offended at Him.

But Jesus said to them, ^y “A prophet is not without honor except in his own country and in his own house.” ⁵⁸ Now ^z He did not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

^{13e} When Jesus heard it, He departed from there by boat to a deserted place by Himself. But when the multitudes heard it, they followed Him on foot from the cities. ¹⁴ And when Jesus went out He saw a great multitude; and He ^f was moved with compassion for them, and healed their sick. ^{15g} When it was evening, His disciples came to Him, saying, “This is a deserted place, and the hour is already late. 13:55 carpenter’s son: Carpenter basically means skilled worker. Joseph may have been a stonemason or some other type of craftsman.

13:57, 58 A prophet is not without honor except in his own country: In this second mission of Jesus to Nazareth, His hometown, He found that the people’s unbelief had not abated (see Luke 4:16–30). Because of their familiarity with Jesus, the people failed to recognize Him for who He is; their eyes were blinded by unbelief.

14:1, 2 John the Baptist had already been beheaded (how that happened is recorded in the following verses). According to Herod, the miracles of Christ were so wonderful that they could only be explained as the work of a resurrected prophet, perhaps John the Baptist.

14:3, 4 Herod had gone to Rome where he met Herodias, the wife of his half brother Philip. After seducing Herodias, Herod divorced his own wife and married her. John had rebuked the king for his moral transgression.

14:20 Jesus’ miraculous feeding of the crowd indicates a number of things: (1) He fulfills the expectations of those looking forward to a new Moses, based on Deut. 18:15 (see John 1:21; Acts 3:22; 7:37); (2) He can supply the daily bread requested in 6:11; and (3) He is the Messiah who will provide the messianic banquet (see 22:1–14; 26:29; Ps. 132:15; Is. 25:6). This miracle is so significant that it is the only pre-crucifixion sign recorded in all four Gospels.

²⁸And Peter answered Him and said, “Lord, if it is You, command me to come to You on the water.”

²⁹So He said, “Come.” And when Peter had come down out of the boat, he walked on the water to go to Jesus. ³⁰But when he saw ⁵that the wind was boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink he cried out, saying, “Lord, save me!”

³¹And immediately Jesus stretched out His hand and caught him, and said to him, “O you of ^mlittle faith, why did you doubt?” ³²And when they got into the boat, the wind ceased.

³³Then those who were in the boat ⁶came and worshiped Him, saying, “Truly ⁿYou are the Son of God.”

14:28–31 Only the Gospel of Matthew records the miracle of Peter walking on the water. This was a valuable lesson for the disciples to learn: They could do the impossible with the power of Christ.

15:1 The fact that the scribes and Pharisees had traveled from Jerusalem to Galilee to see Jesus indicates that Jesus’ reputation was becoming widespread.

15:2 The tradition of the elders was not the Law of Moses; it was the oral tradition based on interpretations of the law. They washed their hands ceremonially to remove defilement, not for hygienic purposes (see Mark 7:2–4).

15:3 In typical rabbinical style, Jesus answered the accusations of the scribes and Pharisees with a question. Whereas they challenged Jesus for His disciples’ violation of the teachings of former rabbis, Jesus challenged them for violating the commandment of God.

The scribes and Pharisees were placing their own views above the revelation of God, and yet claimed to be following Him.

15:4–6 Jesus was referring to a practice whereby people would dedicate their possessions to God so that they could use their finances for themselves and not for others. For example, if parents needed money, the children could excuse themselves from helping because their resources were already “dedicated” to God. This ruse kept people from honoring their parents by taking care of them in their old age.

15:10, 11 In vv. 3–9, Jesus rebuked the scribes and Pharisees for being so obsessed with traditions that they failed to observe basic commandments. Here He chided them for being so concerned with external ceremonial washings and dietary regulations that they failed to deal with character. Both of these charges were an outgrowth of the accusations of the scribes and Pharisees recorded in v. 2.

¹⁶So Jesus said, “Are you also still without understanding? ¹⁷Do you not yet understand that ^owhatever enters the mouth goes into the stomach and is eliminated? ¹⁸But ^pthose things which proceed out of the mouth come from the heart, and they defile a man. ¹⁹^qFor out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies. ²⁰These are the things which defile a man, but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile a man.”

Mark 7:24-30

²¹^rThen Jesus went out from there and departed to the region of Tyre and Sidon. ²²And behold, a woman of Canaan came from that region and cried out to Him, saying, “Have mercy on me, O Lord, ^sSon of David! My daughter is severely demon-possessed.”

²³But He answered her not a word.

And His disciples came and urged Him, saying, “Send her away, for she cries out after us.”

²⁴But He answered and said, ^t“I was not sent except to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.”

²⁵Then she came and worshiped Him, saying, “Lord, help me!”

²⁶But He answered and said, “It is not good to take the children's bread and throw it to the little ‘dogs.’”

²⁷And she said, “Yes, Lord, yet even the little dogs eat the crumbs which fall from their masters' table.”

²⁸Then Jesus answered and said to her, “O woman, ^vgreat is your faith! Let it be to you as you desire.” And her daughter was healed from that very hour.

³⁸Now those who ate were four thousand men, besides women and children.

16 Then the ^aPharisees and Sadducees came, and testing Him asked that He would show them a sign from heaven. ²He answered and said to them, “When it is evening you say, ‘It will be fair weather, for the sky is red’; ³and

15:16–20 As a person thinks in his heart, so is he. How do thoughts get into the heart, the seat of reflection? Through the eyes, ears, and other senses. The raw material of our actions is what we take into our mind and allow to settle in our heart. David put it this way: “Your word I have hidden in my heart, that I might not sin against You” (Ps. 119:11). The other side is in Ps 101:3: “I will set nothing wicked before my eyes.” Paul pictured the believer as “bringing every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ” (see 2 Cor. 10:5). 15:22 The woman was a Gentile who would have had no natural claims on a Jewish Messiah.

15:24 This verse demonstrates Christ's commitment to Israel, whom He called lost sheep. Jesus would always give the Jews the first opportunity to accept Him as their Messiah.

15:26 The “children” that Jesus referred to were the people of Israel. The little dogs refer to Gentiles.

15:29–31 The scene changes from the region of Tyre and Sidon to a mountain near the Sea of Galilee but still in Gentile territory. Mark 7:31 identifies this region as the Decapolis. they glorified the God of Israel: The Gentiles believed and glorified Israel's God, while many in Israel remained blind to their Messiah.

15:32–38 This is not the same miracle recorded in 14:14–21. Jesus Himself identified two distinct feedings of multitudes (16:9, 10). This was a supernatural supply of food for Gentiles. The seven baskets of leftovers here contrasts with the 12 baskets that were gathered in ch. 14. Further, the word for large baskets in v. 37 is different from the word for “baskets” in 14:20.

16:1 sign from heaven: Perhaps the scribes and Pharisees were thinking of signs such as the fire from heaven that answered Elijah's prayer (see 1 Kin. 18:36–38), the plagues on Egypt (see Ex. 7–12), or the sun standing still (see Josh. 10:12–14).

in the morning, *‘It will be foul weather today, for the sky is red and threatening.’*¹ Hypocrites! You know how to discern the face of the sky, but you cannot discern the signs of the times.^{4b} A wicked and adulterous generation seeks after a sign, and no sign shall be given to it except the sign of ²the prophet Jonah.” And He left them and departed.

Mark 8:13-21

⁵Now ^cwhen His disciples had come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread. ⁶Then Jesus said to them, ^d“Take heed and beware of the ³leaven of the Pharisees and the Sadducees.”
⁷And they reasoned among themselves, saying, “It is because we have taken no bread.”
⁸But Jesus, being aware of it, said to them, “O you of little faith, why do you reason among yourselves because you ⁴have brought no bread? ^{9e}Do you not yet understand, or remember the five loaves of the five thousand and how many baskets you took up? ^{10f}Nor the seven loaves of the four thousand and how many large baskets you took up? ¹¹How is it you do not understand that I did not speak to you concerning bread?—but to beware of the ⁵leaven of the Pharisees and Saddu-

Revelation of the Person of the King

Mark 8:27-30; Luke 9:18-21

¹³When Jesus came into the region of Caesarea Philippi, He asked His disciples, saying, ^g“Who do men say that I, the Son of Man, am?”
¹⁴So they said, ^h“Some say John the Baptist, some Elijah, and others Jeremiah or ¹one of the prophets.”

John 20:23

16:4 And He left them: Previously Jesus had withdrawn in the face of opposition (12:15; 14:13; 15:21); here He left the Pharisees and Sadducees, meaning that He abandoned or forsook them. Jesus deserted these religious leaders as reprobates.
16:5 The other side refers to the other side of the Sea of Galilee, where the Gentiles lived.
16:11, 12 In Scripture, leaven is often used as a symbol of evil. The doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees was hypocrisy, legalism, political opportunism, and spiritual hardness. Jesus’ warning here was a result of the Pharisees’ request for a sign in vv. 1–4.
16:13 Caesarea Philippi was located north of the Sea of Galilee, at the base of the southwest slope of Mt. Hermon. The place had long been associated with idol worship. The site for pagan worship centered on a massive stone facade, which Jesus referred to in His play on words concerning “rock” in v. 18. Who do men say that I ... am: In the face of the surrounding idols, Christ led His disciples into a proclamation of His deity by first soliciting from them what other people said. In the end, however, what mattered was the apostles’ own beliefs concerning Jesus.

16:16 The Spirit of grace revealed to Peter the true identity of the Lord Jesus. Son of the living God refers to Jesus’ deity. Several factors point to this conclusion: (1) He was born of a virgin (1:18–20); (2) He was called Immanuel, meaning “God with us” (1:23); (3) the title in Greek is emphatic: “the Son of the God, the living One”; and (4) later passages describe Christ as God (see John 20:27–29).
16:17 has not revealed: People do not come to faith in Jesus Christ by scrutiny or searching, but by the Father’s revelation of the Son to them (see John 6:65).
16:18 The words I will build My church indicate that the church had not yet been started. Obviously the disciples did not at this point understand the doctrine of the NT church with its equality of Jew and Gentile (see Eph. 2:11–3:7). They simply understood it to be the Lord’s followers. the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it: Jesus may have been saying simply that death would not vanquish the church. One day, by the power of Christ’s resurrection, the church and all the redeemed will be resurrected. Others suggest that the phrase means that the forces of evil will not be able to conquer the people of God.
16:19 You in this passage is singular. The keys of the kingdom may refer to Peter’s opening the kingdom to various groups of people (Jews in Acts 2; 3; Samaritans in Acts 8:14–17; Gentiles in Acts 10). The keys would open doors to lost people. However, this term may have further significance. The keys seem to be explained by the binding and loosing discussed in the last part of the verse. In rabbinical literature, binding and loosing refers to what was

(Gk. petra) (16:18; Rom. 9:33; 1 Cor. 10:4; 1 Pet. 2:8) Strong’s #4073

As Peter and rock are one word in the language spoken by Jesus (Aramaic), the wordplay in this verse can be duplicated only in languages that also have one word for both. In Greek, the word for Peter is petros (meaning “stone”); the word for rock is petra. Some commentators have indicated that, though the two words are nearly synonymous, Jesus intended a distinction—Peter is but a fragment of the whole, while Christ Himself is the entire rock. Thus it could be said that the church would be built on Christ, the Rock. Be that as it may, at least it can be said that the context allows that the rock upon which the church is built is Peter’s confession that Jesus is the Son of God.

you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth ⁸will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.”

Mark 9:2-13; Luke 9:28-36; 2 Pet. 1:17, 18

17 Now ^a after six days Jesus took Peter, James, and John his brother, led them up on a high mountain by themselves; ² and He was transfigured before them. His face shone like the sun, and His clothes became as white as the light. ³ And behold, Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with Him. ⁴ Then Peter answered and said to Jesus, “Lord, it is good for us to be here; if You wish, ¹ let us make here three tabernacles: one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.”

⁵ ^b While he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them; and suddenly a voice came out of the cloud, saying, ^c “This is My beloved Son, ^d in whom I am well pleased. ^e Hear Him!” ⁶ ^f And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their faces and were greatly afraid. ⁷ But Jesus came and ^g touched them and said, “Arise, and do not be afraid.” ⁸ When they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no one but Jesus only.

⁹ Now as they came down from the mountain, Jesus commanded them, saying, “Tell the vision to no one until the Son of Man is risen from the dead.”

permitted or not permitted. So this passage may refer to judgments that Peter would make about what would be permitted or forbidden in the church, the body of believers.

16:20 Because the public did not understand the concept of the suffering Messiah, they were not to be told that He was Jesus the Christ. Furthermore, the nation had already turned away from Christ. They had crossed the point of no return (12:31, 32).

16:21 The phrase from that time marks a new direction in Jesus' ministry. The expression occurs twice in the Book of Matthew, here and in 4:17. In 4:17, it introduces the beginning of Jesus' ministry in announcing the nearness of the kingdom. Here it introduces the Cross and the ultimate rejection of the Messiah. Elders and chief priests and scribes refer to the makeup of the Jewish council, also called the Sanhedrin. Together with the mention of Jerusalem, this indicates that Jesus' rejection would be an official one. Be killed is the first of three predictions in Matthew concerning Christ's death (see 17:22, 23; 20:18, 19).

16:22 rebuke Him: Peter had confessed Jesus' deity earlier (v. 16). Now he was attempting to correct Jesus.

16:23 To call Peter Satan was a very serious thing. But Peter was standing in the way of the plan of God, and so he was speaking for Satan.

16:28 coming in His kingdom: This verse anticipates the Transfiguration in ch. 17. Several reasons point to this conclusion: (1) It is Peter's interpretation in 2 Pet. 1:16-18; (2) the three synoptic Gospels (John omits the account of the Transfiguration) all place the Transfiguration immediately after this prediction; and (3) some—not all—of the apostles saw the Transfiguration (19:27-30). In the Transfiguration, Peter, James, and John saw a preview of the kingdom.

17:1 The high mountain was probably a spur of Mt. Hermon, which rises to about 9,400 feet above sea level.

17:3 Moses and Elijah represented the OT, personifying the Law and the Prophets. Their presence indicated that the OT Scriptures had been looking forward to the Messiah and His kingdom.

17:5 This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased were the identical words spoken at Jesus' baptism in 3:17 (see Ps. 2:7; Is. 42:1). Hear Him seems to refer to Deut. 18:15.

17:9 Tell the vision to no one: The command for silence was due to the fact that the masses of Israel had an incorrect concept of the Messiah (8:4; 12:16). They expected a conquering king, not a Suffering Servant.

17:10 The three disciples evidently did not comprehend the reference to Christ's death in v. 9. The problem they raised concerned the Transfiguration. They had just seen Elijah on the mountain. If the scribes were correct that Elijah must come before the kingdom would arrive, why should the disciples not inform everyone that Elijah had appeared on the mountain?

^h“Why then do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?”

¹¹Jesus answered and said to them, “Indeed, Elijah is coming ²first and will ⁱrestore all things. ¹²But I say to you that Elijah has come already, and they ^kdid not know him but did to him whatever they wished. Likewise ^lthe Son of Man is also about to suffer at their hands.” ¹³^mThen the disciples understood that He spoke to them of John the Baptist.

Instruction About Faith

Mark 9:14-29; Luke 9:37-42

¹⁴ⁿAnd when they had come to the multitude, a man came to Him, kneeling down to Him and saying, ¹⁵“Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is ³an epileptic and suffers severely; for he often falls into the fire and often into the water. ¹⁶So I brought him to Your disciples, but they could not cure him.”

¹⁷Then Jesus answered and said, “O ⁴faithless and ^operverse generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I bear with you? Bring him here to Me.” ¹⁸And Jesus ^prebuked the demon, and it came out of him; and the child was cured from that very hour.

¹⁹Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, “Why could we not cast it out?”

²⁰So Jesus said to them, “Because of your ⁵unbelief; for assuredly, I say to you, ^qif you have faith as a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you. ²¹⁶However, this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting.”

18 At ^athat time the disciples came to Jesus, saying, “Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?”

²Then Jesus called a little ^bchild to Him, set him in the midst of them, ³and said, “Assuredly, I say to you, ^cunless you are converted and become as little children, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven. ⁴^dTherefore who-

17:11 The Lord informed His three apostles that the scribes were right in their interpretation of Mal. 3:1; 4:5, 6. The fact that Christ used the phrase will restore all things indicates that the prophecy still has a future fulfillment.

17:12, 13 Jesus indicates that the prophecies concerning Elijah had their fulfillment in John the Baptist. Yet because the restoration is not complete, some conclude that the role of Elijah will be taken up by one of the two witnesses of Rev. 11:3-6.

17:15 In this case, the epilepsy was caused by a demon (v. 18).

17:20 The disciples could not exorcise the demon because they failed in faith. The power was there, but they had failed to appropriate it.

17:22, 23 Jesus and the disciples began what would be Jesus' final journey to Jerusalem. Once again Jesus predicted His death and resurrection (see also 16:21; 20:18, 19). Once again the disciples failed to understand the Resurrection; they seemed to have heard only His words about His coming death, because they became exceedingly sorrowful.

17:24 The temple tax was a tax given annually by every adult Jewish male over 20 years of age for maintaining the temple. This tax was based on Ex. 30:13, and amounted to two day's wages for a common laborer. Evidently Jesus had not yet paid the tax, and the temple tax collector was following up on it.

17:25 Peter, desiring to maintain the best reputation and also assuming the best of his Master, replied to the tax collector (v. 24) that Jesus had paid the temple tax. Anticipated implies that Peter was about to speak, evidently about the matter of Christ paying the temple tax, when Jesus spoke first. Their sons may refer to citizens of a country as opposed to conquered peoples or strangers. However, citizens often pay customs and taxes. More likely the contrast is between the imperial family and the common people.

17:26 In this verse, Jesus demonstrates that, as God's Son, He was free from the obligation to pay the temple tax. In fact, the temple belonged to Him (see Mal. 3:1). The fact that He used the plural sons implies that Peter and the other disciples were also free from that obligation.

18:1 Matthew 18 contains the fourth of five discourses in Matthew's Gospel (compare 5:1-7:27; 10:1-42; 13:1-53; 24:1-25:46). The theme of this discourse is humility. Jesus outlines five reasons that humility is essential: (1) for entrance into the kingdom (vv. 2, 3); (2) for greatness in the kingdom (v. 4); (3) to prevent offenses (vv. 5-11); (4) to carry on proper discipline in the church (vv. 5-20); and (5) for forgiving one another (vv. 21-35). Greatest in the kingdom implies rank, a concept implied by Jesus Himself in 5:19.

18:3, 4 Converted means to turn around (see Luke 22:32).

Mark 9:42-48

^{6f}“Whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to sin, it would be better for him if a millstone were hung around his neck, and he were drowned in the depth of the sea. ⁷Woe to the world because of ¹offenses! For ^goffenses must come, but ^hwoe to that man by whom the offense comes!

⁸ⁱ“If your hand or foot causes you to sin, cut it off and cast it from you. It is better for you to enter into life lame or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the everlasting fire. ⁹And if your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out and cast it from you. It is better for you to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes, to be cast into ²hell fire.

The Offended Brother

If he hears you, ^pyou have gained your brother. ¹⁶But if he will not hear, take with you one or two more, that ^q*‘by the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.’* ¹⁷And if he refuses to hear them, tell it to the church. But if he refuses even to hear the church, let him be to you like a ^rheathen and a tax collector.

¹⁸“Assuredly, I say to you, ^swhatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.

Instruction About Forgiveness

²¹Then Peter came to Him and said, “Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? ^wUp to seven times?”

²²Jesus said to him, “I do not say to you, ^xup to seven times, but up to seventy times seven. ²³Therefore the kingdom of heaven is like a certain king who

18:6 Causes . . . to sin literally means to put a snare, trap, or stumbling block in someone’s way. A millstone was a heavy grinding stone so large that it had to be turned by a donkey.

18:8, 9 This same basic statement is found in reverse order in 5:29, 30. One of the keys to understanding this assertion is to recognize the present tense of causes you to sin. Although the warning was addressed to the disciples, it describes a person who has a lifestyle of sinning and needs drastic measures in order to change it (see 1 John 3:7–10).

18:10 One of these little ones describes either a little child or a believer. Verses 12–14 seem to indicate a believer. Here Jesus implies that angels watch over and serve His followers on earth (see Heb. 1:14).

18:14 These little ones probably refers back to those who believe (v. 6). The Father watches over each of His little ones.

18:15–17 Jesus teaches His disciples about the process of restoring an erring believer. First, there should be a loving personal confrontation. The second step outlined in v. 16 is not as clear. The principle of witnesses is taken from Deut. 19:15, but what is it the witnesses attest? Evidently they witness that the offended brother is acting in good faith and the right spirit in attempting to work out a reconciliation. They also would be witnesses to any agreement. If this does not bring peace, the offended brother is to report it to the assembly. The church then is to do everything possible to convince the believer who has sinned to be reconciled or to right the wrong. If the erring one will not respond, that person is to be disciplined by being cut off from the fellowship. Such a loss would be extremely painful to the offender (1 Cor. 5:11; 2 Thess. 3:6, 14, 15).

18:18 bind: Binding refers to things that are not permitted; loosing refers to things that are permitted (16:19). As in 16:19, the tenses imply that what is loosed or bound on earth will have been determined already in heaven. In other words, this is a promise of divine direction for each local church.

18:19, 20 This passage specifically refers to church discipline. It is a promise for guidance for the two or three who confront, and a promise for the church to claim wisdom and restoration for the erring brother.

18:21 Peter’s question was a logical outgrowth of the teachings of vv. 15–20. Actually Peter was being very generous in his willingness to forgive up to seven times. The traditional limit was three times, possibly because of the refrain in Amos 1:3, 6, 9, 11, 13; 2:1, 4, 6.

18:22 Seventy times seven may also mean “seventy-seven times.” The point is not to keep count at all, but to always be willing to forgive.

18:23–31 Ten thousand talents was an enormous sum. A denarius was one day’s wage for a laborer (20:2). A talent was worth about six thousand denarii. Ten thousand talents would be sixty million day’s wages, a sum that would be impossible to repay. Thus Jesus graphically portrayed this man’s hopeless predicament.

wanted to settle accounts with his servants. ²⁴ And when he had begun to settle accounts, one was brought to him who owed him ten thousand talents. ²⁵ But as he was not able to pay, his master commanded ²⁶ that he be sold, with his wife and children and all that he had, and that payment be made. ²⁶ The servant therefore fell down before him, saying, ‘Master, have patience with me, and I will pay you all.’ ²⁷ Then the master of that servant was moved with compassion, released him, and forgave him the debt.

²⁸ “But that servant went out and found one of his fellow servants who owed him a hundred denarii; and he laid hands on him and took him by the throat, saying, ‘Pay me what you owe!’ ²⁹ So his fellow servant fell down ³⁰ at his feet and begged him, saying, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay you ³¹ all.’ ³⁰ And he would not, but went and threw him into prison till he should pay the debt. ³¹ So when his fellow servants saw what had been done, they were very grieved, and came and told their master all that had been done. ³² Then his master, after he had called him, said to him, ‘You wicked servant! I forgave you ³³ all that debt because you begged me. ³³ Should you not also have had compassion on your fellow servant, just as I had pity on you?’ ³⁴ And his master was angry, and delivered him to the torturers until he should pay all that was due to him.

³⁵ ^a “So My heavenly Father also will do to you if each of you, from his heart, does not forgive his brother ⁷ his trespasses.”

Instruction About Divorce

Mark 10:1–12

19 Now it came to pass, ^a when Jesus had finished these sayings, that He departed from Galilee and came to the region of Judea beyond the Jordan. ^{2b} And great multitudes followed Him, and He healed them there.

³ The Pharisees also came to Him, testing Him, and saying to Him, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for just any reason?”

⁴ And He answered and said to them, “Have you not read that He who ¹ made them at the beginning ^c made them male and female,” ⁵ and said, ^d For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and ^e the two shall become one flesh”? ⁶ So then, they are no longer two but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let not man separate.”

⁷ They said to Him, ^f “Why then did Moses command to give a certificate of divorce, and to put her away?”

⁸ He said to them, “Moses, because of the ^g hardness of your hearts, permitted you to divorce your ^h wives, but from the beginning it was not so. ⁹ⁱ And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for ² sexual immorality, and marries another, commits adultery; and whoever marries her who is divorced commits adultery.”

¹⁰ His disciples said to Him, ^j “If such is the case of the man with his wife, it is better not to marry.”

¹¹ But He said to them, ^k “All cannot accept this saying, but only those to whom it has been given: ¹² For there are 18:32, 33 This parable reiterates the principle that we should forgive others because God forgives us (see the Lord’s Prayer in 6:12).

18:35 This verse is a warning about the penalty for not forgiving others (see 1 Cor. 11:30–32; Heb. 12:5–11). All of a Christian’s sins are forgiven and forgotten forever (see Ps. 103:12; Jer. 31:34; Heb. 8:12). But this parable illustrates the Christian duty to forgive others (see 6:12, 14, 15; 2 Cor. 2:10; Eph. 4:32). If our forgiveness should be in direct proportion to the incredible amount that we have been forgiven (v. 22), then we must always be willing to forgive.

19:3 The Pharisees’ question about divorce was dangerous. John the Baptist’s answer had resulted in imprisonment and ultimately execution (14:3–11). The use of the word testing indicates the malicious intent of the query. The rabbis had been arguing about when it was permissible according to the Law to divorce. Specifically, they wanted to know the meaning of the expression “uncleanness” in Deut. 24:1, which evidently referred to some kind of indecency. One rabbinical school held that the only grounds for divorce was immorality. Another school believed that anything that displeased the husband was sufficient to obtain a divorce. These Pharisees wanted Jesus to take one side on this controversy, thus giving them evidence to use against Him.

19:4–6 Jesus avoided the controversy over divorce (v. 3) by giving three reasons for why married people should remain married: (1) God made one male and one female. If God had intended more than one wife for Adam, He would have created more. The same would be true of husbands for Eve. He who made them is literally

“the One who created” or “the Creator.” The implication is that the Creator is Lord and is the One who determines what is the ideal in marriage. (2) God ordained marriage as the strongest bond in all human relationships. A man leaves his parents and is joined to his wife. The language is very strong here. Leave means “to abandon”; joined to means “to be glued to.” The most permanent relationship in society is not between parent and child, but between husband and wife. (3) The two become one flesh. The basic element in marriage is a contract or covenant (see Mal. 2:14); part of that covenant is physical intimacy.

19:8 Jesus pointed out that Moses never commanded divorce, he only permitted it. God’s original ideal was that married couples would not divorce.

19:9 Defining the term wife is vital to understanding the principle of this verse. Some believe that the divorce decree was valid only during the engagement period, as with Mary and Joseph in ch. 1. There the wife is the woman to whom a man is engaged. However, Deut. 24:1 indicates that the couple is living together, suggesting an actual marriage. Immorality may refer to any kind of sexual immorality—premarital sex, extramarital sex, prostitution, homosexuality, and even bestiality. Whoever marries her who is divorced probably refers to a man who marries a woman who has been divorced because of her immorality.

19:11 Jesus indicates that remaining unmarried is only for a few people.

19:12 Some people do not marry because they were born with no

³eunuchs who were born thus from their mother's womb, and ¹there are eunuchs who were made eunuchs by men, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake. He who is able to accept it, let him accept it."

¹³^m Then little children were brought to Him that He might put His hands on them and pray, but the disciples rebuked them. ¹⁴ But Jesus said, "Let the little children come to Me, and do not forbid them; for ⁿof such is the kingdom of heaven." ¹⁵ And He laid His hands on them and departed from there.

¹⁶^o Now behold, one came and said to Him, ^p"Good ⁴Teacher, what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life?"

¹⁷ So He said to him, ⁵"Why do you call Me good? ⁶No one is ^qgood but One, that is, God. But if you want to enter into life, ^rkeep the commandments."

¹⁸ He said to Him, "Which ones?"

Jesus said, ^s"You shall not murder; 'You shall not commit adultery; 'You shall not steal; 'You shall not bear false witness; ¹⁹^t 'Honor your father and your mother; and, ^u"You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

²⁰ The young man said to Him, "All these things I have ^vkept ⁷from my youth. What do I still lack?"

²¹ Jesus said to him, "If you want to be perfect, ^wgo, sell what you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow Me."

²² But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions.

²³ Then Jesus said to His disciples, "Assuredly, I say to you that ^xit is hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven.

²⁷ Then Peter answered and said to Him, "See, ^zwe have left all and followed You. Therefore what shall we have?"

²⁸ So Jesus said to them, "Assuredly I say to you, that in the regeneration, when the Son of Man sits on the throne of His glory, ^ayou who have followed Me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. ²⁹^b And everyone who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother ⁸or wife or children or ⁹lands, for My name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold, and inherit eternal life. ³⁰^c But many who are first will be last, and the last first.

20 "For the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire laborers for his vineyard. ² Now when he had agreed with the laborers for a denarius a day, he sent them into his vineyard. ³ And he went out about the third hour and saw others standing idle in the marketplace, ⁴ and said to them, 'You also go into the vineyard, and whatever is right I will give you.' So they went. ⁵ Again he went sex drive. Others do not marry because they are castrated. Still others forgo marriage for the sake of serving God. Some have been given the spiritual gift of celibacy in order to do this (see 1 Cor. 7:7). 19:17 Why do you call Me good may be rephrased as "Why are you asking me concerning what is good?" The only One who can ultimately answer the question about goodness is God. The fact that Jesus went on to answer the question is a quiet claim to deity. 19:21 This verse does not teach salvation by works (see Rom. 3:23, 24; Eph. 2:8, 9). Rather Jesus was proving the error of the man's claim to have fulfilled God's law (v. 20). If the young man loved his neighbor to the extent required by the Law of Moses (v. 19; Lev. 19:18), he would have had no difficulty in giving away his wealth to needy people.

19:23, 24 Jesus' comment about a rich man's salvation would have been difficult for some Jewish people in this period to accept because they held to a form of "prosperity theology." If people prospered, it was evidence of God's blessing on them. Whereas v. 23 says it is hard for a rich man to become saved, v. 24 implies that it is as impossible as passing a camel through the eye of a needle (see Mark 10:25; Luke 18:25).

19:27 we have left all: The instruction Jesus gave to the rich man was precisely what Peter and the other disciples had done (4:18-22). The natural question then was what shall we have? Rather than upbraid Peter for what may seem like a selfish request, Jesus assured him that the life investment he and the other disciples had made (16:24-28) would have dividends "a hundredfold" (v. 29).

19:28 The apostles never forgot Jesus' promise about their place in His kingdom; it was still in their minds in Acts 1:15-26. In the regeneration looks ahead to the coming kingdom promised in Dan. 7:13, 14. throne of His glory: Christ is today seated at the right hand of the eternal throne of the Father. In the future kingdom, He will occupy the Davidic throne (see Rev. 3:21). In that kingdom, the twelve apostles will sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

⁸“So when evening had come, the owner of the vineyard said to his steward, ‘Call the laborers and give them their wages, beginning with the last to the first.’ ⁹And when those came who were hired about the eleventh hour, they each received a denarius. ¹⁰But when the first came, they supposed that they would receive more; and they likewise received each a denarius. ¹¹And when they had received it, they ³complained against the landowner, ¹²saying, ‘These last men have worked only one hour, and you made them equal to us who have borne the burden and the heat of the day.’ ¹³But he answered one of them and said, ‘Friend, I am doing you no wrong. Did you not agree with me for a denarius?’ ¹⁴Take what is yours and go your way. I wish to give to this last man the same as to you. ¹⁵^aIs it not lawful for me to do what I wish with my own things? Or ^bis your eye evil because I am good?’ ¹⁶^cSo the last will be first, and the first last. ^dFor ⁴many are called, but few chosen.”

¹⁷^eNow Jesus, going up to Jerusalem, took the twelve disciples aside on the road and said to them, ¹⁸^f“Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and to the scribes; and they will condemn Him to death, ¹⁹^gand deliver Him to the Gentiles to ^hmock and to ⁱscourge and to ^jcrucify. Instruction About Ambition

²⁰¹Then the mother of ^mZebedee’s sons came to Him with her sons, kneeling down and asking something from Him.

²¹And He said to her, “What do you wish?”

She said to Him, “Grant that these two sons of mine ⁿmay sit, one on Your right hand and the other on the left, in Your kingdom.”

²²But Jesus answered and said, “You do not know what you ask. Are you able to drink ^othe cup that I am about to drink, ⁵and be baptized with ^pthe baptism that I am baptized with?”

They said to Him, “We are able.”

²³So He said to them, ^q“You will indeed drink My cup, ⁶and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with; but to sit on My right hand and on My left is not Mine to give, but it is for those for whom it is prepared by My Father.”

²⁴^rAnd when the ten heard it, they were greatly displeased with the two brothers. ²⁵But Jesus called them to Himself and said, “You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and those who are great exercise authority over them. ²⁶Yet ^sit shall not be so among you; but ‘whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant. ²⁷^uAnd whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave—²⁸^v just as the ^wSon of Man did not come to be served, ^xbut to serve, and ^yto give His life a ransom ^zfor many.”

²⁹^aNow as they went out of Jericho, a great multitude followed Him. ³⁰And be-20:6 The eleventh hour was about 5:00 P.M. There would have been only one hour left in the working day.

20:13-15 The first workers complained that their wages were the same as those who had been hired late in the day. However, the owner had not cheated them; everyone received the agreed-upon sum for his work. The early workers grumbled because they were evil in their outlook; their master, however, was sovereignly generous.

20:16 In the context of Matthew, the workers with the contract represent Israel; they had the promises and the covenants (see Rom. 3:1, 2; 9:4; Eph. 2:11, 12). Those without an agreement represent the Gentiles, who would be made equal with the Jewish people when salvation became available to all through faith in Jesus Christ (see Rom. 11:16, 17; Eph. 2:13-15; 3:6).

urrection (see 16:21; 17:9, 22, 23). For the first time He referred to the way He would die—crucifixion.

20:24 The indignation of the other ten apostles was probably due to their own desire for these lofty positions. Jesus’ response was addressed to all of them (vv. 25-28).

20:26, 27 The measure of greatness is not position, power, or prestige; it is service.

20:30 Only Matthew mentions two blind men; Mark and Luke refer to one, probably the one who spoke. The fact that Matthew records that there were actually two men especially suits his Gospel, which was written primarily for Jews who would have desired two witnesses (see Deut. 17:6). Son of David, a messianic title (see 2 Sam. 7:12-16), identifies Jesus as the heir to David’s throne. This cry, repeated in v. 31, shows the spiritual insight of these blind men.

hold, ^btwo blind men sitting by the road, when they heard that Jesus was passing by, cried out, saying, “Have mercy on us, O Lord, ‘Son of David!’”

³¹Then the multitude ^dwarned them that they should be quiet; but they cried out all the more, saying, “Have mercy on us, O Lord, Son of David!”

³²So Jesus stood still and called them, and said, “What do you want Me to do for you?”

³³They said to Him, “Lord, that our eyes may be opened.” ³⁴So Jesus had ‘compassion and touched their eyes. And immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed Him.

The Triumphal Entry

Mark 11:1-10; Luke 19:29-38; John 12:12-15

21 Now ^awhen they drew near Jerusalem, and came to ¹Bethphage, at ^bthe Mount of Olives, then Jesus sent two disciples, ²saying to them, “Go into the village opposite you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt with her. Loose them and bring them to Me. ³And if anyone says anything to you, you shall say, ‘The Lord has need of them,’ and immediately he will send them.”

^{4,2}All this was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying:

⁵ “*Tell^c the daughter of Zion, ‘Behold, your King is coming to you,
Lowly, and sitting on a donkey,
A colt, the foal of a donkey.’*”

^{6,d}So the disciples went and did as Jesus commanded them. ⁷They brought the donkey and the colt, ^elaid their clothes on them, ³and set Him on them. ⁸And a

^{10,h}And when He had come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, “Who is this?”

^{12,j}Then Jesus went into the temple ⁴of God and drove out all those who bought and sold in the temple, and overturned the tables of the ^kmoney changers and the seats of those who sold doves. ¹³And He said to them, “It is written, ^l*‘My house shall be called a house of prayer,’* but you have made it a ^m*‘den of thieves.’*”

¹⁴Then the blind and the lame came to Him in the temple, and He healed them. ¹⁵But when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that He did, and the children crying out in the temple and saying, “Hosanna to the ⁿSon of David!” they were ⁵indignant ¹⁶and said to Him, “Do You hear what these are saying?”

And Jesus said to them, “Yes. Have you never read,

^o*‘Out of the mouth of babes and nursing infants
You have perfected praise?’*”

21:1 The Mount of Olives was directly east of Jerusalem, across the deep ravine of the Kidron valley. Bethphage was on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives.

21:3 The Lord is Jesus. The owner of the animals was likely a follower, or at least an admirer, of Jesus.

21:4, 5 These actions fulfill Is. 62:11; Zech. 9:9. The emphasis in these prophecies and Jesus’ actions is on Jesus’ humility.

21:7 The disciples laid their clothes on both animals so that Christ could ride either one. Perhaps the mother donkey walked in front, followed by the colt on which Jesus was seated.

21:8 This great multitude refers not to the inhabitants of Jerusalem (v. 10), but to the large crowd that had accompanied Jesus from Jericho (20:29). The scene was a royal procession (see 2 Kin. 9:13). Prior to this time, the Lord Jesus had steadfastly avoided such a display (8:4; 9:30; 12:16; 17:9). Now He was publicly presenting Himself to Israel as the nation’s Messiah and King.

21:9 Hosanna literally means “save now” (as in Ps. 118:25), but it was used as an exclamation of joyous praise. Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord is a quotation of Ps. 118:26.

21:10 The city was moved is literally “the city was shaken.” The same verb is used in 2:3 of Herod’s reaction to the wise men who were asking about the birth of Israel’s King.

21:12 Two cleansings of the temple are recorded in the Gospels—one in John 2:14–17 at the beginning of Jesus’ ministry, and one in the synoptic Gospels at the end of His ministry (see Mark 11:15–17; Luke 19:45, 46). bought and sold: Financial corruption ran rampant in the outer courts of the temple. Some of the gains that were realized from this profiteering probably went to the family of the high priest. The money changers exchanged coins with pagan symbols on them for acceptable coins to be used in the temple. They charged a premium for this “service.” Those who sold doves sold them at top prices.

21:13 My house shall be called a house of prayer is quoted from Is. 56:7. den of thieves: The temple had become a garrison for bandits. Jeremiah 7:9, 10 says that the Jewish people, after committing all sorts of sins, would plead deliverance from the consequences of those sins based simply on the fact that they came to the temple. Thus in Jeremiah’s day, it became a den for robbers—just as it was in Jesus’ day.

21:16 In Ps. 8:2, which is quoted here, the infants expressed praise in the face of enemies.

¹⁷Then He left them and ^pwent out of the city to Bethany, and He lodged there.

Mark 11:11-14, 20-24

^{18q}Now in the morning, as He returned to the city, He was hungry. ^{19r}And seeing a fig tree by the road, He came to it and found nothing on it but leaves, and said to it, "Let no fruit grow on you ever again." Immediately the fig tree withered away.

^{20s}And when the disciples saw it, they marveled, saying, "How did the fig tree wither away so soon?"

²¹So Jesus answered and said to them, "Assuredly, I say to you, ^tif you have faith and ^udo not doubt, you will not only do what was done to the fig tree, ^vbut also if you say to this mountain, 'Be removed and be cast into the sea,' it will be done. ²²And ^wwhatever things you ask in prayer, believing, you will receive."

Question of Jesus' Authority

^{23x}Now when He came into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people confronted Him as He was teaching, and ^ysaid, "By what authority are you doing these things? And who gave You this authority?"

²⁴But Jesus answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one thing, which if you tell Me, I likewise will tell you by what authority I do these things: ²⁵The ^zbaptism of ^aJohn—where was it from? From heaven or from men?"

And He said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.

Parable of the Two Sons

²⁸"But what do you think? A man had two sons, and he came to the first and said, 'Son, go, work today in my ^dvineyard.' ²⁹He answered and said, 'I will not,' but afterward he regretted it and went. ³⁰Then he came to the second and said likewise. And he answered and said, 'I go, sir,' but he did not go. ³¹Which of the two did the will of his father?"

They said to Him, "The first."

Jesus said to them, ^e"Assuredly, I say to you that tax collectors and harlots enter the kingdom of God before you. ³²For ^fJohn came to you in the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him; ^gbut tax collectors and harlots believed him; and when you saw it, you did not afterward ⁶relent and believe him.

Parable of the Landowner

³³"Hear another parable: There was a certain landowner ^hwho planted a vineyard and set a hedge around it, dug a winepress in it and built a tower. And he leased it to vinedressers and ⁱwent into 21:17 The idea here is that Jesus abandoned the chief priests and scribes, the temple, and the city of Jerusalem. Instead of welcoming their Messiah, the religious authorities had rejected and opposed Him.

21:18, 19 He was hungry: Jesus desired to eat of the fruit of the fig tree one more time before He died, but could not. Fig trees do not bear their fruit in the spring, during Passover, but in the fall of the year. However, fig trees do have a small, edible fruit that appears in the spring before the sprouting of the leaves. This tree was full of leaves, but had no fruit. It looked full of promise, but was empty—just like the city of Jerusalem and its beautiful temple. Immediately does not necessarily mean instantly; it may have the idea of "very soon" as in Luke 19:11 (see Mark 11:12-14, 20-24). This miracle—the only recorded miracle of Jesus that involved judgment—illustrates God's judgment on the Israelites, who professed adherence to God but produced no fruit or spiritual reality.

21:20-22 The withering of the fig tree illustrates God's judgment on unbelieving Israel, but it also became a means for Jesus to teach His disciples that faith works miracles and is the basis for answered prayer.

21:23 The mention of these things refers to the Triumphal Entry, the cleansing of the temple, and the accepting of the praise of children. The fact that the chief priests and the elders opposed the Lord Jesus illustrates the unified antagonism of the Sanhedrin. Priests, elders, and scribes were the three representative groups in that body.

21:24 It was a common rabbinic method to answer a question with a question.

21:27 We do not know: The religious leaders' response not only released the Lord from having to answer their question, it also disqualified them as spiritual leaders.

21:31, 32 Tax collectors and harlots is a proverbial phrase for moral reprobates. Jesus' phrase enter . . . before you not only established that these repentant sinners would enter the future kingdom, it also left the door open for the religious leaders to repent. But even though the self-righteous leaders saw the example of repentant tax collectors and prostitutes, they refused to believe. This parable condemned the leaders' conduct. Clearly God delights in the brokenness of sinners but also in the humble faith of the morally upright.

21:33-40 The beginning of the parable of the wicked vinedressers is presented in the language of Is. 5:1, 2. However, there is a difference. In Is. 5, the vineyard and its provisions represented Israel; here the vineyard illustrates God's kingdom (compare v. 43 with Is. 5:7). The detailed description of the vineyard indicates that the landowner provided for its well-being with the utmost care. The owner of that vineyard was God; the vinedressers were the nation of Israel. As God's people, Israel was to bring forth fruits in anticipation of God's coming kingdom. The servants represent God's messengers, the prophets, who were so shamefully treated by the Jewish leaders (see 1 Kin. 18:4; 19:10; 22:24; 2 Chr. 24:20, 21; Neh. 9:26; Jer. 2:30; 20:1, 2; 26:20-23; 37:15; 38:6). The son is Jesus, the Messiah.

a far country. ³⁴Now when vintage-time drew near, he sent his servants to the vinedressers, that they might receive its fruit. ³⁵*j* And the vinedressers took his servants, beat one, killed one, and stoned another. ³⁶Again he sent other servants, more than the first, and they did likewise to them. ³⁷Then last of all he sent his k son to them, saying, "They will respect my son." ³⁸But when the vinedressers saw the son, they said among themselves, "This is the heir. m Come, let us kill him and seize his inheritance." ³⁹*n* So they took him and cast him out of the vineyard and killed him.

⁴²Jesus said to them, "Have you never read in the Scriptures:

rejected
Has become the chief cornerstone.
This was the LORD's doing,
And it is marvelous in our eyes?"*

⁴³"Therefore I say to you, s the kingdom of God will be taken from you and given to a nation bearing the fruits of it. ⁴⁴And t whoever falls on this stone will be broken; but on whomever it falls, u it will grind him to powder."

Parable of the Marriage Feast

22 And Jesus answered ^aand spoke to them again by parables and said: ²"The kingdom of heaven is like a certain king who arranged a marriage for his son, ³and sent out his servants to call those who were invited to the wedding; and they were not willing to come. ⁴Again, he sent out other servants, saying, "Tell those who are invited, "See, I have prepared my dinner; ^bmy oxen and fatted cattle are killed, and all things are ready. Come to the wedding." ⁵But they made light of it and went their ways, one to his own farm, another to his business. ⁶And the rest seized his servants, treated them ¹spitefully, and killed them. ⁷But when the king heard about it, he was furious. And he sent out ^chis armies, destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city. ⁸Then he said to his servants, "The wedding is ready, but those who were invited were not ^dworthy. ⁹Therefore go into the highways, and as many as you find, invite to the wedding? ¹⁰So those servants went out into the highways and ^egathered together all whom they found, both bad and good. And the wedding hall was filled with guests.

21:42 This verse explains that the rejection of the son (vv. 38, 39) was predicted in Ps. 118:22, 23. The rejected stone is the Messiah, who became the chief cornerstone (see Mark 12:10, 11; Luke 20:17; Acts 4:11; Eph. 2:20; 1 Pet. 2:7).

21:43 In our time, nation refers to the church (see Rom. 10:19; 1 Pet. 2:9). This does not mean, however, that the kingdom has been forever removed from Israel (see Rom. 11:26, 27).

21:44 This paradoxical saying indicates that people can give two responses to Christ, the stone. A person may be broken with repentance as a result of falling on Christ. If however a person refuses to repent, the result is judgment. The reference to powder seems to look back to Dan. 2:35, 44, 45.

22:1 The plural parables refers to the parable of the two sons (21:28–32), the wicked vinedressers (21:33–44), and the wedding feast (vv. 1–14). This story is not the same one related in Luke 14:15–24. The occasion is different in Luke and some details vary.

22:2 The kingdom of heaven is like indicates that the story contains principles or truths that relate to the kingdom of God. Marriage refers to a wedding feast (see Rev. 19:6–10). Jewish weddings in biblical times involved a number of steps. First, the couple made a marriage contract, which was the basis of the marriage (see Mal. 2:14). About a year later, the groom went to the bride's house, where the bride was presented to him. This was followed by a nighttime wedding procession to the groom's home (25:1–13), where a festive wedding banquet was held (see John 2:1–11). The banquet could last up to a week, depending on the resources of the groom's family. A feast, especially a wedding feast, is often used in Scripture to portray God's kingdom on earth (see 8:11; 25:10; Is. 25:6; Luke 14:15–24; John

2:1–11; Rev. 19:7–9). In this parable, the king is God the Father and the son is Jesus.

22:3 Two invitations were sent out. The first was sent long before the celebration so that people would have plenty of time to prepare themselves for the banquet. Those who were invited had received this original announcement. A second invitation was sent to them to announce that the banquet was ready and they should come right away.

22:4 The plea of this verse undoubtedly portrays the ministry of John the Baptist (3:1–12), Jesus (4:17), and the disciples (10:5–42).

22:5 They made light of it means "they did not care about it." They were so preoccupied with the here and now that they had no concern for God's kingdom.

22:6 The indifferent response in v. 5 describes Israel at the time of Jesus' earthly ministry; the actions in this verse may be attributed to the religious authorities. These leaders approved John the Baptist's death at the hands of Herod Antipas (21:25); they instigated Jesus' crucifixion (26:3–5, 14–16; 27:1, 2); and they initiated the persecution of the early church (see Acts 4:1–22; 5:17–40; 6:12–15).

22:7 The burning of the city refers to the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 under Titus. A parallel prediction of the same event is found in 21:41.

22:10 Both bad and good probably refers to Jews and Gentiles. Both groups include some who are morally evil and others who are morally good. Whatever their condition, people need to respond to the gospel. The important point to recognize is that this group responded to the invitation, while those who had received special invitations had spurned the king's bidding.

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

The Sadducees

Because their writings have not survived through the ages, little is known about the Sadducees today except what rival groups said about them. They were an aristocratic group in Israel that dominated the higher echelons of the priesthood. As landowners, they achieved their power and status from their class and their position as priests, while the Pharisees derived their status mostly from their learning. The Sadducees based their beliefs solely on the Pentateuch, the first five books of the OT. They did not accept the authority of any other OT books and did not find a basis in the Pentateuch for a belief in angels, demons, or an afterlife (see Acts 23:8). Many of their beliefs may have been derived from a concern over their power and status. With no afterlife and no resurrection, there was no need to worry about rewards or punishment in the life to come.

Mark 12:13-17; Luke 20:20-26

^{15j} Then the Pharisees went and plotted how they might entangle Him in His talk. ¹⁶ And they sent to Him their disciples with the ^k Herodians, saying, “Teacher, we know that You are true, and teach the way of God in truth; nor do You care about anyone, for You do not ³ regard the person of men. ¹⁷ Tell us, therefore, what do You think? Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, or not?”

¹⁸ But Jesus ⁴ perceived their wickedness, and said, “Why do you test Me, you hypocrites? ¹⁹ Show Me the tax money.” So they brought Him a denarius.

²¹ They said to Him, “Caesar’s.” And He said to them, ¹ “Render ⁵ therefore to Caesar the things that are ^m Caesar’s, and to God the things that are ⁿ God’s.” ²² When they had heard these words, they marveled, and left Him and went their way.

Conflict with Sadducees

^{23o} The same day the Sadducees, ^p who say there is no resurrection, came to 22:11 did not have on a wedding garment: Like the others, this visitor had been invited to the wedding, but he failed to prepare himself for it (see Rev. 3:18). In Revelation, the garment of fine linen worn by the bride of the Lamb is said to be the righteous deeds of the saints (Rev. 19:8). The man had ignored a basic obligation placed on him when he accepted the king’s gracious invitation to the feast—he was supposed to wear clean clothes. To come to a wedding banquet unprepared or in soiled clothing would have been insulting. In this parable, the garment may refer to the righteousness of Christ graciously provided for us through His death. To refuse to put it on would mean a refusal of Christ’s sacrifice or arrogance in believing that the “garment” was somehow not needed. If we want to enter Christ’s banquet, we must “put on” the righteousness He gives us (Eph. 4:24; Col. 3:10). Because this man was unprepared, the king declared him unworthy. His refusal resulted in the man being sent out of the banquet hall.

22:13 Bind him hand and foot is a vivid picture of the man’s inability to participate in Christ’s kingdom. Someone claiming to belong at the wedding while refusing to wear the correct garments was similar to the Israelites who claimed to be God’s people while refusing to obey Him. This man was an impostor, and when he was discovered (as all impostors will be), he was cast . . . into outer darkness, referring to the judgment (8:12; 25:30).

22:14 many are called, but few are chosen: The word called in this instance refers to being “invited,” not to the call of God as Paul used the word (Rom. 8:28, 29). All Israel had been invited, but only a few would accept and follow Jesus. Not all those invited will be among the chosen of God, for not all will believe.

22:15 Entangle means “to snare,” like a trapper catching his prey.

dynasty in its collaboration with the Roman government. This would put them at the opposite end of the political spectrum from the Pharisees. Yet their common hatred of Christ was great enough that the Pharisees and Herodians joined forces against Him. we know that You . . . teach the way of God in truth: In a way, the Herodians and Pharisees were saying, “You truly teach God’s word, no matter what people think of you.”

22:17 The dilemma is obvious: to side with the Pharisees and risk being accused of insurrection against the Roman government, or to side with the Herodians and lose the favor of the masses. Taxes included an annual tax paid by every Jewish adult to the Roman government. The Jews despised paying this tax to their hated oppressors.

22:18 Test here means “to solicit to evil.” The Lord called the Herodians and Pharisees hypocrites because they falsely pretended to have good intentions.

22:19, 20 The tax money was a denarius, a silver coin with an image of the emperor and the inscription calling him “divine.” The image and inscription were repugnant to the Jews because they hated their Roman overlords and worshiped only the God of Israel.

22:21 In responding to His opponents, the Lord changed the verb they used from “pay” (v. 17) to render, which literally means “to pay back.” Christ’s followers have an obligation to earthly governments and to God. Believers today are citizens of a heavenly kingdom and strangers and sojourners on the earth (see 1 Pet. 1:1; 2:11). It is the believers’ responsibility to obey the law of the land until it becomes sinful to do so (see Rom. 13:1-7; 1 Pet. 2:13-17). When the two realms are in conflict, Christians are to follow God (see Acts 4:18-20; 5:29).

22:23 Some of the beliefs of the Sadducees are explained in Acts 23:8. These men looked on the first five books of Moses as their authoritative Scripture. To them, any religious argument had to come from the Pentateuch.

Him and asked Him, ²⁴saying: “Teacher, ^qMoses said that if a man dies, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife and raise up offspring for his brother. ²⁵Now there were with us seven brothers. The first died after he had married, and having no offspring, left his wife to his brother. ²⁶Likewise the second also, and the third, even to the seventh. ²⁷Last of all the woman died also. ²⁸Therefore, in the resurrection, whose wife of the seven will she be? For they all had her.”

²⁹Jesus answered and said to them, “You are ⁶mistaken, ^rnot knowing the Scriptures nor the power of God. ³⁰For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but ^sare like angels ⁷of God in heaven. ³¹But concerning the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, saying, ³²*‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob’*? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.” ³³And when the multitudes heard this, ^uthey were astonished at His teaching.

³⁴^v But when the Pharisees heard that He had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together. ³⁵Then one of them, ^wa lawyer, asked Him a question, testing Him, and saying, ³⁶“Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law?”

³⁷Jesus said to him, ^x“You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind.” ³⁸This is the first and great commandment. ³⁹And the second is like it: ^y“You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” ⁴⁰^z On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets.”

Mark 12:35–37; Luke 20:41–44

⁴¹^a While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them, ⁴²saying, “What do you think about the Christ? Whose Son is He?”

They said to Him, “The ^bSon of David.”

⁴³He said to them, “How then does David in the Spirit call Him ‘Lord,’ saying:

22:24 The law that is the basis of the Sadducees’ question is found in Deut. 25:5, 6. It is known as the law of the levirate marriage (see Gen. 38:1–26).

22:25–28 This theological riddle had probably been used by the Sadducees to confound the Pharisees on more than one occasion.

22:29 Mistaken: Christ rebuked the Sadducees for denying the resurrection.

22:32 Jesus quoted from the Pentateuch, Ex. 3:6, 15, to prove the doctrine of the resurrection. The Lord is the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, a title that recalls that God is the One who gave the promises to the patriarchs. In particular, God promised Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob the land of Canaan (see Gen. 13:14–17; 15:7–21; 17:8; 26:2–5; 28:13–15; Deut. 30:1–5). Of course, the patriarchs did not receive the land in their lifetimes. They must be resurrected in order to receive God’s promises in full. That God is called the God . . . of the living indicates that there is a present spirit world over which God presides and that will one day be revealed.

22:33 Jesus taught something that no one had seen clearly before—that the patriarchs are still living. The crowds were astonished, and may also have been surprised that Jesus did not teach like the scribes and Pharisees, who appealed to rabbinic authority or prefaced their teachings with “Thus saith the Lord.” Jesus appealed to His own authority when He taught them.

22:34 Undoubtedly the Pharisees were delighted to see their theological rivals muzzled; yet they were still intent on snaring Christ in some way (v. 15).

22:35, 36 The lawyer was a student of the Law of Moses. He put the Lord to a test with a question designed to reveal how much Christ knew about the Law.

22:37 To answer the lawyer’s question, Jesus quoted from the great Jewish confession of faith called the Shema. The confession is called this because it begins with the Hebrew word shema meaning “hear:” “Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one!” (see Deut. 6:4, 5; 11:13–21). The heart, soul, and mind represent the whole person.

22:39 This command from Lev. 19:18 is not an imperative to love one’s self. People naturally love themselves and are at least somewhat self-centered. Because we love ourselves, we want the best for ourselves; likewise, we should be concerned for the welfare of others.

22:40 The Ten Commandments can be divided into two categories: those dealing with love for God (the first four Commandments) and those dealing with responsibilities toward other people (the last six Commandments). The same may be said for all the Law and the Prophets.

22:41–45 After answering three questions posed by Israel’s religious leaders (vv. 15–22, 23–33, 34–40), Jesus turned to the Pharisees with a question of His own. The question had two parts, a first about the identity of the Messiah and a second about the interpretation of Ps. 110.

22:42 The answer to Jesus’ question about the identity of the Messiah was in a number of OT passages (see 2 Sam. 7:12–16; Ps. 89:3, 4, 34–36; Is. 9:7; 16:5; 55:3, 4). The Messiah would come from David’s royal line.

22:43 This verse affirms that David wrote Ps. 110. Furthermore, it declares that David wrote the psalm under the inspiration of the Spirit.

(Gk. dianoia, nous) (22:37; Rom. 12:2; Eph. 4:23) Strong’s #1271; 3563

Four separate Greek words account for nearly all instances of “mind” in the NT. They all mean much the same thing: understanding, thought, mind, reason. While today we think of a person’s mind in a morally neutral way, in the NT the mind was clearly thought of as either good or evil. Negatively, the mind may be “blinded” (2 Cor. 3:14; 4:4), “corrupt” (2 Tim. 3:8), and “debased” (Rom. 1:28). On the positive side, humans may have minds that are renewed (Rom. 12:2) and pure (2 Pet. 3:1). They may love God with all their minds (22:37; Mark 12:30; Luke 10:27) and have God’s laws implanted in their minds (Heb. 8:10). Since Christians have “the mind of Christ” (1 Cor. 2:16), they are instructed to be united in mind (Rom. 12:16; 1 Pet. 3:8).

Outer Garment

Hebrew men wore an “outer garment” (John 21:7) consisting of a square or oblong strip of cloth, six to ten feet wide. It was wrapped around the body as a protective covering, with two corners of the material being in front. The outer garment was drawn in close to the body by a girdle. The rich often had a finely woven linen outer garment, while the poor had a coarsely woven garment of goat’s hair. Jewish men wore fringes with blue ribbons on the “border” of this outer garment to remind them of the constant presence of the Lord’s commandments. Jesus referred to these “borders” of the garments in Matt. 23:5; apparently, the scribes and Pharisees made these fringes very large so that people could see how faithful they were in following the Lord’s commandments.

Jesus Characterizes the Pharisees

23 Then Jesus spoke to the multitudes and to His disciples,² saying: ^a“The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses’ seat.³ Therefore whatever they tell you ¹to observe, that observe and do, but do not do according to their works; for ^bthey say, and do not do.^{4c} For they bind heavy burdens, hard to bear, and lay them on men’s shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.⁵ But all their works they do to ^dbe seen by men. They make their phylacteries broad and enlarge the borders of their garments.^{6e} They love the ²best places at feasts, the best seats in the synagogues, ⁷greetings in the marketplaces, and to be called by men, ‘Rabbi, Rabbi.’^{8f} But you, do not be called ‘Rabbi’; for One is your ³Teacher, ⁴the Christ, and you are all brethren.⁹ Do not call anyone on earth your father; ^gfor One is your Father, He who is in heaven.¹⁰ And do not be called teachers; for One is your Teacher, the Christ.¹¹ But ^hhe who is greatest among you shall be your servant.¹²ⁱ And whoever exalts himself will be ⁵humbled, and he who humbles himself will be ⁶exalted.

22:44 This verse, which quotes Ps. 110:1, describes Christ’s presence in heaven until He comes to reign on earth (see Heb. 10:11–13; Rev. 3:21). Other messianic psalms are built on the experiences of the psalmist (see Ps. 2; 16; 22; 45), but Ps. 110 seems to be completely prophetic and messianic.

22:44, 45 Psalm 110:1 uses two different Hebrew words for God. The first, translated LORD, is the name Yahweh, the proper name of Israel’s God. The second LORD means “Master.” David, the great king of Israel, calls one of his offspring “Lord” or “Master,” a title for deity. The implication is that Jesus, the Son of David, is God. He is a descendant of David and therefore human, but He is also divine.

23:2 The synagogues had an official chair called Moses’ seat (see Luke 4:20). The scribes were official copiers of the OT Scriptures and were also teachers of the Law (7:29; 8:19).

23:3 The Pharisees and scribes took the Scriptures at face value, so their instructions were to be followed. However, Jesus warned the people of the Pharisees’ legalism, their tendency to value their own rules and regulations over the Scriptures. They followed their external laws meticulously and appeared to be righteous. Yet the people were not to imitate their actions, for although they appeared righteous, their hearts were filled with all kinds of envy, hatred, and malice.

23:4 Contrast the Pharisees’ actions with Jesus’ call to the people in 11:28–30.

23:5 One key aspect of hypocrisy is doing good deeds to attract applause from those who see them (6:1–18). Phylacteries were small boxes containing Bible passages that were worn on the forehead or arm. This custom was based on Ex. 13:9, 16; Deut. 6:8; 11:18. But from such passages as Prov. 3:3; 6:21; 7:3, the scribes should have known that the Lord intended more than merely outward adornment. Borders, translated hem in 9:20, refers to the tassels that were worn on the corners of garments in order to remind the Israelites of God’s laws (see Num. 15:38; Deut. 22:12). In order to be seen as especially righteous, some hypocrites would make their phylacteries conspicuously large and their tassels unusually long.

23:6 The best places were the positions of honor at banquets. The best seats or “first seats” were a row of seats in the front of the synagogue, facing the congregation.

23:7 Greetings in this context meant more than a passing “hello”; it was a respectful salutation given to a superior. Rabbi means “teacher.”

23:8–10 This principle is not to be applied universally because these titles are used elsewhere in Scripture with no qualification or admonishment (see 15:4–6; 19:5, 29; 2 Kin. 2:12; 1 Cor. 4:15; Gal. 4:2; Heb. 12:9). The hypocrites sought these titles for the prestige and power that went with them, and not for the purpose of using the positions to serve others. Teachers may also mean “leaders.”

23:11 Hierarchies of authority are not to be done away with in this world (see 1 Thess. 5:12, 13; 1 Tim. 5:17; Heb. 13:17); however, all leadership is to be carried out humbly in a spirit of servanthood.

23:12 Exaltation will be carried out in the future reign of Christ (see Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12).

23:13 Jesus proclaimed woe on the scribes and Pharisees because of their outright opposition to the truth.

23:15 you travel land and sea: The Pharisees and scribes could never fairly be accused of being lazy, but they were clearly misdirected and dangerous to the cause of God.

23:16–22 The religious authorities taught that oaths based on the temple, the altar, and heaven were not binding; however, oaths sworn by the gold of the temple, the gift on the altar, or God were binding. Jesus pointed out the absurdity of such teaching, and called the leaders blind guides.

23:23 Mint and anise were spices. Cummin was a tiny fruit. The scribes and Pharisees were meticulous about tithing tiny seeds, but they failed to be obedient in more significant matters such as ensuring that all their actions were governed by justice and mercy and faith (see Mic. 6:8). Jesus was not saying that tithing is unimportant; He was pointing out that the scribes and Pharisees were emphasizing one area at the expense of another. Similarly, we can become so preoccupied with external rules and regulations in the church that we forget the principles behind them.

23:24 Leviticus 11:41–43 contains a prohibition against eating anything that swarms, crawls on its belly, walks on all fours, or has many feet. The Pharisees would meticulously strain out the smallest unclean insect—the gnat—with a cloth filter before drinking liquids, especially wine. However, Jesus said they would easily swallow a large unclean animal—a camel. Jesus was exaggerating a point to illustrate how much the Pharisees had neglected justice, mercy, and faith (v. 23). He used a similar exaggeration in 19:24 to portray the difficulty a rich man has in obtaining salvation.

23:25, 26 The inside of the cup represents a person’s character. Sometimes those who most loudly protest the sins of others are secretly guilty of those or worse sins themselves.

23:31, 32 The generation of scribes, Pharisees, and hypocrites living at the time of Jesus had inherited all the guilt of their forefathers.

23:34 The present tense I send refers to the prophets, wise men, and scribes sent by God to the apostolic church. The Book of Acts testifies to the accuracy of this prediction: the Israelites persecuted the early preachers and teachers of the Good News (see Acts 7:51–60).

23:35 Abel was the first person murdered in the OT (see Gen. 4:8); Zechariah was the last. Zechariah’s death is recorded in 2 Chr. 24:20–22, the last book in the Hebrew canon. Jesus was saying that from the beginning of the Bible until the end, true followers of God had often been treated in this manner. son of Berechiah: In 2 Chr. 24:20, Zechariah is called the son of Jehoiada. Zechariah the prophet is called the son of Berechiah in Zech. 1:1. It is possible that Jehoiada was the grandfather of the murdered Zechariah and Berechiah was his father. It is less probable, although possible, that Zechariah’s father had two names: Jehoiada and Berechiah.

⁴And Jesus answered and said to them: ^e“Take heed that no one deceives you. ⁵For ^fmany will come in My name, saying, ‘I am the Christ,’ ^gand will deceive many. ⁶And you will hear of ^hwars and rumors of wars. See that you are not troubled; for ⁱall these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. ⁷For ^j‘nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. And there will be ^kfamines, ²pestilences, and earthquakes in various places. ⁸All these are the beginning of sorrows.

⁹^h“Then they will deliver you up to tribulation and kill you, and you will be hated by all nations for My name’s sake. ¹⁰And then many will be offended, will betray one another, and will hate one another. ¹¹Then ⁱmany false prophets

Luke 21:12; [John 16:2]; Acts 4:2, 3; Rev. 2:10 11 / Acts 20:29; 2 Pet. 2:1; Rev. 13:11; 19:20

23:37 Calling a name twice, as in Jerusalem, Jerusalem, indicates strong emotion (see 27:46; 2 Sam. 18:33; Acts 9:4). The phrases I wanted and you were not willing illustrate the opposition of Israel to Christ’s will (see Ps. 91:4 for another image of a mother hen). 23:38 Your house may refer to the temple, but more likely to the Davidic dynasty (see 2 Sam. 7:16).

24:1 The discourse of ch. 23 had evidently been given in the temple precincts. The first temple, built by Solomon, was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. The second temple, built under the encouragement of Haggai and Zechariah and the leadership of Zerubbabel and Joshua (see Hag. 1:1), was completed after considerable delay in 516 B.C. This second temple was completely and lavishly renovated by Herod the Great. He began the work around 20 B.C., but the renovations were not completed during the lifetime of Christ (see John 2:20). The work was finally finished in A.D. 64, and the temple stood completed for only six years before it was reduced to rubble by the Romans.

24:2 The devastation of the temple by the Romans in A.D. 70 was so thorough that the precise location of the sanctuary is still unknown today.

(Gk. ornis) (23:37; Luke 13:34) Strong’s #3733

The Greek term simply means “bird.” The English word ornithology (the study of birds) is a derivative of it. Throughout the OT there are references to God exercising His care for His people in the same way a mother bird cares for her young (see Deut. 32:10-12; Ruth 2:12; Ps. 17:8; 36:7; 61:4; 63:7; 91:4; Is. 31:5; Mal. 4:2). Many of these references speak of God’s protective wings, under whose shelter the frightened could find refuge. The later rabbis had a beautiful expression for proselytes from the Gentiles—they had “come under the wings of the Shekinah” (see Ruth 2:12). Jesus came to His people wanting to give them the same kind of motherly care, but they rejected that care and tender affection again and again.

24:3 Undoubtedly the disciples were immediately confounded by the Lord’s prophecy (v. 2); however, they held their tongues until they had crossed the Kidron valley and come to the Mount of Olives. When Jesus sat, as Jewish teachers did (5:1), the disciples finally questioned Him about His statement regarding the destruction of the temple. Some say that this verse contains two questions: (1) When will these things be? That is, “When will the temple be destroyed?” and (2) What will be the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age? Others believe that one basic question was in the disciples’ minds. To the disciples, the devastation of the city and the coming of the Messiah were part of one event. The disciple’s questions should probably be taken as one question, though the fulfillment would come in stages.

24:4 Jesus’ warning about being deceived was especially appropriate for the disciples. The destruction of Jerusalem did not necessarily mean the nearness of the end of the age. This principle was a point of confusion for them (see Luke 19:11-27; Acts 1:6, 7).

24:6 Three indicators of time are given in vv. 6-14. The first is found in v. 6, the end is not yet. The second is found in v. 8, “All these are the beginning of sorrows.” The third is found in v. 14, “then the end will come.” Verses 4-6 may describe the first part of Daniel’s seventieth week (see Dan. 9:25-27), but possibly they present a general picture of the present age. False messiahs and wars and rumors of wars are characteristic of the fallen world in which we live. When the Lord said all these things must come to pass, He used a word for must that indicates a divine or logical necessity. Such activities are necessary because of the people’s sin. False messiahs had existed before (see Acts 5:36, 37; 21:38), and false preachers would come in the future (see Acts 20:29, 30; 2 Cor. 11:13-15).

24:7, 8 This passage describes characteristics of the end times. Nation . . . against nation, and kingdom against kingdom seems to indicate wars on a broad or worldwide scale. The famines, pestilences, and earthquakes are more fully described in Rev. 6:1-8; 8:5-13; 9:13-21; 16:2-21. Sorrows literally means “birth pangs.” The earth continually has birth pangs today (see Rom. 8:22); during the tribulation, these “sorrows” will increase in intensity and frequency until Jesus returns in glory (see 19:28; Acts 3:21).

¹⁵^r“Therefore when you see the ^s‘abomination of desolation,’ spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place” ^t(whoever reads, let him understand), ¹⁶“then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains. ¹⁷Let him who is on the housetop not go down to take anything out of his house. ¹⁸And let him who is in the field not go back to get his clothes. ¹⁹But ^uwoe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing babies in those days! ²⁰And pray that your flight may not be in winter or on the Sabbath. ²¹For ^vthen there will be great tribulation, such as has not been since the beginning of the world until this time, no, nor ever shall be. ²²And unless those days were shortened, no flesh would be saved; ^wbut for the ³elect’s sake those days will be shortened.

The Second Coming

²⁷^aFor as the lightning comes from the east and flashes to the west, so also will the coming of the Son of Man be. ²⁸^bFor wherever the carcass is, there the eagles will be gathered together.

Parable of the Fig Tree

Mark 13:28–31; Luke 21:29–33

³²“Now learn ^hthis parable from the fig tree: When its branch has already become tender and puts forth leaves, you know that summer is near. ³³So you also, when you see all these things, know ⁱthat ⁵it

³³ ⁱ [James 5:9; Rev. 3:20] ⁵ Or He

24:13 End here refers to the “end of the age.”

24:14 this gospel of the kingdom: The final evidence of the end times will be the universal proclamation of the gospel. The antecedent of “this” must be v. 13. The good news is that the final battle of the tribulation known as Armageddon will not result in the destruction of all people. The Lord Jesus Christ will intervene, bringing an end to the destruction and preserving a people for His kingdom.

24:15 The abomination of desolation literally means “the abomination that makes desolate.” This prophecy comes from Daniel, specifically Dan. 9:27; 11:31; 12:11. Daniel 11:31 refers to Antiochus IV, who desecrated the temple and set up an idol to Zeus in it. His actions were a prelude to what the ultimate “man of sin” will do. In A.D. 70, Titus destroyed Jerusalem, burned the temple, and set up an idol to mock the Jews. Significantly, Paul speaks of the Antichrist at the end times setting himself up as god also (see 2 Thess. 2:3, 4; Rev. 13:14, 15).

24:16 At the time of the war ending in the destruction of the temple in A.D. 70, many of the Christians did flee, hiding in the clefts of Petra. Some believe the final fulfillment of this prophecy will occur in the future desecration of the temple (see Dan. 9:27) and the subsequent setting up of an image of the “man of sin” in the Most Holy Place. When that occurs, everyone in Judea must flee to the mountains.

24:22 Those days will be shortened means that God will place a limit on the tribulation; Christians will not have to endure persecution forever. Note the meaning of the “good news” of the kingdom in vv. 13, 14 (see Zech. 14:2–4). Christ will intervene and prevent complete genocide.

24:24 Miracles by themselves do not prove that something is of God (see 7:21–23; 2 Thess. 2:9; Rev. 13:13–15). The teaching of those who perform signs and wonders must be tested against correct doctrine (Deut. 13:1–5; 1 John 4:1–3), and by the witness of God’s Spirit (see John 10:3–5, 27).

24:26, 27 Christ’s return will not be confined to a desert or to some inner rooms. When Christ returns, His coming will be so spectacular that everyone will know He has arrived.

24:28 wherever the carcass is, there the eagles will be gathered: This sweeping statement conveys an image of the horrible carnage that will take place in the judgment at the coming of the Son of Man (see Luke 17:37).

24:29 Immediately after: This verse moves chronologically to the close of the tribulation, a period that will be marked by monumental cosmic disturbances (see Is. 13:10; 34:4; Ezek. 32:7, 8; Joel 2:30, 31; 3:15; Hag. 2:6; Zech. 14:6; Rev. 6:12–14).

24:30 The sign of the Son of Man probably refers to Christ Himself appearing in heaven (see 16:1; Acts 1:11). The tribes of the earth probably refers to Israel. The context here is the national repentance of Israel predicted in Zech. 12:10, 12. The Son of Man coming on the clouds will be a fulfillment of Dan. 7:13, 14.

24:31 Gather refers to the gathering of the elect (God’s people, both Jews and Gentiles) that will gloriously begin Christ’s reign (see Deut. 30:1–6; Is. 11:11, 12; 43:5, 6; 49:12; Jer. 16:14, 15; Ezek. 34:13; 36:24; 37:21–23).

24:32 The fig tree does not necessarily indicate Israel here (see 21:18–22; Luke 21:29). We can predict the coming of summer from certain signs: The branches of trees become tender and produce leaves. In the same way, we will know the end is coming when we see the signs Jesus described in this passage.

⁷ ^e Luke 12:35

24:34 Generation may mean “race,” indicating that Israel as a people will not cease to exist before God fulfills His promises to them. Another possibility is that the word describes a particular era in which people will see the end times. That is, the events will occur so rapidly that all will happen within one generation. Perhaps both interpretations are true. All these things includes the Antichrist, the tribulation, and most importantly the appearance of Christ in glory. 24:35 The words of Christ are more certain than the very existence of the universe.

24:36 Mark 13:32 indicates that even Jesus Himself did not know the day and hour of His return. When the Lord Jesus was on earth, He voluntarily limited His use of His divine attributes (see John 17:4, 5; Phil. 2:5–8). Therefore He became hungry, thirsty, and tired. Luke records that Jesus grew in knowledge and wisdom (see Luke 2:52). In this instance, Jesus surrendered the use of His divine omniscience. 24:37–39 as the days of Noah were, so also will the coming of the Son of Man be: Jesus was referring to the indifference of the people of that time to the coming disaster. There is nothing sinful about eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage. However, the people of the end times will be doing these things without any thought of God or the coming judgment.

24:42 This is the application of vv. 36–41. As Noah was vigilant in preparing for the Flood, so should people living in the tribulation be alert. They should prepare for the return of Christ.

24:45–51 These two servants (see Luke 19:11–26) illustrate two attitudes people will have to Christ’s return. The faithful and wise servant will be given more responsibilities in the Lord’s kingdom. The evil servant will be cut . . . in two, a form of judgment used in the ancient world. Weeping and gnashing of teeth indicates the remorse of those who have suffered great loss.

25:1 The ten virgins in this parable were waiting for the wedding procession that went from the bride’s home to the home of her husband. This nighttime procession would use lamps to light the way because ancient cities did not have streetlights.

25:2 The good servant of 24:45 is described as “faithful and wise.” The parable of the ten virgins explains the need for wisdom (vv. 1–13); the following parable of the talents (vv. 14–29) shows the need for faithfulness. The word translated wise here and in 24:45 means “prudent.”

25:8 Possessing oil illustrates the concept of being prepared; a lack of oil represents being unprepared for Christ’s return.

(Gk. hē basileia tōn ouranōn) (3:2; 4:17; 5:3, 10; 10:7; 25:1) Strong’s #932; 3772

This phrase, used almost exclusively in Matthew’s Gospel (33 times), is a Jewish way of saying “the kingdom of God.” The Jews avoided saying the name of God out of respect for Him. Therefore they often used the word heaven as an alternative way to refer to God. The word heaven also points to the heavenly nature of Jesus’ kingdom. His kingdom did not involve a political restoration of the nation of Israel as many Jews had hoped. Instead He brought a heavenly kingdom with a spiritual domain, the hearts of His people. Such a kingdom demanded internal repentance, not just external submission. It provided deliverance from sin rather than political deliverance.

foolish said to the wise, ‘Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.’⁹ But the wise answered, saying, ‘No, lest there should not be enough for us and you; but go rather to those who sell, and buy for yourselves.’¹⁰ And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding; and ¹¹the door was shut.

¹¹“Afterward the other virgins came also, saying, ¹²‘Lord, Lord, open to us!’¹² But he answered and said, ‘Assuredly, I say to you, ¹³I do not know you.’

¹³ⁱ“Watch therefore, for you ¹⁴know neither the day nor the hour ²in which the Son of Man is coming.

Parable of the Talents

¹⁴^k“For the kingdom of heaven is ¹like a man traveling to a far country, who called his own servants and delivered his goods to them. ¹⁵And to one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, ¹⁶to each according to his own ability; and immediately he went on a journey. ¹⁶Then he who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and made another five talents. ¹⁷And likewise he who had received two gained two more also. ¹⁸But he who had received one went and dug in the ground, and hid his lord’s money. ¹⁹After a long time the lord of those servants came and settled accounts with them.

²⁰“So he who had received five talents came and brought five other talents, saying, ‘Lord, you delivered to me five talents; look, I have gained five more talents besides them.’ ²¹His lord said to him, ‘Well done, good and faithful servant; you were ²²faithful over a few things, ²³I will make you ruler over many things. ²⁶“But his lord answered and said to him, ‘You ²⁷wicked and lazy servant, you knew that I reap where I have not sown, and gather where I have not scattered seed. ²⁷So you ought to have deposited my money with the bankers, and at my coming I would have received back my own with interest. ²⁸So take the talent from him, and give it to him who has ten talents.

³¹^x“When the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the ³²holy angels with Him, then He will sit on the throne of His glory. ³²^yAll the nations will be gathered before Him, and ³³He will separate them one from another, as a shepherd

25:10 The door was shut speaks of being shut out of the kingdom. The unwise virgins were not ready when Christ returned. Compare the wedding feast of 22:1–14 and Rev. 19:7, 8.

25:11 Lord, Lord is reminiscent of a similar cry in 7:21–23, where the same scene is portrayed. The repetition of Lord indicates strong emotion.

25:14 The parable of the talents illustrates the faithfulness required of God’s servants. The fact that the master traveled to a far country indicates that there would be ample time to test the faithfulness of the servants.

25:15 A talent was a large sum of money, about six thousand denarii. A denarius represented the day’s wage for a typical working man (20:2).

25:18 It was believed that money hidden in the ground was as secure as it could be.

25:23 The first two servants received the same reward, even though they had received different amounts of money. The reward was based on faithfulness, not on the size of their responsibilities. The smallest task in God’s work may receive a great reward if we are faithful in performing it (10:42).

25:26, 27 The wicked servant was lazy and unfaithful, because if he really had feared his master, he would at least have deposited the money with the bankers. Then the master would have received back the investment plus interest.

25:29 This proverb illustrates that a person must use what God has given or else lose it (see Heb. 5:11, 12). This includes abilities and spiritual gifts, as well as material possessions (see 1 Pet. 4:10).

25:30 The unprofitable servant is one who fails to be faithful to the tasks given by the master. This servant will not share in the rewards (8:12; 13:42, 50; 22:13).

25:31 The final section of this discourse involves judgment. Matthew has been called “the Gospel of judgment” because the subject occurs so often (vv. 1–12, 14–46; 3:12; 6:2, 5, 16; 7:24–27; 13:30, 48, 49; 18:23–34; 20:1–16; 21:33–41; 22:1–14; 24:45–51). This is to be expected, since Matthew emphasizes the coming of the kingdom and thus the judgment that accompanies it. In the previous two parables, Jesus had been speaking of the judgment on those Israelites who were unprepared for the coming of the Messiah. In the last parable of this discourse, Jesus focuses His attention on all the nations of the earth. When the Son of Man comes in His glory recalls the words of Dan. 7:13, 14, 27 and anticipates the future reign of Christ (see Rev. 5:9, 10; 19:11–18; 20:4–6).

25:32 Nations here means Gentiles. Sheep and goats were both clean animals according to the Levitical law; however, their natures divides his sheep from the goats. ³³ And He will set the ^asheep on His right hand, but the goats on the left. ³⁴ Then the King will say to those on His right hand, ‘Come, you blessed of My Father, ^binherit the kingdom ^cprepared for you from the foundation of the world: ^{35 d} for I was hungry and you gave Me food; I was thirsty and you gave Me drink; ^eI was a stranger and you took Me in; ^{36 f} I was naked and you clothed Me; I was sick and you visited Me; ^gI was in prison and you came to Me.’

³⁷ “Then the righteous will answer Him, saying, ‘Lord, when did we see You hungry and feed You, or thirsty and give You drink? ³⁸ When did we see You a stranger and take You in, or naked and clothe You? ³⁹ Or when did we see You sick, or in prison, and come to You?’ ⁴⁰ And the King will answer and say to them, ‘Assuredly, I say to you, ^hinasmuch as you did it to one of the least of these My brethren, you did it to Me.’

⁴¹ “Then He will also say to those on the left hand, ⁱDepart from Me, you cursed, ^jinto the everlasting fire prepared for ^kthe devil and his angels: ⁴² for I was hungry and you gave Me no food; I was thirsty and you gave Me no drink; ⁴³ I was a stranger and you did not take Me in, naked and you did not clothe Me, sick and in prison and you did not visit Me.’

⁴⁴ “Then they also will answer ⁴Him, saying, ‘Lord, when did we see You hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not minister to You?’

⁴⁵ Then He will answer them, saying, ‘Assuredly, I say to you, ^linasmuch as you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.’ ⁴⁶ And ^mthese will go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into eternal life.”

The Religious Leaders Plot to Kill Jesus

26 Now it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, that He said to His disciples, ^{2a} “You know that after two days is the Passover, and the Son of Man will be delivered up to be crucified.”

^{3b} Then the chief priests, ¹ the scribes, and the elders of the people assembled at the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas, ⁴ and ^cplotted to take Jesus by ²trickery and kill Him. ⁵ But they said, “Not during the feast, lest there be an uproar among the ^dpeople.”

Mary Anoints Jesus for Burial

Mark 14:3-9; John 12:2-8

¹⁰ But when Jesus was aware of it, He said to them, “Why do you trouble the woman? For she has done a good work for Me. ^{11g} For you have the poor with you always, but ^hMe you do not have always. ¹² For in pouring this fragrant oil on My body, she did it for My ⁱburial. ¹³ Assuredly, I say to you, wherever this gospel is preached in the whole world, what this woman has done will also be told as a memorial to her.”

are very different. Shepherds regularly herded their sheep and goats together, but there came a point when the two had to be separated. 25:34 The kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world indicates that this kingdom has always been God’s goal for humans.

25:40 Three groups are referred to in vv. 31–46: sheep, goats, and My brethren. At the very least, these “brethren” are believers in Jesus Christ.

25:46 Everlasting and eternal are used to describe both torment and life, indicating that one will last as long as the other. In fact, “everlasting” is used of God in Rom. 16:26.

26:1 As is his style, Matthew brings the discourse of the Lord to a conclusion with the words, Now it came to pass, when Jesus had finished (see 7:28; 11:1; 13:53; 19:1).

26:3 The wicked Caiaphas was high priest from A.D. 18 to 37. However, Luke 3:2 says that both Annas (father-in-law of Caiaphas) and Caiaphas were high priests; Acts 4:6 calls Annas the high priest. Although Caiaphas was officially the high priest, Annas still had influence over that office. Annas was so despisable that the Roman government deposed him from office. However, he continued to work behind the scenes through his wicked son-in-law.

26:4 The religious leaders knew they could not take Christ by argument or logic (22:46), and they did not dare take Him by force (21:46). Their only recourse was trickery.

26:5 This verse is to be compared with v. 2, which speaks of Christ’s full knowledge of what was coming and His acceptance that it was part of God’s plan (see John 10:18). Despite whatever people plot, God still sovereignly controls all events.

26:6 Apparently Jesus spent His nights in the village of Bethany, just a few miles outside Jerusalem on the Mount of Olives. Simon was a leper who evidently had been cleansed by Jesus. He may have been the father of Lazarus, Mary, and Martha (see John 12:1, 2).

26:7 The costly fragrant oil (see Mark 14:3) was a perfume extracted from pure nard. The woman poured the costly perfume on both the head and feet of Jesus (see John 12:3). She could have opened the flask in such a way that it would have trickled out; instead, she broke the flask and poured out the oil to cover Jesus’ body (see Mark 14:3).

26:12 Jesus saw the pouring of the fragrant oil on His body as an anticipation of His death (see Mark 14:8). The perfumed ointment was placed on Jesus before His death; normally it would have been used after His death. The expensive oil points to (1) the value of Jesus’ death and (2) the high cost of devotion to Him.

^{14j}Then one of the twelve, called ^kJudas Iscariot, went to the chief priests ¹⁵and said, ^l“What are you willing to give me if I deliver Him to you?” And they counted out to him thirty pieces of silver. ¹⁶So from that time he sought opportunity to betray Him.

The Passover Is Prepared

Mark 14:12-16; Luke 22:7-13

^{17m}Now on the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying to Him, “Where do You want us to prepare for You to eat the Passover?”

¹⁸And He said, “Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, ‘The Teacher says, “My time is at hand; I will keep the Passover at your house with My disciples.”’”

¹⁹So the disciples did as Jesus had directed them; and they prepared the Passover.

^{34j} Matt. 26:74, 75 ★; Mark 14:30; Luke 22:34; John 13:38

26:14 The enormity of Judas's sin is seen in the words one of the twelve. Jesus was betrayed by one of His inner circle. Judas must have been considered a person of integrity or he would not have been trusted as treasurer.

26:15 Thirty pieces of silver was the price of a slave (see Ex. 21:32). Zechariah had foreshadowed this sum in his prophetic actions (in Zech. 11:12, 13). Note the contrast between the costly devotion of the woman (vv. 7-13) and the small price of Judas's betrayal.

26:17 The first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread is also the day of the Passover (v. 18). The disciples were Peter and John (see Luke 22:8).

26:21 One of you will betray Me indicates the Lord's omniscience. Repeatedly—in submission to the Father—Christ unveiled evidences of His deity to His disciples.

26:22 The disciples had already heard that Jesus was going to die in Jerusalem, but His revelation of betrayal was new (see v. 2; 16:21; 17:12, 22, 23; 20:18, 19). Is it I? expects a negative response. The meaning is “I'm not the one, am I?”

26:23 The dish was a bowl of broth in which the guests dipped pieces of bread.

26:26 This is My body means “This symbolizes My body” (see 1 Cor 10:4).

26:28 This is My blood of the new covenant refers to the covenant that had been promised in the OT (see Jer. 31:31-34; 32:37-44; Ezek. 34:25-31; 37:26-28). The Lord Jesus specifically said that His blood . . . is shed for many for the remission of sins. The word many looks back to 20:28 and anticipates the command to preach the Good News to all the world in 28:19, 20.

26:29 This verse anticipates God's kingdom when Christ will reign on the throne of David. Today He is seated with the Father on His throne and intercedes for us.

26:31 All of you will . . . stumble: All the disciples, not just Peter, would fall away. I will strike the Shepherd . . . the flock will be scattered: This OT prophecy is found in Zech. 13:7 (see Ps. 118).

26:32 Several reasons may be offered as to why Christ went to Galilee to meet His disciples: (1) They were all from Galilee; (2) He wanted to be away from Jerusalem, the center of opposition; (3) He wanted to take up the work of shepherding His flock where He had ministered to them before; or (4) the most effective setting for the Great Commission given in 28:19, 20 would be Galilee (4:12-16).

26:34 The rooster crow is usually thought to refer to the third Roman watch, from midnight to 3 A.M.

to you that this night, before the rooster crows, you will deny Me three times.”

³⁵ Peter said to Him, “Even if I have to die with You, I will not deny You!”

And so said all the disciples.

Jesus' Three Prayers

Mark 14:32-42; Luke 22:40-46

³⁶ Then Jesus came with them to a place called Gethsemane, and said to the disciples, “Sit here while I go and pray over there.” ³⁷ And He took with Him Peter and ^kthe two sons of Zebedee, and He began to be sorrowful and deeply distressed. ³⁸ Then He said to them, ^l“My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death. Stay here and watch with Me.”

³⁹ He went a little farther and fell on His face, and ^mprayed, saying, ⁿ“O My Father, if it is possible, ^olet this cup pass

⁴⁰ Then He came to the disciples and found them sleeping, and said to Peter, “What! Could you not watch with Me one hour? ⁴¹ ^q Watch and pray, lest you enter into temptation. ^r The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.”

⁴² Again, a second time, He went away and prayed, saying, “O My Father, ⁸ if this cup cannot pass away from Me unless I drink it, Your will be done.” ⁴³ And He came and found them asleep again, for their eyes were heavy.

⁴⁴ So He left them, went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words. ⁴⁵ Then He came to His disciples and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and resting? Behold, the hour ⁹ is at hand, and the Son of Man is being ^s betrayed into the hands of sinners. ⁴⁶ Rise, 26:36 Judas had already gone (see John 13:21–30), so the Lord left eight of His disciples at this spot. Gethsemane (which means “Oil Press”) was east of Jerusalem on the Mount of Olives. In the place where olives were crushed and ground, the One anointed with oil was crushed and rent.

26:37 This was the third time that Jesus singled out Peter, James, and John to accompany Him for a specific purpose (see the Transfiguration in 17:1–13 and the raising of Jairus’s daughter in Luke 8:49–56).

26:38 My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death seems to look back to Ps. 42:5, 6, 11; 43:5. Watch literally means “stay awake.”

26:39 let this cup pass from Me: It was not the impending physical suffering, as terrible as it would be, that caused Jesus to pray this way; it was the reality of the sinless Son of God bearing the sins of the world and facing separation from His Father (see 2 Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13; Heb. 12:2; 1 Pet. 2:24). Cup is a figure of speech for wrath in the OT (see Ps. 75:8; Is. 51:17). Jesus became a curse for us and took the brunt of God’s righteous wrath against sin (see Gal. 3:13).

26:40 Could you not watch with Me one hour: Although addressed to Peter, the question was meant for all three disciples. Earlier Peter had claimed that he would never forsake Jesus and that he would even die for Him (v. 35); yet Peter could not stay awake to pray with Jesus at the time of His greatest need.

26:41 The disciples needed to stay awake and pray because they were about to be tested themselves. Here the word flesh emphasizes human weakness. The contrast between the weakness of the disciples and the strength of the Lord is startling. Because the flesh is weak, every child of God needs supernatural empowerment (see Rom. 8:3, 4).

26:42–44 The fact that Jesus prayed the same words indicates that there is nothing wrong with repetition from a devout heart. In the first prayer, Jesus made a positive request: “Let this cup pass from Me.” In the second and third prayers, His request was negative. In obedience to His Father, Jesus committed Himself to drink the cup, whatever the cost.

26:45 Are you still sleeping: The disciples were resting while Jesus was sweating in prayer to the point of exhaustion (see Luke 22:43, 44).

26:46 This verse shows Jesus’ active submission to the Father’s will, as He stated in v. 42. Jesus did not go reluctantly, but with determination to do the Father’s will.

The Lord's Supper

When we ask how the Lord’s Supper should be meaningful to the Christian today, three concepts—relating to the past, present, and future—can be helpful.

First, the Lord’s Supper is a time of remembrance and Eucharist. Jesus said, “Do this in remembrance of Me” (Luke 22:19; 1 Cor. 11:24, 25). This is not to be so much our dwelling on the agonies of the crucifixion as it is to be our remembering the marvelous life and ministry of our Savior. The Eucharist is to be an occasion for expressing our deepest praise and appreciation for all Jesus Christ has done for us. Just as one step in the Jewish Passover meal was to proclaim the Hebrews’ deliverance from Egyptian bondage (Ex. 12:26, 27), so in the Lord’s Supper Christians proclaim their deliverance from sin and misery through the death of “Christ, our Passover” (1 Cor. 5:7; 11:26).

Second, the Supper is a time of refreshing and communion. As we participate in the benefits of Jesus’ death and resurrection life (Rom. 5:10; 1 Cor. 10:16), we are actually being nourished and empowered from the risen Christ through the Spirit. John Wesley knew of this strengthening. On the average, he received communion every four or five days throughout his long and fruitful ministerial career. It is not that God cannot empower us without the Lord’s Supper, but that He has instituted the Supper for us, even as He has designated prayer and the hearing of Scripture as means of communicating His grace. While the Bible does not tell us how often to observe the Eucharist, Wesley’s guideline—“as often as you can”—deserves our serious consideration.

Third, the Supper is a time of recommitment and anticipation. We are to examine (literally “prove” or “test”) ourselves and partake in a worthy manner (1 Cor. 11:28, 29). In so doing we renew our dedication to Christ and His people, in hopeful anticipation “till He comes” (1 Cor. 11:26). After Christ’s return we shall partake with Him—in His physical presence—in the kingdom (Matt. 26:29).

let us be going. See, My betrayer is at hand.”

⁴⁷And ¹while He was still speaking, behold, Judas, one of the twelve, with a great multitude with swords and clubs, came from the chief priests and elders of the people.

⁴⁸Now His betrayer had given them a sign, saying, “Whomever I kiss, He is the One; seize Him.” ⁴⁹Immediately he went up to Jesus and said, “Greetings, Rabbi!” ⁵⁰and kissed Him.

⁵⁰But Jesus said to him, ^v“Friend, why have you come?”

Then they came and laid hands on Jesus and took Him. ⁵¹And suddenly, ^wone of those who were with Jesus stretched out his hand and drew his sword, struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

⁵²But Jesus said to him, “Put your sword in its place, ^xfor all who take the sword will ¹perish by the sword. ⁵³Or do you think that I cannot now pray to My Father, and He will provide Me with ^ymore than twelve legions of angels? ⁵⁴How then could the Scriptures be fulfilled, ^zthat it must happen thus?”

⁶²ⁱAnd the high priest arose and said to Him, “Do You answer nothing? What is it these men testify against You?” ⁶³But ^jJesus kept silent. And the high priest answered and said to Him, ^k“I put You under oath by the living God: Tell us if You are the Christ, the Son of God!”

⁶⁴Jesus said to him, “It is as you said.”

^k Lev. 5:1; 1 Sam. 14:24, 26; Luke 22:67-71

26:47 The fact that the multitude was armed with swords and clubs indicates that Judas did not really know the heart of Jesus. Christ went out to meet the multitude not to do battle, but to surrender.

26:49 The only person to address the Lord as Rabbi in the Book of Matthew was Judas (v. 25). Kissed means to kiss as a display of affection. The same verb form is used in the parable of the Lost Son in Luke 15:20.

26:50 Friend: Even though He knew Judas's wicked heart and actions, Jesus offered him friendship and an opportunity to change his mind. The words translated Why have you come may also mean “Do what you have come to do.”

26:51 John 18:10 informs us that the impetuous swordsman was Peter. This action was performed with one of the two swords that the disciples had (see Luke 22:38).

26:53 A legion in the Roman army was about six thousand men. When one considers the power of one angel, as seen in the OT (see Ex. 12:23; 2 Sam. 24:15-17; 2 Kings 19:35), the power of more than 72,000 angels is beyond comprehension. Jesus had all of heaven's power at His disposal, yet He refused to use it. His Father's will was for Him to go to the Cross.

26:54 If Jesus had called for angelic aid, the prophetic Scriptures foretelling His betrayal, His death, and His resurrection would not have been fulfilled. This point is so important that it is stated twice (v. 56).

26:56 all the disciples forsook Him and fled: Compare Peter's claim in v. 35 with Jesus' words in v. 41, “The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.”

26:57 The Lord Jesus was subjected to six trials—three Jewish trials and three Gentile trials. The first Jewish trial was before Annas, who was not the actual high priest, but was a powerful influence on the high priest's office. This trial is mentioned only by John (see John 18:12-23). The second trial was before Caiaphas and the Jewish council. Clearly the council had been hastily called together in anticipation of passing judgment on Jesus. Matthew does not mention Jesus' trial before Herod Antipas (see Luke 23:6-12); he also combines the two trials before Pilate into one (27:2, 11-26). Jesus' opponents were trying desperately to find some legal basis for condemning Him to death.

26:58 John 18:15, 16 explains that Peter and John were both granted an entrance into the courtyard because John was known to the high priest. The servants were probably house servants, not members of the mob who arrested the Lord. Apparently, Peter had forgotten the words of Jesus concerning His resurrection. For Peter, this was the end.

26:61 This is a misquotation and misapplication of Christ's words (see John 2:19-21). At any rate, to say that Jesus had spoken against the temple was an action for which they could condemn Him (see Acts 6:13, 14).

26:62 The high priest must have recognized that the accusers had no case against Jesus. His outburst was the result of frustration and desperation. In maintaining His silence, Jesus fulfilled the prophecy of Is. 53:7.

26:63 I put You under oath by the living God: The high priest thought he needed to put Christ under oath in order to get a truthful confession. Christ needed no such oath; He had indicated His divine nature and unity with the Father on several occasions (see John 8:58; 10:30-33).

26:64 Jesus answered the high priest's request (v. 63) in the affirmative and then fortified His answer by applying two clearly messianic passages to Himself: Ps. 110:1 and Dan. 7:13.

Nevertheless, I say to you, ^lhereafter you will see the Son of Man ^msitting at the right hand of the Power, and coming on the clouds of heaven.”

^{65 n}Then the high priest tore his clothes, saying, “He has spoken blasphemy! What further need do we have of witnesses? Look, now you have heard His ^oblasphemy! ⁶⁶What do you think?”

They answered and said, ^p“He is deserving of death.”

^{67 q}Then they spat in His face and beat Him; and ^rothers struck Him with ⁵the palms of their hands, ⁶⁸saying, ^s“Prophecy to us, Christ! Who is the one who struck You?”

26:65 Jesus’ claim of sitting at the right hand of God (v. 64) was an assertion of deity and was, to this unbelieving high priest, a clear case of blasphemy.

26:74 swear: Peter swore under oath that he did not know Jesus. immediately a rooster crowed: Some have detected a contradiction between this passage, where the rooster is said to crow

(presumably once) after Peter denies Jesus three times, and the statement in Mark’s Gospel that the rooster would crow two times (see Mark 14:72). Others believe that to see a contradiction is simply a forced reading of the text. Matthew, Luke, and John make the simple statement that a rooster would crow (Luke 22:61; John 18:27) whereas Mark, which was based on Peter’s memories, emphasizes

The Meaning of Messiah
Matthew wrote his Gospel to demonstrate to his Jewish audience that Jesus is indeed the long-awaited Messiah. Who is the Messiah and why were the Jews waiting for such a person?
The Term	In Hebrew or Aramaic, the word Messiah means “anointed.” The Greek equivalent of the word is the title Christ.
Old Testament Background	In the Old Testament, prophets, priests and kings were literally anointed with oil to consecrate them for special service or to signify the endowment of the Spirit of God (Lev. 4:3; 8:12; 1 Sam. 10:1, 6; Ps. 105:15; Is. 61:1). These practices pointed to the promised arrival of God’s Anointed One, who would fulfill all three offices as the Prophet, the Priest, and the King.
Titles for the Messiah	Seed of Abraham (Ps. 105:6); Son of David (Matt. 1:1); Son of Man (Dan. 7:13); My Son (Ps. 2:7); My Servant (Matt. 12:18); My Elect One (Is. 42:1); The Branch (Zech. 3:8; 6:12); Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God, Prince of Peace (Is. 9:6)
Major Old Testament Prophecies of the Messiah	Gen. 3:15; 9:27; 12:3; 22:18; 49:8, 10; Deut. 18:18; 2 Sam. 7:11–16; 23:5; Ps. 2; 16; 22; 40; 110; Is. 2; 7; 9; 11; 40; 42; 49; 52; 53; Jer. 23:5, 6; Dan. 7:27; Hag. 2:9; Zech. 12:10–14; Mal. 3:1; 4:5, 6
Jewish Expectations for the Messiah	In the first century, the Jews looked for a Messiah who would deliver the nation from Roman domination, become their King, and rebuild the nation of Israel to its former glory. By looking for a military deliverer and a political Messiah, the Jews minimized the messianic roles of prophet and priest. Thus many Jews rejected Jesus as the Messiah because He came as a humble spiritual Savior and not a conquering political ruler.
The Messiah’s Rule	Jesus indicated that He was the King for whom the Jews were looking. However, His kingdom was not an earthly kingdom but a heavenly kingdom. In Matthew there are 32 references to the “kingdom of heaven.” This phrase, found in the New Testament only in Matthew’s Gospel, is probably derived from the description of the kingdom of the Son of Man in Dan. 7:13–18. The phrase indicates the rule of heaven over all of the earth (Matt. 6:10).
Jesus’ Claim	When asked specifically if He was the Christ, Jesus answered in the affirmative, incurring the wrath of the Jews (Matt. 26:63–65). In addition, Jesus praised Peter for recognizing Him as the Anointed One of God (Matt. 16:15–20).
Significance	The title Messiah implies the idea of deity. The great prophet Moses, the priest Melchizedek, and even the glorious King David pale in comparison to the messianic Prophet-Priest-King. In the words of Heb. 1, Jesus Christ is the “brightness of [God’s] glory and the express image of His person” (v. 3). In short, He is God (v. 8).

Immediately a rooster crowed. ⁷⁵ And Peter remembered the word of Jesus who had said to him, ^w “Before the rooster crows, you will deny Me three times.” So he went out and wept bitterly.

Jesus Is Delivered to Pilate

27 When morning came, ^a all the chief priests and elders of the people plotted against Jesus to put Him to death. ² And when they had bound Him, they led Him away and ^b delivered Him to ¹ Pontius Pilate the governor.

Judas Repents

Acts 1:18, 19

^{3c} Then Judas, His betrayer, seeing that He had been condemned, was remorseful and brought back the thirty ^d pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, ⁴ saying, “I have sinned by betraying innocent blood.”

And they said, “What is that to us? You see to it!”

⁵ Then he threw down the pieces of silver in the temple and ^e departed, and went and hanged himself.

⁹ Then was fulfilled what was spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, ^g “And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the value of Him who was priced, whom they

Jesus Is Examined

Mark 15:2-5; Luke 23:2-5; John 18:29-38

¹¹ Now Jesus stood before the governor. ⁱ And the governor asked Him, saying, “Are You the King of the Jews?”

Jesus said to him, ^j “It is as you say.” ¹² And while He was being accused by the chief priests and elders, ^k He answered nothing.

¹³ Then Pilate said to Him, ^l “Do You not hear how many things they testify against You?” ¹⁴ But He answered him not one word, so that the governor marveled greatly.

Barabbas Is Freed

Mark 15:6-14; Luke 23:17-23; John 18:39, 40

^{15m} Now at the feast the governor was accustomed to releasing to the multitude one prisoner whom they wished. ¹⁶ And at that time they had a notorious prisoner called ² Barabbas. ¹⁷ Therefore, when they had gathered together, Pilate said to them, “Whom do you want me to release to you? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?” ¹⁸ For he knew that they had handed Him over because of ⁿ envy.

^{20o} But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitudes that they should ask for Barabbas and destroy Jesus. ²¹ The governor answered and said to the exact number of times the rooster would crow. The number of times would be sharp in Peter’s memory and interest. The other Gospel writers were concerned only with the sign in general.

26:75 He went out and wept bitterly indicates Peter’s genuine repentance. In His grace, the Lord later forgave Peter.

27:1 This was the third Jewish trial. The first two were illegal because they were held at night. This third meeting was held when morning came and was simply a “rubber stamp” of the one described in 26:57-68.

27:2 Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea, Samaria, and Idumea from A.D. 26-36. Because the Jews did not have authority to execute Jesus (see John 18:31), they brought Him to Pilate.

27:3 Judas felt remorse because he had not planned for this to happen; he may have betrayed Jesus in order to force Him to take action against His enemies and inaugurate His kingdom. But that was not God’s timing and plan.

27:5 Acts 1:18 says that the death of Judas was due to a headlong fall. The likely explanation is that Judas hanged himself on a tree, only to have the rope or branch break. If the tree was over a rocky precipice, the account in Acts can be correlated with this account.

27:6 The religious leaders, who had no problem condemning an innocent person to death, suddenly became very scrupulous about the Law. Because of Deut. 23:18, it was felt that blood money should not be used for religious purposes.

27:7 Originally this plot of ground was known as the potter’s field, a place where potters dug for clay. Consequently, it was full of holes, which would have made it easy to bury people who had no family tombs. It was purchased as a cemetery for strangers who died in Jerusalem. It is likely Gentiles were also buried there.

27:9, 10 This prophecy is found in Zech. 11:12, 13; however, Matthew states that the prophecy was made by Jeremiah. The best solution to the problem seems to be that the prophecy was spoken by Jeremiah and recorded by Zechariah. A second option is that the name Jeremiah stands for the collection of prophetic writings in which Zechariah is found. It may also be that in the days of Christ, the Book of Jeremiah headed the books of the prophets. The quotation is then identified with the name of the first book in the section and not the name of the specific book within the group.

27:11 The title King of the Jews has not been used in Matthew’s Gospel since 2:2. Clearly Pilate’s charge against the Lord Jesus was prompted by Jewish religious leaders.

27:16-18 Barabbas was notorious because he was an insurrectionist and a murderer (see Mark 15:7; Luke 23:19, 25). Evidently Pilate assumed the Jews would choose Jesus to be released over a murderer like Barabbas. Jesus had only gone about doing good.

27:19 Only Matthew records this incident concerning Pilate’s wife. It highlights Pilate’s sense of responsibility; he did not want to condemn an innocent man.

them, “Which of the two do you want me to release to you?”

They said, ^p“Barabbas!”

²² Pilate said to them, “What then shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?”

They all said to him, “Let Him be crucified!”

²³ Then the governor said, ^q“Why, what evil has He done?”

But they cried out all the more, saying, “Let Him be crucified!”

²⁴ When Pilate saw that he could not prevail at all, but rather that a ³ tumult was rising, he ^r took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, “I am innocent of the blood of this ⁴ just Person. You see to it.”

²⁵ And all the people answered and said, ^s“His blood be on us and on our children.”

27:24 The religious authorities, who wanted to avoid a riot earlier, here used a tumult (the same Greek noun as in 26:5) to accomplish their goal. The tenure of Pilate had been rocked by conflicts with the Jews from the very beginning. He could scarcely have afforded another one on his record. Once again, Pilate pronounced Jesus to be innocent. The washing of his hands is recorded only by Matthew. The governor vainly attempted to rid himself of the guilt of condemning an innocent man to death (see Deut. 21:1-9; Ps. 73:13). 27:25 His blood be on us and on our children: The destruction of Jerusalem was one of the results of this sin (23:32-39).

27:26 when he had scourged Jesus: Scourging was a life-threatening punishment. Evidently this was an attempt by Pilate to punish Jesus so severely that the people would have pity and say, “It is enough; release Him” (see John 19:4, 5). However, the mob cried out for Jesus to be crucified (John 19:6).

27:27 The Praetorium was the official residence of the governor when he was in Jerusalem. It was originally built as a palace for Herod the Great.

27:28-30 The soldiers mocked Jesus for claiming to be a king. Note the references to the robe, the crown, the scepter (reed), and the praise.

27:31 crucified: Crucifixion, a practice probably adopted from Persia, was considered by the Romans to be the cruelest form of execution. This punishment was reserved for the worst criminals; Roman citizens were not crucified. The victim usually died after two or three days of agonizing suffering, enduring thirst, exhaustion, and exposure. The victim's arms were nailed to a beam, which was hoisted up and fixed to a post, to which the feet of the victim would be nailed. The body weight was supported by a peg on which the victim sat.

27:32 Compelled, the same verb used in 5:41, refers to the Roman government's right of impressment, the right of the Roman army to demand labor from a person. The scourging undoubtedly left Jesus weak and unable to carry His cross, so a Roman guard ordered Simon to carry it. Simon must have been (or later became) a Christian; it is unlikely that he would be referred to by name if he were a stranger to the Christian community. This Simon was the father of Alexander and Rufus (see Mark 15:21). Cyrene, located in North Africa, was home to a large number of Jews (see Acts 6:9).

27:33 The reason the site was called Place of a Skull is not known for certain; possibly the hill or mound looked something like a skull. 27:34 Sour wine mingled with gall would have dulled Jesus' pain and consciousness. Jesus refused it; He wanted to drink His cup of suffering fully aware of all that was happening (see Ps. 69:21).

27:35 The executioners had the privilege of taking the victim's clothes. In casting lots for Jesus' garments, the soldiers fulfilled Ps. 22:18.

27:36 Perhaps the soldiers kept watch to prevent anyone from trying to rescue Jesus from the Cross.

27:37 Putting the Gospel accounts together, the accusation probably read “This is Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews” (see Mark 15:26; Luke 23:38; John 19:19).

27:38 two robbers were crucified with Him: This is in fulfillment of Is. 53:12, “He was numbered with the transgressors.” Luke record-disciple of Jesus. ⁵⁸This man went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be given to him. ⁵⁹When Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, ⁶⁰and ^blaid it in his new tomb which he had hewn out of the rock; and he rolled a large stone against the door of the tomb, and departed. ⁶¹And Mary Magdalene was there, and the other Mary, sitting ⁶opposite the tomb.

⁶²On the next day, which followed the Day of Preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees gathered together to Pilate, ⁶³saying, “Sir, we remember, while He was still alive, how that deceiver said, ‘After three days I will rise.’ ⁶⁴Therefore command that the tomb be made secure until the third day, lest His disciples come ⁷by night and steal Him away, and say to the people, ‘He has risen from the dead.’ So the last deception will be worse than the first.”

⁶⁵Pilate said to them, “You have a guard; go your way, make it as secure as you know how.” ⁶⁶So they went and made the tomb secure, ^dsealing the stone and setting the guard.

The Bribery of the Soldiers

¹¹Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. ¹²When they had assembled with the elders and consulted together, they gave a large sum of money to the soldiers, ¹³saying, “Tell them, ‘His disciples came at night and

27:61 The two Marys are also mentioned in v. 56. These women were witnesses to the burial of Jesus.

27:62 The next day was the Sabbath. The chief priests were Sadducees. The Pharisees and the Sadducees’ common animosity toward Jesus united them.

27:63 The Sadducees and Pharisees described the Lord Jesus as that deceiver when, in reality, they were the deceivers (26:4) and hypocrites (23:13, 15, 23, 25, 27, 29).

27:64 For emphasis, the verb secure is used three times in vv. 64–66.

27:65 The noun translated guard is a Latin word, since the soldiers were Romans and not part of the temple guard.

27:66 To emphasize the impossibility of anyone stealing the body of Jesus, Matthew stressed that the tomb was sealed (see Dan. 6:17).

28:1–15 Although Matthew is brief in his discussion of the resurrection of Christ, he defends it very carefully. The Resurrection was attested by several witnesses, including an angel, various soldiers, and the women at the tomb (vv. 1–8). The tomb with Jesus’ body in it was sealed (27:66), but later the body was not found there (vv. 6, 8). The excuse of the soldiers was illogical (vv. 11–15). No Roman soldier would admit sleeping on the job, as the punishment for this was death. Finally, Jesus Himself appeared to many of His disciples, providing even more witnesses to His resurrection from the dead (vv. 16–20). Matthew presents the evidence for Jesus’ resurrection with precision because the doctrine is essential to the Christian faith. The Resurrection is a sign that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God (12:38, 39), and the Resurrection validates the Lord’s own prophecies of it (16:21; 17:22, 23; 20:17–19). In 1 Cor. 15:12–19, Paul emphasizes the importance of the Resurrection by listing a series of consequences if the doctrine is denied.

28:1 after the Sabbath: The Sabbath ended at sundown on Saturday. The events of this verse took place at dawn on Sunday morning. The two Marys are those identified in 27:56, 61.

28:2 An earthquake marked the death of the Lord Jesus (27:51); here it evidenced His resurrection. The tomb was not opened to permit Christ to come out, but to allow others in so they could see that it was empty.

28:3 Brilliance is a characteristic of heavenly beings (see 17:2; Dan. 7:9; 10:5, 6; Acts 1:10; Rev. 3:4, 5; 4:4; 6:11; 7:9, 13; 19:14).

28:6 He is risen, as He said: For Jesus’ predictions of His resurrection, see 12:40; 16:21; 17:9, 23; 26:32.

28:7 The Lord Jesus made post-resurrection appearances first in Jerusalem and Judea, then in Galilee, and then again in Jerusalem. Both ch. 28 and John 21 emphasize the appearances in Galilee. Christ’s command to “come, see” (v. 6) is followed here by go . . . tell. This is always the divine order: to tell others the Good News about our Lord.

28:10 Galilee was the appointed location for Jesus’ rendezvous with His disciples (v. 7; 26:32) and was also the setting of the Great Commission (vv. 18–20). Note that the Lord referred to His disciples as His brethren (see 12:48–50; Ps. 22:22; Heb. 2:11, 12).

28:11 The Roman guards reported to the chief priests because they had been assigned for duty to the religious authorities (27:65).

28:13 His disciples . . . stole Him away while we slept: Besides stole Him away while we slept.’ ¹⁴ And if this comes to the governor’s ears, we will appease him and make you secure.” ¹⁵ So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

being a lie, this was a very weak explanation. If a guard was found sleeping at his post or if a prisoner escaped, the guard would be put to death (see Acts 12:19; 16:27, 28; 27:42). It may have been possible for one soldier to sleep, but it is highly improbable that all of them slept at the same time. Also, sleeping people do not make good witnesses: If they were asleep, how did they know what happened? 28:15 Until this day refers specifically to the time of the writing of Matthew’s Gospel; however, this explanation is current even today. 28:16, 17 When the eleven disciples went away into Galilee they were probably accompanied by many more people. This may be the appearance to more than five hundred people mentioned by Paul in 1 Cor. 15:6. This may explain why some doubted; after all, the Eleven were confirmed believers in the resurrected Christ by this time (see John 20:19–28).

28:18 All authority has been given to Jesus, although He is not yet exercising all of it (see Phil. 2:9–11; Heb. 2:5–9; 10:12, 13; Rev. 3:21). He will manifest this power when He returns in all His glory (see 19:28; 1 Cor. 15:27, 28; Eph. 1:10). The word authority normally refers to delegated authority (as in 8:9; 9:6, 8; 10:1; 21:23, 24, 27). The Father would give this authority to the Son (Phil. 2:9–11). Here the Lord Jesus may have been recalling the prophecy recorded in Dan. 7:13, 14.

28:19, 20 Therefore shows that the Great Commission rests on the authority of Christ. Because He has authority over all, everyone needs to hear His gospel. While vv. 18–20 are commonly known as the Great Commission, they should not be thought of as the first call for world evangelism. See Gen. 12:1–3 for God’s command that Abraham and his descendants should be a blessing to all nations. make disciples: Making disciples involves three steps: going, baptizing, and teaching. It was assumed that when a person trusted in the Lord Jesus, he or she would be baptized. The word name is singular, although it is the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit together. This verse is another indication that God is one in three Persons. I am with you always demonstrates that Jesus is the true Immanuel, “God with us” (see 1:23; Heb. 13:5, 6; Rev. 21:3).

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK

MARK'S GOSPEL is unique. It is not a biography of Jesus, like Matthew or Luke, for it does not dwell on Jesus' family history or career. Instead, this Gospel is a record of Jesus' actions and achievements. It presents Jesus as a Savior-King, who conquers demons, disease, and death.

The emphasis on Jesus' mighty and miraculous works makes this Gospel action-packed, fresh, and vivid. Mark constantly uses the present tense to create the impression of an eye-witness account—the kind presented by an on-the-spot reporter. And just like a reporter, he speaks directly to the reader. He uses rhetorical questions that readers would likely ask themselves, such as, “Who can this be, that even the wind and the sea obey Him!” (4:41). Sometimes he even addresses his audience with Jesus' words, “And what I say to you, I say to all: Watch!” (13:37). Mark wants to transform believers with his report, not merely inform them.

Moreover, his eyewitness accounts provide considerable detail—the emotional responses of Jesus and others, the sizes and reactions of crowds, and the appearance of men and women. The account of the Gadarene demoniac is an example of Mark's attention to detail. He uses 20 verses to tell that story, while Luke uses 14 and Matthew writes a mere seven. Yet Mark's Gospel is the most concise of all of the Gospels, because he omits Jesus' longer discourses. In general, Mark presents the miracle-working Jesus, not the teaching Jesus.

Author The Gospel of Mark does not identify its author. However, numerous documents from the early church unanimously point to Mark as the author. Papias, bishop of Hierapolis (A.D. 140), claimed that Mark, as Peter's interpreter, wrote an accurate Gospel. The Roman Prologue to Mark, dating from A.D. 160–180, also named Mark as the author, and Irenaeus, in France around A.D. 180, claimed that Mark wrote down Peter's preaching. This is repeated by Tertullian and Clement of Alexandria, both in North Africa around A.D. 200.

Mark is mentioned ten times in the New Testament. His Jewish name was John (Acts 13:5, 13), but his Roman name was Mark (Acts 12:12, 25; 15:37). He lived in Jerusalem and was a cousin of Barnabas (Col. 4:10). He might have been the youth wearing a linen cloth at Jesus' arrest (14:51, 52), because only his Gospel mentions this incident, which occurred after all the disciples had already fled. The fact that Peter announced his miraculous jail escape at the home of Mary, Mark's widowed mother (Acts 12:12), indicates Mark had significant contact with Peter and the other leaders of the Jerusalem church.

In A.D. 46, Mark spent time with Barnabas and Saul in the Antioch Church before he accompanied them as a helper on the first missionary journey. His unexpected departure from that expedition, however, caused Paul to lose confidence in him (Acts 15:37–39). Yet Mark later continued his missionary activity with Barnabas on Cyprus.

By A.D. 60–62, Paul again had placed his confidence in Mark and had complimented him as a fellow worker

(Col. 4:10, 11; Philem. 24). In addition to helping Paul and Barnabas, Mark assisted Peter in “Babylon” (1 Pet. 5:13). Finally, Paul asked Mark to come to Rome to assist him while he was confined (2 Tim. 4:11). These short, positive references to Mark in the New Testament indicate that he faithfully and successfully served God as a missionary and apostolic helper throughout the period.

Composition Peter was Mark’s primary informant. In fact, the outline of events in Mark’s Gospel follows precisely the outline of Peter’s sermon to Cornelius at Caesarea (Acts 10:34–43; compare Acts 13:23–33). Oral preaching at that time, such as Peter’s sermon, used established styles and rhetorical techniques to aid both instruction and recall; Mark’s Gospel reflects these oral styles. Furthermore, Justin Martyr, writing at about A.D. 150 in Rome, confirmed that Mark wrote down Peter’s recollection of events. He quoted Mark 3:17 as being in “the Memoirs of Peter.” In addition to recording Peter’s memories, Mark may have added his own memories and consulted other documents.

Most agree that Mark wrote his Gospel in Rome under Peter’s supervision. A second-century document, called the Prologue to Mark, states that the Gospel was composed in Italy. Furthermore, Irenaeus, writing about A.D. 180, specifically stated Rome. Since Mark was with Paul in Rome around A.D. 60–62 and may have returned around A.D. 65 at Paul’s request (2 Tim. 4:11), there is little reason to doubt this evidence.

Several important early sources, including the Anti-Marcionite Prologue and Irenaeus, stated that Mark composed his Gospel after Peter’s death. In fact, Irenaeus dated its composition after both Peter and Paul’s death around A.D. 67.

However Clement of Alexandria and Origen, writing a few years after Irenaeus, insisted that Peter was still alive during Mark’s writing of the book. Moreover, a later tradition, recorded by Eusebius about A.D. 340, stated that it was written earlier, during the reign of Claudius (A.D. 41–54). Finally, an inscription on later manuscripts dated Mark’s composition at an even earlier date around A.D. 39–42. These early dates, however, seem doubtful because (1) Mark probably would not have written the Gospel before his first failed missionary journey, (2) Peter most likely was not in Rome until after A.D. 60, and (3) Paul’s Epistle to the Romans (about A.D. 56–57) greets many believers, but mentions neither Mark nor Peter.

The most thoughtful estimate would place Mark’s work sometime after Peter’s death in A.D. 64 or 65, yet prior to A.D. 70, when Jerusalem was destroyed. In any event, the Gospel of Mark was penned within only three or four decades after the events it records.

Intended Readers Mark wrote for Gentile Christians, especially Romans. This conclusion is based on several facts: (1) Mark assumes some prior knowledge of the Christian faith on the part of his readers. John (the Baptist), baptism, and the Holy Spirit (1:4, 5, 8) are all mentioned without comment. (2) He does not assume a familiarity with Jewish Scripture. He directly quotes only one Old Testament passage

(1:2, 3). (3) Furthermore, he regularly explains Jewish customs and geography (7:2–4; 13:3; 14:12). (4) Finally, Mark purposely omits Jesus’ prohibition of preaching to the Samaritans and Gentiles (6:7–11; compare Matt. 10:5, 6).

Mark’s Gentile readers faced persecution and martyrdom. He wrote his Gospel to strengthen and guide Roman believers through Nero’s terrible persecutions. First of all, his readers needed to know that Jesus had also suffered. But, they also needed to know that Jesus, after his suffering, had triumphed over both suffering and death. The suffering Jesus was also the Son of God (1:1, 11; 14:61; 15:39), the Son of Man (2:10; 8:31; 13:26), the Christ (Messiah) (8:29), and the Lord (1:3; 7:28). After the death of Peter and other eyewitnesses to Jesus’ life, this gospel message needed to be written down. Mark wrote the story down in order to verify these truths and to provide a way to pass them on to new generations of believers.

Content Mark introduces the main character of his action-packed narrative, Jesus, in 13 quick verses. He weaves in this introduction both expectation (“Prepare the way of the LORD,” 1:3) and conflict (Satan tempts Christ in v. 13). The large section that follows (1:14—8:30) heightens the conflict, as in a Greek tragedy. There are successes for Jesus, but there is also growing hostility. Triumph and conflict appear side by side.

This long section culminates in Peter and the other disciples recognizing Jesus as the promised Messiah (8:29).

In the next section (8:31—15:47), Mark describes the final outcome for the Messiah—Jesus’ passion and death. First, Jesus announces His coming death to His disciples (8:31; 9:31; 10:33) and prepares them for it. Then, He journeys to Jerusalem and is tried and put to death. But in the epilogue (16:1–20), the purpose of His death becomes clear. The drama comes to a rousing conclusion as Christ rises from the dead and encourages His followers. This is the Gospel of Mark—the Good News of Jesus Christ.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Mark leaves no doubt that he is documenting a unique account of a unique man. He’s spotlighting the Son of Man who came from heaven to serve, not to be served, and to give His life as a ransom (10:45). So in Mark we see Jesus the obedient Servant of God actively and compassionately coming alongside hurting people. But it’s not just the physical hurts that haunt Him. Jesus is moved by the spiritual disease He sees all around Him.

If Mark’s intent is to present Jesus as a humble Servant, there is no need for an impressive family tree (like Matthew and Luke include). That is why the author begins with Jesus’ public ministry. Mark’s frequent use of the word “immediately” (used more in this compact book than all the rest of the New Testament) reminds us that Jesus is continually on the move. Even though He knows He has a limited time to fulfill the purpose for which He came to earth, others don’t. What they do come to understand is that Jesus viewed Himself as the Son of God. Mark attests to that frequently (see 1:1, 11; 3:1; 5:7; 9:7; 13:32; 14:61; 15:39).

1:1 Writing three decades after the Resurrection of Christ, Mark starts his narrative with a simple declaration of the Good News about God’s Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. As Luke notes in Acts 1:1, the Gospel stories describe what “Jesus began both to do and teach.” The gospel refers to the basic story of the Good News to be found in Christ’s life, ministry, death, and Resurrection. Jesus, meaning “Yahweh saves,” is the earthly name Jesus received at birth, whereas Christ is an OT title that designates Him as God’s chosen servant. Son of God makes clear Jesus’ deity and demonstrates His unique relationship to God.

1:2, 3 Other than by quoting Jesus, Mark makes only one reference to the OT. In this quotation from the Prophets, the Gospel writer retells the work of Christ’s forerunner, John the Baptist. Messenger and make His paths straight call forth the image of a king visiting his realm. In ancient times, a messenger was sent ahead to announce the coming of the king. Local communities would often repair rough roads to ensure the comfort of the king as he traveled. The quartet of Isaiah, Malachi, John the Baptist, and the writer Mark proclaims the coming of the King of all kings, Jesus Christ.

1:4 The mention of John without any introduction presupposes some knowledge of the Christian faith on the part of Mark’s readers (see Introduction). John’s baptism of repentance should not be confused with Christian baptism. The latter always follows conversion and symbolizes the spiritual death, burial, and Resurrection with Christ that is accomplished in a believer’s salvation experience (Acts 19:1-5; Rom. 6:3-6). It is performed in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. John’s baptism, on the other hand, prepared his followers to receive the new message about Christ and His kingdom. For the remission of sins does not mean that one is baptized in order to receive forgiveness of sins. The Greek preposition translated of in English probably means “with a view to,” signifying that baptism looks to the forgiveness that God gives through the gift of repentance.

1:5 John’s baptizing was a recurring popular event that attracted large crowds. Mark vividly portrays the continuous stream of followers who flocked to John. One may visualize throngs making the trek to the wilderness, with people waiting in line to be baptized. As each person was baptized by John, he or she would admit to individual sin and the need for the Messiah.

1:6 The angel Gabriel (the name means “mighty one of God”) announced to Zacharias that his son John would “go before Him [Christ] in the spirit and power of Elijah” (Mal. 4:5; Matt. 17:10-13; Luke 1:13-17).

1:7 The tense of the verb preached indicates continuous action in past time. John’s characteristic message was to promote expectancy and acceptance of the Lord Jesus Christ. He said he was not worthy to loosen the Messiah’s sandal strap. Students often performed menial tasks for their rabbis, but even they were not expected to remove someone’s sandals. That task was left to slaves. John humbly understood and accepted his own role in the coming Kingdom.

1:8 The prediction that Christ will baptize you with the Holy Spirit appears in each Gospel (Matt. 3:11; Luke 3:16; John 1:33) and was repeated by Christ in Acts 1:5 as being “not many days from now.” Though many English translations use the preposition with (with water and with the Holy Spirit), it is also acceptable to substitute the word in. The water is a physical representation of the future life in the Spirit that people who followed the Messiah would have. Presumably the Day of Pentecost marked the fulfillment of this promise.

1:9 Because He had no sins to repent, Jesus’ baptism was unique. It showed His identity with John’s work and with the sinner for whom He would die. It also foreshadowed His own death, burial, and resurrection for sinners.

1:10 Immediately occurs 41 times in Mark’s Gospel to indicate the swift action required of a servant (vv. 10, 12, 18, 20, 21).

1:11 Three times during Christ’s earthly ministry a voice came from heaven. It was the Father’s testimony to Christ’s unique and divine Sonship. The other two confirming incidents were at the Transfiguration (9:7) and on the day of Christ’s triumphal entry into Jerusalem (John 12:28).

(Gk. metanoia) (1:4; Matt. 3:8; Acts 5:31; 11:18) Strong’s #3341

This Greek word is a compound word derived from meta, meaning “after” and suggesting some type of change, and nous, meaning “mind.” Thus the word strictly denotes “a change of mind.” But it also connotes remorse for sin, accompanied by a desire to turn away from one’s sin, to God, for salvation. Both John the Baptist and Jesus began their ministries with a call to repentance (see Matt. 3:2; 4:17)—a call that many of the social outcasts and “sinners” of that day answered (see Luke 19:1-10), but that the religious people rejected (Luke 11:39-44; 18:9-14).

The First Disciples Are Called

Matt. 4:18-22

Demons Are Cast Out

Luke 4:31-37

²¹*x* Then they went into Capernaum, and immediately on the Sabbath He entered the ^ysynagogue and taught. ²²*z* And they were astonished at His teaching, for He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

²³ Now there was a man in their synagogue with an ^aunclean spirit. And he cried out, ²⁴ saying, “Let us alone! ^b What have we to do with You, Jesus of Nazareth? Did You come to destroy us? I ^c know who You are—the ^d Holy One of God!”

²⁵ But Jesus ^e rebuked him, saying, ⁸ “Be quiet, and come out of him!” ²⁶ And when the unclean spirit ^f had convulsed him and cried out with a loud voice, he came out of him. ²⁷ Then they were all amazed, so that they questioned among themselves, saying, ⁹ “What is this? What new ⁱ doctrine is this? For with authority He commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey Him.” ²⁸ And immediately His ^j fame spread throughout all the region around Galilee.

Peter's Mother-in-Law Is Healed

Matt. 8:14, 15; Luke 4:38, 39

1:12 Mark declares that the Spirit drove Christ into the wilderness. The verb used for drove was frequently used to describe Christ's expulsion of demons and appears two other times in this chapter (vv. 34, 39).

1:13 Mark introduces an event of conflict to seize his readers' attention. Being tempted by Satan is something that all believers face, but Jesus triumphed completely over his adversary. Mark alone mentions the angels who were ministering to Christ through the 40 days.

1:14 Mark begins his account of Christ's ministry with events after John was put in prison, as do the other synoptic Gospel writers. John is the only writer who informs us of a number of events that took place before John the Baptist's imprisonment (John 3:24).

1:15 Jesus proclaimed the kingdom of God. It was the subject of much OT prophecy, and the theme was familiar to Jesus' listeners. Repent, and believe are both acts of faith. When a person accepts the only true and worthy object of faith, that person readily turns from inferior substitutes.

1:16 Simon and Andrew had been disciples of John the Baptist. They had known Jesus (see John 1:35–42), but were now being called to a lifetime of service.

1:17 Jesus called fishermen, hardworking and industrious people, to perform the most important task on earth: being fishers of men. Jesus characteristically used figures of speech that his listeners would readily understand.

1:19 James . . . John: The scenes of vv. 16–20 are very colorful. Simon and Andrew are fishing when we encounter them; James and John are mending their nets. Such details indicate the testimony of an eyewitness, probably Peter.

1:21 Capernaum, now in ruins, sits beside the northern edge of the Sea of Galilee, a pear-shaped freshwater lake eight miles wide and 12 miles long. The town's name means “Village of Nahum,” but it was not the Nahum of the OT. Capernaum was Christ's ministry “headquarters” and is mentioned 22 times in the Gospels. By contrast, only one recorded event during Christ's ministry occurred at Nazareth (Luke 4:16). The ruins of a synagogue at Capernaum, just a few feet from the water's edge, date from the second to fourth century A.D.

1:22 Forty-two percent of Mark's verses contain some mention of teaching. Mark, however, omits most of Jesus' main discourses to emphasize His mighty works as the Servant Son of God. astonished at His teaching: Christ's teaching differed from that of scribes and Pharisees because He did not lean on the wisdom of other teachers and rabbis. His authority came from Himself.

1:24, 25 The demon cried out let us alone, not because it was speaking for other demons in the man (as was the case in 5:1–20), but because Jesus was a threat to all demons. Jesus constantly confronted demons and about 20 percent of the approximately 35 miracles recorded about Jesus involved helping those troubled by demons. The demon acknowledged Jesus as the Holy One of God, but Jesus refused the testimony from such a disreputable source.

1:26, 27 unclean spirit: This is another term for demon.

1:28 Mark notes the extent of recognition this great miracle brought Jesus by saying His fame spread throughout all the region. Mark creates suspense by contrasting the people who received Christ with the Pharisees and rulers who worked to bring about His death. The sad truth remains that often the religious of the world do more to keep people from Jesus Christ than most worldly atheists. But the gospel is not religion. It is Good News that can free even the most horrible sinner.

A Leper Is Cleansed

Matt. 8:1-4; Luke 5:12-16

⁴¹ Then Jesus, moved with ^u compassion, stretched out His hand and touched him, and said to him, “I am willing; be cleansed.” ⁴² As soon as He had spoken, ^v immediately the leprosy left him, and he was cleansed. ⁴³ And He strictly warned him and sent him away at once, ⁴⁴ and said to him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; but go your way, show yourself

1:31 Jesus completely healed Simon Peter’s mother-in-law. Not only did the fever leave, but her strength was renewed so that she served Jesus and His followers.

1:35 The tense of the verb prayed indicates a continued action, not just a brief moment. Jesus’ prayer life was successful because it was planned, private, and prolonged. He got up early enough, got far enough away, and stayed at it long enough.

1:37, 38 Jesus’ fame spread quickly, and the disciples’ concern is evident in the statement everyone is looking for You. Refusing a comfortable existence, Jesus took seriously his mission to reach the next towns. He came to preach and to proclaim God’s message. for this purpose: Christ modeled singleness of purpose. He would not let anything distract Him.

1:41 Jesus was moved with compassion. He not only healed but touched the leper. How often do we see the need but remain unmoved and uninvolved? Scripture has over 400 passages admonishing us to care for the poor (see 8:2; Deut. 15:7–11).

1:44 After healing the leper, Jesus commanded him to say nothing to anyone. His demand for silence has several plausible explanations. (1) The report of Jesus’ healing the man may have prejudiced

Baptism in the Bible

Mark begins his account of Jesus’ ministry by describing devout Israelites streaming out to the Jordan River to be baptized by John. Here is a summary of the subject of baptism in the Scriptures:

Etymology	The word baptism comes from the Greek verb baptizo meaning “to dip, immerse, submerge.”
Definition	Baptism is a sacred rite that signifies purification, initiation, or identification of an individual with a leader, group, or teaching.
The Different Types of Baptism in the Scriptures	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Jewish baptism: a ceremonial cleansing prescribed for both people and articles (7:3; see Ex. 19:10–14; Lev. 8:6; Heb. 9:10). • John’s baptism: a preparatory act in which Jews expressed their belief in the imminent coming of the Messiah and their desire to turn away from sin and live righteous lives (1:4–8). • Jesus’ baptism: an act of ceremonial righteousness. By being baptized, Christ was not admitting His sinfulness, as those who submitted to John’s baptism were. Instead through baptism, Christ was consecrating Himself to His ministry (1:9–11). • Spirit baptism: the supernatural work of the Holy Spirit by which believers are joined to the body of Christ (Rom. 6:3, 4; 1 Cor. 12:13; Gal. 3:26, 27; Eph. 4:5; Col. 2:9–12). • Christian baptism: a ceremonial act instituted by Christ (Matt. 28:19) and practiced by the apostles (Acts 2:38) that depicts a believer’s union and identification with Christ in his death, burial, and resurrection. • Baptism by fire: a possible reference either to the judgment at the Second Coming or to the coming of the Spirit at Pentecost (Matt. 3:9–12; Luke 3:16, 17).
Old Testament Types	The New Testament writers point to several events in the Old Testament that foreshadow baptism as commanded by Christ. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Noah coming through the waters of the Flood (1 Pet. 3:17–22). • The Israelites’ crossing of the Red Sea (1 Cor. 10:1, 2).

to the priest, and offer for your cleansing those things ^wwhich Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.”

^{45x} However, he went out and began to proclaim it freely, and to spread the matter, so that Jesus could no longer openly enter the city, but was outside in deserted places; ^yand they came to Him from every direction.

A Paralytic Is Healed

Matt. 9:1-8; Luke 5:17-26

2 And again ^aHe entered Capernaum after some days, and it was heard that He was in the house. ²¹ Immediately many gathered together, so that there was no longer room to receive them, not even near the door. And He preached the word to them. ³ Then they came to Him, bringing a ^bparalytic who was carried by four men. ⁴ And when they could not come near Him because of the crowd, they uncovered the roof where He was. So when they had broken through, they let down the bed on which the paralytic was lying.

⁵ When Jesus saw their faith, He said to the paralytic, “Son, your sins are forgiven you.”

⁸ But immediately, when Jesus perceived in His spirit that they reasoned thus within themselves, He said to them,

Call of Matthew

Matt. 9:9-13; Luke 5:27-32

^{13f} Then He went out again by the sea; and all the multitude came to Him, and He taught them. ^{14g} As He passed by, He saw Levi the son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax office. And He said to him, ^h “Follow Me.” So he arose and ⁱfollowed Him.

^{15j} Now it happened, as He was dining in Levi’s house, that many tax collectors and sinners also sat together with Jesus and His disciples; for there were many, and they followed Him. ¹⁶ And when the scribes ³and Pharisees saw Him eating with the tax collectors and sinners, they said to His disciples, “How is it that He eats and drinks with tax collectors and sinners?”

¹⁷ When Jesus heard it, He said to them, ^k “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners, ⁴to repentance.”

the priest who needed to pronounce him clean. (2) Jesus did not want to be known primarily as a miracle worker, so He often commanded those who received His healing to remain quiet. (3) The man’s testimony would possibly have hastened the confrontation between Jesus and the religious leaders.

1:45 The cleansed leper did not obey Jesus’ simple injunction to keep quiet. As a result, Jesus had to remain in deserted places because the crowds swarmed to Him.

2:1–28 Mark’s first chapter establishes Jesus as a popular figure who experiences great success. Chapters 2 and 3 demonstrate rising opposition to His mission and teaching and suggest more drama and suspense to come.

2:2 Mark is largely a record of Christ’s actions, but what Jesus said is not neglected. Here he describes how Jesus preached the word, the message of the coming kingdom.

2:4 Many in the crowd may have come expecting to see healings and miracles. The throng blocked entrance into the already packed room. The determination of the men is seen in the fact that they uncovered the roof over the room where Jesus was preaching. The roof was probably flat and constructed of tiles laid one on another.

2:5 their faith: Not only did the four men have faith, but the paralytic himself had it too. When Jesus announced to him, your sins are forgiven, He was implicitly acknowledging the paralytic’s trust that He was the Messiah.

2:6, 7 Mark notes the opposition of the scribes, who under their breath accused Jesus of blasphemy. In Christ’s day the scribes were commonly called lawyers.

2:9–11 Jesus asked the which is easier question to demonstrate the truth of His claim to forgive the man’s sins—something only God can accomplish. Anyone could assert the ability to forgive sins, since there was no earthly way of confirming the statement. But to say arise, take up your bed and walk to a paralytic could be tested immediately by whether he walked or not. By healing the paralytic, Jesus made His pronouncement of forgiveness far more credible. Son of Man is a term regularly used for the Messiah (see 8:31; Dan. 7:13; Mark 8:31).

2:12 all were amazed and glorified God: The crowd’s reaction showed that they understood the significance of Jesus’ miracle. It is possible that some scribes and Pharisees joined in the acclamation. But permanent, life-changing faith is what Christ sought, not temporary adoration from the crowd.

2:13 Jesus regularly taught the multitudes in retreat settings. This is indicated by the continuous tense of the verbs used here: They kept on coming, and Jesus kept on teaching.

2:14 Levi, also called Matthew (Matt. 9:9; 10:3), was Jewish, but he collected taxes for Rome. The Jews hated tax collectors. They had a reputation for taking more than they needed in order to add to their own wealth.

2:17 In this instance Jesus was speaking tongue-in-cheek when He used the word righteous. None are righteous, though some, such as the Pharisees, fancied themselves as such. Instead, Christ came to call sinners to repentance. Jesus did not condone the activities of sinners, but required repentance—a change of mind that recognizes the need of a Savior and recognizes Jesus Christ as the only Savior.

Parable of Cloth and Wineskins

¹⁸The disciples of John and of the Pharisees were fasting. Then they came and said to Him, “Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but Your disciples do not fast?”

¹⁹And Jesus said to them, “Can the ⁵friends of the bridegroom fast while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast. ²⁰But the days will come when the bridegroom will be ^mtaken away from them, and then they will fast in those days. ²¹No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old garment; or else the new piece pulls away from the old, and the tear is made worse. ²²And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; or else the new wine bursts the wineskins, the wine is spilled, and the wineskins are ruined. But new wine must be put into new wineskins.”

Controversy over Sabbath-Work

Matt. 12:1-8; Luke 6:1-5

Controversy over Sabbath-Healing

Matt 12:9-13; Luke 6:6-10

³And ^uHe entered the synagogue again, and a man was there who had a withered hand. ²So they ^bwatched Him closely, whether He would ^cheal him on the Sabbath, so that they might ¹accuse Him. ³And He said to the man who had the withered hand, ²“Step forward.” ⁴Then He said to them, “Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save life or to kill?” But they kept silent. ⁵And when He had looked around at them with anger, being grieved by the ^dhardness of their hearts, He said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.” And he stretched ⁱit out, and his hand was restored ³as whole as the other.

Pharisees Counsel to Destroy Jesus

Matt. 12:14-16; Luke 6:11

⁶Then the Pharisees went out and immediately plotted with ^fthe Herodians against Him, how they might destroy Him.

⁷But Jesus withdrew with His disciples to the sea. And a great multitude from Galilee followed Him, ^gand from Judea ⁸and Jerusalem and Idumea and beyond the Jordan; and those from Tyre

2:18 fast: Jesus was not against fasting, if properly observed. He gave guidelines for fasting in the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 6:16–18). Here, the Pharisees’ fasting, perhaps twice each week (Luke 18:12), is contrasted with Jesus’ feasting, probably at Levi’s house.

2:20 Taken away from them may be a hint of Jesus’ coming departure (John 14:19, 20; 16:5). After His crucifixion, Jesus’ disciples will fast, perhaps figuratively in the sense of sorrowing over His loss.

2:21, 22 Mark records only four of Jesus’ parables—two of which he includes here. The comparison implies that the newness of His message, and of the new covenant to follow, cannot fit into the old molds of Judaism. The OT was preparation for the NT (Gal. 3:19–25).

2:23 Ripe grain can be eaten whole and is both tasty and nutritious. Plucking bits of grain from another’s field for sustenance was permitted under Mosaic law (Deut. 23:25).

2:24 The point to the Pharisees’ accusation against Jesus and His disciples was that they had performed work on the Sabbath, but their charge was dubious. The act of plucking grain should not be confused with Sabbath work condemned in the law (see Ex. 31:15). This incident is further proof of rising opposition to Jesus’ ministry. 2:25, 26 Part of Jesus’ defense was to recall the story of David’s eating the showbread from the tabernacle. Since that bread was intended for the priests, it was not lawful for others to eat.

2:27, 28 Jesus does not declare directly the innocence of either David or His disciples, but instead reminds His critics of the meaning of the Sabbath for humans and His own Lordship over it.

3:2 The Sabbath controversy continued as Jesus visited the synagogue. The Pharisees (see 3:6), watched Him closely, not to hear the words of life but to accuse Him.

3:4 Christ put the meaning of the Sabbath to the test. Certainly it was more consistent with the intention of the law to restore this man’s afflicted hand, even on the Sabbath, than to destroy his hopes for the sake of keeping human tradition. The Pharisees did not respond, for they knew that they would condemn themselves.

3:5 It is possible, as Paul exhorts, to be angry and not sin (Eph. 4:26). Jesus demonstrated this righteous anger. He was grieved with sin but did not sin Himself by retaliating or losing control of His emotions.

3:6 The Pharisees were religious experts who should have led the people in righteousness. Instead, they plotted Jesus’ death with the Herodians, their bitter enemies. They were willing to set aside differences to destroy a common foe. The Herodians were Jews who supported Rome and the Herods in particular. Herod Antipas, a son of Herod the Great, ruled Galilee during the same time that Pilate served as Roman governor over Judea and Samaria.

3:7 Because of this plot against His life, Jesus withdrew with the disciples from the area. Still crowds flocked to Him from north (Galilee), south (Judea), and beyond.

3:8 Idumea (the Edom of the OT), the birthplace of Herod the Great, was south of Judea. Beyond the Jordan refers to the cities on the east side of the Jordan River (10:1). Tyre and Sidon (Phoenicia in the OT), both on the Lebanese coast, were also cities Jesus visited during His earthly ministry (7:24) and mentioned in His teachings (Matt. 11:21, 22).

Jerusalem During the Ministry of Jesus

Herod the Great (reigned 37–4 B.C.) rebuilt the temple and its surrounding walls and also built a palace, a fortress, a theater, and a hippodrome (stadium) for horse and chariot races. He brought the city to the zenith of its architectural beauty and Roman cultural expression. This became Jerusalem in the time of Jesus.

1 The "FIRST WALL," so named by Josephus, encircled the city during the Hasmonean period, which began in 167 B.C. After the revolt led by Judas Maccabeus in 167, Jerusalem expanded steadily in a period of independence under its own Jewish kings.

2 The "SECOND WALL" was built by Herod the Great or by earlier Hasmonean kings. Precise location is difficult to determine. This wall was put up around a market area in a valley, protecting it from raiding and looting, but was of questionable military value. At its eastern end, however, Herod built a military barracks (Antonia Fortress).

3 The "THIRD WALL" (shown with red line) was begun by Herod Agrippa I between A.D. 41 and 44 to enclose the growing northern suburbs, but the work was apparently stopped. Its construction was resumed, in haste, only after the First Jewish Revolt broke out in A.D. 66.

7 Archaeological excavations have revealed a monumental stairway and the continuation of Tyropoeon Street, which lies along the valley called "Valley of the Cheesemon-gers" by Josephus.

8 The Siloam aqueduct-tunnel, 1,749' long, was cut through solid bedrock, was 5'11" high (average) and followed an "S" shaped course made necessary by engineering difficulties. It was dug by King Hezekiah and provided water during King Sennacherib's threat to lay siege to the city in 701 B.C. (2 Chr. 32:30). Water flows through it to this very day.

3:11, 12 Some unfortunate persons who met Christ were possessed by unclean spirits, or demons. These spirit beings have no bodily existence but frequently seek to inhabit humans or even animals. Mark says they fell down before Him, most likely by forcing to the ground the person they possessed. Jesus rebuked the demons who proclaimed You are the Son of God not because the demons incorrectly identified Jesus, but because their testimony was untrustworthy.
3:13 Jesus had a large group of followers. John 6:66 indicates that even after the Twelve were appointed, He still had a large and continual following. Luke 10:1 notes that later Jesus sent out an additional 70 disciples.
3:14 These twelve were Jesus’ apostles—a chosen group sent out to fulfill a particular mission.
3:15 Christ gave power or authority to these twelve apostles (Matt.

10:1–4). The apostle Paul called this authority “the signs of an apostle” (2 Cor. 12:12). Christ and the apostles authenticated their ministry through signs, miracles, and wonders (Heb. 2:3, 4).
3:16–19 Jesus gave Peter a new name because it was the Jewish custom to rename someone who had experienced a life-changing event. This renaming of the disciples has similarities to the renaming of Abram (Gen. 17:3–5) and of Saul (Acts 9). Jesus no doubt sent out His apostles in pairs as He did the 70 disciples (6:7–13; Matt. 10:5–15; Luke 9:1–6). This explains the listing of the apostles’ names in groups of two. The coupling is especially evident in Matt. 10:1–4: Peter and Andrew, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew (Nathanael), Matthew and Thomas, James (son of Alphaeus) and Thaddaeus, and Simon the Cananite and Judas. Even though Judas Iscariot had a close partner in the work for three years, no one yet suspected he would be the one who also betrayed Him.

The Twelve Apostles

Jesus fulfilled hundreds of Old Testament prophecies. Many of these prophecies involved the circumstances surrounding His birth. Below is a list of several such prophecies. Note the irrefutable similarities between the Old Testament predictions and their New Testament fulfillment.

Matthew 10:2–4	Mark 3:16–19	Luke 6:14–16	Acts 1:13
Simon Peter	Simon Peter	Simon Peter	Simon Peter
Andrew	James	Andrew	John
James	John	James	James
John	Andrew	John	Andrew
Philip	Philip	Philip	Philip
Bartholomew	Bartholomew	Bartholomew	Thomas
Thomas	Matthew	Matthew	Bartholomew
Matthew	Thomas	Thomas	Matthew
James (of Alphaeus)	James (of Alphaeus)	James (of Alphaeus)	James (of Alphaeus)
Thaddaeus ¹	Thaddaeus	Simon (the Zealot)	Simon (the Zealot)
Simon (the Cananite) ²	Simon (the Cananite)	Judas (of James)	Judas (of James)
Judas Iscariot	Judas Iscariot	Judas Iscariot

² “The Cananite” is a transliteration which probably represents an Aramaic word meaning “Zealous.”
It is interesting that all four lists begin with Simon Peter and end with Judas Iscariot (except the Acts 1 list, for Judas had already killed himself). Also, the names would appear to be in groups of four. Peter, Andrew, James, and John are always in the first group—though not always in that order—and Philip, Bartholomew, Thomas, and Matthew are in the second group in all four lists.
In all four lists, Peter’s name heads the first group, Philip heads the second, and James (of Alphaeus) heads the third. John’s Gospel does not contain a listing of the apostles.

John the brother of James, to whom He gave the name Boanerges, that is, “Sons of Thunder”; ¹⁸ Andrew, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, Thaddaeus, Simon the Cananite; ¹⁹ and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed Him. And they went into a house.

Opposition of His Friends

²⁰ Then the multitude came together again, ²¹ so that they could not so much as eat bread. ²² But when His own people heard about this, they went out to lay hold of Him, ²³ for they said, “He is out of His mind.”

Scribes Commit the Unpardonable Sin

And then he will plunder his house.

New Relationships Are Defined

Matt. 12:46-50; Luke 8:19-21

³¹ ^y Then His brothers and His mother came, and standing outside they sent to Him, calling Him. ³² And a multitude was sitting around Him; and they said to Him, “Look, Your mother and Your brothers ^z are outside seeking You.”

Parable of the Soils

4 And ^a again He began to teach by the sea. And a great multitude was gathered to Him, so that He got into a boat and sat in it on the sea; and the whole multitude was on the land facing the sea. ² Then He taught them many things by parables, ^b and said to them in His teaching:

³ “Listen! Behold, a sower went out to sow. ⁴ And it happened, as he sowed, that some seed fell by the wayside, and the birds ¹ of the air came and devoured it. ⁵ Some fell on stony ground, where it did not have much earth; and immediately it sprang up because it had no depth of earth. ⁶ But when the sun was up it was scorched, and because it had no root it withered away. ⁷ And some seed fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up

3:21 Opposition to Jesus came not only from His enemies. Jesus’ own people, no doubt close friends and perhaps even relatives (see vv. 31–35), heard of His teaching and assumed that He was out of His mind.

3:22 The scribes, or teachers of the Jewish law, were more harsh and direct in their assessment of Jesus. They accused Him of being possessed by Beelzebub (literally “Lord of the Flies,” 2 Kin. 1:3), another name for Satan. This false charge demonstrates a hardness of heart and is akin to blaspheming against the Holy Spirit (vv. 28–30). 3:23–26 Jesus’ reply in parables was actually a threefold message that contrasted unity and disunity. Nothing—including Satan’s kingdom—can stand if it is divided.

3:27 Whoever defeats Satan must be stronger than he. Jesus implies that He Himself has come to enter the house of the strong man, Satan, to seize his goods (1 John 3:8).

3:28–30 Assuredly (Gk. amen) indicates the solemnity of Jesus’ declaration. While the prophets cited the authority of the Lord, Christ’s words rest on His own authority. While Jesus does not say that anyone in the crowd has actually committed the sin He describes, He nonetheless stresses the hopelessness of such a condition. Anyone who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit places himself or herself outside the redeeming grace of God. It is apparently not a single act of defiant behavior, but a continued state of opposition entered into willfully. The tense of they said indicates a continued action, not a onetime event. The words and works of Christ were spoken and performed by the power of the Holy Spirit. To attribute them to Satan is to call the work of heaven a work of hell. For such perverse belief there is no remedy.

3:31 Opposition arose from Jesus’ own immediate family, His brothers and His mother. We are not told precisely what they wanted to say, but it likely involved a concern for Jesus’ safety or reputation, since He was becoming widely known as a preaching prophet (1:14, 15) and a worker of miracles (1:31; 2:12).

3:35 Whoever does the will of God expresses a spiritual allegiance that goes beyond loyalty to one’s biological family. Spiritual kinship is determined not by blood or race but by obedience to God.

4:2 Parables go beyond mere entertainment or moralizing; they teach vital spiritual truths about the kingdom of God.

4:3–8 The story Jesus told was easy enough to comprehend. During the planting season, it was common to see men scattering seed by hand over their small fields. They cast the seeds over the kinds of soil Jesus describes—smooth pathways running through fields, rough terrain that hid large rocks just beneath the surface, fields overgrown with weeds, and excellent, rich soil here and there. The point of the parable is that the condition of the soil determines the potential for growth. The principle is true for Christians and non-Christians alike. Those who have become complacent and lackadaisical are not likely to receive the Word with benefit (James 1:22–25).

and choked it, and it yielded no ²crop. ⁸But other seed fell on good ground and yielded a crop that sprang up, increased and produced: some thirtyfold, some sixty, and some a hundred.”

^{10c}But when He was alone, those around Him with the twelve asked Him about the parable. ¹¹And He said to them, “To you it has been given to ^dknow the ⁴mystery of the kingdom of God; but to ^ethose who are outside, all things come in parables, ¹²so that

Afterward, when tribulation or persecution arises for the word’s sake, immediately they stumble. ¹⁸Now these are the ones sown among thorns; they are the ones who hear the word, ¹⁹and the ^hcares of this world, ⁱthe deceitfulness of riches, and the desires for other things entering in choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful. ²⁰But these 4:11 A mystery in Scripture is a truth God has revealed or will reveal at the proper time (Rom. 16:25, 26). Jesus apparently used parables for several reasons. First, they are interesting and grab the listener’s attention. Second, such stories are easily remembered. Third, they reveal truth to those who are ready spiritually to receive it. Fourth, they conceal truth from those who oppose Christ’s message. Frequently, Jesus’ opponents failed to understand the lessons because of their own spiritual blindness. See, for example, Matt. 21:45, 46.

4:12 Not all will understand the teaching of the kingdom. Compare this statement of Jesus with Is. 6:9, 10; 43:8.

4:15 The pathway soil is trampled, hard, and unresponsive. The birds (v. 4) represent Satan who quickly takes away the word that was sown in their hearts. Elsewhere we are told that Satan can blind the minds of those who do not believe (2 Cor. 4:4). The fuller rendering of Jesus’ explanation in Matthew’s parallel account (Matt. 13:19) says that this person “does not understand” and then the “wicked one comes and snatches away what was sown in his heart.”

4:16, 17 The shallow soil overlaying the stony ground represents those who seem eager to receive Christ’s message but whose commitment is superficial.

4:18, 19 The thorn-infested soil represents those who hear the word but lack single-mindedness and become completely unproductive. Worry (the normal cares of this world) and pleasure-seeking (deceitfulness of riches and the pursuit of other things) are both capable of producing a deadly spiritual apathy.

4:20 Only one soil produces fruit. Christ emphasizes the necessity to hear the word, accept it, and bear fruit. Such a person recognizes God’s call, determines to follow it, and experiences a profound transformation.

Parables: More than Stories

Although Jesus lived among a story-telling people, His approach to instruction was still unusual. His stories were memorable, but they were not transparent. People heard them but did not necessarily understand them. They are clearer to us because of the apostle Paul’s writings, but few of the first hearers of the parables understood them. Even though “with many such parables He spoke the word” (4:33), at one point the disciples asked in frustration, “Why do You speak to [the people] in parables?” (Matt. 13:10). The disciples did not grasp the stories any better than the rest of the crowd.

Jesus’ answer to the disciples reveals much about the purpose of His teaching. He quoted Isaiah 6:9, 10 to demonstrate that those with physical sight and hearing may still not be able to perceive the truths presented to them. For Isaiah, the “dullness” or hardness of the human heart directly affects spiritual insight and understanding. People need to soften their hearts, humble themselves before God, and honestly seek the truth in order to find it.

Jesus’ stories are like wrapped gifts. The packaging of the story can either distract or captivate. But unless the package is opened, the gift itself remains unseen. Likewise unless one seeks the core of the parable—its truth and application—the lessons will remain hidden. Yet when discovered, these lessons prove extremely valuable. The testimony of millions of changed lives over two thousand years attests to this fact.

When unwrapped, Jesus’ stories include powerful multiple applications. The same parable can strike people in different ways. For example, the parable of the Soils (Mark 4:1–20) may be “heard” by at least four distinct people depending on their identification with one of the soils. The parable of the Lost Son (Luke 15:11–32) will affect a father in quite a different way than it does a rebellious younger son or a jealous older brother.

When Jesus taught in Jerusalem during His last week, His parables focused on the acceptance or rejection of Him. This time even the priests and the Pharisees “perceived that He was speaking of them” (Matt. 21:45). They were stung by Jesus’ parables, and they despised Him and His message. But they were unwilling to give up their pride, learn at Jesus’ feet, and seek the forgiveness they so desperately needed. They sensed they would not appreciate what they found if they unwrapped the parables, so they refused to seek the truth any further. In doing this, they perfectly conformed to Isaiah’s description of a people with dull hearts, hardness of hearing, and closed eyes. These religious leaders who should have been leading the people into the truth were the very ones who were the most blind to it.

²¹ ^k Also He said to them, “Is a lamp brought to be put under a basket or under a bed? Is it not to be set on a lampstand? ²² ^l For there is nothing hidden which will not be revealed, nor has anything been kept secret but that it should come to light. ²³ ^m If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear.”

³³ ^u And with many such parables He spoke the word to them as they were able to hear it. ³⁴ But without a parable He did not speak to them. And when they were alone, ^v He explained all things to His disciples.

The Sea Is Stilled

³⁵ ^w On the same day, when evening had come, He said to them, “Let us cross over to the other side.” ³⁶ Now when they had left the multitude, they took Him along in the boat as He was. And other little boats were also with Him. ³⁷ And a great windstorm arose, and the waves beat into the boat, so that it was already filling. ³⁸ But He was in the stern, asleep on a pillow. And they awoke Him and said to Him, ^x “Teacher, ^y do You not care that we are perishing?”

³⁹ Then He arose and ^z rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, ^a “Peace, ⁷ be still!” And the wind ceased and there was a great calm. ⁴⁰ But He said to them, “Why are you so fearful? ^b How ⁸ is it that you have no faith?” ⁴¹ And they feared exceedingly, and said to one another, “Who can this be, that even the wind and the sea obey Him!”

4:21–23 Jesus’ lesson of the lamp, a small clay vessel that burned a wick set in olive oil, is that light reveals what it glows on. Like the lamp, Jesus’ teachings reveal the motives of the human heart.

4:24 To those who hear—who receive God’s Good News—more spiritual truth will be given. A growing believer must be receptive and teachable.

4:25 Whoever has, meaning those who possess spiritual life, will continue to learn and grow. Whoever does not have spiritual life will lose even what little desire for God he or she seems to have.

4:26–29 Plants develop in a complex, intricate process that humans still do not fully understand even two thousand years after Jesus spoke these words. Yet plants grow and bear fruit and seeds just the same. God’s kingdom likewise is growing, although we do not understand all that is happening. This parable, which appears only in Mark’s Gospel, presents God’s kingdom in brief, from first sowing to final reaping.

4:30–32 A mustard seed is much smaller than a kernel of corn or a grain of wheat, yet its growth is more spectacular, reaching a height of ten to twelve feet. The point is the comparatively large result from such a humble and insignificant beginning. The kingdom that Jesus came to announce drew little support during His life but will find complete fulfillment when He returns. The mention of birds making their nest under its shade (v. 32) should not be confused with the birds in the parable of the sower (4:4).

Most likely, these birds illustrate how large the mustard plant has become.

4:35 To cross over the Sea of Galilee, a lake only eight miles wide, would not seem difficult at first glance. Yet its unique geography produces a greatly varying climate. The lake is situated seven hundred feet below sea level and is surrounded by mountains that rise three to four thousand feet above sea level on the west, north, and east. Tropical conditions prevail around the lake’s surface, where even bananas are grown today. Yet the higher elevations can produce chilling night air.

4:37 It is not unusual even today for a sudden great windstorm to appear on the Sea of Galilee during the evening hours. The warm tropical air from the lake’s surface rises and meets the colder air from the nearby hills. The resulting turbulence stirs up great waves which make boating extremely treacherous.

4:38 The mention of Jesus being asleep on a pillow shows His true humanity. He was fully human and needed food and rest just as all people do.

4:39 Jesus’ command over the wind and the sea demonstrates His full and complete deity. Only God the Creator can calm wind and sea.

4:41 Mark uses the disciples’ question “Who can this be?” to evoke a similar response in the minds of his readers. Mark relates the works and words of the one he calls “Jesus Christ, the Son of God” (1:1).

Demons Are Cast into Swine

5 Then ^athey came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the ¹Gadarenes. ²And when He had come out of the boat, immediately there met Him out of the tombs a man with an ^bunclean spirit, ³who had his dwelling among the tombs; and no one could bind ²him, not even with chains, ⁴because he had often been bound with shackles and chains. And the chains had been pulled apart by him, and the shackles broken in pieces; neither could anyone tame him. ⁵And always, night and day, he was in the mountains and in the tombs, crying out and cutting himself with stones.

⁶When he saw Jesus from afar, he ran and worshiped Him. ⁷And he cried out with a loud voice and said, “What have I to do with You, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I ^cimplore³ You by God that You do not torment me.”

⁸For He said to him, ^d“Come out of the man, unclean spirit!” ⁹Then He asked him, “What is your name?”

And he answered, saying, “My name is Legion; for we are many.” ¹⁰Also he begged Him earnestly that He would not send them out of the country.

¹¹Now a large herd of ^eswine was feeding there near the mountains. ¹²So all the demons begged Him, saying, “Send us to the swine, that we may enter them.” ¹³And ⁴at once Jesus gave them permission. Then the unclean spirits went out and entered the swine (there were about two thousand); and the herd ran violently down the steep place into the sea, and drowned in the sea.

¹⁴So those who fed the swine fled, and

Jairus Pleads for His Daughter

Matt. 9:18, 19; Luke 8:41, 42

²¹^mNow when Jesus had crossed over again by boat to the other side, a great multitude gathered to Him; and He was by the sea. ²²ⁿAnd behold, one of the rulers of the synagogue came, Jairus by name. And when he saw Him, he fell at His feet ²³and begged Him earnestly, saying, “My little daughter lies at the point of death. Come and ^olay Your hands on her, that she may be healed, and she will live.” ²⁴So Jesus went with him, and a great multitude followed Him and thronged Him.

A Woman with Issue Is Healed

Matt. 9:20-22; Luke 8:43-48

²⁵Now a certain woman ^phad a flow

5:1—8:30 In the major section which begins here, Mark relates incidents of belief and unbelief, climaxing with Peter’s confession of Jesus’ deity.

5:1 The country of the Gadarenes is on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee. The form of the name varies; see the textual notes at 5:1; Matt. 8:28; Luke 8:26, 37.

5:2 Apparently, right after leaving the boat and perhaps before ascending the nearby hills, Jesus was encountered by a man with an unclean spirit (1:23). The man was demon possessed, as v. 15 clearly states.

5:12, 13 It is not certain that the demons needed permission to leave the man and enter the swine, but they may have been trying to forestall permanent bondage by Christ. (The bottomless pit of Rev. 9:1 may be such a place of imprisonment.) Jesus bears no responsibility for the action the demons took; He did not direct them to run the swine into the sea. Even today, two thousand hogs is a very large herd. Their monetary value could easily have been worth a quarter of a million dollars in today’s economy—a sizable loss for the owners.

5:14 The OT forbade Jews to have any contact with swine (Lev. 11:7, 8). However, the owners of these swine might not have been Jewish, since this area was inhabited largely by Gentiles (see 5:20).

5:17–20 Jesus was not well received in this region. His presence had cost financial loss to some, although it meant liberation to the demoniac. Jesus could have healed and saved in that region, but He was turned away by their fearful citizens. Yet He left a solid witness behind. All the people marveled when they heard what Jesus had done for him. Jesus later made an excursion through the Decapolis region (7:31). Decapolis literally means “ten cities.” This largely Gentile, Greek-speaking area was an important strategic link in Rome’s military defense.

5:21 Jesus’ crossing by boat to the other side brought Him to Capernaum, although Mark does not mention that here.

5:22 Jairus, one of the rulers of the synagogue, was a lay leader charged with supervising services at the synagogue.

5:23 Aware of Jesus’ miraculous powers, Jairus approached Jesus with perhaps the greatest need he had ever faced. He knew that Jesus could meet his need. However, he believed—falsely, it turned out—that Jesus had to actually touch his desperately ill daughter before she could be healed. Yet his faith was unshakable.

5:24–34 Intertwined with the incident of Jairus’s daughter is the story of the woman with a persistent blood flow, perhaps a severe menstrual disorder. As a result, she was considered unclean, and anyone she touched would become unclean ceremonially for one day (Lev. 15:25–27). Still, she entered the crowd to touch Jesus.

of blood for twelve years, ²⁶and had suffered many things from many physicians. She had spent all that she had and was no better, but rather grew worse. ²⁷When she heard about Jesus, she came behind Him in the crowd and ^qtouched His garment. ²⁸For she said, “If only I may touch His clothes, I shall be made well.” ²⁹Immediately the fountain of her blood was dried up, and she felt in her body that she was healed of the ⁶affliction. ³⁰And Jesus, immediately knowing

5:26 Mark is not complimentary toward the physicians who had treated the woman, noting that she had spent all that she had. Luke, a physician himself, omits Mark’s added detail that her condition actually grew worse.
5:27 The woman touched His garment. Perhaps she had heard of another who was healed in a similar way. She must have feared having her embarrassing condition revealed to the crowd.
5:28 Her faith motivates her to act.

5:29, 30 The word immediately is used twice in this context. Both the woman and Jesus simultaneously knew what had happened. The woman had no idea that Jesus had consciously healed her. While she sought to disappear into the crowd, Jesus turned and asked Who touched My clothes? He wanted to correct any mistaken notion she may have had about her healing. It was not any magical quality of His clothing, but His divine will that had made her well.

Jesus’ Miracles in Mark
Mark dedicates more of his account to Jesus’ miracles than any of the other Gospel writers. For Mark, these miracles were demonstrations of Jesus’ power—His power over disease, the forces of evil, even over nature. Many flocked to Him to be healed and fed. Some wondered who Jesus was. But others followed Him.

⁴⁰And they ridiculed Him. ^zBut when He had put them all outside, He took the father and the mother of the child, and those who were with Him, and entered where the child was lying. ⁴¹Then He took the child by the hand, and said to her, “Talitha, cumi,” which is translated, “Little girl, I say to you, arise.” ⁴²Immediately the girl arose and walked, for she was twelve years of age. And they were ^aovercome with great amazement. ⁴³But ^bHe commanded them strictly that no one should know it, and said that something should be given her to eat.

Jesus Is Rejected at Nazareth

Matt. 13:54-58

6 Then ^aHe went out from there and came to His own country, and His disciples followed Him. ²And when the Sabbath had come, He began to teach in the synagogue. And many hearing Him were ^bastonished, saying, ^c“Where did this Man get these things? And what wisdom is this which is given to Him, that such mighty works are performed by His hands! ³Is this not the carpenter, the Son of Mary, and ^dbrother of James, Joses, Judas, and Simon? And are not His sisters here with us?” So they ^ewere offended at Him.

5:31 No one else was aware that the healing had happened. The disciples became dismayed, perhaps because they were anxious to reach Jairus's home.

5:32 He looked around, or literally, kept on looking around, gazing on the people crowded near Him.

5:33 Jesus' kind manner and tender words must have eased the fear this woman had of being revealed. She stepped forward and told Him the whole truth. Naturally, the time that Jesus took to care for the woman must have worried the already tense disciples.

5:34 Jesus used a tender word, daughter, to address this woman, and He noted that her faith made the difference, for it was correctly placed in Him. Faith itself does not heal; rather, it is the proper object of that faith, Jesus, who heals.

5:35, 36 The implication of the girl's reported death is that her condition is now irreversible and without remedy. Jesus immediately corrects this thought by insisting that Jairus stop being afraid and continue to believe.

5:37 He permits only three disciples to join Him—Peter, James, and John. Note that these same three were the ones permitted to see the Transfiguration (9:2) and who accompanied Jesus for prayer in Gethsemane (14:32, 33).

5:38 Public mourning was loud and boisterous.

5:41 Talitha, cumi is Aramaic.

5:42 That the girl arose indicates that her life had been restored, just as in the case of the dead son of the widow of Nain (Luke 7:15) and of Lazarus who had been dead for four days (John 11:44). All three would die again. Jesus' resurrection, however, was unique. Not only was He restored to life, but His body was transformed so that He would never again have to face death.

5:43 The command to keep the miracle a secret was a temporary measure, for certainly the girl's reappearance could not be hidden very long. Such orders would, however, allow Jesus to exit quietly. Jesus did not want to be known primarily as a miracle worker lest people seek Him for the wrong reasons.

6:1 Jesus now went to minister in His own country, the area where He grew up, around Nazareth.

6:2 The people readily acknowledged both Jesus' wisdom and His mighty works, but with insensitive hearts and spiritual callousness they rejected Jesus' message.

6:3 The fact that Joseph is not mentioned here may indicate that he had died. Mark mentions Jesus' four brothers by name as well as His sisters. One brother, James, did not trust Christ prior to His crucifixion (John 7:5), but seems to have come to faith after Jesus' resurrection (Acts 1:14; 1 Cor. 15:7). He later became the leader of the church in Jerusalem (Acts 15:13; Gal. 1:19) and wrote the Epistle of James. Judas later authored the Book of Jude (Jude 1).

(Gk. pistis) (5:34; 10:52; Matt. 8:10; 15:28; Luke 7:50; 8:48) Strong's #4102

The Greek term means “trust,” or “firm persuasion.” The corresponding verb means “to believe,” as is illustrated by Jesus' word in 5:36 to Jairus: “Do not be afraid; only believe.” To have faith is to relinquish trust in oneself and to put that trust in another. The woman who had the hemorrhage had put her trust in physicians but to no avail. Now she put all her trust in Jesus, believing He could cure her. According to Jesus, it was her faith that made her well. This was a proclamation Jesus made many times (Matt. 8:10; 9:22, 29; 15:28; Luke 7:50; 8:48). The writers of the epistles sometimes use the word pistis to refer to what one believes, the content of faith, God's revelation in the Scripture (see Gal. 1:23).

Sandals

In its simplest form, the sandal was a sole of wood fastened with straps of leather. This is what the disciples wore when they were sent out by Jesus (6:9), and what Peter was told to put on when the angel rescued him from prison (Acts 12:8). All classes of people in Palestine wore sandals—from the very poor to the wealthy. Jews did not wear their sandals indoors; they removed them upon entering the house, and then their feet were washed. Removing one's sandals was also a sign of reverence: Moses was told to do it when God spoke to him from the burning bush (Ex. 3:5). The Jews considered it a very lowly task to carry or to unlouse another person's sandals (John 1:27). Going without sandals was a mark of poverty (Luke 15:22) or a sign of mourning (2 Sam. 13:30; Is. 20:2–4; Ezek. 24:17, 23).

⁴But Jesus said to them, ^f“A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, among his own relatives, and in his own house.” ^{5g}Now He could do no mighty work there, except that He laid His hands on a few sick people and healed them. ⁶And ^hHe marveled because of their unbelief. ⁱThen He went about the villages in a circuit, teaching.

Twelve Are Sent to Serve

^{7j}And He called the twelve to Himself, and began to send them out ^ktwo by two, and gave them power over unclean spirits. ⁸He commanded them to take nothing for the journey except a staff—no bag, no bread, no copper in their money belts—⁹but ^lto wear sandals, and not to put on two tunics.

^{10m}Also He said to them, “In whatever place you enter a house, stay there till you depart from that place. ¹¹ⁿAnd ^lwhoever will not receive you nor hear you, when you depart from there, ^oshake off the dust under your feet as a testimony against them. ²Assuredly, I say to you, it will be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that city!”

¹²So they went out and preached that people should repent. ¹³And they cast out many demons, ^pand anointed with oil many who were sick, and healed them.

John the Baptist Is Murdered

Matt. 14:1–12; Luke 9:7–9

^{14q}Now King Herod heard of Him, for His name had become well known. And he said, “John the Baptist is risen from the dead, and therefore ^rthese powers are at work in him.”

^{15s}Others said, “It is Elijah.” And others said, “It is ³the Prophet, ^tor like one of the prophets.”

^{16u}But when Herod heard, he said, “This is John, whom I beheaded; he has been raised from the dead!” ¹⁷For Herod himself had sent and laid hold of John, and bound him in prison for the sake of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife; for he had married her. ¹⁸Because John had

6:4 A prophet is not without honor except in his own country is a maxim still repeated and still true today. Perhaps others were jealous of Jesus’ popularity and huge following. Their envy even took the form of violence against Christ (see Luke 4:29).

6:8–10 These instructions accompanied the Twelve on their assigned journey, the results of which are reported in Mark 6:30. These rules made for easier travel and encouraged the disciples to trust God for their food and shelter, which faithful Jewish hearers who heeded their teaching would provide.

6:12 That people should repent was part of the apostles’ primary message. Repentance was necessary to cultivate the new life Christ offered.

6:13 Casting out demons and healing the sick would add authority to the apostles’ message (2 Cor. 12:12; Heb. 2:3, 4).

6:14–29 These verses break from the narrative to describe the death of John the Baptist. So alarming was Jesus’ sudden fame that Herod feared that John had risen from the dead. The disciples Jesus had sent out (6:7–13) undoubtedly added to Herod’s worry. It appears that one of Mark’s purposes in describing John’s death was to foreshadow the violent death of Christ Himself and even of some who would follow Him.

6:14 King Herod is Herod Antipas, one of the sons of Herod the Great, the king who tried to kill the baby Jesus (see Matt. 2:1–18). After Herod the Great’s death in 4 B.C., his kingdom was divided between Archelaus, who received Judea and Samaria; Philip, who ruled Iturea and Trachonitis, north and east of Galilee; and Antipas, who controlled Galilee and Perea from 4 B.C. to A.D. 39. Jesus ministered largely in the territory ruled by Antipas.

6:15 This verse demonstrates the contrast in expectations that Israel had for its coming Messiah. It is clear that many did not recognize the divine mission that Jesus was fulfilling.

6:17 The prison where John was kept was at Machaerus, in the hills which overlook the Dead Sea. A complete palace and fortress occupied that site. Herodias was a granddaughter of Herod the Great and the sister of Herod Agrippa I (Acts 12:1–23). She was married to Philip, a half brother of Herod Antipas, but not the Philip of Luke 3:1. Herodias’s first husband was never a ruler. She divorced this Philip in order to marry Herod Antipas. Herod likewise divorced his first wife, the daughter of Aretas IV, king of Arabia (see 2 Cor. 11:32).

6:18 John’s message to Herod was that his divorce was not lawful as grounds for remarriage. John’s declaration could be based on Jesus’ stern words about divorce (10:11, 12) or on Lev. 20:21, which prohibits a man from taking his brother’s wife.

said to Herod, ^v“It is not lawful for you to have your brother’s wife.”

¹⁹Therefore Herodias ⁴held it against him and wanted to kill him, but she could not; ²⁰for Herod ^wfeared John, knowing that he was a just and holy man, and he protected him. And when he heard him, he ⁵did many things, and heard him gladly.

^{21x}Then an opportune day came when Herod ^yon his birthday gave a feast for his nobles, the high officers, and the chief men of Galilee. ²²And when Herodias’ daughter herself came in and danced, and pleased Herod and those who sat with him, the king said to the girl, “Ask me whatever you want, and I will give it to you.” ²³He also swore to her, ^z“Whatever you ask me, I will give you, up to half my kingdom.”

²⁴So she went out and said to her mother, “What shall I ask?”

And she said, “The head of John the Baptist!”

²⁵Immediately she came in with haste to the king and asked, saying, “I want you to give me at once the head of John the Baptist on a platter.”

^{26a} And the king was exceedingly sorry; yet, because of the oaths and because of those who sat with him, he did not want to refuse her. ²⁷Immediately the king sent an executioner and commanded his head to be brought. And he went and beheaded him in prison, ²⁸brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the girl; and the girl gave it to her mother. ²⁹When his disciples heard of it, they came and ^btook away his corpse and laid it in a tomb.

³³ But ⁶the multitudes saw them departing, and many ^gknew Him and ran there on foot from all the cities. They arrived before them and came together to Him. ^{34h} And Jesus, when He came out, saw a great multitude and was moved with compassion for them, because they were like ⁱsheep not having a shepherd. So ^jHe began to teach them many things. ^{35k} When the day was now far spent, His disciples came to Him and said, “This is a deserted place, and already the hour is late. ³⁶Send them away, that they may go into the surrounding country and villages and buy themselves ⁷bread; for they have nothing to eat.”

³⁷ But He answered and said to them, “You give them something to eat.”

And they said to Him, ^l“Shall we go and buy two hundred denarii worth of bread and give them something to eat?”

³⁸ But He said to them, “How many loaves do you have? Go and see.”

And when they found out they said, ^m“Five, and two fish.”

³⁹ Then He ⁿcommanded them to make them all sit down in groups on the green grass. ⁴⁰ So they sat down in ranks, in hundreds and in fifties. ⁴¹ And when He had taken the five loaves and the two fish, He ^olooked up to heaven, ^pblessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to His disciples to set before them; and the two fish He divided among them all. ⁴² So they all ate and were filled. ⁴³ And they

6:22 Herodias’ daughter, named Salome, was still unmarried at this point and danced seductively to please Herod Antipas. She later married Philip the Tetrarch, who ruled Iturea and Trachonitis and is mentioned in Luke 3:1.

6:23 Because she pleased him, Herod Antipas swore to Salome a solemn oath to give her up to half of his kingdom (an expression meaning a large amount but with limits), words that remind us of Xerxes’ promise to Esther (Esth. 5:3, 6). This gesture was no doubt exaggerated, yet Salome seized the opportunity for her mother, Herodias, who hated John the Baptist.

6:27 To keep his oath, Herod dispatched an executioner. Here Mark uses a Latin word, spekoulatora, easily understood by his Roman readers.

6:34 The Gospels record several times that when Jesus saw a need He was moved with compassion (1:41; Ex. 34:6). That compassion led to action, despite an obvious lack of food in this instance.

6:36, 37 The disciples sought to avoid responsibility for the hungry multitude, saying send them away. No doubt they thought they were showing compassion. But Jesus’ reply, You give them some- thing to eat, must have startled them. The Latin word denarii is the plural of denarius, a commonly used silver coin. It was the sum typically paid to a laborer for a day’s work. Thomas calculated it would take the wages of two hundred days’ labor to provide for that multitude.

6:39, 40 Details such as sitting on the green grass, which is possible only in late winter and early spring, and the fact that the groups were counted in hundreds and in fifties are indications that an eyewitness, probably Peter, recounted this story to Mark. John 6:4 informs us that this event occurred prior to the approaching Passover, always celebrated in March or April.

6:41 The tense of the verb gave, used by Mark and Luke (Luke 9:16), suggests that the multiplication of the loaves took place in Jesus’ hands as He continued or kept on giving the bread and fish to the disciples.

6:43 The twelve baskets full of fragments were small baskets commonly carried by travelers (contrast the baskets described in 8:8, which are larger). It is possible to conclude that the leftovers gave each disciple enough food for his own use. When we put the

Now about the fourth watch of the night He came to them, walking on the sea, and ^swould have passed them by. ⁴⁹And when they saw Him walking on the sea, they supposed it was a ^tghost, and cried out; ⁵⁰for they all saw Him and were troubled. But immediately He talked with them and said to them, “^u“Be ¹of good cheer! It is I; do not be ^vafraid.” ⁵¹Then He went up into the boat to them, and the wind ^wceased. And they were greatly ^xamazed in themselves beyond measure, and marveled. ⁵²For ^ythey had not understood about the loaves, because their ^zheart was hardened.

And as many as touched Him were made well.

Pharisees and Defilement

Matt. 15:1-20

⁷ Then ^athe Pharisees and some of the scribes came together to Him, having come from Jerusalem. ²Now ¹when they saw some of His disciples eat bread with defiled, that is, with ^bunwashed hands, ²they found fault. ³For the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat unless they wash their hands ³in a special way, holding the ^ctradition of the elders. ⁴When they come from the marketplace, they do not eat unless they wash. And there are many other things which they have received and hold, like the washing of cups, pitchers, copper vessels, and couches.

⁶He answered and said to them, “Well did Isaiah prophesy of you ^ehypocrites, as it is written:

^f“This people honors Me with their lips, But their heart is far from Me.

will of God first, He will care for our needs (Matt. 6:33; Phil. 4:19) and provide our daily bread.

6:46 Jesus spent several nights in prayer during His ministry. Prayer was a vital part of Christ’s communion with the Father and always preceded and accompanied especially difficult situations. This particular night followed a busy day when solitude was sought but not found.

6:47 In the middle of the sea does not mean the very center of the lake but simply out in the water. They were probably closest to the northern shore.

6:48 The fourth watch lasted from 3 A.M. until 6 A.M. That Jesus would have passed them by does not indicate that He was on His way to somewhere else. He intended to reveal Himself to His disciples in a miraculous manner. He could easily have calmed the waves from shore, but He wanted His disciples to understand His deity and mastery over all nature.

6:49 When the disciples saw Jesus they thought they saw a ghost (an apparition), a sign often interpreted as a foreshadowing of evil, even death.

6:50 Mark omits the added detail of Peter walking on the water to meet Jesus (see Matt. 14:28–31). Mark almost certainly knew of the incident but chose not to describe it for his readers, perhaps to avoid distracting his readers from the central role Christ plays in the account.

6:51 Three miracles are contained in this brief account (vv. 47–51). (1) In the darkness Jesus saw the disciples out in the storm miles away. (2) Jesus walked on the water. (3) Jesus showed complete control over His creation when the wind ceased.

6:53 They had set out for Bethsaida (v. 45) on the northeastern shore, but the storm apparently changed their course. The land of Gennesaret was on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee, just west of Capernaum. It was and still is a fertile agricultural area.

6:56 Mark summarizes Jesus’ healing ministry, noting how widespread it was. The hem of a garment was significant, for it was often woven with tassels that reminded the wearer of God’s commandments (see 5:27; Num. 15:37–41).

7:1–23 In this chapter, the scribes and Pharisees become more vocal in their opposition to Jesus. The breach between true spirituality and man-made tradition widens considerably.

7:1 Jerusalem was the central city of the Jewish faith. The Pharisees (see Matt. 5:20) and scribes (teachers of the law) were no doubt sent by the Jewish religious authorities to ascertain Jesus’ position on the issues they counted important.

7:3, 4 These two verses explain the tradition of handwashing and various kinds of ceremonial uncleanness. Mark’s intended readers in Rome likely needed more background on the Jewish faith to understand this controversy.

7:5 The tradition of the elders (see Matt. 15:2) was a series of rules meant to bolster the ceremonial law of the Jews. Its authority was not supported by Scripture. The question indirectly challenged Jesus, for as the disciples’ teacher He was judged responsible for their actions.

7:6, 7 Jesus did not directly answer the question but instead addressed two more significant issues: (1) the superiority of God’s law over man-made tradition (vv. 6–13) and (2) the difference between ceremonial and true moral defilement (vv. 14–23). Jesus enters into

¹⁷^o When He had entered a house away from the crowd, His disciples asked Him concerning the parable. ¹⁸So He said to them, ^p“Are you thus without understanding also? Do you not perceive that what-the argument by calling His adversaries hypocrites. The term originally referred to actors who wore masks on stage as they played different characters. Thus the Pharisees were not genuinely religious; they were merely playing a part for all to see.

7:8, 9 In earlier times the Hebrews held the written law of God, the Torah, in such esteem that they would not write down their reflections on it, lest they should tempt later generations to consider their words as important as God’s law. But as time went on, written commentaries on the law, collected in the Talmud, assumed greater authority than the Torah itself.

7:11-13 But you say shows the absolute contrast between God’s will and man’s empty tradition. The Corban was evidently a pious-sounding evasion of the requirement of honoring one’s parents by supporting them financially.

7:14 A private question at mealtime bloomed into a controversy that now met the ears of all the multitude whom Jesus summoned. Jesus made a bold public statement that must have liberated His listeners and infuriated the Pharisees.

The Territories of Tyre and Sidon

In a unique excursion into pagan and semipagan areas, Jesus visited the districts of Tyre and Sidon and the confederation of free cities called the Decapolis. He was called to minister to “the lost sheep of the house of Israel” (Matt. 15:24), but the phenomenal public attention in Galilee was intense. Even here His fame had spread, and He could not keep His presence secret. The commercially magnificent cities of Tyre and Sidon had been a source of cultural seductiveness and religious heterodoxy since the time of Jezebel. The cities had been heavily influenced by Hellenism; the sophistication of Greek culture was apparent in their coinage and architecture. Each was also a proud, historic center of Canaanite paganism, with tombs of ancient kings and temples to Melqart/Heracles, Astarte, and various other deities.

Four Thousand Are Fed

Matt. 15:32-38

⁸In those days, ^athe multitude being very great and having nothing to eat, Jesus called His disciples to Him and said to them, ²"I have ^bcompassion on the multitude, because they have now continued with Me three days and have nothing to eat. ³And if I send them away hungry to their own houses, they will faint on the way; for some of them have come from afar."

⁵^cHe asked them, "How many loaves do you have?"

And they said, "Seven."

⁶So He commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground. And He took the seven loaves and gave thanks, broke them

7:24—8:26 After a forceful public confrontation with the Jewish authorities, Jesus withdrew to rest and to instruct His own disciples.

7:24 Jesus' travels to the region of Tyre and Sidon are the farthest beyond Israel He is reported to have gone during His public ministry. Sidon is about 50 miles northeast of Capernaum.

7:25 Even in a house in faraway Sidon, Jesus could not find privacy.

7:26 The woman who approached Jesus was a Gentile, as the word Greek signifies here. She was a native of that area. Syro-Phoenician (see 1 Kin. 17:8-24 for the story of the widow at Zarephath) reflects the political situation of the Middle East at that time. Phoenicia (modern Lebanon) was part of the Roman province of Syria, which also included all of Palestine—Galilee, Samaria, Perea, Judea, Idumea, and other regions.

7:27 Jesus was in the midst of teaching or feeding His disciples, called figuratively His children. During a meal one does not stop to feed the house pets, the little dogs. Jesus is not attempting to insult the woman by using this metaphor. In fact, He is testing her faith. Matthew records Jesus' reaction to her reply, "O woman, great is your faith" (Matt. 15:28).

7:28 The woman understood Jesus' test and persistently replied that even during the meal the little dogs consume the children's crumbs that fall from the table.

7:29 Rewarding her persistence, Jesus granted her request. He cast the demons out, although the girl was not in His presence.

7:31 Jesus' route to Israel bypassed Galilee itself. Instead Jesus went east into the Decapolis region and then turned south past Mt. Hermon until He reached the Sea of Galilee.

7:32-35 The healing of this deaf man (who also had a speech impediment) is one of the two miracles recorded by Mark only. (The other is the healing of the blind man recorded in 8:22-26.) Those who have never heard also frequently have problems pronouncing words.

7:34 Ephphatha is an Aramaic word. Mark provides an interpretation for his largely non-Jewish audience.

7:36 Jesus' command to tell no one, though unheeded, was meant to allow Him to move freely in the area. He knew that curiosity seekers could hamper His ministry.

8:4 Jesus desired to feed the multitude, but His disciples questioned how. They had witnessed the feeding of the five thousand a few days earlier but could not imagine Jesus duplicating this miracle.

8:6 The verb tenses for the words translated took, gave thanks, and broke specify action at a fixed moment in the past. Yet the verb translated gave is in the imperfect tense, which shows a continuing action. Thus we may conclude that the miracle of multiplication was a continuing process that took place, at least initially, in Jesus' hands.

and gave them to His disciples to set before them; and they set them before the multitude. ⁷They also had a few small fish; and ^dhaving blessed them, He said to set them also before them. ⁸So they ate and were filled, and they took up seven large baskets of leftover fragments. ⁹Now those who had eaten were about four thousand. And He sent them away, ^{10e}immediately got into the boat with His disciples, and came to the region of Dalmanutha.

Pharisees Seek a Sign

Matt. 15:39–16:4

^{11f}Then the Pharisees came out and began to dispute with Him, seeking from Him a sign from heaven, testing Him. ¹²But He ^gsighed deeply in His spirit, and said, “Why does this generation seek a sign? Assuredly, I say to you, ^hno sign shall be given to this generation.”

¹³And He left them, and getting into the boat again, departed to the other side.

¹⁶And they reasoned among themselves, saying, “It is because we have no bread.”

Peter's Confession of Christ

Matt. 16:13–23; Luke 9:18–22

^{27s}Now Jesus and His disciples went out to the towns of Caesarea Philippi; and on the road He asked His disciples,

8:8 The seven large baskets contained leftovers—one basket from each original loaf. These baskets were much larger than the 12 small personal baskets mentioned in 6:43. It was this kind of larger basket that was used to lower Paul over the wall of Damascus (Acts 9:25).

8:10 Apparently Dalmanutha and Magdala (Matt. 15:39) are different names for the same region. Both are mentioned only once in the NT. Dalmanutha was probably on the western side of the Sea of Galilee, about three miles north of modern Tiberias and about five miles southwest of Capernaum.

8:11 The Pharisees' testing of Jesus was crafty and devious. Obviously these men did not heed the many signs and wonders that Jesus had already performed. John 20:30, 31 indicates that the signs were meant to produce faith. It is doubtful that the Pharisees would have changed their minds even if they had seen another miracle.

8:13 Having fed the four thousand on the western side of the lake, Jesus led His disciples by boat to the other side, near Bethsaida (v. 22).

8:15 Jesus repeatedly commanded His disciples to beware of the leaven, the growing corruption of the Pharisees and of Herod Antipas which was spreading throughout Israel.

8:17–21 The disciples continued to show a lack of spiritual discernment despite the miracles they had witnessed. Jesus' rebuke was intended to make them recall what God had done for them.

8:22–26 Jesus' healing of the blind man in stages paralleled the disciples' imperfect perception of Jesus. Like the man, they were no longer blind, but they could not see clearly either. Only the Holy Spirit could clear their vision.

8:27 Caesarea Philippi is about 25 miles north of Bethsaida and the Sea of Galilee. It stands on the southern edge of Mt. Hermon and is today called Banias. One of the sources of the Jordan River

(Gk. zumē) (8:15; Matt. 13:33; 16:6, 12; 1 Cor. 5:6–8; Gal. 5:9) Strong's #2219

Leaven was a common Jewish metaphor for an invisible, pervasive influence. Its use here as a corrupting influence was an appropriate image to use in describing the subtle but pervasive control the religious leaders had on society. Like leaven that works its way into fresh dough, spreading out through the bread until its effects are evident in the entire batch, so their ideas were gradually infiltrating men's minds until they had penetrated and permeated every part of their thinking. In this context, the leaven of the Pharisees must be linked with their desire to see a sign, because they did not believe in Jesus' identity. Herod also wanted a sign (Luke 23:8). This unbelieving attitude, like leaven, had started to permeate the general population.

The Decapolis and the Lands Beyond the Jordan

1 Place east of the Jordan River where John the Baptist was baptizing (John 1:28). Here at Bethany on the other side of the Jordan John saw Jesus and called Him the “Lamb of God” (John 1:29, 35).

2 Philip, Andrew, and Peter were from Bethsaida (see John 1:44; 12:21). Jesus healed a blind man here (Mark 8:22). Feeding of the 5,000 took place near here (Luke 9:10).

3 Jesus and His disciples withdrew to Caesarea Philippi (Matt. 16:13; Mark 8:27), and here Peter confessed that Jesus was the Messiah (Matt. 16:15, 16).

4 Paul was converted near Damascus and was brought blinded into the city (Acts 9:3, 8; 22:6, 11).

Peter answered and said to Him, ^v“You are the Christ.”

³⁰^wThen He strictly warned them that they should tell no one about Him.

³¹And ^xHe began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things, and be ^yrejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be ^zkilled, and after three days rise again. ³²He spoke this word openly. Then Peter took Him aside and began to rebuke Him. ³³But when He had turned around and looked at His disciples, He ^arebuked Peter, saying, “Get behind Me, Satan! The Transfiguration

9 And He said to them, ^a“Assuredly, I say to you that there are some standing here who will not taste death till they see ^bthe kingdom of God ¹present with power.”

²^cNow after six days Jesus took Peter, James, and John, and led them up on a high mountain apart by themselves; and He was transfigured before them. ³His clothes became shining, exceedingly ^dwhite, like snow, such as no launderer on earth can whiten them. ⁴And Elijah appeared to them with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus. ⁵Then Peter answered and said to Jesus, “Rabbi, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles: one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah”—⁶because he did not know what to say, for they were greatly afraid.

⁷And ^ea cloud came and overshadowed springs forth from under a large rocky cliff that rises a hundred or more feet above the village. Many idols were carved into the rock facade. The contrast between Jesus Christ and these local gods was striking—a perfect place for Christ to ask the question of v. 29. The name Philippi distinguishes this town from Caesarea by the sea.

8:28 The disciples’ answers to Jesus’ question about His identity restate popular misconceptions. They recall the statements made by Herod and others in 6:14, 15.

8:29 Jesus then emphatically asks His disciples for their understanding. The word you is prominent in Jesus’ question. Peter answers for the group when he says You are the Christ. Jesus wants His disciples to grasp firmly His true identity before He reveals to them the necessity of His coming death and Resurrection. In Mark’s Gospel, only the disciples come to understand who Jesus is. The opposition of the religious leaders and the disciples’ dullness is suddenly overshadowed by Peter’s wonderful confession.

8:30 Jesus’ warning to tell no one about Him may seem strange. Its explanation lies in the fact that the Jews expected the Messiah to be a political liberator. Jesus’ first coming was meant to accomplish another kind of liberation—release from sin. Hence Jesus was careful not to use the name Messiah publicly, for it was misunderstood by the Jewish people, their leaders, and the Roman authorities.

8:31 This is the first of several clear predictions Jesus makes about His coming death and resurrection (9:31; 10:33, 34). He began to teach them signals this new disclosure of His death, burial, and resurrection to His apostles. The Son of Man is a title that only Jesus uses of Himself. The elders and chief priests, former high priests, and scribes made up the Jewish ruling council, the Sanhedrin. These men would condemn Jesus to death (for the fulfillment of Jesus’ prediction, see 14:53, 64).

8:32 Jesus spoke . . . openly, that is plainly, not in parables. Peter understood clearly Jesus’ prediction of death and could not accept or understand it, and so he began to rebuke Him.

8:33 Peter’s thoughts, born of fear and concern, were probably well-intended, but they did not take in God’s eternal purposes and plan. Peter was not indwelt by Satan, but Satan had certainly suggested his thoughts. If Peter had his way, Jesus’ mission would not have been accomplished.

8:35 To preserve one’s life eternally, one must surrender earthly possessions and relationships held so dearly (see Matt. 16:24-27).

8:38 When He comes in the glory of His Father is the key of this address to the disciples (vv. 34-38). It is the first glimpse of the fulfillment of all history (1 Cor. 15:24-28). Those who will reign with Christ invest their lives in that which will last (v. 35). Those who are willing to confess Him today will be rewarded before the Father in heaven (Matt. 5:10-12; 2 Tim. 2:11-13; Rev. 2:26-28).

9:1 After Jesus predicted His own death, Peter and the other disciples needed reassurance that Jesus would ultimately triumph. His prediction that some of them would see the kingdom of God present with power must have alleviated their fears.

9:2 After six days links Jesus’ prediction of v. 1 with the events of vv. 2-8. The high mountain was most likely one of the foothills surrounding Mt. Hermon. They probably did not stand on Mt. Hermon itself, a snowy peak which rises to 9,232 feet. It is the highest point in all of Palestine. These mountains overlook Caesarea Philippi, where Peter’s confession was made (8:27-29). Jesus’ transfiguration deeply affected John and Peter, who mention it in their writings (see John 1:14; 2 Pet. 1:16-18).

9:4 Elijah is mentioned in Mal. 4:5, 6 in connection with the future coming of Christ. This is why people asked John the Baptist if he were Elijah (John 1:21). Moses was the lawgiver and liberator, while Elijah was the first of the great prophets. Their presence confirmed the reality that Jesus is the Messiah of Peter’s confession.

9:7 The voice of God the Father was heard audibly three times during the life of Christ. The other two occasions were at Jesus’ baptism (1:11) and during His triumphal entry into Jerusalem (John 12:28).

them; and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, “This is ^fMy beloved Son. ^gHear Him!” ⁸Suddenly, when they had looked around, they saw no one anymore, but only Jesus with themselves.

^{9h}Now as they came down from the mountain, He commanded them that they should tell no one the things they had seen, till the Son of Man had risen from the dead. ¹⁰So they kept this word to themselves, questioning ⁱwhat the rising from the dead meant.

¹¹And they asked Him, saying, “Why do the scribes say ^jthat Elijah must come first?”

¹²Then He answered and told them, “Indeed, Elijah is coming first and restores all things. And ^khow is it written concerning the Son of Man, that He must suffer many things and ^lbe treated with contempt? ¹³But I say to you that ^mElijah has also come, and they did to him whatever they wished, as it is written of him.”

Demon-Possessed Son Is Delivered

¹⁴ⁿAnd when He came to the disciples, He saw a great multitude around them, and scribes disputing with them. ¹⁵Immediately, when they saw Him, all the people were greatly amazed, and running to Him, greeted Him. ¹⁶And He asked the scribes, “What are you discussing with them?”

¹⁷Then ^oone of the crowd answered and said, “Teacher, I brought You my son, who has a mute spirit. ¹⁸And wherever it seizes him, it throws him down; he foams at the mouth, gnashes his teeth, and becomes rigid. So I spoke to Your disciples, that they should cast it out, but they could not.”

¹⁹He answered him and said, “O ^pfaithless ²generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I ³bear with you? Bring him to Me.” ²⁰Then they brought him to Him. And ^qwhen he saw Him, immediately the spirit convulsed him, and he fell on the ground and wallowed, foaming at the mouth.

²⁴Immediately the father of the child cried out and said with tears, “Lord, I believe; ^shelp my unbelief!”

And he became as one dead, so that many said, “He is dead.” ²⁷But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up, and he arose.

^{28u}And when He had come into the house, His disciples asked Him privately, “Why could we not cast it out?”

Attitude of Servanthood

Matt. 18:1-5; Luke 9:46-50

^{33a}Then He came to Capernaum. And when He was in the house He asked them, “What was it you ⁶disputed among yourselves on the road?” ³⁴But they kept silent, for on the road they had ^bdisputed

9:11, 12 This question is based on the words of Mal. 4:5, 6.

9:13 Jesus’ comment that Elijah has also come is a reference to John the Baptist. John was not a reincarnation of Elijah, but one who ministered “in the spirit and power of Elijah” (Luke 1:17) in preparing the way for Christ. They did to him whatever they wished refers to the ruthless way John the Baptist was imprisoned and murdered.

9:17–20 The boy had several problems. The mute spirit was a demon that kept the boy from speaking, but the demon also produced seizures. Verse 20 says the spirit convulsed him.

9:24 I believe; help my unbelief expresses the dilemma that even those who believe can be nagged by doubt and hopelessness. This man took the correct course by appealing to Jesus for help.

9:29 Jesus said that prayer and fasting were required to prevail in some difficult instances. Fasting may help focus one’s energies on the resources available in our great God.

9:31 For the second time (see 8:31), Jesus tells plainly of His coming death and resurrection.

9:34, 35 The disciples kept silent, refusing to tell Jesus about their discussion. But Jesus once again challenged their assumptions. He presented them with another paradox—that to be great in God’s kingdom, one must be a servant. The example was modeled by Christ Himself.

among themselves who would be the ^cgreatest. ³⁵ And He sat down, called the twelve, and said to them, ^d “If anyone desires to be first, he shall be last of all and servant of all.” ³⁶ Then ^e He took a little child and set him in the midst of them. And when He had taken him in His arms, He said to them, ³⁷ “Whoever receives one of these little children in My name receives Me; and ^f whoever receives Me, receives not Me but Him who sent Me.”

^{38g} Now John answered Him, saying, “Teacher, we saw someone who does not follow us casting out demons in Your name, and we forbade him because he does not follow us.”

³⁹ But Jesus said, “Do not forbid him, ^h for no one who works a miracle in My name can soon afterward speak evil of Me. ⁴⁰ For ⁱ he who is not against ^j us is on ^k our side. ^{41j} For whoever gives you a cup of water to drink in My name, because you belong to Christ, assuredly, I say to you, he will by no means lose his reward.

Marriage and Divorce

Matt. 19:1-9

10 Then ^a He arose from there and came to the region of Judea by the other side of the Jordan. And multitudes gathered to Him again, and as He was accustomed, He taught them again.

^{2b} The Pharisees came and asked Him, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?” testing Him.

³ And He answered and said to them, “What did Moses command you?”

⁴ They said, ^c “Moses permitted a man to write a certificate of divorce, and to dismiss her.”

9:40 Jesus is not endorsing all who claim to follow Him. Rather, this statement was meant to remind the disciples that God’s work was not necessarily restricted to their small group.

9:42 Jesus uses hyperbole, exaggeration for an effect, to state the seriousness of causing spiritual injury to others. A millstone is an extremely heavy circular stone, three to four feet across and about a foot thick, used to grind grain into meal.

9:43 Cut it off should be taken figuratively; it means to take whatever drastic action is necessary to avoid sin. The imagery of hell (frequently called gehenna) comes from a garbage dump outside the walls of Jerusalem. Jesus’ hearers were familiar with the smoldering fires that always burned there. Obedience and self-control (vv. 41, 47) are necessary to overcome sin. The longing of the disciples for greatness (vv. 33–37) needed to be reshaped according to God’s purposes.

9:49 The word for shows that Mark intended his readers to apply the preceding verses to their own lives. Everyone will be seasoned with fire may refer to the trials and judgments that all will face—believers with trials that purify faith, unbelievers with the eternal fire of God’s judgment.

10:1 Jesus, now on His final journey to Jerusalem, comes to Capernaum (9:33). His Galilean ministry will head south to Judea and even into Perea on the eastern side of the Jordan River.

10:2 The Pharisees’ question about divorce was a trap. Perhaps they hoped He would contradict Moses (Deut. 24:1–4) or offend Herod Antipas as John the Baptist had (see 6:18). The only possibility for divorce under Jewish law was for a man to divorce his wife.

10:4 A certificate of divorce was a document signed before witnesses. Its intent was to limit frivolous divorces. In Jesus’ day, the hell

(Gk. gehenna) (9:43, 45; Matt. 5:22, 29, 30; Luke 12:5; James 3:6) Strong’s #1067

The word hell in this passage translates the word gehenna, which is an allusion to the “Valley of the Son of Hinnom” (Josh. 18:16). In this valley, the Israelites had gone so far as to offer their children as burnt sacrifices to Molech. Josiah defiled this site in order to prevent the repetition of such abominations (see 2 Kin. 23:10), and then a fire was kept burning there to consume the carrion and refuse that were collected around Jerusalem. The final punishment of the wicked is described in the OT by allusions to this valley (Is. 66:24). By using the word gehenna, Jesus was recalling the same place and that kind of punishment for sin.

⁵ And Jesus answered and said to them, “Because of the hardness of your heart he wrote you this ¹ precept. ⁶ But from the beginning of the creation, God ^d ‘made them male and female.’ ^{7 e} ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, ⁸ and the two shall become one flesh’; so then they are no longer two, but one flesh. ⁹ Therefore what God has joined together, let not man separate.”

¹⁰ In the house His disciples also asked Him again about the same matter. ¹¹ So He said to them, ^f “Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her. ¹² And if a woman divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.”

Children and the Kingdom

Matt. 19:13-15; Luke 18:15-17

^{13 g} Then they brought little children to Him, that He might touch them; but the disciples rebuked those who brought them. ¹⁴ But when Jesus saw it, He was greatly displeased and said to them, “Let the little children come to Me, and do not forbid them; for ^h of such is the kingdom of God. ¹⁵ Assuredly, I say to you, ⁱ whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will ^j by no means enter it.” ¹⁶ And He took them up in His arms, laid His hands on them, and blessed them.

^{17 k} Now as He was going out on the road, one came running, knelt before Him, and asked Him, “Good Teacher, what shall I ^l do that I may inherit eternal life?”

Difficulty of Riches

Matt. 19:23-26; Luke 18:24-27

^{23 s} Then Jesus looked around and said to His disciples, “How hard it is for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of God!” ²⁴ And the disciples were astonished at His words. But Jesus answered again and said to them, “Children, how hard it is ² for those ^t who trust in riches to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵ It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a ^u rich man to enter the kingdom of God.”

²⁶ And they were greatly astonished, saying among themselves, “Who then can be saved?”

²⁷ But Jesus looked at them and said, “With men it is impossible, but not ^v with God; for with God all things are possible.”

Eternal Reward

Matt. 19:27-30; Luke 18:28-30

^{28 w} Then Peter began to say to Him, “See, we have left all and followed You.”

interpretation of this custom varied widely. The disciples of Hillel allowed divorce for almost any reason, but the followers of Shammai permitted divorce only for sexual impurity.

10:5, 6 Jesus declares that divorce was a concession to the hardness of your heart and then turns the argument to God’s original intentions for marriage as seen in Gen. 2:21–25. God’s design of male and female shows that He held each to be equal in value and worth, but that they fulfilled a different function and role in His design.

10:7, 8 A man is to leave his parents, cleave to his wife, then weave a life of beauty with her. Jesus quotes almost verbatim from the text of Gen. 2:24. The two become one flesh, and this bond is comparable to that of a blood relationship.

10:9 Jesus indicated that God’s original purpose for marriage was that the union should not be broken.

10:11 Whoever divorces his wife: Mark includes no exception to Christ’s prohibition of divorce, nor is any exception listed in Luke 16:18; Rom. 7:1, 2; 1 Cor. 7:10, 11. Compare Matt. 5:32; 19:9, where an exception is made.

10:12 In Jewish society, it was not possible for a woman to divorce her husband, but Mark is presenting Jesus’ words in a way his Roman audience would understand.

10:15 Children exhibit sincerity, eagerness, a trusting attitude, and total dependence on their parents. Thus childlikeness is a fitting comparison for the qualities a disciple should have.

10:17 In addressing Jesus as Good Teacher, the rich young ruler (Matt. 19:22; Luke 18:18) meant no more than to issue a respectful formal greeting to a religious teacher.

10:18 The reply that no one is good but One, that is, God is Jesus’ claim to deity, which He asks the young ruler to recognize.

10:19 Jesus recounts the seventh, sixth, eighth, ninth, and fifth commandments with the phrase do not defraud inserted just before the fifth commandment. All of these commands concern the fair and ethical treatment of other people (Ex. 20:12–17).

10:23, 24 Those who have riches frequently also are those who trust in riches, a dangerous condition for one seeking spiritual life.

10:25–27 This comparison of a camel going through a needle is a literal one (Matt. 19:24). In human terms, it is not just difficult, but totally impossible, for a rich man to be saved. But it is also impossible for anyone at all to be saved apart from God’s grace and power. God provides the means of salvation, enlightens the sinner’s understanding, and regenerates the believing soul.

²⁹ So Jesus answered and said, “Assuredly, I say to you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or father or mother ³ or wife or children or ⁴ lands, for My sake and the gospel’s, ³⁰ who shall not receive a hundredfold now in this time—houses and brothers and sisters and mothers and children and lands, with ⁵ persecutions—and in the age to come, eternal life. ³¹ But many who are first will be last, and the last first.”

Coming Crucifixion

³² Now they were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was going before them; and they were amazed. And as they followed they were afraid. ^b Then He took the twelve aside again and began to tell them the things that would happen to Him: ³³ “Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and to the scribes; and they will condemn Him to death and deliver Him to the Gentiles; ³⁴ and they will mock Him, and ⁵ scourge Him, and spit on Him, and kill Him. And the third day He will rise again.”

“Whoever Desires to Become Great”

Matt. 20:20-28

³⁵ Then James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came to Him, saying, “Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask.”

³⁶ And He said to them, “What do you want Me to do for you?”

Blind Bartimaeus Is Healed

Matt. 20:29-34; Luke 18:35-43

⁴⁶ Now they came to Jericho. As He went out of Jericho with His disciples and a great multitude, blind Bartimaeus, the son of Timaeus, sat by the road begging. ⁴⁷ And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out

10:29 The one who has left all these things has not necessarily renounced them but has certainly reordered his priorities (see Matt. 19:29). Peter still had his wife some 25 years later, as did the other apostles and Jesus’ own brothers (1 Cor. 9:5). Many times, however, they made heavy sacrifices for the sake of Christ and the gospel.

10:30 Spiritual rewards await those who follow Christ in this time, meaning during this age between Christ’s first and second comings. Mark alone mentions that persecutions will follow as well—a point his Roman readers may have already known. After Christ’s return, in the age to come, the incomparable reward will be eternal life in God’s presence.

10:31 Worldly esteem, which is measured by wealth, social standing, nobility, birth, and personal achievement, will count for nothing in the world to come. Only humility and servanthood lead to greatness in God’s kingdom. Matthew follows this saying with an illustrative parable (see Matt. 20:1–16).

10:32–34 Jesus revealed for the third time His imminent death and resurrection as the disciples walked the road toward Jerusalem for Passover. See 8:31; 9:31 for His previous teaching on this subject.

10:35 According to Matt 20:20, it was the mother of James and John who sought Jesus, but it is likely that the sons themselves encouraged her to do it.

10:37 To be seated at a king’s right hand was to take the position of most prominence; the person seated at the left hand ranked just below that (Luke 22:24–30). Jesus had to remind the disciples again about the price of greatness in God’s kingdom. As they journeyed toward Jerusalem, “they thought the kingdom of God would appear immediately” (Luke 19:11), so they may have wanted to secure their power and authority as soon as possible.

10:38 To drink the cup and be baptized are references to the suffering and death that awaited Jesus (14:36). Jesus wanted His disciples to understand the mocking, scourging, beating, and torture He would have to endure.

10:39 Jesus agreed with their response, though they had not yet understood the cost of their commitment. Although not suffering the same level of spiritual agony that Jesus did, James would soon be executed by Herod Agrippa I in A.D. 44 (see Acts 12:1, 2). John was the last apostle to die, being exiled for a while on the island of Patmos (Rev. 1:9). He was persecuted greatly and had to witness the deaths of more Christians than probably any of the other apostles.

10:42–44 The point here is not the fact that Gentile rulers lord it over them, but the very idea that they seek to exercise authority. Jesus wants each of His followers to be a servant—one who as an attendant waits on others. The word slave signifies subjection, but not necessarily bondage.

10:45 This verse is the dividing point of the Book of Mark. The first section of the book has emphasized Jesus’ servanthood, whereas the second section recounts the details of His death and resurrection. Having three times predicted His coming death, Jesus now explains its purpose. A ransom is the price paid to free slaves or hostages. The word is found only here and in Matt. 20:28, although it appears frequently in other documents of that time. Christ’s life is given for others, in place of their lives. The word many is used for contrast, see 2 Cor. 5:14; 1 Tim. 2:6; 1 John 2:2.

10:47 Son of David is a messianic title. Mark shows us the irony and say, “Jesus, ⁿSon of David, ^ohave mercy on me!”

⁴⁸Then many warned him to be quiet; but he cried out all the more, “Son of David, have mercy on me!”

⁴⁹So Jesus stood still and commanded him to be called.

Then they called the blind man, saying to him, “Be of good cheer. Rise, He is calling you.”

⁵⁰And throwing aside his garment, he rose and came to Jesus.

⁵¹So Jesus answered and said to him, “What do you want Me to do for you?”

The blind man said to Him, ⁶“Rabboni, that I may receive my sight.”

⁵²Then Jesus said to him, “Go your way; ^pyour faith has ⁷made you well.” And immediately he received his sight and followed Jesus on the road.

The Triumphal Entry

Matt. 21:1-11; Luke 19:29-40

11 Now ^awhen they drew near Jerusalem, to ¹Bethphage and Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, He sent two of His disciples; ²and He said to them, “Go into the village opposite you; and as soon as you have entered it you will find a colt tied, on which no one has sat. Loose it and bring it. ³And if anyone says to you, ‘Why are you doing this?’ say, ‘The Lord has need of it,’ and immediately he will send it here.”

⁴So they went their way, and found ²the colt tied by the door outside on the street, and they loosed it. ⁵But some of those who stood there said to them, “What are you doing, loosing the colt?”

⁶And they spoke to them just as Jesus had commanded. So they let them go.

⁷Then they brought the colt to Jesus and of a blind man who had spiritual insight, while many who could see—including the religious leaders—were spiritually blind.

10:49, 50 Mark’s account has all the graphic details of an eyewitness account—Jesus stood still; then Bartimaeus was suddenly throwing aside his garment to rise and meet Jesus. Mark also notes the changed attitude of the crowd—they began by deriding Bartimaeus but later encouraged him.

10:51 Rabboni is a very tender Aramaic form of address meaning “master” or “teacher” (see John 20:16).

10:52 We know that Bartimaeus followed Jesus for at least a short time on the road. He went along with the surging crowd at Jericho. Did he, however, become a disciple of note? Mark’s mention of his name may indicate that he was known in the early church.

11:1–15:47 More than one-third of Mark’s narrative takes place during a seven-day period—the Passover week when Jesus is finally put to death. Mark’s Gospel has been called a Passion story with a long introduction. His emphasis on the Passion Week is appropriate. Without this week, Jesus would not have fulfilled his purpose for coming to the earth.

11:1 Bethphage and Bethany are just east of the Mount of Olives, about two miles from the gates of Jerusalem. Lazarus was raised to life at Bethany (John 12:1).

11:2–7 Christ’s deity is evident in this passage. You will find demonstrates His omniscience. It is possible for a donkey on which no one has sat to be very calm and accommodating, but Jesus is also master of all nature and all creatures.

11:8–11 This was the triumphal entry on Palm Sunday. The crowd recognized Jesus’ lordship by repeating a messianic psalm (Ps. 118:25, 26). Jesus retired to Bethany each night, perhaps staying in a friend’s home (maybe Lazarus’s or Simon’s, see 14:3). But in view of the fact that Jesus appears to have had no breakfast the next day (see v. 12), He and the Twelve may have camped outside this night.

11:12 The next day would be Monday, and Mark devotes only eight verses to this day. Tuesday begins with v. 20, but the events of Tuesday and Wednesday are combined into one long section that ends at 13:37. A new chronological reference begins with 14:1, “after two days.”

11:13 Mark informs his readers that it was not the season for figs. Passover always comes in March or April, and fig season is not until May or June. However, fig trees generally produce a number of buds in March, leaves in April, and ripe fruit later on. Jesus was looking for the edible buds, the lack of which indicated that the tree would be fruitless that year.

those who sold ⁱdoves. ¹⁶And He would not allow anyone to carry wares through the temple. ¹⁷Then He taught, saying to them, “Is it not written, ^j‘My house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations’? But you have made it a ^k‘den of thieves.’”

¹⁸And ^lthe scribes and chief priests heard it and sought how they might destroy Him; for they feared Him, because ^mall the people were astonished at His teaching. ¹⁹When evening had come, He went out of the city.

Power of Faith

Matt. 21:20-22

²⁰ⁿ Now in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig tree dried up from the roots. ²¹And Peter, remembering, said to Him, “Rabbi, look! The fig tree which You cursed has withered away.”

²²So Jesus answered and said to them, “Have faith in God. ²³For ^oassuredly, I say to you, whoever says to this mountain, ‘Be removed and be cast into the sea,’ and does not doubt in his heart, but believes that those things he says will be done, he will have whatever he says. ²⁴Therefore I say to you, ^pwhatever things you ask when you pray, believe that you receive them, and you will have them.

Question of Authority

²⁷ Then they came again to Jerusalem. ^s And as He was walking in the temple, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders came to Him. ²⁸ And they said to Him, “By what ^tauthority are You doing these things? And who gave You this authority to do these things?”

²⁹ But Jesus answered and said to them, “I also will ask you one question; then answer Me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things: ³⁰ The “baptism of John—was it from heaven or from men? Answer Me.”

³¹ And they reasoned among themselves, saying, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ He will say, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’” ³² But if we say, ‘From men’”—they feared the people, for ^vall counted John to have been a prophet indeed. ³³ So they answered and said to Jesus, “We do not know.”

And Jesus answered and said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.”

Parable of the Vineyard Owner

Matt. 21:33-46; Luke 20:9-19

12 Then ^aHe began to speak to them in parables: “A man planted a vineyard and set a hedge around it, dug a place for the wine vat and built a tower.

11:17 Jesus quoted from the prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah (Is. 56:7; Jer. 7:11) to make His point about the despicable conduct of those who bought and sold in the temple. Den of thieves refers to the practice of cheating people, both Israelites and those of other nations, either through a crooked exchange of money or by selling inferior products.

11:18 The suspense of Mark’s drama increases with the contrasting reactions to Christ. The religious leaders sought to destroy Him by plotting His death, while the people had just welcomed Him with a triumphal procession and were astonished at His teaching.

11:19, 20 Mark clearly indicates the transition from evening (Monday) to the morning (Tuesday).

11:21 Why was the fig tree both cursed and withered? The passage emphasizes the power of true faith. Some have suggested that the fig tree represented Israel, which bore no fruit and would soon face the judgment of God.

11:22, 23 The illustration of casting an enormous mountain into the sea is an extreme example of the absolutely impossible. That is the point. Having faith in God can accomplish the impossible. Mark had previously emphasized Jesus’ insistence on simply believing (see 9:23, 24).

11:25, 26 It is doubtful that a person who cannot forgive another has ever experienced the forgiveness of his own sins by God.

11:28 The religious leaders (v. 27), who were now plotting Jesus’ death (v. 18), asked Jesus about the (1) nature and (2) source of His authority, perhaps because He had not openly declared that He was the Messiah. These things refer to the authority Jesus used in cleaning out the temple (see vv. 15–17).

11:29, 30 The intent of Jesus’ question was to expose once again the insincerity of His detractors. The baptism of John refers to the authority of John’s baptism. Was it from heaven—that is, ordained by God and worthy of obedience? Or was it merely from men—that is, of human contrivance and void of any spiritual authority and reality?

11:33 We do not know was a dishonest reply, but perhaps the only one possible for men who wished only to save their reputation.

12:1 He began to speak to them in parables. Mark records only one parable here, but Matthew presents an additional one (Matt. 22:1–14). This parable represents God as carefully preparing the nation of Israel (a vineyard) and leaving it in the care of others (the vinedressers; Is. 5:1–7). Great care was taken to fence the vineyard,

(Gk. rabbi) (9:5; 10:51; 11:21; 14:45) Strong’s #4461

In NT times, rabbi was a respectful title for a teacher well versed in the Mosaic Law. The title, which derives from a Hebrew word meaning “great,” is often translated “master.” Rabboni, an Aramaic form of this word, expresses affectionate respect for a teacher (John 20:16). Both the disciples and the teachers of the law honored Jesus with this title. But Jesus warned His disciples not to covet such a title for themselves, for there is only one true teacher, Christ Himself (see Matt. 23:6–10).

Property Protection

Israelite farmers enclosed their gardens and vineyards with hedges or walls (Is. 5:5), but it was not possible to build walls around large fields. To prevent border disputes in the fields, the Law placed severe punishment upon anyone who removed the boundary stones used as landmarks (Deut. 27:17). The Hebrew landowner seldom visited his fields during the growing season. Instead he hired watchmen to stay in crude lodgings (also called “towers”—Mark 12:1), where they protected the crop from beasts, birds, and marauders.

minating with John the Baptist, whose baptism Jesus had just mentioned (11:30).

12:6 Parables usually get across a significant truth, but the details are not meant to correspond exactly with particular spiritual realities. In this parable, the owner of the vineyard represents God, but God Himself was never so mistaken as to assume they would respect His Son. God is omniscient, whereas the vineyard owner in the parable is not. This story illustrates the immense patience God had with Israel.

12:9 Jesus answered His own rhetorical question. The destruction of the vinedressers, the Israelites who rejected the Son of God, took place in A.D. 70 when the Romans smashed a revolt in Jerusalem and destroyed the temple. Giving the vineyard to others refers to the importance the Gentiles would assume in the growth of Christianity.

12:12 The chief priests, scribes, and elders sought to lay hands on Him, to arrest Jesus, and to carry out their plot to destroy Him (see 11:18). Only as the final points of the parable were made did these evil men realize that Jesus had spoken the parable against them.

12:13 The Herodians are mentioned in the NT three times, all in conjunction with the Pharisees. The Herodians wanted to kill Jesus because He threatened their authority (3:16; Matt. 22:16). Their attempt to catch Him in His words was their hope that Jesus would say something that could be grounds for His arrest.

12:14 You . . . care about no one was intended as a compliment.

In biblical times, buildings were often made of cut, squared stone. By uniting two intersecting walls, a cornerstone helped align the whole building and tie it together. In his address before the Jewish Sanhedrin, the apostle Peter quoted Ps. 118:22 and boldly proclaimed that “Jesus Christ of Nazareth,” crucified and raised from the dead, was the stone rejected by the builders “which has become the chief cornerstone” (Acts 4:10, 11; Eph. 2:20). This chief cornerstone, Jesus Christ, is the foundation of the church, because “there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved” (Acts 4:12). In Him “the whole building, being fitted together, grows into a holy temple in the Lord” (Eph. 2:21).

come, they said to Him, “Teacher, we know that You are true, and ⁴care about no one; for You do not ⁵regard the person of men, but teach the ⁶way of God in truth. Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, or not? ¹⁵Shall we pay, or shall we not pay?”

But He, knowing their ^hhypocrisy, said to them, “Why do you test Me? Bring Me a denarius that I may see it.” ¹⁶So they brought it.

And He said to them, “Whose image and inscription is this?” They said to Him, “Caesar’s.”

¹⁷And Jesus answered and said to them, ⁶“Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to ⁱGod the things that are God’s.”

And they marveled at Him.

Question of the Resurrection

Matt. 22:23-33; Luke 20:27-40

^{18j}Then some Sadducees, ^kwho say there is no resurrection, came to Him; and they asked Him, saying: ¹⁹“Teacher, ^lMoses wrote to us that if a man’s brother dies, and leaves his wife behind, and leaves no children, his brother should take his wife and raise up offspring for his brother. ²⁰Now there were seven brothers. The first took a wife; and dying, he left no offspring. ²¹And the second took her, and he died; nor did he leave any offspring. And the third likewise. ²²So the seven had her and left no offspring. Last of all the woman died also. ²³Therefore, in the resurrection, when they rise, whose wife will she be? For all seven had her as wife.”

²⁴Jesus answered and said to them, “Are you not therefore ⁷mistaken, because you do not know the Scriptures nor the power of God? ²⁵For when they rise from the dead, they neither marry

You are therefore greatly ⁸mistaken.”

Question of the Greatest Commandment

Matt. 22:34-40

^{28p}Then one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, ⁹perceiving that He had answered them well, asked Him, “Which is the ¹first commandment of all?”

²⁹Jesus answered him, “The ²first of all the commandments is: ^q*‘Hear, O Israel, the LORD our God, the LORD is one. And you shall ^rlove the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength.’* ³This is the first commandment. ³¹And the second, like it, is this: ^s*‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’* There is no other commandment greater than ^tthese.”

³²So the scribe said to Him, “Well said, Teacher. You have spoken the truth, for there is one God, ^uand there is no other but He. ³³And to love Him with all the heart, with all the understanding, ⁴with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love one’s neighbor as oneself, ^vis more than all the whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.”

³⁴Now when Jesus saw that he answered wisely, He said to him, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.”

^wBut after that no one dared question Him.

The teachers recognized that Jesus was partial to no one. The question, however, was a lose-lose proposition: a yes answer would alienate Jews who opposed Rome, while a no answer could be taken as treason against the state. The ruling emperor from A.D. 14 to 37 was Caesar Tiberius (Luke 3:1), the adopted son of Caesar Augustus (Luke 2:1). Here Mark uses a Latin word for taxes in order to communicate clearly to his Roman readers.

12:15 A denarius was worth an entire day’s wages.

12:16 The image and inscription on the coin was Caesar’s. His head faces to the right with the words T(IBERIUS) CAESAR DIVI on the right and the words AUG(USTI) AUGUSTUS continuing on the left side. These words mean “Tiberius Caesar, Son of the Divine Augustus.” On the reverse side appear the words PONTIFEX MAXIMUS, meaning “High Priest.”

12:18 The Sadducees were an elite group of religious leaders who denied the existence of angels, the immortality of the soul, and the resurrection. They rejected the oral traditions and accepted only the validity of the Pentateuch, the first five books of the OT.

12:19-22 The custom of marrying the widow of one’s brother was supported by Deut. 25:5, 6, but it was not absolutely binding (Deut. 25:7-10).

12:23 The purpose of this story was to discredit the doctrine of resurrection.

12:24 Two categories support the resurrection—the Scriptures and God’s power. The Sadducees undoubtedly did know the Scriptures, but lacked spiritual insight to understand God’s purposes.

12:25 Angels neither marry nor procreate. Luke 20:36 applies these restrictions to all angels without distinction.

12:26, 27 Jesus quotes from the Law—the Book of Exodus—to make His point. God said I am the God of the three patriarchs mentioned, not “I was their God, but now they are dead.” He still is their God because they are still alive. Their souls not only live after death, but their bodies will be raised anew as well.

12:29 The Hear, O Israel verse of Deut. 6:4 is commonly called the Shema (from a Hebrew word meaning “to hear”) and is repeated by Jews the world over as expressing the essence of their faith in God.

12:30, 31 The first commandment summarizes the first four of the Ten Commandments. The second is the essence of commandments five through ten, which relate to the treatment of other people.

Silver Coins

In NT times, the silver coin of Tyre and Sidon was called the “temple coin.” It was widely known for its pure metal. But the Roman denarius quickly superseded all silver coins of the same value. A denarius was a soldier’s daily wage and worth about 44 cents today. The Greek word for silver was frequently used for money. Jesus told His disciples to take no “money” (silver) with them when He sent them out two by two (Luke 9:3) and Judas was paid 30 “pieces of silver” to betray Jesus (Matt. 26:15). One of the most famous givers in the NT was the poor widow (Mark 12:41–44). She gave two lepta, which equaled the value of a kodrantēs, to the temple treasury. The kodrantēs was worth less than a penny. Yet the widow’s gift prompted Jesus’ highest praise.

³⁷Therefore David himself calls Him ‘Lord’; how is He then his “Son?”

And the common people heard Him gladly.

Jesus Condemns the Leaders

Matt. 23:1-14; Luke 20:45-21:4

³⁸Then ^bHe said to them in His teaching, ^c“Beware of the scribes, who desire to go around in long robes, ^d*love* greetings in the marketplaces, ³⁹the ^ebest seats in the synagogues, and the best places at feasts, ⁴⁰*f*who devour widows’ houses, and ⁵for a pretense make long prayers. These will receive greater condemnation.”

⁴¹^gNow Jesus sat opposite the treasury and saw how the people put money ^hinto the treasury. And many who were rich put in much. ⁴²Then one poor widow came and threw in two ⁶mites, which make a ⁷quadrans. ⁴³So He called His disciples to Himself and said to them, “Assuredly, I say to you that ⁱthis poor widow has put in more than all those who have given to the treasury; ⁴⁴for they all put in out of their abundance, but she out of her poverty put in all that she had, ^jher whole livelihood.”

Jesus Questions the Leaders

Matt. 22:41-45; Luke 20:41-44

Questions from the Disciples

Matt. 24:1-3; Luke 21:5-7

13 Then ^aas He went out of the temple, one of His disciples said to Him, “Teacher, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!”

²And Jesus answered and said to him,

CHAPTER 13 1 ^a Matt. 24:1; Luke 21:5-36

12:35 In the temple does not refer to the sanctuary itself, where only the priests were allowed to minister. The temple environs included a number of porticos and courts. One was designated especially for women (and included the treasury, 12:41), another for men. Gentiles could view the temple from an outer area. Actually, even Jesus could not enter the sanctuary because He was not an Aaronic priest.

12:36, 37 David himself said by the Holy Spirit is Jesus’ clear affirmation of the doctrine of inspiration (see 2 Tim. 3:16; 2 Pet. 1:21). Jesus’ argument about the Messiah being Lord as well as Son showed that the Messiah, even though a descendant of David, would be superior to him. In fact, He would be his Lord. He was both man and God at the same time.

12:38-40 The scribes of Jesus’ day were teachers of the law, often dependent on people’s gifts for their support. Some, however, overstepped the bounds of humility, piety, and dignity by flaunting their position of respect and trust. They sought the glory that belonged to God and even took advantage of widows who helped feed and support them.

12:42 By contrast, the widow worshiped God out of deep humility and genuine devotion. Mark notes for his Roman readers that her two mites make a quadrans, a Roman monetary unit mentioned by Mark and Matthew (Matt. 5:26) only once. It was worth just a few cents.

12:43, 44 Jesus’ comparison of the percentages contributed by the rich and the poor reminds us that God measures not how much we give, but how much we retain. Those with greater income have an obligation to return a larger percentage of it to God’s work.

13:1-37 Jesus continued His last week of ministry in Jerusalem by teaching His apostles about future events. This speech is known as the Olivet Discourse, so named because Jesus sat on the Mount of Olives while speaking (v. 3).

13:1, 2 The disciples’ excitement over the temple’s tremendous manner of stones was a natural reaction to splendid and majestic architecture; each stone weighed several tons. Josephus (Antiq. 15.11.3-7) described its magnificence. There was nothing like it in all the world. Begun by Herod the Great in 20 B.C., the temple was later completed by Herod’s descendants some time before A.D. 66. Its beautiful white marble stones with gold ornamentation reached one hundred feet high. Surrounding it were colonnaded walkways, courtyards, and stairways that filled 20 acres of the most prominent landscape in all Jerusalem. Thus Jesus’ remark that not one stone shall be left upon another unquestionably stunned His listeners. This prophecy was fulfilled in A.D. 70 when the Roman General Titus destroyed much of Jerusalem, including the temple.

³ Now as He sat on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, ^cPeter, ^dJames, ^eJohn, and ^fAndrew asked Him privately, ^{4g} “Tell us, when will these things be? And what will be the sign when all these things will be fulfilled?”

The Tribulation

Matt. 24:4-26; Luke 21:8-24

⁵ And Jesus, answering them, began to say: ^h “Take heed that no one deceives you. ⁶ For many will come in My name, saying, ‘I am He,’ and will deceive many. ⁷ But when you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be troubled; for such things must happen, but the end is not yet. ⁸ For nation will rise against nation, and ⁱ kingdom against kingdom. The Second Coming

^{24z} “But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light; ²⁵ the stars of heaven will fall, and the powers in the heavens will be ^a shaken. ^{26b} Then they

13:3, 4 Only Mark, given to detail, mentions the names of the four disciples who questioned Jesus. They wanted to know about (1) chronology—the time of the prophecy’s fulfillment, and (2) circumstances—the sign of its fulfillment. Their questions assumed that the temple’s destruction would signal the end of the present age and the inauguration of the Messiah’s reign. They wondered how near that event was.

13:5-12 The last days will include religious deception, conflict between nations, earthquakes and famines, and persecution of Christians. In the midst of this chaos, the gospel will spread over the entire world.

13:7 The end is the end of the age (see Matt. 24:3, 6, 13, 14).

13:8 The beginnings of sorrows calls forth the imagery of birth pangs. Like labor contractions, these events, filled with great pain, will hasten the joyous birth of the Messiah’s kingdom.

13:11, 12 The promise that the Holy Spirit will guide one’s speech in the hour of trial applies first to the Twelve and only secondarily to others who will experience persecution. But this promise does not assure escape from persecution or even freedom from being put to death.

13:13 He who endures to the end shall be saved is not referring to regeneration or justification but to physical deliverance from tribulation (vv. 19, 20). The ones who physically endure will be delivered into Christ’s messianic kingdom.

13:14-23 These verses answer the disciples’ second question: “What will be the sign when all these things will be fulfilled?” (v. 4).

13:14 The appearance of the abomination of desolation, first described by Daniel (Dan. 9:27; 11:31; 12:11), signals the onslaught of persecution. Standing where it ought not refers to the presence of an idol standing in the temple. Daniel’s prediction primarily referred to Antiochus Epiphanes’ placement of sacrifices to Zeus on the temple’s altar. Some believe that the destruction of the Herodian temple in A.D. 70 fulfilled Jesus’ prediction. Others still await its fulfillment in the blasphemous actions of the Antichrist in the last days (see 2 Thess. 2:3, 4). Let the reader understand points Mark’s audience back to the Hebrew Scriptures, namely the Book of Daniel.

13:19 In those days there will be tribulation. The events of v. 14 signal an unparalleled time of suffering. Matt. 24:31 calls it a great tribulation, and Jer. 30:7 refers to it as “the time of Jacob’s trouble.” 13:22 To deceive, if possible, indicates that the deception will not overcome the elect.

13:24, 25 But points to a marked distinction between the false prophets of v. 22 and the true coming of Christ in v. 26. Great astronomical disturbances will accompany Christ’s glorious return.

13:26 Jesus described His return as the Son of Man coming in the clouds. This passage recalls Dan. 7:13, 14, in which the Son of Man receives the kingdom from God the Father. Dan. 7:27 shows the Son of Man sharing His rule with the saints (Rev. 2:26, 27).

Passion Week—Bethany, the Mount of Olives, and Jerusalem

The Roman road climbed steeply to the crest of the Mount of Olives, affording spectacular views of the Desert of Judea to the east and of Jerusalem across the Kidron Valley to the west.

1 Arrival in Bethany

FRIDAY (John 12:1)

Jesus arrived in Bethany six days before the Passover to spend some time with His friends, Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. On the following Tuesday evening, while Jesus was still in Bethany, Mary anointed His feet with costly perfume as an act of humility. This tender expression indicated Mary's devotion to Jesus and her willingness to serve Him.

2 Sabbath—day of rest

SATURDAY

Not mentioned in the Gospels.

The Lord spent the Sabbath day in traditional fashion with His friends.

3 The "Triumphal" Entry

SUNDAY (Matt. 21:1–11; Mark 11:1–11; Luke 19:28–44; John 12:12–19)

On the first day of the week Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a donkey, fulfilling an ancient prophecy (Zech. 9:9). The crowd welcomed Him with the words of Psalm 118:25, 26, thus ascribing to Him a Messianic title as the agent of the Lord, the coming King of Israel.

4 Clearing of the temple

MONDAY (Matt. 21:12–17; Mark 11:15–18; Luke 19:45–48)

Jesus returned to the temple and found the court of the Gentiles full of traders and money changers making a large profit. Jesus drove them out and overturned their benches and tables.

5 Day of controversy and parables

TUESDAY (Matt. 21:23–24:51; Mark 11:27–13:37; Luke 20:1–21:36)

IN JERUSALEM

Jesus evaded the traps set by the priests.

ON THE MOUNT OF OLIVES OVERLOOKING JERUSALEM

(Tuesday afternoon, exact location unknown)

Jesus taught in parables and warned the people against the Pharisees. He predicted the destruction of Herod's great temple and told His disciples about future events, including His own return.

Day of rest

WEDNESDAY

Although the Gospels do not mention this day, the counting of the days (Mark 14:1; John 12:1) seems to indicate that there was another day about which the Gospels record nothing.

6 Passover, Last Supper

THURSDAY (Matt. 26:17–30; Mark 14:12–26; Luke 22:7–23)

In an upper room Jesus prepared both Himself and His disciples for His death. He gave the Passover meal a new meaning. The loaf of bread and cup of wine represented His body soon to be sacrificed and His blood soon to be shed. And so He instituted the "Lord's Supper." After singing a hymn they went to Gethsemane, where Jesus prayed in agony, knowing what lay ahead for Him.

7 Crucifixion

FRIDAY (Matt. 27; Mark 15; Luke 22:66—23:56; John 18:28—19:37)

Following betrayal, arrest, desertion, false trials, denial, condemnation, beatings, and mockery, Jesus was required to carry His cross to "the Place of a Skull" (Matt. 27:33), where He was crucified with two other prisoners.

8 In the tomb

Jesus' body was placed in the tomb before 6:00 P.M. Friday evening, when the Sabbath began and all work stopped, and it lay in the tomb throughout the Sabbath.

9 Resurrection

SUNDAY (Matt. 28:1–10; Mark 16:1–8; Luke 24:1–49; John 20)

Early in the morning, women went to the tomb and found that the stone closing the tomb's entrance had been rolled back. An angel told them Jesus was alive and gave them a message. Jesus appeared to Mary Magdalene in the garden, to Peter, to two disciples on the road to Emmaus, and later that day to all the disciples but Thomas.

Leaders Plot to Kill Jesus

Matt. 26:1-5; Luke 22:1, 2

14 After ^atwo days it was the Passover and ^bthe Feast of Unleavened Bread. And the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might take Him by ¹trickery and put Him to death.² But they said, “Not during the feast, lest there be an uproar of the people.”

Mary Anoints Jesus

Matt. 26:6-13; John 12:2-8

³And being in Bethany at the house of Simon the leper, as He sat at the table, a woman came having an alabaster flask of very costly ²oil of spikenard. Then she broke the flask and poured it on His head.⁴ But there were some who were indignant among themselves, and said, “Why was this fragrant oil wasted? ⁵For it might have been sold for more than three hundred ^ddenarii and given to the poor.” And they ^ecriticized³ her sharply.

⁶But Jesus said, “Let her alone. Why do you trouble her? She has done a good work for Me. ⁷For you have the poor with you always, and whenever you wish 13:28, 29 Jesus likened the signs of His second coming to the sprouts of growth and leaves on a fig tree. Both point to the glories to come—the full flowering of the earth and the return of Christ.

13:30 Some have argued that this generation refers to Jesus’ contemporaries; others have suggested it means a people, such as the Jews, who are related by blood (see Luke 21:32). Jesus’ statement here may have been intended to incorporate those who would see the initial destruction of Jerusalem as well as those who would be living at the time Jesus returns—those who see the final fulfillment of all these things.

13:31 Concerning what Jesus foretells here about heaven and earth passing away, see also Is. 65:17; 2 Pet. 3:10; Rev. 21:1. Jesus’ words, however, unlike this perishing planet, will never pass away.
13:32 As one who was fully God and at the same time fully man, Jesus possessed all the attributes of deity, including omnipotence and omniscience. He knew what was in people’s hearts (2:8) and He could still the waves (4:39). When Jesus became a man, however, He voluntarily placed certain knowledge in the hands of the Father (Phil. 2:5–8). Of course today, glorified in heaven, Jesus now knows the day and hour of His return.

13:34–36 Jesus’ parable of the absent master of the house is unique to Mark. The point of the parable is that the master could return at any time, so all servants must be vigilant and watchful (Luke 19:11–27). The Romans divided the night into four watches—the evening (6 to 9 P.M.), midnight (9 P.M. to midnight), rooster crowing (midnight to 3 A.M.), and dawn (3 to 6 A.M.).

14:1–42 In this section Mark portrays the preparations for Jesus’ death. The loving anointing at Bethany (vv. 3–9) is placed between the accounts of the treachery of Judas and the chief priests and scribes (vv. 1, 2, 10, 11).

14:1, 2 After two days is the next time designation given since the mention of the events of Tuesday and Wednesday (see 11:12, 20). If the crucifixion occurred on Friday, then the events of this chapter took place on Wednesday evening and Thursday. The Passover was celebrated on the fourteenth day of Nisan (March–April), while the Feast of Unleavened Bread followed on the fifteenth through the twenty-first days of Nisan. The chief priests planned to take Jesus. In the Greek, this verb suggests physically grasping and laying hold of an object. They wanted to arrest Jesus, take Him away, and kill Him. They preferred to do it secretly, away from the crowd. During the feast, the population of Jerusalem would expand greatly as zealous Jews converged on the city in accord with the Law of Moses (Deut. 16:16). Many of Christ’s admirers were present too, so the religious leaders wanted to defer the arrest and avoid conflict. Some obviously feared a Roman reprisal if a public arrest of Jesus resulted in a civic disturbance.

14:3 Simon the leper had been healed at some point in Jesus’ ministry. Mark records a leper’s healing in 1:40–42. Alabaster is a translucent stone still used to make ornamented jewelry boxes and other items of value. Spikenard, a precious perfume imported from India, was made from plants that grow in the high elevations of the Himalayas. This perfume is mentioned in the Song of Solomon (1:12; 4:13, 14). Mark relates that the woman poured it on His head, while John identifies the woman as Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus, and notes that she anointed Jesus’ feet and used her hair as a towel (John 12:3).

14:4, 5 The some who were indignant were Jesus’ disciples (Matt. 26:8), but Judas Iscariot, a thief who despised real givers, was their mouthpiece on this occasion (John 12:4–6). A single denarius represented a day’s wages for a common laborer, so three hundred denarii was a considerable gift.

14:7 Jesus’ statement does not show callousness to the poor (Deut. 15:7–11). His compassion for those overwhelmed by sickness and poverty appears frequently in the Gospels, and He encouraged

Alabaster

This white mineral is easy to carve and polish, so Israelites used it to make beautiful jars and vases. Two varieties of alabaster are found in the Middle East: one is a pure form of gypsum; the other a reddish marble. The first kind crumbles too easily to be used for carving. The second kind has colorful markings and is partially transparent, so it appeals to the eye. Archaeologists have recovered alabaster jars from Greek, Kanan, Egyptian, and Assyrian ruins. Ancient traders often sealed costly perfume in an alabaster jar, allowing the scent to escape only gradually through the jar's porous shell over many years. The Greek poet Theocritus (third century B.C.) reports that the merchants of Palestine used alabaster jars in the same way. Shortly after Jesus' time, the Romans and Greeks called any thin-necked vial an alabastron, or "alabaster," because that was the familiar shape of alabaster perfume jars.

Judas Plans to Betray Jesus

¹³And He sent out two of His disciples and said to them, "Go into the city, and a man will meet you carrying a pitcher of water; follow him. ¹⁴Wherever he goes in, say to the master of the house, 'The Teacher says, "Where is the guest room in which I may eat the Passover with My disciples?"'" ¹⁵Then he will show you a large upper room, furnished and prepared; there make ready for us."

¹⁶So His disciples went out, and came into the city, and found it just as He had said to them; and they prepared the Passover.

The Passover Is Celebrated

Matt. 26:20-25; Luke 22:14-16; John 13:21-30

¹⁷*k* In the evening He came with the twelve. ¹⁸Now as they sat and ate, Jesus others to meet their needs (10:21). But He also wanted people to give freely and of their own volition. No one can coerce a gift from another; no one should criticize another's gift; and no one can read the heart of a giver. A giver's motive is known only to God.

14:8 Mary had tremendous spiritual insight when she anointed Jesus. She anointed His body for burial. She, unlike the disciples, understood that Jesus was soon to die.

14:10, 11 Judas Iscariot decided to profit even further from his association with Jesus by betraying Him. The chief priests changed their plans when Judas came knocking at their door.

14:12 The first day of Unleavened Bread was the fifteenth day of Nisan (Lev. 23:6). However, because the feasts of Passover and Unleavened Bread were so closely associated in the minds of many Jews, Mark clarified the precise time for his readers by adding when they killed the Passover lamb. The lamb was killed on the evening of the fourteenth of Nisan (March–April). Here, Mark is speaking of the events of Thursday.

14:13 Jesus had apparently already made arrangements for a place to eat. To divulge this location in an inconspicuous manner, Jesus sent out two of His disciples, Peter and John (Luke 22:8). It was unusual for a man to be carrying a pitcher of water, since this was normally a woman's task. This man may have been a servant.

14:14, 15 Although the identity of the master of the house is not positively known, there is reason to suspect it may have been Mark's father. The guest room is familiarly described as a large upper room, furnished and prepared. Mark himself may have been the young man of vv. 51, 52. Acts 12:12 indicates that this house was later used as a gathering place for many believers who prayed together. Tradition has it that this was also "the upper room" of Acts 1:13 where over one hundred believers met on Pentecost.

14:18 Two memorial meals were observed as they sat (lit. reclined) and ate. First, they ate the regular Passover commemoration meal, during which time Jesus predicted His betrayal by one of the disciples. Second, after Judas had left (John 13:30), Jesus observed the Last Supper, which anticipated the imminent breaking of His body and shedding of His blood. The phrase one of you who eats with Me will betray Me recalls the messianic prophecy of Ps. 41:9.

said, “Assuredly, I say to you, ¹one of you who eats with Me will betray Me.”

¹⁹ And they began to be sorrowful, and to say to Him one by one, “Is it I?” ⁵ And another said, “Is it I?”

²⁰ He answered and said to them, “It is one of the twelve, who dips with Me in the dish. ^{21m} The Son of Man indeed goes just as it is written of Him, but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been good for that man if he had never been born.”

The Lord's Supper Is Instituted

²²ⁿ And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them and said, “Take, ⁶eat; this is My ^obody.”

²³ Then He took the cup, and when He had given thanks He gave it to them, and they all drank from it. ²⁴ And He said to them, “This is My blood of the ⁷new covenant, which is shed for many. ²⁵ Assuredly, I say to you, I will no longer drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.”

Jesus Prays in Gethsemane

^{32u} Then they came to a place which was named Gethsemane; and He said to His disciples, “Sit here while I pray.”

³³ And He ^vtook Peter, James, and John with Him, and He began to be troubled and deeply distressed. ³⁴ Then He said to them, ^w“My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death. Stay here and watch.”

14:19 In Greek, Is it I?, is actually a negative question that implies a negative answer. The phrase means “It is not I, is it?”

14:20, 21 Matthew and John both identify the culprit as Judas, even though Mark does not (Matt. 26:25; John 13:26). The statement that it would have been good for Judas if he had never been born points to the awful judgment that awaits him. Judas was wholly responsible for his actions even though he acted in accordance with what had long been written of Christ.

14:22 Judas left the room after receiving the dipped portion of bread, prior to Jesus’ act of breaking additional bread and explaining its significance (John 13:30). The Lord’s Supper is for believers only and should be observed solely by those who are in right relationship with Christ. this is My body: Some view the broken bread as representing Jesus’ body, which would soon be broken for their sins. Others interpret this statement more literally.

14:24 Some interpret this is My blood metaphorically, meaning that the contents of this cup represented Jesus’ blood that would be shed for our sins. Others give the statement a more literal interpretation. The sprinkling of blood was required to institute the Mosaic covenant in Ex. 29:12, 16, 20 (see Heb. 9:18–22). In the same way, Jesus’ blood shed on the cross initiated the new covenant: His blood was shed for many. He died on the cross in the place of many sinners from every nation. He paid the price for all of their sins. All those who believe in Him will receive eternal life.

14:25 Jesus came announcing the kingdom of God (1:14, 15), promised the disciples rulership in it (Matt. 19:28), and will receive and administer it with the saints (Dan. 7:13, 14, 27; 2 Tim. 2:11, 12; Rev. 20:4).

14:26 The hymn they sang was no doubt from the Psalms. Frequently Ps. 113–118 were used in connection with the Passover, including “I shall not die, but live, / And declare the works of the LORD” and “The stone which the builders rejected / Has become the chief cornerstone” (Ps. 118:17, 22). Leaving the Upper Room, they crossed the Kidron Valley to the base of the Mount of Olives. Gethsemane

(v. 32) is directly across from the eastern gate (sometimes called the golden gate) of Jerusalem.

14:28 This saying was repeated by one of the angels at the tomb shortly after Jesus’ resurrection (16:7). Nevertheless, the disciples remained in Jerusalem for more than a week before eventually following their risen Shepherd into Galilee (John 20:26; 21:1). Matthew mentions the disciples meeting Jesus at a mountain in Galilee (Matt. 28:16) prior to His ascension at Bethany (Luke 24:50, 51).

14:29 Overconfidence is deadly. Peter did not heed the words of Prov. 16:18, “Pride goes before destruction, / And a haughty spirit before a fall.” Pride was Satan’s downfall, and it can frequently be ours as well. Peter, so emphatic in his denial, soon realized the emptiness of his hasty declaration.

14:30 Only Mark mentions Christ’s prediction of Peter’s denial occurring before the rooster crows twice. The incident would have remained vivid in Peter’s mind when he related the story to Mark. And only Mark records the two crowings of the rooster (14:68, 72).

14:32–42 Sit here while I pray: Prayer consumed much time and energy in Jesus’ earthly work. It crowned both the beginning (Luke 3:21) and ending (Luke 24:50, 51) of His public ministry. When necessary, He would take extraordinary measures to ensure privacy in order to pray (6:46; Matt. 14:22, 23; John 6:14, 15). Though the Lord Jesus did praise God (Luke 10:21) and thank the Father (8:6, 7) in His praying, most of His recorded prayers were petitions and intercessions.

14:32 Gethsemane, though famous today, is mentioned by name only twice in the Bible (here and in Matthew). John, however, informs us that Jesus and the disciples “often met there” and that it was a garden (John 18:1, 2). The admonition to sit here was directed to all but Peter, James, and John (14:33).

14:33 Jesus wanted His closest disciples with Him, to support Him with their presence and their prayers. All of us need such an inner circle. We are meant to live in relation to others, not in isolation.

14:34 Exceedingly sorrowful: The crushing realization of having ³⁵He went a little farther, and fell on the ground, and prayed that if it were possible, the hour might pass from Him. ³⁶And He said, ^x“Abba, Father, ^yall things are possible for You. Take this cup away from Me; ^znevertheless, not what I will, but what You will.”

³⁷Then He came and found them sleeping, and said to Peter, “Simon, are you sleeping? Could you not watch one hour? ^{38a}Watch and pray, lest you enter into temptation. ^bThe spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.”

³⁹Again He went away and prayed, and spoke the same words. ⁴⁰And when He returned, He found them asleep again, for their eyes were heavy; and they did not know what to answer Him.

⁴¹Then He came the third time and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and resting? It is enough! ^cThe hour has come; behold, the Son of Man is being betrayed into the hands of sinners. ^{42d}Rise, let us be going. See, My betrayer is at hand.”

Judas Betrays Jesus

Matt. 26:47–56; Luke 22:47–53; John 18:1–11

^{43e}And immediately, while He was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, with a great multitude with swords and clubs, came from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders. ⁴⁴Now His betrayer had given them a signal, saying, “Whomever I ^fkiss, He is the One; seize Him and lead Him away safely.”

⁴⁵As soon as he had come, immediately he went up to Him and said to Him, “Rabbi, Rabbi!” and kissed Him.

⁴⁶Then they laid their hands on Him and took Him. ⁴⁷And one of those who stood by drew his sword and struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

^{48g}Then Jesus answered and said to them, “Have you come out, as against a robber, with swords and clubs to take Me? ⁴⁹I was daily with you in the temple ^hteaching, and you did not seize Me. But ⁱthe Scriptures must be fulfilled.”

^{50j}Then they all forsook Him and fled.

to bear the sin of the world and to lose, even temporarily, the fellowship of God the Father was nearly more than Jesus’ soul could bear. His extreme spiritual anguish must have affected His mental, emotional, and physical condition as well.

14:35 Jesus must have prayed for some time. Verse 37 mentions one hour. That was time enough for each of His accompanying disciples to be asleep when He returned. Mark records Jesus’ petition that the hour might pass from Him, a reference to the time Jesus would bear the punishment for the sin of the world in His own body, becoming, as it were, sin for all. John uses the expression “the hour” or “His hour” frequently in his Gospel (John 2:4; 7:30; 8:20; 12:23, 27; 13:1; 17:1). Mark uses it only here and in v. 41.

14:36 Abba was what a little child would call his father. Jesus’ relationship to His Father was close and tender. In addition to the term hour (v. 35), this cup foreshadows Christ’s impending death (10:38). The cup figuratively holds the judgment of God for the sin of the world. The wicked will someday drink of “the cup of His indignation” (Rev. 14:10) and of “the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God” (Rev. 19:15).

14:38 Avoiding temptation demands constant vigilance, so much so that Christ included this admonition in the prayer He taught the disciples (Matt. 6:13; Luke 11:4). The dichotomy between spirit and flesh is real. Our fallen human nature, even after conversion, wars against the work of God.

14:39–41 The three apostles were exhorted to watch and pray several times, and no doubt truly desired to uphold their Lord in His deepest hour of need. Yet physical fatigue overcame spiritual alertness.

14:43–15:47 Mark now describes Jesus’ complete rejection by His disciples, the religious leaders, and the people, and His time of separation from the Father.

14:43 Judas came with a great multitude, identified by John as a detachment of troops (John 18:3). It was one-tenth of a Roman legion, or roughly six hundred men. Although the size of such a detachment could vary somewhat, Mark’s mention of a multitude points to a sizable crowd.

14:44 A kiss, usually a sign of affection, was now the signal for betrayal. Lead Him away safely is not an expression of concern for Jesus’ safety, but rather an indication of how difficult it may have been to seize Jesus.

14:47 Only two of Jesus’ disciples had swords that evening (Luke 22:38) and John tells us that Peter carried one of them (John 18:10, 26). Mark graciously avoids identifying Peter as being guilty of this well-meaning but pointless act. John, the eyewitness, identifies the servant as one named Malchus and says it was his right ear that was severed (John 18:10). Peter may have swung wildly, intending to cut off Malchus’s head but succeeding only in wounding him. Luke the physician mentions that Jesus restored Malchus’s ear.

14:48, 49 Jesus did not resist arrest but did shame His captors. The swarms of soldiers, the secluded location, the cover of night, and the swords and clubs all suggested that Jesus was some violent robber or revolutionary. Ironically, this same word is used to describe Barabbas (John 18:40) and the two who were crucified with Jesus (15:27). The cowardice of Jesus’ captors was evident—why else would they arrest a peaceful teacher with such brute force? In the midst of such turmoil, Jesus’ statement that the Scriptures must be fulfilled indicates great confidence and comfort because all was proceeding under God’s sovereign plan. Jesus may have had in mind Zech. 13:7 (“Strike the Shepherd, / And the sheep will be scattered”) in view of His earlier prediction in v. 27 and the context of v. 50. Or perhaps His being “numbered with the transgressors” (Is. 53:12) was in mind, considering His response to His captors in v. 48.

14:50–52 Jesus was abandoned. The 11 disciples were gone, but a certain young man followed Him. Only Mark tells of this incident, and many believe that this young man was Mark himself. How else would he have known this story, and why else should he have included it? If it was Mark, and if the Last Supper was at his home that evening, he could easily have risen from bed, pulled on a linen cloth, and followed Jesus and the disciples.

Abba, Father

(Gk. abba ho patēr) (14:36; Rom. 8:15; Gal. 4:6) Strong’s #5; 3962

The term abba is the Aramaic word for father. The Greek term is added not to tell the reader what the Aramaic means, but to express Jesus’ dependence on His Father as He faced the sufferings of the crucifixion (14:36). No doubt Jesus loved to utter His Father’s name in both forms, first in His cherished mother tongue and then in the common language of His day. In this view the use of both words has a charming simplicity and warmth. Paul uses the phrase “Abba, Father” in Rom. 8:15 and Gal. 4:6 to express the intimate relationship the believer has with God.

¹ ^e Ps. 2:2; Matt. 27:1; Luke 22:66; 23:1; John 18:28; Acts 3:13; 4:26

And they all condemned Him to be der-serving of ^w death.

⁶⁵ Then some began to ^x spit on Him, and to blindfold Him, and to beat Him, and to say to Him, “Prophecy!” And the officers ³ struck Him with the palms of their hands.

Peter Denies Jesus

Matt. 26:69-75; Luke 22:55-62;

John 18:15-18, 25-27

⁶⁶ ^y Now as Peter was below in the courtyard, one of the servant girls of the high priest came. ⁶⁷ And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked at him and said, “You also were with ^z Jesus of Nazareth.”

⁶⁸ But he denied it, saying, “I neither know nor understand what you are saying.” And he went out on the porch, and a rooster crowed.

⁶⁹ ^a And the servant girl saw him again, and began to say to those who stood by, “This is one of them.” ⁷⁰ But he denied it again.

^b And a little later those who stood by said to Peter again, “Surely you are one of them; ^c for you are a Galilean, ⁴ and your ⁵ speech shows it.”

⁷¹ Then he began to curse and swear, “I do not know this Man of whom you speak!”

⁷² ^d A second time the rooster crowed. Then Peter called to mind the word that Jesus had said to him, “Before the rooster crows twice, you will deny Me three times.” And when he thought about it, he wept.

Pilate Tries Jesus

Matt. 27:1, 2, 11-23; Luke 23:1-5, 13-23;

John 18:28-19:15

15 Immediately, ^a in the morning, the chief priests held a consulta-

14:53 The high priest at that time was Caiaphas (A.D. 18–37; John 18:13). The chief priests included others who had formerly been high priests, and the elders consisted of the heads of leading families in the community. The scribes were the Jewish experts and teachers of the commandments of God as well as the traditions of men (7:8, 9, 13). Together this group made up the Sanhedrin, always referred to in the Gospels and Acts as the Council (14:55; 15:1; Acts 5:27; 23:1). 14:55, 56 The Sanhedrin was supposed to administer justice, but this council sought testimony against Jesus to put Him to death. The Jewish authorities had lost to Rome the right to pronounce a death sentence. Thus they eventually had to appeal to Pilate (15:1). Because no real witnesses could testify to any grounds for Jesus’ death, false witness was heard, but it was contradictory. 14:57–59 Finally, some tried to accuse Jesus of plotting to destroy the temple (John 2:19–21), but even that testimony was too inconsistent. 14:61, 62 He kept silent in fulfillment of Is. 53:7. He remained silent before Pilate (15:3–5) and before Herod Antipas as well (Luke 23:9). Finally, when they could find nothing substantial with which to charge Him, Jesus affirmed that He was the Christ, the Son of the Blessed.

14:63, 64 The trial was over, and Jesus stood falsely condemned for blasphemy, which in this context means laying claim to deity. Naturally, this is the boast of a liar or a lunatic—unless He is the Almighty God in human flesh, as Jesus was (see John 1:1–3, 14; Phil. 2:5–8).

14:65 Those who beat and struck Jesus here were not applying the dreaded scourging, which could disembowel an individual. Compare 15:15 where the scourging itself is mentioned.

14:71, 72 He began to curse and swear. Peter may have told Mark to include this report. None of Peter’s actions were commendable, and his swearing illustrates the truth of Jer. 17:9, “The heart is deceitful above all things, / And desperately wicked; / Who can know it?” We are not told that Peter thought at all about Jesus’ words when the rooster crowed the first time. If he did, maybe he tried to conceal his identity more carefully, but to no avail. Each of the other Gospel writers tells us that the rooster crowed immediately upon Peter’s final denial (Matt. 26:74; Luke 22:60; John 18:27). This time he thought about it, and he wept.

15:1–47 Rejected by His disciples, condemned by the council, and denied by Peter, Jesus now faces the merciless Roman authorities and the hostile crowd.

tion with the elders and scribes and the whole council; and they bound Jesus, led Him away, and ^bdelivered Him to Pilate. ^{2c}Then Pilate asked Him, “Are You the King of the Jews?”

He answered and said to him, “It is as you say.”

³And the chief priests accused Him of many things, but He ^danswered nothing. ^{4e}Then Pilate asked Him again, saying, “Do You answer nothing? See how many things ¹they testify against You!” ^{5f}But Jesus still answered nothing, so that Pilate marveled.

⁶Now ^gat the feast he was accustomed to releasing one prisoner to them, whom-ever they requested. ⁷And there was one named Barabbas, who was chained with his fellow rebels; they had committed murder in the rebellion. ⁸Then the multitude, ²crying aloud, began to ask him to do just as he had always done for them. ⁹But Pilate answered them, saying, “Do you want me to release to you the King of the Jews?” ¹⁰For he knew that the chief priests had handed Him over because of envy.

¹¹But ^hthe chief priests stirred up the crowd, so that he should rather release Barabbas to them. ¹²Pilate answered and said to them again, “What then do you want me to do with Him whom you call the ⁱKing of the Jews?”

¹³So they cried out again, “Crucify Him!”

¹⁴Then Pilate said to them, “Why, ^jwhat evil has He done?”

But they cried out all the more, “Crucify Him!”

^{15k} So Pilate, wanting to gratify the crowd, released Barabbas to them; and he delivered Jesus, after he had scourged Him, to be ^lcrucified.

^{16m} Then the soldiers led Him away into the hall called ³Praetorium, and they called together the whole garrison. ¹⁷ And they clothed Him with purple; and they twisted a crown of thorns, put it on His head, ¹⁸ and began to salute Him, “Hail, King of the Jews!” ¹⁹ Then they ⁿ struck Him on the head with a reed and spat on Him; and bowing the knee, they worshiped Him. ²⁰ And when they had ^o mocked Him, they took the purple off Him, put His own clothes on Him, and led Him out to crucify Him.

^{21p} Then they compelled a certain man, Simon a Cyrenian, the father of Alexander and Rufus, as he was coming out of the country and passing by, to bear His cross. ^{22q} And they brought Him to the place Golgotha, which is translated, Place of a Skull. ^{23r} Then they gave Him wine mingled with myrrh to drink, but He did not take it.

Jesus Is Crucified

Matt. 27:35-56; Luke 23:33-49; John 19:18, 23-30

²⁴ And when they crucified Him, ^s they divided His garments, casting lots for them to determine what every man should take.

²⁵ Now ^t it was the third hour, and they

15:1-3 Rather than murdering Jesus privately, the Jewish politicians decided to seek Pilate's approval so they could execute the “blasphemer” legally. Their charges included many things but apparently centered on treason. Jesus claimed to be a king, thus defying Caesar (Luke 23:2). This crime was punishable in the Roman Empire by death.

15:6-8 Pilate must have concluded that the charges against Jesus were groundless, for Mark tells us he desired to release Jesus (v. 9). So his readers could understand the complexity of the situation, Mark parenthetically explains the local custom of releasing a prisoner during the feast as well as the facts about Barabbas. Although Matthew calls Barabbas a “notorious” prisoner, only Mark classifies him with rebels who had committed murder.

15:9, 10 Pilate attempted to release Jesus, for he knew the charges against Jesus were insubstantial. Pilate adeptly judged the Jewish leaders' envy of Jesus. He mocked them subtly by referring to Jesus as the King of the Jews.

15:15 Pilate had Jesus scourged: This word, used only twice in the NT (Matt. 27:26 and here), describes a punishment more severe than flogging or beating. The prisoner was beaten with a whip fashioned of numerous strips of leather attached to a handle. To the leather strips were tied sharp pieces of bone and metal, which could rip and tear one's skin to shreds.

15:16 The hall called Praetorium refers to the governor's official residence. Praetorium is a Latin word found eight times in the NT. The word is always transliterated in the NKJV, except in Phil. 1:13, where it is translated palace guard. The KJV sometimes translates Praetorium as judgment hall. The whole garrison, a Roman cohort, consisted of up to six hundred men. Those who gathered on this occasion were probably only those nearby, though still a considerable number.

15:17 The purple robe mocked Jesus' claim to be a king. The crown of thorns was no doubt a twisted, dried vine with sharp thorns more than an inch in length. Any thorn prick is extremely painful.

15:18-21 They led Him out to crucify Him indicates that the place of crucifixion was outside the city itself (see Hebrews 13:12). All three synoptic Gospels identify Jesus' cross bearer as Simon of Cyrene, but only Mark adds that he was the father of Alexander and Rufus. These men may have been known to Mark's Roman audience, and it is interesting that Paul greets a Rufus in Rom. 16:13.

15:22 Golgotha is an Aramaic word meaning Place of a Skull. The hill may have resembled the bony features of a skull or was called this because it was a place of death. The name Calvary comes from the Latin word for skull. This place was very near the city wall (John 19:20).

15:23 This potion of wine (or vinegar) mingled with myrrh was intended to numb the pain. Jesus refused it, choosing to suffer the complete pain.

15:24 Casting lots for and dividing His garments fulfilled the prophecy of Ps. 22:18.

15:25 The third hour was 9 A.M., using a common Jewish system of marking the day. Jesus suffered on the cross until at least 3 P.M., the ninth hour of v. 34. And they crucified Him was a terse summary crucified Him. ²⁶ And ^u the inscription of His ⁴ accusation was written above:

²⁷ ^v With Him they also crucified two robbers, one on His right and the other on His left. ²⁸ ⁵ So the Scripture was fulfilled which says, ^w “And He was numbered with the transgressors.”

²⁹ And ^x those who passed by blasphemed Him, ^y wagging their heads and saying, “Aha! ^z You who destroy the temple and build it in three days, ³⁰ save Yourself, and come down from the cross!”

³¹ Likewise the chief priests also, ^a mocking among themselves with the scribes, said, “He saved ^b others; Himself He cannot save. ³² Let the Christ, the King of Israel, descend now from the cross, that we may see and ⁶ believe.”

Even ^c those who were crucified with Him reviled Him.

³³ Now ^d when the sixth hour had come, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. ³⁴ And at the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, “Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani?” which is translated, ^e “My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?”

Jesus Is Buried

Matt. 27:57-61; Luke 23:50-55;

⁴² ⁿ Now when evening had come, because it was the Preparation Day, that is, the day before the Sabbath, ⁴³ Joseph of Arimathea, a prominent council member, who ^o was himself waiting for the kingdom of God, coming and taking courage, went in to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. ⁴⁴ Pilate marveled that He was al-for Mark's Roman readers, for they knew quite well the horrors of crucifixion.

15:26 The inscription placed over Jesus' head appeared in three languages (John 19:20): Hebrew (Aramaic); Latin, the official language of government; and Greek, the common language spoken by many. If we piece together details from all four Gospels, the complete sign must have read, “This is Jesus the Nazarene, the King of the Jews.”

15:27-31 Jesus was mocked and forsaken by nearly everyone—Pilate, Herod, soldiers, Jewish leaders, the crowd, even the robbers on either side (v. 32).

15:32 Jesus was called mockingly the Christ, or Messiah, by the chief priests and scribes. Their offer to believe in Christ if He would descend . . . from the cross was empty mockery. True evidence alone does not turn a soul toward God. A sinful heart must be convicted of the need of God's salvation.

15:33 This darkness was a supernatural darkening of the skies.

15:34 Of the seven cries from the cross, this fourth one was the most passionate. Quoting Ps. 22:1, Jesus expressed the agony of being abandoned by His Father as He alone bore the sin of the world. Jesus' spiritual agony was intense, yet He still addressed His Father personally as My God.

15:35, 36 Those who mistook Jesus' words as a call for the prophet Elijah may have been unable to understand Him. The dehydration caused by crucifixion often made speech difficult. A sip from the sponge full of sour wine was supplied because Jesus said “I thirst” (John 19:28). This allowed Jesus to utter His final two sayings, “It is finished” (John 19:30) and “Father, into Your hands I commit My spirit” (Luke 23:46).

15:37 Jesus breathed His last after a loud conscious statement. Frequently, crucifixion produced a coma or unconsciousness prior to death, but Jesus was in control of all His faculties until the moment when He voluntarily gave up His life (see John 10:17, 18).

15:38 The significance of the supernatural tearing of the veil of the temple is that access to God is now open to all. No longer through priests and the blood of bulls and goats do we approach God, but through the torn veil, which also symbolizes Jesus' broken and torn body (Heb. 10:20). Top to bottom reminds us that God Himself removed the barrier.

15:39 Only Mark uses (here and in vv. 44, 45) the Latin term centurion, a Roman captain in charge of one hundred men. The centurion's statement that Jesus was the Son of God can be construed as a confession of belief in Jesus' deity. But the Son could also be translated a son.

15:40, 41 These women were true disciples of Christ. They had ministered to Jesus' needs and would be the first witnesses of His resurrection. Mark does not name Jesus' mother here but includes other prominent women. Three Marys were present along with many other women, and Salome, whom only Mark mentions by name (see also 16:1). Salome was the wife of Zebedee and the mother of the disciples James and John (Matt. 27:56). She may have been the unnamed sister of Jesus' mother (John 19:25). If so, James and John were Jesus' first cousins.

15:42 Mark explains for his Roman audience, unacquainted with Jewish customs, that the crucifixion took place on the Preparation Day, that is, Friday.

15:43 Joseph of Arimathea (a town 20 miles northwest of Jerusalem) is identified as a prominent council (Sanhedrin) member. He, according to Luke 23:51, “had not consented to their decision and deed.” To ask Pilate for the body of Jesus was not just a gesture of kindness. It was an act of bravery, which placed Joseph in opposition to the Sanhedrin and identified him as a follower of Jesus.

15:44, 45 It was unusual for one to die so soon from crucifixion.

ready dead; and summoning the centurion, he asked him if He had been dead for some time. ⁴⁵ So when he found out from the centurion, he granted the body to Joseph. ⁴⁶ Then he bought fine linen, took Him down, and wrapped Him in the linen. And he laid Him in a tomb which had been hewn out of the rock, and rolled a stone against the door of the tomb. ⁴⁷ And Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph observed where He was laid.

The Resurrection of Jesus

16 Now ^a when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome ^b bought spices, that they might come and anoint Him. ^{2c} Very early in the morning, on the first day of the week, they came to the tomb when the sun had risen. ³ And they said among themselves, “Who will roll away the stone from the door of the tomb for us?” ⁴ But when they looked up, they saw that the stone had been rolled away—for it was very large. ^{5d} And entering the tomb, they saw a young man clothed in a long white robe sitting on the right side; and they were alarmed.

^{6e} But he said to them, “Do not be alarmed. You seek Jesus of Nazareth, who

The Appearances of Jesus

Luke 24:13-48; John 20:1-10

⁹ ³ Now when He rose early on the first day of the week, He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, ^h out of whom He had cast seven demons. ¹⁰ ⁱ She went and told those who had been with Him, as they mourned and wept. ¹¹ ^j And when they heard that He was alive and had been seen by her, they did not believe.

1 Cor. 15:5

Frequently bodies remained on crosses for several days. Joseph's haste to remove the body could have been based on Deut. 21:23, which instructs that persons put to death on a tree should have their corpses removed and buried the same day.

15:46 Joseph, assisted by another formerly silent disciple, Nicodemus (John 19:39), wrapped Jesus' body in fine linen, apparently encased with a large amount (about one hundred pounds) of a gummy, sticky resinous mixture of myrrh and aloes to retard decay and to mask the stench of a decaying body. John notes that this was the Jewish custom of burial (John 19:40). The stone used to cover the opening of the tomb may not have been more than three or four feet in diameter, since tomb openings were not usually as tall as doorways.

16:1-20 Mark's readers, who acknowledged Jesus as the Son of God, have seen Him cruelly rejected and killed. Now His resurrection fills those readers with hope and joy.

16:1, 2 The Sabbath is Saturday. The next day is the first day of the week, Sunday. The spices would conceal the stench of decay and were a symbol of the care and concern these women had for their beloved Master.

16:3, 4 The women thought about how large the stone was and how difficult it would be to dislodge it from the entrance. They expressed no concern over the seal on the tomb or the presence of a Roman guard, apparently unaware of the precautions the Jews and Romans had taken (Matt. 27:62-66).

16:5, 6 Mark does not identify the young man who appeared in a long white robe as an angel, but clearly he is there to explain the mystery that confronts the women. The Greek voice of He is risen, which is passive, indicates that an act of God accomplished the raising up of Jesus.

16:7 Chosen by God as the first human witnesses to Christ's resurrection, these women were commanded to go and tell. The special mention of Peter signifies that Christ still accepted him, even though he had denied the Lord three times.

16:8 Initially, the women's fear caused them to say nothing to anyone. They recovered shortly, however, and brought word to the 11 disciples, including Peter (16:10; Matt. 28:8, 9; John 20:2).

16:9-20 The authenticity of these last 12 verses has been disputed. Those who doubt Mark's authorship of this passage point to two fourth-century manuscripts that omit these verses. Others believe that they should be included because even these two manuscripts leave space for all or some of these verses, indicating that their copyists knew of their existence. The difficulty is in knowing whether the space is for this longer version of Mark's ending or for one of the alternate endings found in the manuscripts. Practically all other manuscripts contain vv. 9-20, and this passage is endorsed by such early church fathers as Justin Martyr (A.D. 155), Tatian (A.D. 170), and Irenaeus (A.D. 180). It does not seem likely that Mark would end his story on a note of fear (v. 8).

16:9 Although the women had been commissioned to tell of Jesus' resurrection, none had actually seen Jesus until He appeared first to Mary Magdalene. Only this verse and Luke 8:2 mention Jesus' exorcism of seven demons from Mary, which would explain her strong devotion to Him.

16:11 Jesus' resurrection was evidently not expected by anyone in spite of His repeated predictions. The Resurrection itself resulted in faith, rather than the expectation thereof.

16:12 Jesus' appearance in another form may indicate that He appeared differently to the two on the road than He had appeared to Jesus' followers before. The identity of the two who walked is not entirely stated, either here or in the longer account in Luke 24:13-35. However, one is identified as Cleopas (Luke 24:18), and it has been suggested that he was accompanied by his wife.

16:14 After Judas' demise (Matt. 27:3-5; Acts 1:16-18), the disciples were known for a while as the eleven. Jesus upbraided these disciples for not believing the accounts of eyewitnesses, but He pronounced a blessing on "those who have not seen and yet have believed" (John 20:29).

(Gk. euangelion) (1:1, 14; 16:15; Matt. 4:23; Rom. 1:1; 1 Pet. 4:17) Strong's #2098

This Greek word was originally used to describe the “good news” of military victory brought from a messenger to his commander. It then came to mean simply a “good message.” In the NT it means the Good News of salvation: Jesus Christ came to earth to conquer the sin and evil which plague this world by living a sinless life and sacrificially offering Himself on the Cross. In obedience to Christ’s command (16:15), the apostles continued to share this Good News with the rest of the world because it is Christ’s life-giving message to a world that is dying in its sins.

16:15 The Great Commission is pronounced here and in each of the other three Gospels (Matt. 28:19, 20; Luke 24:47; John 20:21).
16:16 He who does not believe will be condemned. Those who believe in Christ will be saved.
16:17, 18 These signs were evident in the early church. Casting out demons demonstrated victory over Satan (Acts 16:18). Speaking with new tongues began at Pentecost (Acts 2:4–11). Healing the sick occurred in several instances, including Acts 28:8. Taking up serpents occurred in Paul’s encounter with a poisonous snake, which did not produce ill effects (Acts 28:1–6). The NT does not record Christians drinking anything deadly without harm.
16:19 The final sign that Jesus was the Son of God is that He was received up into heaven to be seated at the right hand (the position of authority and power) of God.
16:20 The obedience of Christ’s disciples who went out and preached everywhere challenges us to engage in that same endeavor. We can be confident that as the Lord was working with them, He will also work with us.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO LUKE

SOMETIMES WE NEED to take a step back to gain perspective. It is one thing for three of Jesus' twelve disciples to write about the life of Christ; it is quite another for someone who did not know Him to write about Him. Luke never met Jesus, yet chose to follow Him. An obviously educated man who, as Colossians 4:14 tells us, was a physician, Luke learned all that he could about Jesus and shared his findings with us. Thus his Gospel provides a "step back," a unique perspective on Jesus' birth, ministry, death, and resurrection.

Author Neither Luke nor Acts has a byline, so we are left to deduce the author's identity. The author writes that he was not an eyewitness to the events surrounding Jesus but had gathered the reports of others. On the other hand, the author was present with Paul at some of the events described in Acts, events that belong to the "we" sections of Acts (see Acts 16:10–17; 20:5–15; 21:1–18; 27:1—28:16). So the author must have been a lately converted Christian who knew Paul and sometimes traveled with him.

Early Christian writings, from the works of Justin Martyr to Tertullian, identify the author as Luke, an identification that was firmly in place by the third century A.D. Luke was an educated man by ancient standards. He was capable of writing in high Greek style, and Colossians 4:10–14 seems to indicate that Luke was not "of the circumcision," that is, not Jewish. If so, Luke would be the only Gentile author of a New Testament book. Tradition says that after accompanying Paul on some of his missionary journeys, Luke settled in Philippi, investing his life in the ministry of the Philippian church.

Date Neither Luke nor Acts indicates when they were written, so this too must be deduced. The last event recorded in the Book of Acts is the first Roman imprisonment of Paul; therefore, the earliest Acts could have been written is A.D. 62. Most scholars choose between two times for the Gospel: early to late sixties, or mid-seventies to late eighties. Two factors determine the choice: the date of the other Gospels and the portrayal of the fall of Jerusalem in Luke.

Almost everyone considers Luke the second or third Gospel to be written, though they debate whether Mark or Matthew was the first. The first Gospel, whether Matthew or Mark, is usually dated in the sixties. Those who place Matthew and Mark in the sixties often date Luke after A.D. 70, to allow time for the circulation of Matthew and Mark. Another reason given for dating Luke after A.D. 70 is the claim that Luke presents Jesus' predictions of the fall of Jerusalem (19:41–44; 21:20–24) in such a way as to indicate that the city had already fallen.

Neither of these arguments is decisive. Given that the major figures of the early church had contact with one another, there is no reason to assume that it took a decade for a major Gospel to get into circulation. The prediction of the fall of Jerusalem in Luke is unique among the Gospel accounts in focusing on the fall of the city and not merely the destruction of the temple. Thus what Jesus describes is a judgment which is the result of covenant unfaithfulness, similar to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. The fact that Luke includes Jesus' prediction of a second fall of the city does not mean the city had already been destroyed when the book was written. Since the sequel to Luke, the Book of Acts, does not record either Peter's death, Paul's death, or even the fall of Jerusalem (in the face of Jesus' clear prediction of it), it is most likely that Luke was written in the early to mid-sixties. A date in the later sixties is also possible.

Characteristics The Gospel of Luke is unique in several ways. It is the only Gospel that has a sequel, Acts. Both Luke and Acts include an account of the Ascension, an event that only Luke describes in detail. Second, Luke is the longest of the four Gospels. Third, Luke records a wide variety of miracles, teaching, and parables, making it the fullest portrait of Jesus' ministry. Much of the material in chapters 9–19 appears only in Luke; in all, about one-third of the Gospel of Luke is unique. Fourth, Luke is the only Gospel addressed to an individual. Luke writes for Theophilus, who was probably a Gentile believer.

For Luke, Jesus is the promised Messiah (1:31–35), the Son of God (9:35), the Servant through whom God works (4:16–18), and the Lord who is called to sit at God's right hand exerting His authority and giving the Spirit to those who believe (compare 22:69 with Acts 2:30–36). Though aspects of God's plan are fulfilled in Jesus' First Coming, other parts of the plan remain to be fulfilled when Jesus returns (21:5–36; Acts 3:14–26).

Luke wrote his Gospel to reassure Theophilus, a Gentile and a new believer, that God was still at work in the Christian community founded by Jesus. Luke presents God's grace as revealed in Jesus' ministry on earth. He emphasizes that this grace is available to Gentiles, even though the promises relating to Jesus' ministry stretch back into Israel's history (1:1–4). For this reason Luke also concentrates on Jesus' relationship to the nation and leaders of Israel. The rejection of Israel does not mean the failure of God's plan. On the contrary, although they did not know it, their rejection was part of God's plan from the beginning (Acts 2:22–39). In fact, persecution of the Christian community would be the means by which the church would spread the Good News throughout the world. Jesus Himself had predicted that this would happen (24:45–48).

Structure and Overview The first two chapters of Luke emphasize the Old Testament and its promises of a Messiah, while 3:1—4:13 demonstrate that Jesus is the Messiah, who can resist the Evil One. Then, 4:14—9:50 introduce Jesus' power and teaching. In these chapters, Luke records Jesus' claims to authority and the numerous miracles that supported them. Even with these miracles as evidence, the people rejected Jesus while the disciples' faith in Him steadily grew. The growing rift between Jesus and the Jewish leadership is seen in 9:51—19:44. This breach is emphasized most in chapters 9–13, but in chapters 14–19 attention turns to Jesus' instruction of His disciples. The last section (19:45—24:53) portrays the final controversies, the trial, the death of Jesus, and the Resurrection and Ascension. The book ends with Jesus telling the disciples to wait for the coming of the Spirit. By now, they should have realized that everything that had taken place in Jesus' life was promised in the Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms (24:43–49). Jesus is the promised Messiah. Forgiveness of sin can be obtained only through Him. The disciples were witnesses to this fact; their mission was to share this Good News with all nations, not merely the Jews. Jesus gave them this task, but He also provided them with the power to carry it out (24:47). Thus it is clear that Luke's Gospel centers on God's plan to provide salvation to the world. It closes anticipating the spread of the gospel that is recorded in its sequel, the Book of Acts.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Just like we'd expect from a family doctor, Dr. Luke sensitively describes Jesus as One who reaches out personally and heals those who are mercilessly caged by devastating illnesses. As a person, He is concerned with people. Whereas Matthew likes to refer to Jesus as the Son of David and Mark refers to Him as the Son of God, Luke's favorite expression is "the Son of Man."

Jesus' humanity and compassion are repeatedly stressed by the author. This, coupled with Luke's portrayal of Jesus' sinless perfection, set up his logical conclusion. Because Jesus is the only perfect person born of a woman and because He identifies compassionately with the plight of suffering sinful people, He alone is qualified to carry our sorrows, bear our sin, and offer us the priceless gift of salvation.

The Purpose and Method of Luke's Gospel

Inasmuch as many have taken in hand to set in order a narrative of those ^athings which ¹have been fulfilled among us, ²just as those who ^bfrom the beginning were ^ceyewitnesses and ministers of the word ^ddelivered them to us, ³it seemed good to me also, having ²had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write to you an orderly account, ^emost excellent Theophilus, ^{4f}that you may know the certainty of those things in which you were instructed.

Zacharias Ministers in the Temple

⁵There was ^gin the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, ^hof the division of ⁱAbijah. His ^jwife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. ⁶And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless. ⁷But they had no child, because Elizabeth was barren, and they were both well advanced in years.

An Angel Announces the Birth of John the Baptist

¹¹Then an angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing on the right side of ^mthe altar of incense. ¹²And when Zacharias saw him, ⁿhe was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

¹³But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zacharias, for your prayer is heard; and your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and ^oyou shall call his name John. ¹⁴And you will have joy and gladness, and ^pmany will rejoice at his birth. ¹⁵For he will be ^qgreat in the sight of the Lord, and ^rshall drink neither wine nor strong drink. 1:1, 2 many have taken in hand: Luke makes it clear that he was not the first to write a narrative of the ministry of Jesus. The theme of God's plan is introduced with the note that the subject of such narratives was the things which have been fulfilled. The sources for these narratives were eyewitnesses who delivered their testimony to the church. Deliver refers to the transmission of an authoritative account. These verses suggest that Luke was not an eyewitness to the events of Jesus' ministry, but that he had access to statements of those who were.

1:3 it seemed good to me also: Luke did not express dissatisfaction with previous narratives of Jesus' ministry, but he identified with those who went before him. having had perfect understanding: This phrase represents two of the four characteristics that describe Luke's work in this verse. Luke investigated his topic and he did it with care. He did not claim to know everything about Jesus, but what he described was studied and treated accurately. of all things: The third characteristic of Luke's work was its thoroughness. from the very first: The fourth characteristic of Luke was his interest in even the earliest events tied to Jesus' life. an orderly account: Luke gave his narrative a basic structure. Not every part is in chronological sequence, but the broad sequence is Christ's ministry in Galilee, His travel to Jerusalem, and His struggles in Jerusalem. The order of events shows how Jesus gradually revealed Himself and how the opposition to Him grew.

1:4 certainty: The purpose of this term was to give assurance to Theophilus, a young believer. It is likely that Theophilus was a Gentile, since so much of Luke and Acts is concerned with Jewish-Gentile relationships (Acts 10; 11; 15). He not only needed to know the truth and accuracy of what the church taught, but also needed to be reassured. He might well have been wondering what he as a Gentile was doing in a movement which was originally Jewish, especially when so many Israelites were rejecting the message. Luke assured Theophilus and his other readers that Jesus is the Messiah. He is worthy of everyone's worship because He is the Son of the living God.

1:5 King Herod, who was appointed by the Roman emperor, reigned from 37 to 4 B.C. over Judea, Samaria, Galilee, and much of Perea and Syria. The events of vv. 5-25 probably occurred around 6 B.C. Abijah: The priesthood of Israel was separated into 24 divisions, of which the family of Abijah was one (see 1 Chr. 24:10; Neh. 12:17).

1:6 righteous before God: This phrase indicates that the priest and his wife were recognized by God as believers. They walked faithfully with God and kept His law (see Deut. 6:24, 25).

1:7 Being barren was a grave disappointment in ancient Israel (see 1 Sam. 1). The Scriptures record a number of times when God blessed a barren woman by giving her a son (see Gen. 18:11; 21:2, 3; 1 Sam. 1; 2).

1:8, 9 Zacharias served for one week twice a year at the temple, one of perhaps 18,000 priests who served in a year. Offering the incense was something a priest could do only once in his career. It was a great moment for Zacharias, all the more so because of the sovereign plan God had for him and his family.

1:10 The hour of incense came twice a day, at 9 A.M. and 3:30 P.M. Probably the afternoon offering is in view here.

1:12 fear fell upon him: To be afraid at the presence of God or His messenger (v. 11) is common in Scripture (see 1:29, 65; 2:9; 5:8-10, 26; 7:16; 8:37; 9:34; see also Ex. 15:16; Dan. 8:16, 17; Acts 5:5, 11; 19:17).

1:13 Do not be afraid: Angels often calmed the fears of those to whom they appeared (see v. 30; 2:10; Gen. 15:1; Dan. 10:12; Matt. 1:20; Acts 18:9; 27:24; Rev. 1:17). your prayer is heard: The angel was probably referring to the prayer for the redemption of Israel that Zacharias had recited in the Holy Place, or to his earlier prayers for a child. you shall call his name John: When God names a child, greatness usually follows (see Gen. 16:11; 1 Kin. 13:2; Is. 7:14).

1:14 Joy is a major theme throughout the writings of Luke (see vv. 44, 47, 58; 2:10; 10:20; 13:17; 15:5-7; 19:6; 24:52; Acts 5:41).

1:15 great in the sight of the Lord: John had a great place in the plan of God, but it was inferior to Jesus' own unique role. John was a prophet, and as such he was filled with the Holy Spirit from before birth (see Is. 49:1; Jer. 1:5). Being filled with the Spirit means being directed by Him and obedient to Him (see Eph. 5:18). wine nor strong drink: As with Samuel and Samson, a vow was imposed on the child that indicated his special consecration to the Lord. Unlike Samson and Samuel, this vow was imposed by God, not by his mother. It is not clear whether this was a Nazirite vow, since nothing is said about refraining from cutting his hair (see Num. 6:1-4; Judg. 13:5, 7).

1:16 The prophet John promised reconciliation to God for those who responded to his call to repent (3:1-14). Turn is a biblical term for conversion, indicating a change of orientation, a turning away from sin and towards God (see 1 Thess. 1:9, 10). John's mission was to prepare Israel for its Messiah.

children of Israel to the Lord their God.

Zacharias Is Unable to Speak

¹⁸And Zacharias said to the angel, “How shall I know this? For I am an old man, and my wife is well advanced in years.”

¹⁹And the angel answered and said to him, “I am ^vGabriel, who stands in the presence of God, and was sent to speak to you and bring you ^dthese glad ^wtidings.
²⁰But behold, ^xyou will be mute and not able to speak until the day these things take place, because you did not believe my words which will be fulfilled in their own time.”

²¹And the people waited for Zacharias, and marveled that he lingered so long in the temple. ²²But when he came out, he could not speak to them; and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple, for he beckoned to them and remained speechless.

²³So it was, as soon as [#]the days of his service were completed, that he departed to his own house. ²⁴Now after those days his wife Elizabeth conceived; and she hid herself five months, saying, ²⁵“Thus the Lord has dealt with me, in the days when

Gabriel Announces Christ's Birth

²⁶Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent by God to a city of Galilee named Nazareth, ²⁷to a virgin ^abetrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David. The virgin's name was Mary. ²⁸And having come in, the angel said to her, ^b“Rejoice, highly favored one, ^cthe Lord is with you; ⁵blessed are you among women!”

²⁹But ⁶when she saw him, ^dshe was troubled at his saying, and considered what manner of greeting this was. ³⁰Then the angel said to her, “Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found ^efavor with God. ³¹^fAnd behold, you will conceive in your womb and bring forth a Son, and ^gshall call His name Jesus. ³²He will be great, ^hand will be called the Son of the Highest; and ⁱthe Lord God will give Him the ^jthrone of His ^kfather David. ³³^lAnd He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of His kingdom there will be no end.”

³⁴Then Mary said to the angel, “How can this be, since I ⁷do not know a man?”

³⁵And the angel answered and said to her, ^m“The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Highest will

1:17 in the spirit and power of Elijah: John was the forerunner of the Messiah. This description recalls Mal. 3:1; 4:5. John's ministry paralleled Elijah's, for both prophets called Israel to repentance (see 1 Kin. 17; 18). As with many elements in God's plan, there is an initial fulfillment and a later fulfillment yet to come, which are distinct but related. Both John and Jesus may suggest the return of an Elijah-like figure in the end times (see Matt. 17:11–13; John 1:21). a people prepared: The prepared people are those whom God has drawn to Himself for His special purposes.

1:18 How shall I know: Zacharias expressed his doubt and asked for a sign, a lack of faith that is addressed in vv. 64, 65. Zacharias completely ignored the divine source of the promise and the angelic messenger who delivered it.

1:19 One of two angels named in the Bible, Gabriel was often a messenger who communicated God's plan (see Dan. 8:16; 9:21). Michael is the other angel whose name is given (see Dan. 10:13, 21; Jude 9; Rev. 12:7).

1:20 mute: It seems that Zacharias was not only unable to speak, but unable to hear as well (vv. 62, 63). The arrival of the child would break Zacharias's silence. The priest would be filled with joy, praising God for His faithfulness (see Zacharias's song in vv. 68–79).

1:21 The people at the temple awaited the Aaronic blessing of the high priest (see Num. 6:24–26). The conclusion of the offering occurred only after the priests emerged from the Holy Place.

1:23 Zacharias's house was located in the hill country south of Jerusalem (v. 39).

1:24 Why Elizabeth hid herself is not clear. The most likely suggestion is that she withdrew to give praise to God, as v. 25 suggests, and to prepare privately for the coming of her special child.

1:25 my reproach: In ancient Israel barrenness was seen as a cause for shame. The “opening of the womb” indicated God's grace (see Gen. 21:6; 30:23; 1 Sam. 1; 2; Ps. 128:3). In this verse, Elizabeth praises the Lord for mercifully blessing her even as He moved His plan for all of human history forward.

1:26–38 Luke's account of the announcement of Jesus' birth tells the story from Mary's perspective, while Matt. 1:18–25 focuses on Joseph and cites Is. 7:14. The announcement in Luke parallels similar announcements in the OT (see Gen. 16:7–14; 18:1–15; Judg. 13:3–23).

1:26 In the sixth month means six months after John the Baptist was conceived. Nazareth was a little village in Galilee, a region north of Jerusalem.

1:28 blessed are you among women: Mary was blessed because she received God's grace, not because she bestowed it.

1:32 The Highest is another way of referring to the majesty of God. David: Jesus fulfilled (and will fulfill) God's promise to David concerning an unending dynasty. The OT develops in detail this promise of an eternal Davidic kingdom (see 2 Sam. 7:8–16; 1 Kin. 2:24, 25; Ps. 2:1–12; 89:14, 19–29, 35–37; 110:1–7; 132:11, 12; Is. 9:6, 7; 11:1–5, 10; Jer. 23:5, 6). First-century Israelites based their hopes on these promises, but their focus was on a political and earthly kingdom.

1:34 How can this be: Mary did not ask for a sign, so this remark does not reflect unbelief. She accepts her role without question in v. 38, and thus is a model of faith even though she does not fully understand everything. The work of God in Mary introduces something unknown before or after: the birth into the human race of One who is both God and man.

1:35 The Holy Spirit will come upon you: This is a direct declaration of Jesus' divine conception. The association of the Spirit with power is frequent for Luke (v. 17; 4:14; Acts 1:8; 6:8–10; 10:38). The child's conception means He is uniquely set apart, the Holy One, a phrase which is here not so much a title as a description of Jesus' sinless nature.

overshadow you; therefore, also, that Holy One who is to be born will be called ⁿthe Son of God.³⁶ Now indeed, Elizabeth your relative has also conceived a son in her old age; and this is now the sixth month for her who was called barren.³⁷ For ^owith God nothing will be impossible.”

³⁸ Then Mary said, “Behold the maidservant of the Lord! Let it be to me according to your word.” And the angel departed from her.

Mary Visits Elizabeth

³⁹ Now Mary arose in those days and went into the hill country with haste, ^pto a city of Judah, ⁴⁰and entered the house of Zacharias and greeted Elizabeth. ⁴¹ And it happened, when Elizabeth heard the greeting of Mary, that the babe leaped in her womb; and Elizabeth was ^qfilled with the Holy Spirit. ⁴² Then she spoke out with a loud voice and said, ^r“Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb! ⁴³ But why is this granted to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? ⁴⁴ For indeed, as soon as the voice of your greeting sounded in my ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy. ⁴⁵ ^sBlessed is she who ^tbelieved, for there will be a fulfillment of those things which were told her from the Lord.”

1:37 nothing will be impossible: God keeps His promises regardless of how difficult the circumstances may seem. Gabriel’s statement about God should be our statement of faith: Nothing is impossible with God.

1:38 Maidservant suggests humility before the Lord and a readiness for faithful and obedient service, which should characterize every believer. Paul uses the masculine form of this word to describe himself (see Rom. 1:1).

1:41 the babe leaped in her womb: Mary’s coming brought a reaction from John in Elizabeth’s womb. The Messiah’s forerunner gave testimony to the Messiah even before he was born. The angel had predicted to Zacharias that his baby would be filled with the Holy Spirit even from the womb (v. 15).

1:43 why is this granted to me: Elizabeth marveled at the grace that allowed her a role in God’s great plan. She knew God owed her nothing; but she also knew that God had mercifully given her much.

1:45 Mary’s faith contrasts with the doubt of Zacharias. Blessed is she who believed: Mary’s response of faith was exemplary. She was simply waiting on God to bring His promises to fulfillment.

1:46 The following hymn (vv. 46–55) gets its name, the “Magnificat,” from the Latin word for magnifies. One of four hymns in the first two chapters of Luke (vv. 67–79; 2:14; 2:29–32), Mary’s hymn is a recital of what God had done for her and for others in the past.

1:48 Henceforth means “from now on.” Things would never be the same again (see 5:10; 12:52; 22:69; Acts 18:6). all generations will call me blessed: Mary went from being a poor unknown Hebrew girl to the most honored woman in the history of the world.

1:49 He who is mighty: God is One who protects and fights for His children (see Ps. 45:3; 89:8; Zeph. 3:17). holy is His name: God is unique and set apart from all other beings (see Lev. 11:44, 45; Ps. 99:3; Is. 57:15).

1:50 The term mercy expresses the OT concept of God’s loyal, gracious, faithful love (see Ps. 103). those who fear Him: God’s mercy comes to those who look respectfully to Him.

1:51–53 These verses portray a “reversal” in the end times, when those who have abused power will be judged and those who have suffered persecution will be exalted. Mary was looking forward to the day when God’s people are no longer oppressed, but are instead blessed by the Lord. God’s strength with His arm figuratively describes His activity and power as Savior of His people (see v. 47; Deut. 4:34; Ps. 89:13; 118:15).

1:54, 55 His servant Israel: The idea of Israel as God’s servant is found frequently in the Book of Isaiah (see Is. 41:8, 9; 44:1, 2, 21; 48:20; 49:3). Israel has a special role in serving God and revealing Him. He spoke to our fathers: God’s actions in the life of Mary were based on commitments He made centuries before (see Gen. 12:1–3; 22:16–18).

Savior

(Gk. sōtēr) (1:47; 2:11; John 4:42; Phil. 3:20) Strong’s #4990

In addition to the obvious meaning, “one who provides salvation,” the word Savior often includes the related meanings of “Deliverer,” “Protector,” or “Preserver.” In ancient Greek society, the term was applied not only to gods but also to human beings whose significant actions brought some type of benefit to others. In 1:47, Mary rejoices in God her Savior, referring to the Lord’s mighty acts of protection and deliverance on behalf of Israel. In 2:11, the angel announces to the shepherds the birth of “a Savior, who is Christ the Lord,” One who would offer Himself as a sacrifice to provide redemption for all. Luke’s emphasis on Jesus as Savior can be seen in the summary of Jesus’ mission in 19:10: “to seek and to save that which was lost.”

⁵⁶ And Mary remained with her about three months, and returned to her house.

Elizabeth Gives Birth to John

⁵⁷ Now Elizabeth's full time came for her to be delivered, and she brought forth a son. ⁵⁸ When her neighbors and relatives heard how the Lord had shown great mercy to her, they ^k rejoiced with her.

⁵⁹ So it was, ^l on the eighth day, that they came to circumcise the child; and they would have called him by the name of his father, Zacharias. ⁶⁰ His mother answered and said, ^m "No; he shall be called John."

⁶¹ But they said to her, "There is no one among your relatives who is called by this name." ⁶² So they made signs to his father—what he would have him called.

⁶³ And he asked for a writing tablet, and wrote, saying, "His name is John." So they all marveled. ⁶⁴ Immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue loosed, and he spoke, praising God. ⁶⁵ Then fear came on all who dwelt around them; and all these sayings were discussed throughout all the hill country of Judea. ⁶⁶ And all those who heard them ⁿ kept them in their hearts, saying, "What kind of child will this be?" And ^o the hand of the Lord was with him.

1:59 they would have called him: It was an ancient custom to give the name of a family member to a newborn.

1:60 John was the name that the angel had told Zacharias to give the child (v. 13).

1:62, 63 The fact that the people made signs to Zacharias indicates that he was deaf as well as mute (v. 20). A writing tablet was a wood tablet covered with wax.

1:67 filled with the Holy Spirit: Here the presence of the Spirit enabled Zacharias to announce God's promise. Zacharias's hymn is called the "Benedictus" from its first word in the Latin Vulgate translation. prophesied: Though Zacharias was a priest, the Spirit enabled him to prophesy. There are three types of prophecy in the Bible: foretelling future events, forthtelling the Word of God, and praising God. Zacharias's prophecy includes all three.

1:68 He has visited and redeemed: As also in Mary's hymn, God the Savior is the object of Zacharias's praise. The salvation referred to by Zacharias is both national (vv. 71, 74) and spiritual (vv. 75, 77, 79).

1:69 The horn of an ox is a symbol of power (see Deut. 33:17; 1 Sam. 2:10; 2 Sam. 22:3; Ps. 75:4, 5, 10; 132:17; Ezek. 29:21). David: Jesus' royal ancestry is highlighted by Zacharias.

1:71 God had promised to deliver the Israelites from their enemies. In Luke these enemies include both human and spiritual forces (4:16-30; 11:14-26).

1:72 To perform the mercy . . . remember His holy covenant: God's actions represented His commitment to love the Israelites faithfully (v. 50) and to fulfill His promises to their ancestors (see vv. 54, 73; Lev. 26:42).

1:76 you will go before the face of the Lord: Finally able to speak, Zacharias proclaimed to those gathered what the angel had told him in the temple (vv. 16, 17). John was to prepare the way for the Lord, a reference to his role as forerunner of the Messiah (see Is. 40:3; Mal. 3:1).

1:77 To give knowledge of salvation: John's task was to prepare the people by informing them of their need to repent (3:1-14) and of the One who was coming (3:15-18).

1:78, 79 Dayspring is a reference to the coming of Messiah (see Num. 24:17; Mal. 4:2). This Greek word was also used to translate the Hebrew word for "branch" or "sprout," a concept with messianic overtones (see Is. 11:1-10; Jer. 23:5; 33:15; Zech. 3:8; 6:12). To give light . . . To guide our feet: As the Dayspring or the "Rising Sun," the Messiah will provide the light of truth and forgiveness to those blinded by the darkness of their sins. Peace describes a harmonious relationship with God.

⁸⁰ So ^e the child grew and became strong in spirit, and ^f was in the deserts till the day of his manifestation to Israel.

Christ Is Born

2 And it came to pass in those days that a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be registered. ^{2a} This census first took place while Quirinius was governing Syria. ³ So all went to be registered, everyone to his own city.

⁴ Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, to ^b the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, ^c because he was of the house and lineage of David, ⁵ to be registered with Mary, ^d his betrothed ¹ wife, who was with child. ⁶ So it was, that while they were there, the days were completed for her to be delivered. ⁷ And ^e she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling cloths, and laid Him in a ² manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

The Shepherds Visit Jesus

¹⁵ So it was, when the angels had gone away from them into heaven, that the shepherds said to one another, “Let us now go to Bethlehem and see this thing that has come to pass, which the Lord has made known to us.” ¹⁶ And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the Babe lying in a manger. ¹⁷ Now when they had seen Him, they made ⁶ widely known the saying which was told them concerning this Child. ¹⁸ And all those who heard it marveled at those things which were told them by the shepherds. ¹⁹ But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart. ²⁰ Then the shepherds returned, glorifying and ^q praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told them.

Christ Is Circumcised

²² Now when ^u the days of her purifica-

2:1, 2 Augustus was the Roman emperor from 31 B.C. to A.D. 14. Quirinius was the governor or administrator over a major census organized to facilitate the collection of taxes. Outside the Scripture, ancient records tie Quirinius to a census only in A.D. 6, but this is too late to be the one referred to here. So it may be that the census spanned the period from Varus to Quirinius and was referred to by the name of the one who completed it, sometime in the period immediately following Herod's death. It is also possible that Quirinius served as governor twice in his career, since there is a gap in the governorship records between 4 B.C. and A.D. 1, the period between Varus and Gaius Caesar. The problem here is that the gap follows Herod's death, rather than preceding it, as the timing of Jesus' birth requires (see Matt. 2). 2:3, 4 The registration, following Jewish custom, took place at a person's ancestral home (see 2 Sam. 24). The journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem was about 90 miles, at least a three-day trip. 2:5 his betrothed wife: The fact that Mary made the journey with Joseph suggests that they were already married. However, the marriage had not yet been consummated (see Matt. 1:24, 25). 2:7 Swaddling cloths were strips of cloth wrapped around a baby to keep its arms and legs straight. Firstborn Son implies that Mary had other children (see Matt. 1:25; 13:55; Mark 3:31–35). The manger was probably a feeding trough for animals. Jesus was probably born in a stable or in a cave that served as one. The inn was most likely a reception room in a private home or a space at a public shelter, not a large building with several individual rooms.

2:8 The night watch was kept to protect sheep from robbers and wild animals.

2:9 Glory refers to evidence of God's majestic presence, later associated with Jesus (see Acts 7:55). In this scene, the glory is the appearance of light in the midst of darkness.

2:11 The city of David here refers to Bethlehem. In other passages, the phrase means Jerusalem (see 2 Sam. 5:7). Savior . . . Christ . . . Lord: These three titles together summarize the saving work of Jesus and His sovereign position. What God was called in 1:47, Savior, Jesus is called here. The word Christ means “Anointed,” referring to Jesus' royal, messianic position. The word Lord was the title of a ruler. The meaning of the word is defined by Peter in Acts 2:30–36. Jesus is destined to sit and distribute salvation's benefits from God's side, ruling with the Father.

2:13 Heavenly host refers to an entourage of angels.

2:14 Glory here refers to praise given to God. goodwill toward men: The phrase means that people are the objects of God's goodwill. In ancient Judaism, this phrase described a limited group of people who were the objects of God's special grace. The promise of peace (1:79) and goodwill would come to those who welcome God's only Son.

2:21 eight days: According to the Law, a Jewish boy was to be circumcised on the eighth day (see Gen. 17:12; Lev. 12:3).

2:22 Her purification refers to a ceremony in which a new mother of a son was declared ceremonially clean again (see Lev. 12:6). The tion according to the law of Moses were completed, they brought Him to Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord ^{23v} (as it is written in the law of the Lord, ^w “Every male who opens the womb shall be called holy to the Lord”), ²⁴ and to offer a sacrifice according to what is said in the law of the Lord, ^x “A pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.”

Simeon's Prophecy

²⁵ And behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon, and this man was just and devout, ^y waiting for the Consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him. ²⁶ And it had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not ^z see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ. ²⁷ So he came ^a by the Spirit into the temple. And when the parents brought in the Child Jesus, to do for Him according to the custom of the law, ²⁸ he took Him up in his arms and blessed God and said:

- ²⁹ “Lord, ^b now You are letting Your servant depart in peace,
According to Your word;
³⁰ For my eyes ^c have seen Your salvation
³¹ Which You have prepared before the face of all peoples,
^{32d} A light to bring revelation to the Gentiles,
And the glory of Your people Israel.”

³³ ⁸ And Joseph and His mother marveled at those things which were spoken of Him. ³⁴ Then Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary His mother, “Behold, this Child is destined for the ^e fall and rising of many in Israel, and for ^f a sign which will be spoken against ³⁵ (yes, ^g a sword will pierce through your own soul ceremony took place 40 days after the birth. At this ceremony, the mother could offer a lamb or two pigeons (see Lev. 12:8). Jesus' family chose the pigeons (v. 24), suggesting that they did not have and could not afford to buy an animal. The journey to Jerusalem from Bethlehem was only five miles. Present Him to the Lord refers to the normal presentation of a firstborn son to God (see Ex. 13:2, 12; Num. 18:6; 1 Sam. 1; 2). Luke shows that Jesus' parents were faithful Jews who kept the requirements of the Law.

2:25 Simeon was waiting for the Consolation of Israel, the Comforter of Israel, a hope that parallels the hope of national deliverance expressed in the two hymns of ch. 1. This deliverance would involve the work of Messiah, as v. 26 suggests. Holy Spirit: Luke highlights the presence of the Spirit at the beginning of God's work in Jesus.

2:27 into the temple: The location within the temple is not given, but Mary's presence suggests either the court of Gentiles or the court of women.

2:30 Simeon identified God's salvation as being personified in Jesus. For Jesus to come was for God's salvation to come.

2:32 A light to bring revelation to the Gentiles . . . the glory of Your people Israel: This is the first explicit statement in Luke

Childbirth

In biblical times an infant did not begin life in a sterile hospital setting. A child was usually born at home where the conditions were less than sanitary. The floors were probably dirt and farm animals sometimes shared the same living quarters. The water used to cleanse the child was often polluted; the clothing used to wrap the baby had been washed in the same impure water. The stable where Jesus was born may have been no worse than some of the homes in Bethlehem. Demographic studies of ancient cultures show that the infant mortality rate was often as high as 90 percent; the many infant burial sites uncovered at various archaeological sites in Israel support this assumption. The redemption ceremony of the firstborn male was not performed until the child was 30 days old. If he had survived the first month, his chances of growing to adulthood were good.

that includes both Jew and Gentile. Salvation is portrayed as light (1:79). It would be a revelation to Gentiles because they would be able to participate in God's blessing with a fullness that had not been revealed in the OT (see Eph. 2:11-22; 3:1-7). Jesus is the glory of Israel because through Him the nation would see the fulfillment of God's promises; the nation's special role in God's plan would be vindicated (see Is. 46:13; 60:1-3; Rom. 9:1-5; 11:11-29).

2:35 a sword: The image here is of a large, broad sword striking Mary. She would suffer much pain in watching Jesus' rejection. thoughts . . . revealed: Jesus is a litmus test for where people stand before God. He is a Judge who will expose the thoughts of all people (see Acts 10:42, 43; 17:30, 31).

2:37 It is not clear whether eighty-four years was Anna's age, or how long she had been a widow. The testimony of this pious woman complements Simeon's testimony. Both men and women observed God's work early in Jesus' life. Anna's work as a prophetess in the temple court suggests that she addressed all who would listen to her, as did Miriam (see Ex. 15:20), Deborah (see Judg. 4:4), and Huldah (see 2 Kin. 22:14). Philip's daughters are another example of prophetesses in the NT (Acts 21:9).

The Ministry of John the Baptist

Matt. 3:1-12; Mark 1:2-8; John 1:19-31

3 Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, ^a Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea and the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, ² while ^b Annas and Caiaphas were high priests, the word of God came to ^c John the son of Zacharias in the wilderness. ³ And he went into all the region around the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance ^e for the remission of sins, ⁴ as it is written in the book of the words of Isaiah the prophet, saying:

^f "The voice of one crying in the wilderness:

*^g "Prepare the way of the LORD;
 Make His paths straight.*

⁵ *Every valley shall be filled
 And every mountain and hill brought low;*

2:38 Redemption in Jerusalem is another way of speaking of the Consolation of Israel (v. 25).

2:40 The Child grew: With this note, the story of Jesus' infancy ends. The narrative picks up in v. 41 some 12 years later.

2:41 The annual pilgrimage to Jerusalem was customary for many who lived outside the city. The Law commanded three pilgrimages for the men each year: for Passover, Pentecost, and the Feast of Tabernacles (see Ex. 23:14-17; Deut. 16:16). By the first century, most Jewish men made annual pilgrimages to Jerusalem because of the distance many had to travel due to the dispersion of the Israelites across Asia Minor.

2:42 The teachers were Jewish rabbis. Note that Jesus was not lecturing, but engaging the rabbis in theological discussion (v. 47).

2:49 I must: Even at 12, Jesus knew that God had commissioned Him to accomplish certain tasks on this earth (4:43; 9:22; 13:33; 17:25; 19:5; 22:37; 24:7, 44). about My Father's business: This is the first indication in Luke's Gospel that Jesus knew He had a unique mission and a unique relationship to the Father. The Greek text is elliptical here and reads, "I must be in the . . . of my Father," without specifying a place or activity. Either Jesus must be about the work of God, as the translation suggests; or he must be in the house of God, discussing God's truth. In the end the two possibilities are not very different.

3:1 Tiberius Caesar began to rule after his stepfather Augustus died, in A.D. 14. Judea was a senatorial province, ruled by a governor or procurator. Pontius Pilate held this position and was responsible for administering the region and collecting taxes for Rome. Herod is Herod Antipas, who ruled Galilee and Perea from 4 B.C. to A.D. 39. Herod's brother Archelaus had control of Judea and Samaria until A.D. 6, when he was banished. Herod's other brother Philip ruled the northern area east of the Jordan River.

3:2 Annas the high priest (A.D. 7-14) was succeeded in office by Caiaphas, his son-in-law, around A.D. 18. Caiaphas served with brief breaks from then until A.D. 37. In addition to Caiaphas, all of Annas's five sons served as high priest at one point or another. It is clear that Annas retained the influence as well as the title of his former office. The various rulers that Luke lists show the complexity of the historical and political situation in Israel during Jesus' day. A first-century Israelite had to deal with the edicts of the Roman emperor, the regulations of the governor over Israel, and the judgments of the religious leaders of Israel.

3:3 Baptism figuratively means "to be identified with," as an unbleached cloth is identified with the color in a vat of dye when it is dipped. As John the Baptist preached and the people identified with his message, they were baptized as an outward sign of their inward repentance or "change of mind."

3:4-6 Prepare the way: This citation from Is. 40:3-5 declares the coming of God's deliverance. Luke cites the text more fully than

The crooked places shall be made straight

And the rough ways smooth;

6 And^a all flesh shall see the salvation of God.^c”

7 Then he said to the multitudes that came out to be baptized by him, ^h“Brood² of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? ⁸Therefore bear fruits ⁱworthy of repentance, and do not begin to say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham as our father.’ For I say to you that God is able to raise up children to Abraham from these stones. ⁹And even now the ax is laid to the root of the trees. Therefore ^jevery tree which does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.”

¹⁰So the people asked him, saying, ^k“What shall we do then?”

¹¹He answered and said to them, ^l“He who has two tunics, let him give to him who has none; and he who has food, ^mlet him do likewise.”

¹²Then ⁿtax collectors also came to be baptized, and said to him, “Teacher, what shall we do?”

¹³And he said to them, ^o“Collect no more than what is appointed for you.”

¹⁴Likewise the soldiers asked him, saying, “And what shall we do?”

So he said to them, “Do not ³intimidate anyone ⁴or accuse falsely, and be content with your wages.”

¹⁵Now as the people were in expectation, and all reasoned in their hearts about John, whether he was the Christ or not, ¹⁶John answered, saying to all, ^a“I indeed baptize you with water; but One mightier than I is coming, whose sandal strap I am not worthy to loose. He will ^bbaptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire. ¹⁷His winnowing fan is in His hand, and He will thoroughly clean out His threshing floor, and ^cgather the wheat into His barn; but the chaff He will burn with unquenchable fire.”

¹⁸And with many other exhortations he preached to the people. ¹⁹^tBut Herod the tetrarch, being rebuked by him concerning Herodias, his ⁴brother Philip's wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done, ²⁰also added this, above all, that he shut John up in prison.

The Baptism of Christ

Matt. 3:13–17; Mark 1:9–11; John 1:32–34

²¹When all the people were baptized, ^u“it came to pass that Jesus also was baptized; and while He prayed, the heaven was opened. ²²And the Holy Spirit

Matthew or Mark. He carries the passage through to its mention of salvation being seen by all flesh (v. 6), thus highlighting that the gospel is for all people. The preparation for the arrival of a king typically meant that a road was prepared for his journey. This is what Isaiah compares to the arrival of God's salvation.

3:7 As the multitudes flocked to hear John the Baptist, many people went through the outward motions of baptism, but their actions did not truly represent their inward attitude. These people were not genuinely interested in the kind of King and kingdom that John was presenting.

3:8 John the Baptist warned that the fruits of repentance are necessary, not the claim of an ancestral connection to Abraham. External genealogical connections would not change one's attitude to God.

3:10–14 What shall we do: A genuine change of mind resulted in a change of action for the people, the tax collectors, and the soldiers. The repentant were instructed to give to those in need, to work at their jobs with integrity, to refrain from abusing their power, and to be content with earning a basic wage.

3:11 two tunics: One was an undergarment, and the other was an outer garment. A person did not need two when another person had none.

3:12 Tax collectors were Jewish agents employed by those who had purchased the right to collect taxes for the Roman state. Tax collectors often added interest to cover their own expenses and to pad their income. They were disliked both for their business practices and for their support of the occupying state.

3:16, 17 One mightier than I: This is the first direct mention of Jesus by John. John's baptism was minor compared to what was coming from Jesus, who would bring the Holy Spirit and fire (see Matt. 3:11). These two facets of Christ's work relate to His first and second comings. Baptism in the Holy Spirit is referred to seven times in the NT—four times in the Gospels (see Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; John 1:33), twice in Acts (see Acts 1:5; 11:16), and once in the epistles (see 1 Cor. 12:13). As a result of Christ's work at His first coming, believers are placed into one family (see 1 Cor. 12:13) and commended to the care of the Holy Spirit. When Christ comes a second time, He will come with the fire of judgment. Chaff refers to useless shells of grain that were separated from the useful wheat by the winnowing fan, a wooden forklife shovel that lifted the grain in the air so that the wind could separate it. The chaff was burned, picturing those who will undergo judgment. The unquenchable fire indicates the thorough nature of the judgment.

3:19, 20 he shut John up in prison: This event is clearly not in chronological order (see Matt. 14:3–5; Mark 6:17–20), since John could not have baptized Jesus (vv. 21, 22) if he was in jail. John had rebuked Herod for divorcing his wife to marry his own niece Herodias, who already had been the wife of his brother Philip. Not only was the divorce a problem, so was marrying such a close relative (see Lev. 18:16; 20:21).

3:22 a voice came from heaven: This is one of two heavenly endorsements of Jesus' ministry. The other is found in 9:35. You are My beloved Son; in You I am well pleased: This statement combines two ideas. The idea of God's Son comes from Ps. 2:7, a

(Gk. baptizō) (3:7; Matt. 3:6; Mark 1:5; Acts 2:38; Rom. 6:3) Strong's #907

This Greek word means “to dip” or “to immerse.” The people were coming to John and being immersed by him in the Jordan River. The Jews were familiar with the baptism of Gentile proselytes to Judaism; but this kind of baptism for Jews was new and strange to them. John called upon them to be baptized as a way of showing that they wanted to renounce their old way of life and prepare their hearts for the coming of the Messiah. Paul used baptism to speak about the believers' identification with Christ. Just as a cloth dipped in dye absorbs the color of the dye, so a person immersed in Christ should take on the nature of Christ.

The Temptation of Christ

⁴ Then ^aJesus, being filled with the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and ^bwas led by the Spirit ¹into the wilderness, ²being ²tempted for forty days by the devil. And ^cin those days He ate nothing, and afterward, when they had ended, He was hungry.
³ And the devil said to Him, “If You are ^dthe Son of God, command this stone to become bread.”
⁴ But Jesus answered him, saying, “It is written, ^e*‘Man shall not live by bread alone, ³but by every word of God.’*”
⁵ ⁴ Then the devil, taking Him up on a high mountain, showed Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

psalm about God’s chosen King. The idea of God’s pleasure comes from the image of the Servant in Is. 42:1. This image depicts Jesus’ election by God, and the special favor He enjoyed. The fact that Jesus is both King and Servant is fundamental to Jesus’ identity.
3:23–38 as was supposed: People naturally assumed that Jesus was the physical son of both Joseph and Mary. Luke corrected this misunderstanding by emphasizing that Jesus was only apparently Joseph’s physical son. Luke’s genealogy is unlike Matthew’s, although both go back to David and Abraham. Luke traces Jesus’ line all the way back to Adam, showing Jesus’ significance for all people. Matthew provides the legal lineage from David through Joseph to Jesus, while Luke provides the physical lineage from David through Mary to Jesus.
4:1, 2 The order of the temptations differs between Matthew and Luke. Luke has the temptation about Jerusalem last, probably because Jerusalem is the place Jesus is headed for His decisive confrontation with Satan (13:32–35). In His temptation, Jesus demonstrated not only His ability to resist the devil, but also His allegiance to God. What Adam could not do, Jesus did. Where Israel had failed in the wilderness, Jesus succeeded.
4:3 If You are the Son of God: This is a conditional statement. In other words, Satan was saying: “Let’s assume for the sake of argument that You are the Son of God.” In fact, Satan was challenging Jesus’ identity and authority.
4:4 It is written: Jesus responded to Satan’s temptation by quoting Deut. 8:3. Jesus refused to operate independently of God. The Spirit had led Him into the wilderness to prepare Him for His ministry, so eating at Satan’s instruction would have shown a lack of dependence on the Father.

4:5 all the kingdoms of the world: This temptation was an attempt to offer Jesus power by the wrong means. Satan’s method involved a detour around the Cross, an inducement to “take the easy way” to power.
4:6 this has been delivered to me: Satan’s claim here is exaggerated. He has great authority over the earth (see John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11; 2 Cor. 4:4; Eph. 2:2), but not the authority to deliver kingdoms.

Temptation: The Two Adams Contrasted
Both Adam and Christ faced three aspects of temptation. Adam yielded, bringing upon humankind sin and death. Christ resisted, resulting in justification and life.
1 John 2:16	Genesis 3:6 First Adam	Luke 4:1–13 Second Adam—Christ
“the lust of the flesh”	“the tree was good for food”	“command this stone to become bread”
“the lust of the eyes”	“it was pleasant to the eyes”	“the devil . . . showed Him all the kingdoms”
“the pride of life”	“a tree desirable to make one wise”	“throw Yourself down from here”

⁸ And Jesus answered and said to him, ⁵ “Get behind Me, Satan! ⁶ For it is written, ⁹ ‘You shall worship the LORD your God, and Him only you shall serve.’”

⁹ ^h Then he brought Him to Jerusalem, set Him on the pinnacle of the temple, and said to Him, “If You are the Son of God, throw Yourself down from here. ¹⁰ For it is written:

*‘He shall give His angels charge over you,
To keep you,’*

¹¹ and,

*‘In their hands they shall bear you up,
Lest you dash your foot against a stone.’”*

¹² And Jesus answered and said to him, “It has been said, ^k ‘You shall not ⁷ tempt the LORD your God.’”

¹³ Now when the devil had ended every ⁸ temptation, he departed from Him ^l until an opportune time.

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Worship

A synagogue service began with the recitation of the Shema, the first Hebrew word in the passage in Deut. 6:4–9. The speaker for the day then led the congregation in prayer as they stood facing Jerusalem with hands extended. At the close of the prayer the people said “Amen.” Before the service the leader of the synagogue took from the Torah ark the scrolls containing the lesson for the day and placed them on the lectern. The chosen speaker stood and read the lesson from the Law of Moses and the interpreter translated it verse by verse into Aramaic. Then the passage from the Prophets was read and translated. For the commentary or sermon, the speaker usually sat down (Luke 4:20). After the sermon, a priest, if one was present, pronounced a benediction and the people said “Amen.” If no priest was present, a closing prayer was offered.

et Isaiah. And when He had opened the book, He found the place where it was written:

¹⁸ *“The^u Spirit of the LORD is upon Me,

He has sent Me⁹ to heal the brokenhearted,
To proclaim liberty to the captives

²⁰ Then He closed the book, and gave it back to the attendant and sat down. And

4:8 Get behind Me, Satan: Later, Jesus makes the same statement to Peter when he becomes a channel for Satan’s message (see Matt. 16:23). In response to Satan’s second temptation, Jesus cited Deut. 6:13. Jesus knew that only God is worthy of worship, that only God is to be served.

4:9 The pinnacle of the temple may refer either to the high temple gate or to the southeast corner of the temple that loomed over a cliff some 450 feet high.

4:10, 11 He shall give His angels charge over you: Satan cited Ps. 91:11, 12, reminding Jesus of God’s promise of protection. However, the mere use of biblical words does not always reveal God’s will, particularly if they are placed in the wrong context.

4:12 You shall not tempt the LORD: In response to Satan’s third temptation, Jesus cited Deut. 6:16. God is to be trusted, not tested. The Deuteronomy passage refers to Israel’s attempt to test God at Meribah (see Ex. 17:1–7). Jesus would not repeat the nation’s error of unfaithfulness to God.

4:13 until an opportune time: This was but the first of several encounters Jesus had with Satan and his forces (11:14–23).

4:16, 17 Most synagogue services had a reading from the Law and one from the Prophets, with an exposition that tied the texts together. Jesus expounded from Is. 61. The scroll was kept in the synagogue and handed to Jesus by an attendant.

4:18, 19 By citing Is. 61, Jesus was claiming to be a royal figure and to have a prophetic mission (v. 24). Jesus healed the brokenhearted, referring to those who were discouraged because of their plight in life. Jesus proclaimed liberty to the captives. In the OT, captivity refers to Israel’s exile (1:68–74); here captivity refers to sin (see 1:77; 7:47; 24:47; Acts 2:38; 5:31; 10:43; 13:38; 26:18). Jesus gave sight to the blind, a reference to His miraculous works (7:22), though not without spiritual overtones (1:78, 79; 10:23, 24; 18:41–43). Jesus set at liberty the oppressed. This was originally the call of Israel, but the nation had failed in its assignment (see Is. 58:6). What Israel had failed to do, Jesus does. The image here addresses both physical and spiritual realities. Jesus proclaimed the acceptable year of the LORD, an allusion to Jubilee. This was every fiftieth year, in which all debt was forgiven, slaves were given their freedom, and ancestral lands were given back to its original family. The Year of Jubilee allowed for a new start (see Lev. 25:10). Jesus offers a total cancellation of spiritual debt and a new beginning to those who respond to His message.

4:20 Jesus closed the book in the middle of the sentence (see Is. 61:2). He did not continue because the next phrase—“the day of vengeance of our God”—was not being fulfilled then.

the eyes of all who were in the synagogue were fixed on Him. ²¹ And He began to say to them, “Today this Scripture is ^wfulfilled in your hearing.” ²² So all bore witness to Him, and ^xmarveled at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth. And they said, ^y“Is this not Joseph’s son?”

²³ He said to them, “You will surely say this proverb to Me, ‘Physician, heal yourself! Whatever we have heard done in ^zCapernaum,² do also here in ^aYour country.’” ²⁴ Then He said, “Assuredly, I say to you, no ^bprophet is accepted in his own country. ²⁵ But I tell you truly, ^cmany widows were in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, and there was a great famine throughout all the land; ²⁶ but to none of them was Elijah sent except to ³Zarephath, in the region of Sidon, to a woman who was a widow. ²⁷ ^dAnd many lepers were in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet, and none of them was cleansed except Naaman the Syrian.”

²⁸ So all those in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were ^efilled with ^fwrath, ²⁹ ^fand rose up and thrust Him out of the city; and they led Him to the brow of the hill on which their city was built, that they might throw Him down over the cliff. ³⁰ Then ^gpassing through the midst of them, He went His way.

Jesus Ministers Throughout Galilee

⁴⁰ ^qWhen the sun was setting, all those who had any that were sick with various diseases brought them to Him; and He laid His hands on every one of them and healed them. ⁴¹ ^rAnd demons also came

4:21 Jesus proclaimed the fulfillment of God’s plan and promise in Himself, since He is the figure described in the passage. Luke often notes the presence of fulfillment by including a reference to today (2:11; 5:26; 12:28; 13:32, 33; 19:5, 9; 22:34, 61; 23:43).

4:23 Physician, heal yourself: The request for more signs was for Jesus to prove His claim by repeating the type of miraculous work He had done in Capernaum (see Mark 1:21-27). Such requests for signs often contained a mocking tone (11:16; 22:64; 23:8, 35-37).

4:24 Jesus made it clear that He is God’s messenger who declares God’s ways. However, Jesus also knew that a prophet is often rejected. This is a lesson of the OT to which Jesus and other NT authors allude (see 11:47-51; Acts 7:51-53).

4:25-27 Jesus speaks of a period of widespread unfaithfulness to God (see 1 Kin. 17; 18; 2 Kin. 5:1-14). During this period, judgment came on the nation in the form of famine. The only people to receive healing were Gentiles. With such an allusion, Jesus warned His listeners not to be unfaithful like their ancestors by rejecting His message.

4:32 Luke emphasizes Jesus’ teaching (v. 15). The perception of Jesus’ authority probably arose as a result of His discussing issues directly, rather than merely noting tradition.

4:34 Let us alone: The demon knew that Jesus possessed divine authority, and he wanted nothing to do with Him. the Holy One of God: Even a demon witnessed to Jesus’ divinity. In the OT, the title Holy One referred to a person with a special call from God (see “holy man” in 2 Kin. 4:9 and “saint” in Ps. 106:16). Luke records the demon’s use of this title as proof that Jesus is the promised Messiah (v. 41; 1:31-35).

4:35, 36 rebuked: This term in Aramaic was a technical term for calling evil into submission. Jesus’ authority over evil forces is clear. He possessed the authority and power to grant salvation, as well as to confront all opponents to it. Be quiet: Jesus, not Satan and his demons, controlled who would testify to His messianic identity. Why Jesus silenced such a confession is not clear. Possibilities include the following: (1) A messianic confession might label Him as a political revolutionary, something He was not. (2) Jesus might have preferred that His works testify to His messianic identity (7:18-23). (3) The Israelites might have thought it was not appropriate for a messiah to be announced until messianic works were achieved. Others regarded as messiahs by the Jews in this period, such as the Teacher of Righteousness at Qumran and Simeon ben Kosebah, were also hesitant to make direct messianic claims. (4) Jesus might not have welcomed a testimony from a demon. (5) It might not have been God’s time for Jesus to reveal His messianic identity.

4:39 The fact that Simon’s mother-in-law served her guests immediately indicates that her recovery from fever was instantaneous. Miraculous healing in the Bible was always immediate (5:13).

4:41 You are the Christ, the Son of God: This confession, unique to the Gospel of Luke, shows the close connection Luke makes between Jesus’ sonship and messiahship.

Capernaum Synagogue

Capernaum was more than a seaside fishing village in the days of Jesus. It was the place that Jesus chose to be the center of His ministry to the entire region of Galilee, and it possessed ideal characteristics as a point of dissemination for the gospel.

There were good reasons for this. The town itself was named Kepharnahum, “village of [perhaps the prophet] Nahum,” and was the centerpiece of a densely populated region having a bicultural flavor. On the one hand, there were numerous synagogues in Galilee (in addition to the one in Capernaum), where the ferment of Jewish religious life was profound. On the other hand, there was Hellenism, a pervasive culture already centuries old and potent in its paganism—a lifestyle that influenced manners, dress, architecture, and political institutions as well.

Archaeological work at Capernaum has revealed a section of the pavement of a first-century synagogue below the still-existing ruins of the fourth-century one on the site. A private house later made into a church and a place of pilgrimage has yielded some evidence that may link it to the site of Simon Peter’s house (Luke 4:38).

4:43 The kingdom is referred to 30 times in Luke and six times in Acts. Jesus announced the rule of God through His person, in dealing with sin (24:47), in distributing the Spirit as He mediates blessing from God’s side (24:49), and in reigning with His followers according to the OT promise (see Ps. 2:7–12; Acts 3:18–22).

4:44 Galilee probably refers to the whole of Palestine in this context (see 23:5; Acts 10:37).

5:1 The Lake of Gennesaret is also known as the Sea of Galilee and the Sea of Tiberias.

⁴When He had stopped speaking, He said to Simon, ^d“Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a catch.”

⁵But Simon answered and said to Him, “Master, we have toiled all night and caught ^enothing; nevertheless ^fat Your word I will let down the net.” ⁶And when they had done this, they caught a great number of fish, and their net was breaking. ⁷So they signaled to their partners in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both the boats, so that they began to sink. ⁸When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, ^g“Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord!”

⁹For he and all who were with him were ^hastonished at the catch of fish which they had taken; ¹⁰and so also were James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. A Paralytic Is Healed

Matt. 9:1-8; Mark 2:1-12

¹⁶^r So He Himself often withdrew into the wilderness and ^sprayed.

¹⁷Now it happened on a certain day, as He was teaching, that there were Pharisees and teachers of the law sitting by, who had come out of every town of Galilee, Judea, and Jerusalem. And the power of the Lord was present ³to heal them. ¹⁸^t Then behold, men brought on a bed a man who was paralyzed, whom they sought to bring in and lay before Him. ¹⁹And when they could not find how they might bring him in, because of the crowd, they went up on the housetop and let him down with his bed through the tiling into the midst ^ubefore Jesus.

²⁰When He saw their faith, He said to him, “Man, your sins are forgiven you.”

²¹^v And the scribes and the Pharisees

5:4 let down your nets: This was a “parabolic action.” Jesus commanded Simon to place his nets in the water in order to depict a spiritual reality. Jesus, in v. 10, explained the spiritual truth: Jesus' new occupation would be fishing for people who would do the will of Jesus.

5:5 at Your word I will let down the net: This is Peter's statement of faith. The fisherman noted that he and his companions had just failed to make a catch at the best time for fishing, the evening. The circumstances were not good for a catch at the time of Jesus' command, but Peter chose to obey His word and let down his nets anyway.

5:8 Peter's confession indicates that he recognized God's work through Jesus. Peter, as a sinful man, was not worthy to be in Jesus' presence, because Jesus was holy.

5:10 Do not be afraid: Jesus does not drive away the sinner who recognizes his or her wretched condition. He accepts the confessing sinner and offers that person the opportunity of reconciliation with God. Then He sends the forgiven sinner out to do the work of God. catch men: Peter's commission was to rescue men from the danger of sin.

5:11 forsook all and followed Him: Following Jesus became the main priority in the disciples' lives. Such priority is the essence of discipleship.

5:12 The term leprosy was used broadly in the ancient world. It included psoriasis, lupus, and ringworm. Lepers were isolated from the rest of society (see Lev. 13:45, 46), but could be restored to the community when they recovered (see Lev. 14).

5:13 The disease responded immediately to the Creator's touch

(4:39). Jesus honored the leper's humble request for health because he recognized Jesus' power and authority.

5:14 show yourself to the priest: Jesus commanded that the regulation of Lev. 14 be followed. In silencing the healed leper, Jesus sought to avoid drawing excessive attention to His healing ministry. He wanted people to seek Him for spiritual healing, not merely physical healing. The leper's testimony was to God's faithfulness and His exercise of power through Jesus (7:22).

5:17 The religious leadership of Israel began to watch Jesus closely. The Pharisees were a group of about six thousand pious, influential teachers in the synagogues. They were a group who meticulously followed the Law, adhering to the traditional rules that kept a person from inadvertently breaking it. The teachers of the law were officials trained in the Law of Moses. Also known as scribes, these men were in effect the religious lawyers of the Pharisees. In Judaism in the first century there was a wide range of factions, including the Sadducees and the Essenes. The Pharisees, despite their relatively low numbers, were very influential.

5:20 Luke directly links faith and forgiveness here. According to the OT, only God was able to forgive sin (see Ps. 103:12). Rather than announcing that God would forgive the man's sin, Jesus proclaimed that the man's sins were forgiven. This act was blasphemous to the ears of Jesus' theologically sensitive audience.

5:21 blasphemies: The charge of the scribes and the Pharisees was that Jesus' claim dishonored God. This was a serious charge; the conviction of blasphemy would eventually lead to Jesus' death (22:70, 71).

began to reason, saying, “Who is this who speaks blasphemies? ^w Who can forgive sins but God alone?”

²² But when Jesus ^xperceived their thoughts, He answered and said to them, “Why are you reasoning in your hearts? ²³ Which is easier, to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven you,’ or to say, ‘Rise up and walk’? ²⁴ But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins”—He said to the man who was paralyzed, ^y “I say to you, arise, take up your bed, and go to your house.”

²⁵ Immediately he rose up before them, took up what he had been lying on, and departed to his own house, ^z glorifying God. ²⁶ And they were all amazed, and they ^a glorified God and were filled with fear, saying, “We have seen strange things today!”

5:22 perceived their thoughts: The reference here is to prophetic insight, since the leaders’ thoughts had not been spoken. Jesus “knew what was in man” (John 2:25).

5:23 Jesus posed a riddle to His audience. From an external point of view, it would seem easier to declare sins forgiven than to actually heal a person. In reality, however, one has to possess more authority to forgive sin. Jesus linked the healing to what it represented, the forgiveness of sin. Jesus forgave the man’s sins and healed him at the same time.

5:24 Son of Man is an Aramaic idiom that refers to a human being, meaning “someone” or “I.” Jesus used this idiom as a title, taken from Dan. 7:13, 14 (see 21:27; 22:69; Mark 14:62). In the Book of Daniel, the phrase Son of Man describes a figure who shares authority with the Ancient of Days. Association with the clouds gives a supernatural aura to the figure, for only God rides the clouds (see Ex. 14:20; 34:5; Num. 10:34; Ps. 104:3). In using the title here, Jesus claimed the authority to forgive sin, an authority that was limited to God.

5:27 Levi’s job as a tax collector was to sit at a booth collecting taxes from businessmen. His was a lower position than that of Zacchaeus, another famous tax collector in the Bible. Levi would have reported to someone like Zacchaeus. Levi is also called Matthew (see Matt. 9:9; 10:3).

5:29 This verse describes the first of several feasts or meals in the Book of Luke (7:36–50; 9:10–17; 10:38–42; 11:37–54; 14:1–24; 22:14–38; 24:28–32, 41–43). In ancient Israel the table was a place where spiritual points were taught and where fellowship occurred.

5:30 The issue of eating with sinners was sensitive in Judaism since some believed that eating with such company conveyed an acceptance of that person’s sin. Jesus preferred pursuing relationships that might lead sinners to God rather than “quarantining” Himself from such people (see 1 Cor. 5:9–13).

5:31 no need of a physician: Jesus was not saying that the Pharisees and scribes had no need of spiritual healing. Instead He was saying that only those who know their spiritual need can be treated.

As self-righteous people, the Pharisees would not come for aid, and in their own eyes, did not need a doctor.

5:32 Jesus’ mission was to call sinners to repentance. Upon His ascension, Jesus commissioned His disciples to the same task (24:47; see also 3:3, 8; 13:1–5; 15:7–10; 16:30; 17:3, 4; Acts 26:20). In this passage, repentance is pictured as a patient who recognizes that illness is present and that only Jesus, the Great Physician, can treat it. A humble approach to God for spiritual healing is the essence of repentance.

5:33 fast: The Pharisees fasted twice a week, on Mondays and Thursdays (18:12), as well as on the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:29). They also fasted as an act of penitence (Is. 58:1–9) and to recall four times a year the destruction of Jerusalem (Zech. 7:3, 5; 8:19). The goal of fasting was to dedicate oneself to prayer and to focus on God. John led an ascetic life, which his followers also imitated (7:24–28; Matt. 11:1–19).

5:34 bridegroom: Jesus compared His presence to the joyous time of a wedding. In the OT, this image was used for God’s relationship to His people or to describe the messianic period (see Is. 54:5, 6; 62:4, 5; Jer. 2:2; Ezek. 16; Hos. 2:14–23). Jesus explained that while He was on earth, the time was not right for fasts.

5:35 The image of the removal of the bridegroom is the first hint in Jesus’ ministry of His approaching death (see 2:35 for the first allusion). The church will (and did) fast (see Acts 13:1, 2; 14:23). Though such fasting returned, it was not required or regulated to the same degree as in Judaism.

5:36 the new makes a tear: Jesus pointed out that one cannot mix old things (Judaism) with new things (the new way He brings). The attempt to mix the two is compared to repairing clothes. The original cloth has already shrunk and when the new cloth shrinks a old. ³⁷And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; or else the new wine will burst the wineskins and be spilled, and the wineskins will be ruined. ³⁸But new wine must be put into new wineskins, ⁸and both are preserved. ³⁹And no one, having drunk old wine, ⁹immediately desires new; for he says, ‘The old is ¹better.’”

Jesus Works on the Sabbath

Matt. 12:1-8; Mark 2:23-28

6 Now ^ait happened ¹on the second Sabbath after the first that He went through the grainfields. And His disciples plucked the heads of grain and ate them, rubbing them in their hands. ²And some of the Pharisees said to them, “Why are you doing ^bwhat is not lawful to do on the Sabbath?”

³But Jesus answering them said, “Have you not even read this, ^cwhat David did when he was hungry, he and those who were with him: ⁴how he went into the house of God, took and ate the showbread, and also gave some to those with him, ^dwhich is not lawful for any but the priests to eat?” ⁵And He said to them, “The Son of Man is also Lord of the Sabbath.”

Jesus Heals on the Sabbath right hand was withered. ⁷So the scribes and Pharisees watched Him closely, whether He would ^jheal on the Sabbath, that they might find an ⁸accusation against Him. ⁸But He ^hknew their thoughts, and said to the man who had the withered hand, “Arise and stand here.” And he arose and stood. ⁹Then Jesus said to them, “I will ask you one thing: ⁱIs it lawful on the Sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save life or ²to destroy?” ¹⁰And when He had looked around at them all, He said to ³the man, “Stretch out your hand.” And he did so, and his hand was restored ⁴as whole as the other. ¹¹But they were filled with rage, and discussed with one another what they might do to Jesus.

Selection of the Twelve Apostles

Mark 3:13-19

¹²Now it came to pass in those days that He went out to the mountain to pray, and continued all night in ^jprayer to God. ¹³And when it was day, He called His disciples to Himself; ^kand from them He chose ^ltwelve whom He also named apostles: ¹⁴Simon, ^mwhom He also named Peter, and Andrew his brother; James and John; Philip and Bartholomew; ¹⁵Matthew and Thomas; James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called the Zealot; ¹⁶Judas ⁿthe son of James, and ^oJudas Iscariot who also became a traitor.

¹⁷And He came down with them and stood on a level place with a crowd of rip occurs. In addition, the two pieces do not match. Jesus’ teaching here indicates the discontinuity between the old way and the new. 5:37 Putting new wine (Jesus’ new way) into old wineskins (Judaism) would not work because as the new wine fermented, it would stretch the old skin and break it, ruining the wineskin and wasting the wine.

5:39 Jesus pointed out that someone who likes old wine will not even try new wine, since such a person is satisfied with the old. This analogy explained why some people in Israel had trouble turning to Jesus.

6:1 plucked . . . ate . . . rubbing: According to Jewish tradition, the disciples were reaping, threshing, and preparing food, and so were violating the commandment not to work on the Sabbath. It is clear that at this point the Pharisees were watching Jesus carefully (v. 7). 6:2 what is not lawful: The Pharisees wanted to know why the disciples had violated the traditions surrounding the Law of Moses (see 14:3; Matt. 12:12; 19:3; 22:17; 27:6; Mark 3:4; 12:14).

6:3, 4 In responding to the Pharisees’ charges against His disciples, Jesus appealed to 1 Sam. 21:1-7; 22:9, 10. David and his men ate the showbread that only the priests could eat. This was not lawful, but God did not punish David for it. Such bread was taken from the 12 loaves placed on a table in the Holy Place and changed once a week (see Ex. 25:30; 39:36; 40:22, 23; Lev. 24:5-9). Jesus pointed out that if David and his men could violate the Law to satisfy their hunger, His disciples could do the same. Jesus may have been attempting to show that the Law was never intended to be applied so absolutely that it would take precedence over the necessities of daily life (see Mark 2:27).

6:5 Regardless of the laws and customs that the Pharisees cited (v. 2),

Jesus has authority over the Sabbath. Jesus’ claim of divine authority here is similar to His claim of authority to forgive sins in 5:21, 24. 6:9 Is it lawful: The issue was the correct way of conducting oneself on the Sabbath (v. 2). Jesus chose to do good. The plots of the Pharisees represented doing evil and destroying. That was truly breaking the Sabbath (v. 7). To save here means simply to heal, as Jesus was about to do.

6:11 Rage here is irrational or mindless anger. The parallels in Matt. 12:14; Mark 3:6 make it clear that the Pharisees started to plot against Jesus in earnest after this confrontation.

6:12 in prayer: Here we find an example of Jesus spending time with God before an important event in His life (see 3:21; 22:41-44).

6:13 chose twelve: Jesus selected the main body of disciples, those who would become responsible for leading the early church (see Matt. 10:2-4; Mark 3:16-19; Acts 1:13).

6:14 Bartholomew is probably Nathanael of John 1:45.

6:15 Matthew is Levi of 5:27-32 (see Mark 2:14-17).

6:16 Judas the son of James is probably Thaddaeus (see Matt. 10:3; Mark 3:18). This is not the Lord’s half brother.

6:17 A level place probably refers to a plateau on a mountain. The setting and the contents of the sermon that follows suggest that Luke is providing a shorter version of the Sermon on the Mount, omitting those portions that have to do with the Law. Points of similarities between Luke’s account here and Matthew’s account in Matt. 5-7 are as follows: (1) Both begin with a series of beatitudes. (2) Both contain Jesus’ teaching on loving one’s enemies. (3) Both end with the parable of the two builders. The theme of the sermon is the disciple’s walk. The audience for the sermon consisted of both disciples and the great multitude. Jesus did not restrict His re-

Rules of Kingdom Life

Matt. 7:3-5, 16-18

believers today when their works are evaluated (see 1 Cor. 3:12-15; 2 Cor. 5:10; 1 John 2:28; Rev. 22:12). you who are rich . . . have received your consolation: The background for this remark is found in Mary’s song of praise in 1:51-53. All that the rich receive is what they acquire on earth (see also Matt. 6:19-21). Luke records many of Jesus’ critical remarks about the wealthy. Their wealth typically blinds them to their spiritual poverty and their need for salvation (1:53; 12:16-21; 14:12; 16:1-14, 19-26; 18:18-25; 19:1-10; 21:1-4).

6:27, 28 The threat of religious persecution was very real when Jesus presented His command for extraordinary love. The reference to a cursing enemy suggests a context of religious persecution.

6:29 offer the other: This is a description of being repeatedly vulnerable in the face of injustice. The one who seeks to love will always remain exposed and at risk. A tunic was an undergarment; a cloak was an outer garment.

6:30 do not ask them back: Jesus’ instruction here is to forgive and forget. The commands of vv. 29, 30 are expressed in such absolute terms that they force the listener to reflect on them by contrasting them with the normal responses people would have to such injustices.

6:31 as you want men to do to you: This is the “golden rule.” Note that Jesus’ command is stated in the positive (contrast Lev. 19:18). Such love as Jesus describes recognizes the preferences of others and is sensitive to them.

6:35 The practice of loving one’s enemies is modeled by God Himself, who is kind to the unthankful and evil. Jesus also notes that the reward will be great for the losses suffered while practicing this type of love. This reward will be a hundredfold—that is, ten thousand percent (Matt. 19:28, 29).

6:37 Judge not . . . Condemn not . . . Forgive: The idea here is not that one should ignore sin or refuse to discuss its consequences (see 11:39-52; Gal. 6:1, 2); rather, one should be gracious and quick to forgive.

6:38 good measure: This illustration comes from the marketplace where grain was poured out, shaken down, and then filled to overflowing so the buyer received the full amount purchased. Such is the full measure that will be returned to one who has been generous.

6:39 The blind here refers to teachers who cannot see where they are going and are unable to lead others. Jesus was warning against self-righteousness and arrogance. It is debated whether Jesus was describing the Pharisees here or simply warning His disciples about dangerous attitudes. The focus on the disciples’ attitudes suggests the latter, though the remark would also have applied to the teachers with whom Jesus was in conflict.

6:41 A speck represents a small fault in another person in contrast to a plank, which represents a large fault in the one making the criticism.

6:43-45 known by its own fruit: Actions, not words, indicate where one’s heart is.

Parable of the Two Foundations

Matt. 7:21-27

^{46j}“But why do you call Me ‘Lord, Lord,’ and not do the things which I say?”
^{47k}Whoever comes to Me, and hears My sayings and does them, I will show you whom he is like: ⁴⁸He is like a man building a house, who dug deep and laid the foundation on the rock. And when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently against that house, and could not shake it, for it was ¹founded on the rock. ⁴⁹But he who heard and did nothing is like a man who built a house on the earth without a foundation, against which the stream beat vehemently; and immediately it ²fell. And the ruin of that house was great.”

A Centurion's Servant Is Healed

Matt. 8:5-13

⁷Now when He concluded all His sayings in the hearing of the people, He ^aentered Capernaum. ²And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear to him, was sick and ready to die. ³So when he heard about Jesus, he sent elders of the Jews to Him, pleading with Him to come and heal his servant. ⁴And when they came to Jesus, they begged Him earnestly, saying that the one for whom He should do this was deserving, ⁵“for he loves our nation, and has built us a synagogue.”

⁶Then Jesus went with them. And when He was already not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to Him, saying to Him, “Lord, do not trouble Yourself, for I am not worthy that You should enter under my roof. ⁷Therefore I did not even think myself worthy to come to You. A Widow's Son Is Raised

¹¹Now it happened, the day after, that He went into a city called Nain; and many of His disciples went with Him, and a large crowd. ¹²And when He came near the gate of the city, behold, a dead man was being carried out, the only son of his mother; and she was a widow. John's Questions Are Answered

^{18m}Then the disciples of John reported to him concerning all these things. ¹⁹And John, calling two of his disciples to him, sent them to ³Jesus, saying, “Are

6:46 Lord, Lord: Jesus pointed out that those who called Him by this title of respect acknowledged submission to Him. However, when these same people ignored His teaching, they were guilty of hypocrisy.

6:47–49 hears . . . and does: One who listens to and acts on Jesus' teaching can face any difficult circumstance. heard and did nothing: Not acting on Jesus' teaching will cause a person to be overwhelmed by circumstances, eventually resulting in total loss (see 1 Cor. 3:12–15; 2 John 8).

7:1 Capernaum was on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee. It was an important town in northern Galilee with an economy centered on fishing and agriculture. Heavily Jewish, it was the center for Jesus' Galilean ministry (4:31–44).

7:5 built us a synagogue: The Roman government regarded synagogues as valuable because their moral emphasis helped maintain order.

7:8 The centurion compared his authority as a commander of soldiers to Jesus' authority over life and health. The centurion knew that Jesus' word alone was sufficient to heal his servant.

7:9 not even in Israel: The centurion's example of faith came from outside the nation of Israel. This is one of only two cases where Jesus was said to “marvel” (see Mark 6:6).

7:12 a dead man was being carried out: This was a funeral procession. The cemetery was located outside the city gates. Funerals were normally held the day of death because keeping a body overnight rendered a house unclean. Before the funeral the body was anointed. In a town the size of Nain (v. 11) many would have stopped to share in the mourning.

7:14, 15 The fact that Jesus touched the coffin indicated that He preferred helping the dead man to remaining ceremonially clean (see Num. 19:11, 16).

7:16 The crowd recognized the parallel between Jesus' raising of the widow's son and the work of the great prophets Elijah (see 1 Kin. 17:17–24) and Elisha (see 2 Kin. 4:8–37).

7:19 Are You the Coming One: John's uncertainty may have been due to the fact that Jesus did not show signs of being the political and conquering messiah that most Jews were anticipating in that period.

You ⁿthe Coming One, or ^ddo we look for another?"

²⁰When the men had come to Him, they said, "John the Baptist has sent us to You, saying, 'Are You the Coming One, or do we look for another?'" ²¹And that very hour He cured many of ⁵infirmities, afflictions, and evil spirits; and to many blind He gave sight.

²²^aJesus answered and said to them, "Go and tell John the things you have seen and heard: ^pthat the blind ^qsee, the lame ^rwalk, the lepers are ^scleansed, the deaf ^thear, the dead are raised, ^u*the poor* have the gospel preached to them. ²³And blessed is he who is not ⁶offended because of Me."

Jesus Praises John

Matt. 11:7-15

A reed shaken by the wind? ²⁵But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Indeed those who are gorgeously appareled and live in luxury are in kings' courts. ²⁶But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I say to you, and more than a prophet. ²⁷This is he of whom it is written:

Jesus Criticizes His Generation

Matt. 11:16-19

³¹¹And the Lord said, ^a"To what then shall I liken the men of this generation, and what are they like? ³²They are like children sitting in the marketplace and calling to one another, saying:

^b'We played the flute for you,
And you did not dance;
We mourned to you,
And you did not weep.'

³³For ^bJohn the Baptist came ^cneither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, 'He has a demon.' ³⁴The Son of Man has come ^deating and drinking, and you say, 'Look, a glutton and a ²winebibber, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' ³⁵^eBut wisdom is justified by all her children."

A Woman Anoints Jesus' Feet

³⁶^fThen one of the Pharisees asked Him to eat with him. And He went to the Pharisee's house, and sat down to eat. ³⁷And behold, a woman in the city who was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at the table in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster flask of fragrant oil, ³⁸and stood at His feet behind Him weeping; and she began to wash His feet

7:24-26 The questions that Jesus asked were designed to emphasize that John the Baptist played a special role in God's plan. The crowds did not go out to the wilderness to see scenery or a man dressed in special clothes, but to see a prophet.

7:27 My messenger: The citation here is from Mal. 3:1 (see also Matt. 11:10; Mark 1:2). John the Baptist was the promised Elijah figure who would point the way to the arrival of God's salvation (1:16, 17; 3:4-6).

7:28 he who is least in the kingdom of God: Jesus emphasizes the contrast between the old and new eras. John was the greatest prophet ever born. But the lowest person in the new era of God's kingdom is higher than the greatest prophet of the old era.

7:29, 30 Luke, in an aside, contrasts the responses to John's message. The tax collectors justified God, which means that they responded to John's message by submitting to John's baptism. The Pharisees, however, rejected the will of God, which means that they refused to listen to John and were not baptized (see Matt. 3:7-12).

7:31-34 Jesus made a comparison between children playing a game in the marketplace and the present generation of Israel, referring especially to the Jewish religious leaders. The leaders were like the children in that they complained no matter what tune was played. John the Baptist refused to eat bread or drink wine, and the religious leaders dismissed him as demon-possessed. In contrast, Jesus, the Son of Man, was accused of living loosely and associating with sinners. No matter what the style of God's messenger was, the religious leaders complained and rejected him.

7:35 God's wisdom is vindicated by those who respond to it and receive blessing.

7:36 one of the Pharisees asked Him to eat with him: This event is not the same as the one in Matt. 26:6-13; Mark 14:3-9; John 12:1-8. The event described in those passages occurred in the house of a leper, a place where no Pharisee would ever have gone. sat down to eat: A meal with a religious figure in the ancient world was arranged so that the invited guest was at the main table while others were along the outside wall of the room listening to the conversation.

7:37, 38 The woman's sin is not specified. This woman is not Mary Magdalene of 8:2, since in that passage she is introduced as a new figure. The woman's anointing of Jesus was in response to Jesus' message of compassion for sinners (vv. 41-43, 50). An alabaster flask was made of soft stone to preserve the quality of the precious and expensive perfume. There is humility and devotion in the woman's act of service, as well as a great deal of courage, as she performed the deed in front of a crowd that knew her as a sinner. Although the woman does not say a word in the entire account, her actions speak volumes about her contrite heart.

with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head; and she kissed His feet and anointed them with the fragrant oil. ³⁹Now when the Pharisee who had invited Him saw this, he spoke to himself, saying, ^g“This Man, if He were a prophet, would know who and what manner of woman this is who is touching Him, for she is a sinner.”

The Parable of the Two Debtors

⁴⁰And Jesus answered and said to him, “Simon, I have something to say to you.” So he said, “Teacher, say it.”

⁴¹“There was a certain creditor who had two debtors. One owed five hundred ^hdenarii, and the other fifty. ⁴²And when they had nothing with which to repay, he freely forgave them both. Tell Me, therefore, which of them will love him more?”

⁴³Simon answered and said, “I suppose the one whom he forgave more.”

And He said to him, “You have rightly judged.” ⁴⁴Then He turned to the woman and said to Simon, “Do you see this woman? I entered your house; you gave Me no ⁱwater for My feet, but she has washed My feet with her tears and wiped them with the hair of her head. ⁴⁵You gave Me no ^jkiss, but this woman has not ceased to kiss My feet since the time I came in. ⁴⁶^kYou did not anoint My head with oil, but this woman has anointed My feet with fragrant oil. ⁴⁷^lTherefore I say to you, her sins, which are many, are forgiven, for she loved much. But to whom little is forgiven, the same loves little.”

⁴⁸Then He said to her, ^m“Your sins are forgiven.”

⁴⁹And those who sat at the table with Him began to say to themselves, ⁿ“Who is this who even forgives sins?”

⁵⁰Then He said to the woman, ^o“Your faith has saved you. Go in peace.”

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

The Underclass

Nearly every society and every city in biblical times had a large underclass. Tending to congregate in the cities, the underclass included the poor, the sick, the disabled, the lepers, the blind, the insane, the demon-possessed, widows, orphans, and refugees. Lacking resources to provide for even their basic needs, many turned to begging, stealing, menial labor, slavery, or prostitution. Few cultures made provision for these desperate, destitute wanderers, and so they remained largely powerless to change their condition. Yet it was to the underclass that Jesus intentionally directed much of His life and ministry.

7:39 if He were a prophet: The Pharisee doubted Jesus’ credentials because He associated so openly with sinners. Jesus’ association with sinners is a prominent theme in Luke (v. 34; 5:8, 30, 32; 13:2; 15:1, 2, 7, 10; 18:13; 19:7; 24:7). A Pharisee would reject such associations.

7:40 I have something to say: Jesus’ reply indicates that He knew the reputation of the woman, but was more interested in what the woman could become through the grace of God.

7:41 Jesus often compared sin to a monetary debt. A denarius was a day’s wage for a basic laborer, so five hundred denarii was approximately the wages of one and a half years.

7:42 which of them will love him more: Jesus’ point is that the amount of love showered on the Savior will be in direct proportion with one’s sense of the gravity of the sins that the Savior has forgiven. The woman knew she had been forgiven much, and as a result she would love much.

7:44–46 Jesus contrasted the actions of the woman with the actions of the Pharisee Simon, implying that the woman knew more about forgiveness than Simon (v. 47).

7:47 her sins . . . are forgiven: Jesus confirmed that the love of the woman, which was visible in her actions toward Jesus, had come from being forgiven.

7:49 Who is this: The grumbling over Jesus’ declaration concerning forgiveness indicates that at least some people in the audience rejected His authority.

7:50 Faith is the human channel for receiving God’s gifts (see Eph. 2:8, 9).

The Parable of the Soils

Matt. 13:1-23; Mark 4:1-20

^{4c} And when a great multitude had gathered, and they had come to Him from every city, He spoke by a parable: ⁵ “A sower went out to sow his seed. And as he sowed, some fell by the wayside; and it was trampled down, and the birds of the air devoured it. ⁶ Some fell on rock; and as soon as it sprang up, it withered away because it lacked moisture. ⁷ And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up with it and choked it. ⁸ But others fell on good ground, sprang up, and yielded ^{5a} a crop a hundredfold.” When He had said these things He cried, ^d “He who has ears to hear, let him hear!”

^{9e} Then His disciples asked Him, saying, “What does this parable mean?”

Christ's True Brethren

Matt. 12:46-50; Mark 3:31-35

^{19q} Then His mother and brothers came to Him, and could not approach Him because of the crowd. ²⁰ And it was told Him by some, who said, “Your mother and Your brothers are standing outside, desiring to see You.”

²¹ But He answered and said to them, as though for the first time makes it unlikely that she was the sinful woman of 7:36–50. Mary Magdalene is also distinct from Mary of Bethany in John 12:3. Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward: News of Jesus had reached Herod's palace, provided for Him from their substance: This is an example of how some women of means used their wealth to benefit the work of God.

8:4–8 In the ancient world, fields were sown sometimes before and sometimes after plowing. Paths often cut through fields. Sometimes seed would take root on these paths, where it could not mature. In addition, some soil was rocky and also could not support a successful crop.

8:10 Jesus' parables both concealed and revealed truths. His parables contained fresh teaching—mysteries—concerning the kingdom of God. The disciples were privileged to learn the truths of the parables. For other listeners, the parables served as judgments that concealed truth, as the reference to Is. 6:9 indicates. On occasion, a parable was understood by an outsider but was not accepted, thus still functioning as a message of judgment (20:9–19).

8:11 word of God: The parallel in Matt. 13:19 speaks of the seed as the “word of the kingdom,” a point that Luke makes in v. 10. The soils do not represent individual moments of decision as much as a lifelong response to God's Word.

8:12 Because those by the wayside never really gain an understanding (see Matt. 13:19) of the word of God before Satan snatches it away, there is really no productivity at all.

8:13 believe for a while . . . fall away: Brief and superficial encounters with the word of God will not stand times of testing. A person needs to meditate on the truths in Scripture and establish them as principles for living in order to withstand the trials and temptations that will inevitably come.

8:14 According to this parable, cares, riches, and pleasures of life are three great obstacles to spiritual fruitfulness. The concerns of life can squelch spiritual growth. This type of “soil” is viewed as tragically unsuccessful (see 2 Tim. 2:4; 4:10).

8:15 keep it and bear fruit: This is the one praiseworthy group in the parable. The key here is a noble and good heart. This “soil” allows the word of God to settle in and become productive (see John 15:2, 3; Col. 3:16, 17; James 1:21).

8:16 sets it on a lampstand: Continuing with the theme of the word of God introduced in vv. 4–15, Jesus compares His teaching to light. It should not be hidden, but displayed, so that people can benefit from the illumination it gives.

8:17 come to light: Eventually everything will be revealed by the light of the word of God (see Heb. 4:12, 13).

8:18 take heed how you hear: Jesus explicitly warned His audience to listen to and follow the word of God (see James 1:22–25). what he seems to have will be taken: This phrase introduces the principle of judgment. The one who responds to the word of God receives more. The one who does not respond to the word of God loses what he thought he had.

8:19, 20 Jesus' family was concerned about the direction of His ministry (see Mark 3:31–35). Though some have suggested that the brothers here were sons of Joseph by a previous marriage or cousins of Jesus, most likely they were the sons of Joseph and Mary. Joseph's absence here may mean that he had died by this time.

8:21 My mother and My brothers: In a clear contrast to v. 19, Jesus declared that His true family consists of those who hear and do the word of God.

The Province of Galilee

The territories of Naphtali, Zebulun, and Issachar constituted the region of Galilee that bordered Lake Chinnereth in OT times. Lake Chinnereth was later called Lake of Gennesaret (5:1), the Sea of Tiberias (John 6:1), or the Sea of Galilee (Matt. 4:18). Although it may sound large, the Sea of Galilee is actually a small lake, about 6 miles wide and 15 miles long. Under Rome's rule, the provinces of Galilee, Judah, and Samaria were part of Herod's kingdom. Herod the Great supposedly rid Galilee of robbers and repopulated the north with Jews. Once known as "Galilee of the Gentiles" (Is. 9:1), it became a vigorously Jewish region. Jesus conducted most of His ministry in the province of Galilee.

Demons Are Cast into Swine

²⁶ ^u Then they sailed to the country of the ² Gadarenes, which is opposite Galilee. ²⁷ And when He stepped out on the land, there met Him a certain man from the city who had demons ³ for a long time. And he wore no clothes, nor did he live in a house but in the tombs. ²⁸ When he saw Jesus, he ^v cried out, fell down before Him, and with a loud voice said, ^w "What have I to do with ^x You, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg You, do not torment me!" ²⁹ For He had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. For it had often seized him, and he was kept under guard, bound with chains and shackles; and he broke the bonds and was driven by the demon into the wilderness.

³⁰ Jesus asked him, saying, "What is your name?"

And he said, "Legion," because many demons had entered him. ³¹ And they begged Him that He would not command them to go out ³ into the abyss.

8:23 windstorm: The calming of the wind is the first of four miracles in vv. 22-56 that demonstrate Jesus' authority over a variety of phenomena—nature, demons, disease, and death. This first miracle took place on the Sea of Galilee. Cool air rushing down the ravines and hills of the area collides with warm air, causing sudden and strong storms. Even the experienced fishermen in the boat feared this kind of storm.

8:24 they ceased: At Jesus' word, all the chaos of the storm stopped. Such control over nature is attributed to God in the OT (see Ps. 104:3; 135:7; Nah. 1:4).

8:25 Where is your faith: Jesus' question was a rebuke of His disciples. Because God was aware of their situation, they could trust in His protection, for He was powerful enough to control the mighty winds and waves. Who can this be: This is the real question of Jesus' entire Galilean ministry, the beginning of which is recorded in 4:14. All of the displays of Jesus' authority during this ministry were designed to raise this question of His identity. they obey Him: The closest precedent to Jesus' power over nature was the miracles of the prophet Elijah (see 1 Kin. 17:1; 18:38, 44, 45). The disciples already sensed that Jesus was more than a prophet.

8:26 The city of the Gadarenes (see Matt. 8:28) was probably a town about five miles southeast of the Sea of Galilee. Whatever its exact location, it was situated in a predominantly Gentile region.

8:28 The demon's confession of Jesus as Son of the Most High God recalls the angel's announcement to Mary in 1:31, 32 and the demonic confessions of 4:34, 41.

8:30 Legion: This name reflects the fact that the man was possessed by multiple demons. A legion was a Roman military unit of about six thousand soldiers; thus the name suggests a spiritual battle.

8:31 The abyss is an allusion to the underworld and the destruction of judgment (see Rom 10:7).

8:32 Swine were unclean animals for Jews (see Lev. 11:7; Deut. 14:8). Even though this incident took place in a Gentile area, it is still interesting to note that the unclean spirits sought out unclean animals.

to enter them. And He permitted them. ³³Then the demons went out of the man and entered the swine, and the herd ran violently down the steep place into the lake and drowned.

³⁴When those who fed them saw what had happened, they fled and told it in the city and in the country. ³⁵Then they went out to see what had happened, and came to Jesus, and found the man from whom the demons had departed, ^asitting at the ^bfeet of Jesus, clothed and in his ^cright mind. And they were afraid. ³⁶They also who had seen it told them by what means he who had been demon-possessed was ^dhealed. ³⁷^dThen the whole multitude of the surrounding region of the ^eGadarenes ^easked Him to ^fdepart from them, for they were seized with great ^gfear. And He got into the boat and returned.

³⁸Now ^hthe man from whom the demons had departed begged Him that he might be with Him. But Jesus sent him away, saying, ³⁹“Return to your own house, and tell what great things God has done for you.” And he went his way and proclaimed throughout the whole city what great things Jesus had done for him.

⁴⁰So it was, when Jesus returned, that the multitude welcomed Him, for they were all waiting for Him.

When all denied it, Peter ⁶and those with him said, “Master, the multitudes throng and press You, ⁷and You say, ‘Who touched Me?’” ⁴⁶But Jesus said, “Somebody touched Me, for I perceived ⁿpower going out from Me.” ⁴⁷Now when the woman saw that she was not hidden, she came trembling; and falling down before Him, she declared to Him in the presence of all the people the reason she had touched Him and how she was healed immediately.

Jairus’s Daughter Is Raised

Matt. 9:23-26; Mark 5:35-43

⁴⁹^qWhile He was still speaking, someone came from the ruler of the synagogue’s house, saying to him, “Your daughter is dead. Do not trouble the ⁹Teacher.”

⁵⁰But when Jesus heard it, He answered him, saying, “Do not be afraid; ^ronly believe, and she will be made well.” ⁵¹When He came into the house, He permitted no one to go ¹in except ²Peter, James, and John, and the father and mother of the girl. ⁵²Now all wept and mourned for her; but He said, ^s“Do not weep; she is not dead, ^tbut sleeping.” ⁵³And they ridiculed Him, knowing that she was dead.

⁵⁴But He ³put them all outside, took her by the hand and called, saying, “Little girl, ^uarise.” ⁵⁵Then her spirit returned, and she arose immediately. And He commanded that she be given something to eat. ⁵⁶And her parents were astonished, but ^vHe charged them to tell no one what had happened.

8:35 sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind: This is a contrast to the same man who was roaming the tombs previously (vv. 27, 29). The man’s position at Jesus’ feet paints a picture of true discipleship (10:38–42).

8:37 There is some speculation that the reason the people asked Jesus to depart was to prevent further economic damage to their herds. According to Luke, the people were afraid of the authoritative presence of Jesus.

8:38, 39 The man who was formerly demon-possessed wanted to go with Jesus and His disciples, but Jesus commissioned the man to be a witness in his own community. Jesus had done: Though Jesus wanted the Father to receive the credit for the man’s healing, the man could not separate what God did from the role Jesus had played.

8:41 ruler: Jairus was the main elder of the synagogue. As such, he conducted the service and kept order.

8:44 her flow of blood stopped: This condition not only would have been embarrassing, it would have made the woman unclean

(see Lev. 15:25–31). It took great courage for her to seek out Jesus. Note that her action was not criticized, but commended (v. 48).

8:49 Your daughter is dead: The delay caused by the woman with the blood disorder appeared to have been fatal for Jairus’s daughter.

8:50 only believe: This miracle highlights not only the authority of Jesus, but also the response of faith that God honors.

8:51 He permitted no one to go in except Peter, James, and John: The reason Jesus singled out these three disciples is not given. Luke records a similar action in 9:28. Matthew and Mark record a similar singling out at Gethsemane (see Matt. 26:37; Mark 14:33).

8:52 Sleeping, a common metaphor for death, indicates in this passage that the girl’s death was not permanent.

8:53 they ridiculed Him: The term used here suggests that the derision included laughter.

8:56 The reason for Jesus’ command for silence in this verse is not entirely clear, given that anyone could have deduced what had happened. The situation seems odd in light of Jesus’ instruction to the demon-possessed man to proclaim what had occurred to him in

Twelve Are Sent to Preach

Matt. 10:1-14; 14:1-14; Mark 6:7-16, 30-34

9 Then ^aHe called His twelve disciples together and ^bgave them power and authority over all demons, and to cure diseases. ^{2c}He sent them to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the sick. ^{3d}And He said to them, “Take nothing for the journey, neither staffs nor bag nor bread nor money; and do not have two tunics apiece.

^{4e}“Whatever house you enter, stay there, and from there depart. ^{5f}And whoever will not receive you, when you go out of that city, ^gshake off the very dust from your feet as a testimony against them.”

^{6h}So they departed and went through the towns, preaching the gospel and healing everywhere.

⁷ⁱNow Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done by Him; and he was perplexed, because it was said by some that John had risen from the dead, ⁸and by some that Elijah had appeared, and by others that one of the old prophets had risen again. ⁹Herod said, “John I have beheaded, but who is this of whom I hear such things?” ^jSo he sought to see Him.

^{10k}And the apostles, when they had returned, told Him all that they had done. ^lThen He took them and went aside privately into a deserted place belonging to the city called Bethsaida. ¹¹But when the multitudes knew it, they followed Him; and He received them and spoke to them about the kingdom of God, and healed those who had need of healing.

twelve came and said to Him, “Send the multitude away, that they may go into the surrounding towns and country, and lodge and get provisions; for we are in a deserted place here.”

¹³But He said to them, “You give them something to eat.”

And they said, “We have no more than five loaves and two fish, unless we go and buy food for all these people.” ¹⁴For there were about five thousand men.

Then He said to His disciples, “Make them sit down in groups of fifty.” ¹⁵And they did so, and made them all sit down.

¹⁶Then He took the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, He ^o“blessed and broke them, and gave them to the disciples to set before the multitude. ¹⁷So they all ate and were ⁱfilled, and twelve baskets of the leftover fragments were taken up by them.

Peter's Confession of Faith

Matt. 16:13-21; Mark 8:27-31

^{18o}And it happened, as He was alone praying, that His disciples joined Him, and He asked them, saying, “Who do the crowds say that I am?”

¹⁹So they answered and said, ^p“John the Baptist, but some say Elijah; and others say that one of the old prophets has risen again.”

²⁰He said to them, “But who do you say that I am?”

^qPeter answered and said, “The Christ of God.”

^{21r}And He strictly warned and commanded them to tell this to no one, ²²saying, ^s“The Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised the third day.”

8:39, 45–47 and the public raising of the dead in 7:11–17. Jesus may have wanted to curtail such healings so that they would not become the center of His ministry.

9:2 to preach . . . to heal: The entire nation of Israel needed to see the evidence of the kingdom of God and make a decision concerning the King. Jesus commissioned His disciples to spread the word about God's kingdom through preaching and healing.

9:7–9 At Herod's palace, opinions varied as to whether Jesus was John the Baptist, Elijah (see Mal. 3:1), or one of the prophets. Though this passage suggests that Herod was uncertain about Jesus' identity, Matt. 14:2 and Mark 6:16 indicate that Herod viewed Jesus as John the Baptist raised from the dead.

9:11 spoke . . . healed: Jesus had the same two-pronged ministry that the twelve disciples had: preaching and healing (v. 2). The topic of Jesus' preaching was always the kingdom of God.

9:13–17 This is the only miracle of Jesus' ministry that appears in all four Gospels (see Matt. 14:13–21; Mark 6:30–44; John 6:5–14). The feeding of the five thousand demonstrated Jesus' ability to provide. blessed and broke: Some see an allusion here to the Lord's Table. Though this is not made clear in Luke's presentation, the description is similar to the table fellowship of the Last Supper

(22:19) and Jesus' meal with some of the disciples after His resurrection (24:30).

9:20 The Christ of God: The emphasis here is on the messianic role of Jesus. He is the Promised One who was ushering in a new era. However, Jesus would soon reveal to the disciples that His messiahship would have elements of suffering that the disciples did not expect (see vv. 22, 23).

9:21 tell this to no one: Jesus knew that the messianic role that the people and the disciples expected was much different from His actual role as the Messiah. The element of suffering that the Messiah would endure was not a part of popular expectation. Thus Jesus' messiahship could not be openly proclaimed before the true nature of the Messiah was revealed.

9:22 must suffer . . . be rejected . . . be killed . . . be raised: This is the first of several predictions in Luke of Jesus' suffering and vindication (v. 44; 12:50; 13:31–33; 17:25; 18:31–33). The disciples struggled to understand what Jesus was saying (v. 45; 18:34). They could not comprehend how Jesus' predictions fit into God's plan. Only after Jesus' resurrection and His explanation of the Scriptures to them did they begin to understand (24:25–27, 44–49).

True Cost of Discipleship

²³ Then He said to them all, “If anyone desires to come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross ²daily, and follow Me. ²⁴ For whoever desires to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for My sake will save it. ²⁵ For what profit is it to a man if he gains the whole world, and is himself destroyed or lost? ²⁶ For whoever is ashamed of Me and My words, of him the Son of Man will be ^xashamed when He comes in His own glory, and in His Father’s, and of the holy angels.

²⁷ But I tell you truly, there are some standing here who shall not taste death till they see the kingdom of God.”

²⁸ Now it came to pass, about eight days after these sayings, that He took Peter, John, and James and went up on the mountain to pray. ²⁹ As He prayed, the appearance of His face was altered, and His robe became white and glistening. ³⁰ And behold, two men talked with Him, who were ^aMoses and ^bElijah, ³¹ who appeared in glory and spoke of His ³decease which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. ³² But Peter and those with him ^cwere heavy with sleep; and when they were fully awake, they saw His glory and the two men who stood with Him. ³³ Then it happened, as they were parting from Him, that Peter said to Jesus, “Master, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three ⁴tabernacles: one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah”—not knowing what he said.

³⁴ While he was saying this, a cloud came and overshadowed them; and they were fearful as they entered the ^acloud. ³⁵ And a voice came out of the cloud, saying, ^e“This is ⁵My beloved Son. ^fHear Him!” ³⁶ When the voice had ceased, Jesus was found alone. ^gBut they kept quiet, and told no one in those days any of the things they had seen.

Demoniac Son Is Healed

Matt. 17:14-18; Mark 9:14-27

³⁷ Now it happened on the next day, when they had come down from the mountain, that a great multitude met Him. ³⁸ Suddenly a man from the multitude cried out, saying, “Teacher, I implore You, look on my son, for he is my only child. ³⁹ And behold, a spirit seizes him, and he suddenly cries out; it convulses him so that he foams at the mouth; and it departs from him with great difficulty, bruising him. ⁴⁰ So I implored Your disciples to cast it out, but they could not.”

9:23 take up his cross daily: Although Jesus offered salvation as a free gift (John 1:12; 3:16-18; see Eph. 2:8, 9), He also warned that following Him would entail suffering and hardship (Matt. 5:10-12; see also Rom. 8:17; 2 Thess. 1:5).

9:24, 25 It makes no sense to attempt to save our lives on earth only to lose everything when our lives quickly and inevitably pass away. The wise course is to invest our earthly resources—our time, talents, and wealth—in what is eternal. Even if we lose our lives for Jesus’ sake, that investment will produce returns for all eternity (see 19:11-27; Matt. 6:19-21; 19:27-30).

9:26 Recognition of Jesus will be rewarded in the coming judgment. Failure to recognize Him will lead to significant loss (see 1 Cor. 3:12-15; 2 Cor. 5:10; 2 Tim. 2:12; 1 John 2:28; 2 John 7, 8; Rev. 3:11; 22:12).

9:27 till they see the kingdom of God: Since these disciples died before Jesus’ return, the reference here is no doubt to the Transfiguration (vv. 28-36). With this there is probably also a prediction of the descent of the Spirit at Pentecost (10:9; 11:20; 17:21).

9:29 At the Transfiguration Jesus was altered into a radiant figure, even down to His white and glistening clothes. The description here is similar to the description of the glory of Moses after seeing God (Ex. 34:29-35).

9:31 Decease is literally exodus. This important allusion to the central OT event of salvation is unique to Luke’s account of the Transfiguration. The comparison is made between Jesus’ death and the journey to salvation that the nation of Israel experienced under Moses. Jesus’ journey would take Him to the side of God, from which He will return to exercise authority (see Acts 2:30-36; 10:42; 17:31).

9:33 let us make three tabernacles: Peter desired structures for the two OT visitors and Jesus, perhaps as a means of prolonging their visit. not knowing what he said: Peter did not see that Jesus was very different from Moses and Elijah; He was inaugurating a new era (see 5:36-39).

9:34 The cloud is an allusion to the presence of God (see Ex. 40:35).

9:35 This is My beloved Son: This is the second heavenly endorsement of Jesus (see also 3:22). The reference to the beloved Son recalls the words of Ps. 2:7; Is. 42:1. The command to hear Him alludes to Deut. 18:15-18 and identifies Jesus as the Prophet promised in that passage. Jesus, as the new Prophet, would lead a new group of people into salvation (see Matt. 21:43; Rom. 11:1-36; 1 Pet. 2:9, 10), just as Moses led the nation of Israel. As a Revealer of God’s will, Jesus had much to teach the disciples about God’s plan. The disciples needed to listen because they had much to learn.

9:36 told no one: In this passage, we are not told why the disciples remained silent about the Transfiguration. Matthew 17:8, 9; Mark 9:9, 10 note that Jesus commanded such silence and Mark makes it clear that the disciples did not yet understand the event. See 2 Pet. 1:16-21 for Peter’s reflection on this experience.

(Gk. exodos) (9:31; 2 Pet. 1:15) Strong’s #1841

The Greek word means “departure”—literally “exodus,” meaning “the way out.” Exodus is a beautiful euphemism for death. Elijah and Moses, having already made their exodus from earth to heaven were anticipating Jesus’ exodus via His death and resurrection. Peter used this term in speaking of his own departure (2 Pet. 1:15), and the very mention of “exodus” seems to have brought to Peter’s mind the Transfiguration described in this passage (see 2 Pet. 1:15-18). Jesus had an exodus to accomplish. He was about to make a great transition—from His existence in the flesh on earth to an existence in heaven.

⁴¹ Then Jesus answered and said, “O ⁶faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you and ⁷bear with you? Bring your son here.” ⁴² And as he was still coming, the demon threw him down and convulsed him. Then Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, healed the child, and gave him back to his father.

Christ Prophesies His Coming Death

⁴³ And they were all amazed at the majesty of God.

But while everyone marveled at all the things which Jesus did, He said to His disciples, ⁴⁴ “Let these words sink down into your ears, for the Son of Man is about to be betrayed into the hands of men.” ⁴⁵ But they did not understand this saying, and it was hidden from them so that they did not perceive it; and they were afraid to ask Him about this saying.

Samaria Rejects Christ

⁵¹ Now it came to pass, when the time had come for ^tHim to be received up, that He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem, ⁵² and sent messengers before His face. And as they went, they entered a village of the Samaritans, to prepare for Him. ⁵³ But ^uthey did not receive Him, because His face was set for the journey to Jerusalem. ⁵⁴ And when His disciples ^vJames and John saw this, they said, “Lord, do You want us to command fire to come down from heaven and consume them, ¹just as ^wElijah did?”

⁵⁵ But He turned and rebuked them, ²and said, “You do not know what manner of ^xspirit you are of. ⁵⁶ ³For ^ythe Son of Man did not come to destroy men’s lives but to save them.” And they went to another village.

True Cost of Discipleship

Matt. 8:18-22

⁵⁷ ^z Now it happened as they journeyed on the road, that someone said to Him, “Lord, I will follow You wherever You go.”

⁵⁸ And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man ^ahas nowhere to lay His head.”

⁵⁹ ^b Then He said to another, “Follow Me.”

But he said, “Lord, let me first go and bury my father.”

9:41 O faithless and perverse generation: This rebuke suggests that the disciples lacked the faith to cast out the spirit described in vv. 38–40. There is also a hint of a competitive spirit among the disciples (v. 46).

9:44 Note that Jesus predicted that He, the Son of Man, would be betrayed, even when many were still marveling at His ministry (v. 43).

9:45 they were afraid to ask: The indication here is that the disciples still had much to learn. Their fear shows that they understood something about what Jesus said, but they did not understand how and why Jesus could say such things about Himself, since He was the Messiah. The suffering of the Messiah was something the disciples did not yet understand. They would continue to be confused in their understanding of how such suffering fit into God’s plan until Jesus’ death and resurrection (24:25, 26, 43–49).

9:46 which of them would be greatest: Note the irony here. After Jesus predicted His suffering (v. 44), the disciples jockeyed for exalted positions in the kingdom (see 22:24; Mark 10:35–45).

9:48 he who is least . . . will be great: Jesus’ point was that prominence is not measured by human standards of achievement, but by one’s relationship to God. Anyone related to God is great, even “the least” of His disciples.

9:51 set His face to go to Jerusalem: This is the first indication that Jesus’ attention was turning toward His final suffering in Jerusalem (v. 53; 13:22, 33–35; 17:11; 18:31; 19:11, 28, 41). The journey to Jerusalem was not direct, however. In 10:38–42, we find Jesus at Martha and Mary’s house in Bethany. In 17:11, we find Him in Samaria and Galilee. The journey to Jerusalem proceeded only according to God’s design and in His timing. Jesus was nearing the destiny of His mission—that is, His death. Luke’s Gospel uniquely emphasizes this journey to Jerusalem. Luke records much of Jesus’ teaching and parables on this journey as Jesus contrasted His way of suffering with the way of the Jewish religious leaders.

9:52 Samaritans were the descendants of Jews who had married Gentiles after the fall of the northern kingdom, Israel. The Samaritans eventually developed their own religious rites which they practiced on Mt. Gerizim instead of at the temple in Jerusalem. Though there was deep hostility between Jews and Samaritans, Jesus ministered to both groups.

9:54 command fire to come down: James and John, the “sons of thunder,” wanted Jesus to bring judgment upon the Samaritan villages that refused to respond to His message, just as Elijah had done in 2 Kin. 1:9–16. Their demand for judgment was antithetical to Jesus’ loving response (v. 56).

9:57, 58 I will follow you: This man volunteered to follow Jesus without reservation. His problem was that he had not realistically counted the cost of discipleship. His enthusiasm, based on his feelings of the moment, would not be strong enough to sustain him during the trials that lay ahead. Jesus warned the would-be disciple that He, the Son of Man, did not have even the ordinary comforts of home.

9:59 let me first go and bury my father: This aspiring disciple placed family responsibilities ahead of following Jesus. The concerns of home were this man’s stumbling block. Unlike the previous volunteer (v. 57), this man was slow, meditative, and contemplative. He was counting the cost of discipleship. Cultic purity was viewed as very important in Jewish circles, so a quick burial of the dead was required (7:11–17).

⁶⁰ Jesus said to him, “Let the dead bury their own dead, but you go and preach the kingdom of God.”

⁶¹ And another also said, “Lord, ^cI will follow You, but let me first go and bid them farewell who are at my house.”

⁶² But Jesus said to him, “No one, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is ^dfit for the kingdom of God.”

9:60 Jesus emphasized that a disciple must have clear priorities. The call of God should receive priority over everything else.

9:62 Jesus’ remark about being fit for the kingdom of God demonstrates the seriousness of commitment to Him. Putting a hand to the plow means engaging in a task. Here the task is serving the kingdom. Looking back makes it difficult to plow straight furrows.

10:1 The account of Jesus calling seventy disciples is unique to the Gospel of Luke. The instructions that Jesus gave to these disciples are similar to the instructions He gave to the Twelve in 9:1–6.

10:2 The picture of a plentiful harvest suggests that a positive response awaited the laborers, even in the face of much rejection.

10:3 The image of lambs among wolves was popular in Judaism. It derived from Is. 40:11.

10:9 kingdom . . . near to you: Like v. 11, 12:20, and 17:21, this text shows how aspects of kingdom authority accompanied Jesus’ earthly ministry. The healing Jesus brought pictured what the kingdom offered (11:20). Jesus’ ministry was the arrival of the initial stages of God’s rule, which Jesus will consummate at His return (17:20–37). God’s kingdom comes in stages. When Jesus came the first time, He was rejected. In His second coming, He will establish His complete rule over all.

10:13 The mighty works of Jesus were so great that if they had been performed before the worst pagans of the old era, those people would have repented. Jesus’ remark was meant to wake the people up to what their rejection of Him signified.

10:16 He who hears you hears Me: Hearing the messenger is the same as hearing the One who sent him. Authority resides not in the messenger, but in the person the messenger represents, the source of the message.

10:18 This verse provides a commentary on what the disciples’ healing ministry meant. The reversal of the effects of sin and death, which Satan introduced through his deception in Gen. 3, are portrayed graphically as Satan falling from heaven. Jesus’ ministry and what grows out of it represents the defeat of Satan, sin, and death.

10:19, 20 This verse records the transmission of Jesus’ authority to His immediate circle of disciples. It should be noted that similar authority was not given beyond that circle of disciples. Note the authority that is given to the Eleven in Matt. 28:16–20; Acts 1:8. As Jesus makes clear in v. 20, authority was not the most important thing the disciples received. your names are written in heaven: More important than the disciples’ authority over spirits was their position as God’s children. Their names were known to God and were written in God’s book. This was the disciples’ greatest blessing.

Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Your sight. ^{22b}All ⁷ things have been delivered to Me by My Father, and ^cno one knows who the Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son, and the one to whom the Son wills to reveal Him.”

²³Then He turned to His disciples and said privately, ^d“Blessed are the eyes which see the things you see; ²⁴for I tell you ^ethat many prophets and kings have desired to see what you see, and have not seen it, and to hear what you hear, and have not heard it.”

How to Inherit Eternal Life

²⁵And behold, a certain ⁸lawyer stood up and tested Him, saying, ^f“Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?”

²⁶He said to him, “What is written in the law? What is your reading of it?”

10:22 All things have been delivered to Me: This is Jesus’ declaration of total authority as the Son of God (see John 10:18; 17:2). He makes a similar statement in Matt. 28:18. except the Father . . . except the Son: Jesus declares His unique relationship with God the Father. The Lord reveals Himself only through Jesus. To know God, one must know His Son, Jesus.

10:24 have not seen . . . heard it: Jesus contrasted the OT era of expectation, in which people desired to see the Messiah but did not, with the era in which the disciples were living. If they had the spiritual insight they could witness the fulfillment in Jesus of many of God’s promises.

10:25, 26 The question posed by the lawyer is really a challenge, since the verse speaks of the testing of Jesus. This is a similar, though probably distinct, event from Matt. 22:34–40; Mark 12:28–34. To inherit something is to receive it. In other words, the man was asking, “What must I do to share in the reward at the resurrection of the righteous at the end?” (see Phil. 3:11–14). The OT basis of this question is the hope of resurrection in Dan. 12:2. Jesus countered the lawyer’s test by having him answer his own question.

10:27 you shall love the LORD . . . and your neighbor: The lawyer responded to Jesus’ questions by quoting Deut. 6:5, a text that was recited twice a day by every faithful Jew. This text summarized the central ethical standard of the Law. The lawyer also alluded to Lev. 19:18. The basis of the man’s response is an expression of allegiance and devotion that also can be seen as the natural expression of faith, since the total person, heart, soul, strength, and mind, is involved. The theme of love for God is picked up in vv. 38–42 with its emphasis on devotion to Jesus, and in 11:1–13, where the disciples are taught to be devoted to God in prayer. In vv. 30–37 Jesus develops the theme of love for one’s neighbor.

10:28 do this and you will live: Jesus was not saying that righteousness is the result of works. Rather He was saying that love for and obedience to God will be a natural result of placing one’s faith in the Lord. Those who believe in Jesus and follow Him will receive eternal rewards. Jesus states this principle to Peter in Matt. 19:27–30.

10:29 Luke makes it clear that the lawyer was trying to place himself in the position of satisfying the highest demands of the Law. who is my neighbor: This question was an attempt to limit the demands of the Law by suggesting that some people are neighbors while others are not. The lawyer was looking for minimal obedience while Jesus was looking for absolute obedience.

10:30 Jerusalem to Jericho: This was a 17 mile journey on a road known to harbor many robbers. They would hide in caves along the way and attack their victims.

10:33 Part of the beauty of the story of the Good Samaritan is the reversal of stereotypes. The priest and Levite traditionally would have been the “good guys.” The Samaritan would have been a “bad guy,” a person who compromised in religious matters. However, the Samaritan knew how to treat his neighbor. The neighbor here was not someone the Samaritan knew or even someone of the same race, just someone in need.

10:34 Oil was used to soothe wounds. Wine was used as a disinfectant.

10:35 two denarii . . . I will repay: The Samaritan, if he paid a typical rate of one-twelfth of a denarius a day, paid for 24 days at the inn.

10:36 which . . . was neighbor: The central issue is not determining who one’s neighbor is, but being a good neighbor to all.

10:37 He who showed mercy: The lawyer apparently could not bring himself to say “Samaritan” and lend credence to the surprising reversal of stereotypes in the story.

10:38 a certain village: If this is the Martha and Mary of John 11:1–12:8, then the location is Bethany, just outside Jerusalem (see John 11:1, 19; 12:1). This text suggests that the “Jerusalem journey” of 9:51–19:44 was not a direct trip to Jerusalem, but a journey of drawing near to the time for Jesus’ death.

The Unnoticed Whom Luke Notices

In Jesus' day, the Samaritans were despised by orthodox Jews because most of the Jews from that region had intermarried with foreigners. The irony of the parable of the Good Samaritan is that a scorned Samaritan knows how to show love to his neighbor, whereas a priest and Levite, who had intimate knowledge of God's law, do not. The Book of Luke highlights Jesus' love for a variety of groups who were not esteemed in His day.

10:40 Martha was distracted by the amount of serving she had to do. Her complaint to Jesus indicates that she was irritated that her sister was not helping her.
10:41 Jesus' tender reply is evident in the double address of Martha, Martha (6:46; 8:24; 13:34; 22:31). He notes that Martha was anxiety-ridden over ordinary matters.
10:42 that good part: Mary was a silent example. She said nothing, but did what was right by devoting herself to Jesus' teaching.
11:1 The Lord's Prayer illustrates the variety of requests that one can and should make to God, as well as displaying the humble attitude that should accompany prayer. The use of the plural pronoun us throughout the prayer shows that it is not just the prayer of one person for his or her own personal needs, but a community prayer.
11:2 Father: God is approached confidently as a caring figure. Hallowed: In the context of intimacy with God, there also is respect and recognition of His uniqueness. Hallowed means that God is holy, set apart, unique in His character and attributes. Your kingdom come:

The reference here is to God's program and promise. This is more affirmation than request, highlighting the petitioner's submission to God's will and the desire to see God's work come to pass.
11:3 our daily bread: This request recognizes that one is dependent on God for daily needs.
11:4 forgive us our sins: This request recognizes that sin is a debt to God that needs to be acknowledged on the basis of His mercy. we also forgive: The petitioner recognizes that if mercy is to be sought from God, then mercy must be shown to others. We need to adopt the same standard that we expect others to follow. do not lead us into temptation: This remark is often misunderstood as suggesting that perhaps God can lead us into sin. The point is that if one is to avoid sin, one must follow where God leads. In short, the petitioner asks God for the spiritual protection necessary to avoid falling into sin.
11:8 Persistence here refers to shameless boldness more than to tenacity. Jesus' point is that in prayer the disciple is to be bold. The example in the parable (vv. 5–7) is a man who goes boldly to his brought to desolation, and a house divided against a house falls. ¹⁸If Satan also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? Because you say I cast out demons by Beelzebub. ¹⁹And if I cast out demons by Beelzebub, by whom do your sons cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges. ²⁰But if I cast out demons ^mwith the finger of God, surely the kingdom of God has come upon you. ^{21 n}When a strong man, fully armed, guards his own palace, his goods are in peace. ²²But ^owhen a stronger than he comes upon him and overcomes him, he takes from him all his armor in which he trusted, and divides his ⁷spoils. ^{23 p}He who is not with Me is against Me, and he who does not gather with Me scatters.

²⁷And it happened, as He spoke these things, that a certain woman from the crowd raised her voice and said to Him, ^s“Blessed is the womb that bore You, and the breasts which nursed You!” neighbor to seek what he requires. Likewise, the disciple is to go boldly to God for that which is needed.

11:10 receives: This verse does not mean that we receive whatever we want in prayer. As v. 13 demonstrates, with its reference to receiving God's Spirit, the suggestion is that we receive what is spiritually beneficial.

11:13 how much more will your heavenly Father give: If people, who are evil, can give good gifts, imagine the value of God's gift of the Holy Spirit. If anyone does not have the Holy Spirit, that person does not belong to Christ (see Rom. 8:9). In the triune Godhead, the Holy Spirit is the divine distributor (see 1 Cor. 12:11) of the good things purchased by the Son (see Eph. 4:7, 8) and ordained by the Father.

11:15 Jesus' miracles were so obvious that they required some kind of explanation. If He was not to be believed, His miracles had to be demonic in origin. This was the ultimate blasphemy—attributing the credentials of heaven to hell. The Latin name Beelzebub was originally a reference to the Philistine god Baal-Zebub worshiped at the city of Ekron (see 2 Kin. 1:2, 3, 6, 16). The name means “Lord of the Flies.”

11:17, 18 The attribution of Jesus' miracles to Satan was not only blasphemous, it was illogical. If Satan had cast out the demon (v. 14), he would have been destroying the result of his own work.

11:19 by whom do your sons cast them out: Jesus' question and the implied reply to it can be taken in one of two ways: (1) How did Jewish exorcists expel demons? If the answer is by God's power, then why not give Jesus the same credit? (2) How did Jesus' disciples, who were the “sons” of Israel, drive out demons? The dissenters not only had to explain Jesus' miracles, but those of His followers. Most scholars prefer the former interpretation.

11:20 The finger of God is an allusion to God's power, like that demonstrated in the Exodus (see Ex. 8:19; Deut. 9:10; Ps. 8:3). the kingdom of God has come upon you: Jesus' miracles represented the arrival of God's power and promise—in short, His rule. That rule comes in and through Jesus. The miracles of Jesus demonstrated God's victory over the forces of evil. The kingdom program, depicted as drawing near, will be consummated at the return of Jesus when this rule is manifested over every creature.

11:22 Jesus portrays Himself as someone stronger than Satan who overruns Satan's house and gives the spoils of victory to those who are His (see Eph. 4:8, 9 for a similar concept).

11:23 He who is not with Me . . . does not gather: Jesus' ministry forces everyone to make a choice. Neutrality is not an option. Either Jesus comes from God or He does not. Not to align with Jesus is to be against Him.

11:25 swept: The exorcised person becomes like a clean house, although empty if God is not present, and still exposed to spiritual danger.

11:26 the last state . . . is worse: Jesus' point is that experiencing God's blessing and then ignoring it leaves one callous towards the work of God and exposed to the control of demonic forces.

11:27, 28 Blessed is the womb: The woman offered praise for Jesus' mother. Though Jesus always honored Mary, He commented carefully on the woman's blessing to keep the focus on the word of God. It is easy to allow traditional practices to take the place of the authority of the Scriptures. Jesus offers His blessing to those who respond concretely to God's will as expressed in the Bible.

Lamps

Lamps were very common in Jewish homes. They burned olive oil, pitch, naphtha, or wax, and they had wicks of cotton or flax. (A Jewish tradition says that the priests made wicks for the lamps of the temple from their old linen garments.) The poorer Israelites made their lamps of clay, while the wealthy had lamps of bronze and other metals.

The Israelites let their lamps burn all night, since light made them feel safer. We are told that the family would rather go without food than let their lamps go out, since that indicated that they had deserted their house (Job 18:5, 6). The writer of Proverbs praises the prudent wife, saying, “Her lamp does not go out by night” (Prov. 31:18). Several other Bible passages show that the lamp symbolized the life and dignity of a family (cf. Job 21:17; Jer. 25:10).

“Woes” on the Pharisees

³⁷ And as He spoke, a certain Pharisee asked Him to dine with him. So He went in and sat down to eat. ³⁸d When the Pharisee saw it, he marveled that He had not first washed before dinner.

³⁹e Then the Lord said to him, “Now you Pharisees make the outside of the cup and dish clean, but ^fyour inward part is full of ²greed and wickedness. ⁴⁰ Fool-

11:29 The sign of Jonah here refers to his prophetic call to repentance rather than to the resurrection foreshadowed by Jonah's return from the belly of the great fish.

11:30-32 Jesus warned that refusal to hear Him would result in condemnation from those in the OT who had responded to God's teaching. The examples Jesus offered included Gentiles such as the queen of the South (the queen of Sheba in 1 Kin. 10:1-10) and the Ninevites (see Jon. 3). Because Jesus is greater than those who proclaimed God's word in those days—Solomon and Jonah, His word should have been heeded by the first-century Israelites.

11:34 It has been said that “you are what you eat.” But even more accurately, you are what you see. This is why David said, “I will set nothing wicked before my eyes” (Ps. 101:3). A person who concentrates on what is good (God's teaching) is healthy. But a person who focuses on what is bad (the false teaching of the world) is full of darkness.

11:36 your whole body is full of light: A person can become like light, a living picture of what God's Word teaches, by concentrating on the light of the truth.

11:38 He had not first washed before dinner: Such ceremonial washing is described in the OT (see Gen. 18:4; Judg. 19:21), but not commanded.

11:39 make the outside . . . clean: These condemnations by Jesus are similar to those in Matt. 23. The Pharisees washed the outside of cups, making sure that the cups had not become unclean through contact with a dead insect (see Lev. 11:31-38). Jesus pointed out that the Pharisees concerned themselves with outward appearances and ritual cleanness, while what was inside, what really counts, was full of selfishness and evil.

Matt. 10:26-33

12 In ^athe meantime, when an innumerable multitude of people had gathered together, so that they trampled one another, He began to say to His disciples first of all, ^b “Beware of the ¹leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. ²^c For there is nothing covered that will not be revealed, nor hidden that will not be known. ³ Therefore whatever you have spoken in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have spoken in the 11:42 pass by: The Pharisees worried about tithing ten percent, even down to the smallest herbs, which were tithed according to the dictates of tradition, not the Law of Moses (see Num. 18:21–32; Deut. 14:22–29; see also Lev. 27:30 for the practice of tithing herbs). The Law spoke of tithing all produce, but what constituted food was debated. Some Pharisees took the strictest interpretation and counted almost anything, including spices. However, they neglected two basic things that the prophets also had warned about: love and justice (see Mic. 6:8; Zech. 7:8–10).

11:44 The Pharisees were like hidden graves. To have contact with a grave or with the dead was to become ceremonially unclean (see Num. 19:11–19). Anyone or anything in the same room as the dead was considered in Jewish tradition to be impure. This is Jesus’ stronger condemnation. The Pharisees, the paragons of purity, were in fact the height of uncleanness.

11:46 Jesus applied His woes to lawyers as well as to the Pharisees. In everyday Greek, the term translated burdens refers to a ship’s cargo. The idea is that a heavy strain was being imposed on the people and yet, in the end, this burden did not bring them closer to God. Here Jesus rebuked the tradition that had grown up around the Law of Moses. you yourselves do not touch the burdens: The meaning of this phrase is debated. Was Jesus accusing the scribes of hypocrisy in not practicing what they taught and in making distinctions that freed them from obligations, as they did with oaths (see Matt. 5:33–37)? Or was Jesus simply accusing the scribes of not offering aid and compassion to those who tried to follow their rules? The second interpretation is more likely, since the Pharisees were known for adhering to the Law.

11:47, 48 you build the tombs of the prophets: Jesus made a biting, ironic comparison between the current generation of Israel and the generations of the past. Jesus was saying that the current generation finished the job of slaying of the prophets that the previous generation had started. The building and care of tombs was supposed to be an act of honoring the prophets, but Jesus pointed out that something else was really going on.

11:49 The wisdom of God refers to God’s knowledge of the people. The prophets and apostles who would be persecuted and killed were the disciples and the prophets of the early church. This is the basis of Jesus’ previous rebuke (vv. 47, 48). Those who would come in the current generation with the message of God would suffer the same fate as the prophets of old.

11:50 Generation seems to refer to the people or nation of Israel. They had received and would receive judgment for the way they treated God’s prophets. The judgment here refers specifically to the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, and ultimately to the final judgment of God in the Tribulation.

11:50, 51 Abel is pictured as the first prophet to be killed, going back to the foundation of the world (see Gen. 4:10). Zechariah is probably the man described in 2 Chr. 24:20–25. He would be the last prophet slain in the OT if one considers the Hebrew order of the books of the OT.

11:52 Jesus charged the lawyers with doing the opposite of what they claimed their calling to be. Rather than bringing people nearer to God, they had removed the possibility of their entering into that knowledge, and had prevented others from understanding as well.

11:54 seeking to catch Him: The scribes and Pharisees began challenging Jesus in the hope that He might make a blunder that would allow them to destroy His ministry. They were lying in wait for Him (6:11; 19:47, 48; 20:19, 20; 22:2).

12:1, 2 Leaven here represents the presence of corruption. Unleavened bread is what the Jews ate at Passover (see Ex. 12:14–20). The corruption in view here is hypocrisy. Practicing hypocrisy is senseless because eventually all deeds—both good and evil—will be exposed.

12:3 will be proclaimed on the housetops: All secrets will be revealed by God (see Rom. 2:15, 16; 1 Cor. 4:5). The inner room was 12:4 do not be afraid of those who kill the body: This verse anticipates the presence of severe religious persecution in response to Jesus’ remarks in 11:39–54.

12:5 Even in the context of physical persecution, the only One believers should fear is God, who sees how we live and judges us. Jesus was not guaranteeing physical preservation in this life, but was opening the prospect of deliverance in the next life.

(Gk. blasphēmia) (12:10; Matt. 12:31; Mark 3:28) Strong’s #988

Blasphemy is the act of cursing, slandering, reviling, or showing contempt or lack of reverence for God. In the OT, blaspheming God was a serious crime punishable by death (Lev. 24:15, 16). It was a violation of the third Commandment, which required that the name and reputation of the Lord be upheld (Ex. 20:7). The unbelieving Jews of Jesus’ day charged Him with blasphemy because they thought of Him only as a man while He claimed to be God’s Son (Matt. 9:3). Actually, the lawlessness of the Jews themselves was causing God’s name to be blasphemed among the Gentiles (Rom. 2:24). By their bitter opposition to Jesus and His gospel, they themselves were guilty of blasphemy (Acts 18:6). Jesus condemned as blasphemy their attributing the work of the Holy Spirit to Satan (Matt. 12:31, 32). Christians are commanded to avoid behavior that blasphemes the Lord’s name and teaching (1 Tim. 6:1).

12:6 This verse emphasizes that God knows the most minute detail of what happens on earth. The copper coins mentioned were the smallest coin in circulation, worth about one-sixteenth of a basic day’s wage.

12:8 The issue here is faithfulness in testimony to Jesus, especially in the context of religious rejection. Acknowledging Jesus before men means being acknowledged by the Son of Man before God.

12:9 denies . . . will be denied: Every act of denial of Christ on earth will meet with commensurate denial of reward at the judgment seat (see 1 John 2:28). This is not speaking of the gift of salvation, but of the prize or reward (see 1 Cor. 9:24–27).

12:10 A word against the Son of Man is forgivable because His deity was veiled, but blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is flagrant rejection of the works and words of Christ.

12:11 when they bring you to the synagogues: This is another indication that religious persecution is in view in these verses. Magistrates and authorities governed civil proceedings, while synagogues conducted religious tribunals. In such situations, the disciple should not worry about what to say.

12:13 tell my brother: Jesus is asked to intervene in a family dispute, as an ancient rabbi would be.

12:14 who made Me a Judge: Jesus refuses to enter into a dispute over money, which is clearly dividing a family. Such disputes over money destroy relationships, so Jesus tells a parable that explains the danger of focusing on wealth.

12:18, 19 Including v. 17, the word I appears six times, showing the selfish focus this man has as a result of his fortune. His plan is to store his abundant resources for himself, as though the assets were his alone and should be hoarded. This focus on the self is what Jesus is condemning.

12:20 God’s judgment on selfishness is clear. What did the rich fool have for the next life? He could not take his grain with him. What he owned was no longer of any value after death. In a single day,

The Ministry of the Holy Spirit in Luke’s Writings

In both of his books, Luke highlights the activities of the Spirit with his unique phrase “filled with the Holy Spirit.” The Book of Acts chronicles the anxious anticipation of the Spirit’s coming, the dramatic empowering of the disciples on the Day of Pentecost, and the spread of the church by means of the Spirit’s power. But Luke also highlights the Holy Spirit’s ministry in his Gospel, where the ministry of the Holy Spirit centers on Jesus. Those connected with Jesus—John the Baptist, Elizabeth, Mary, and Simeon—are filled with the Holy Spirit. Jesus Himself is filled with the Spirit’s power. The Old Testament prophets had spoken of One who would be empowered by the Spirit of God. Luke underscores in his Gospel that these prophecies have been fulfilled in Jesus (4:18–22).

Event	Reference	Quote and Explanation
The filling of John the Baptist	Luke 1:15–17	“He will also be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother’s womb.” John, as the forerunner to Messiah, was empowered from infancy to “make ready a people prepared for the Lord.”
The conception of the Messiah	Luke 1:35	“The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Highest will overshadow you.” The Spirit of God was the agent of divine conception; He made possible the virgin birth of Christ.
The filling of Elizabeth	Luke 1:41	“When Elizabeth heard the greeting of Mary . . . [she] was filled with the Holy Spirit.” The Spirit empowered Elizabeth to encourage Mary in her faith.
The filling of Zacharias	Luke 1:67	“Now his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Spirit.” The Spirit of God indwelt the parents of John so that they might testify about the coming Messiah.
The filling of Simeon	Luke 2:25–27	“The Holy Spirit was upon him.” The Spirit of God led the godly Simeon to an end-of-life encounter with the infant Messiah and a proclamation of the presence of the Messiah.
The baptism of Christ	Luke 3:22	“The Holy Spirit descended in bodily form like a dove upon Him.” The visible descent of the Spirit indicates God’s presence with, blessing on, and approval of Jesus.
The temptation of Christ	Luke 4:1–13	“Jesus, being filled with the Holy Spirit . . . was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, being tempted for forty days by the devil.” The Spirit led Christ into an arena in which He might demonstrate His faithful obedience to the Father.
The inauguration of Jesus’ ministry	Luke 4:14–21	“Then Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit to Galilee.” Christ’s ministry, from beginning to end, was marked by the presence and power of God.
Jesus’ teaching on prayer	Luke 11:1–13	“If you then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him!” This promise by Christ foreshadows the coming of the Spirit at Pentecost.
Jesus’ promise of the Spirit to His disciples	Luke 12:11, 12	“For the Holy Spirit will teach you in that very hour what you ought to say.” Jesus promised the comforting and enabling presence of God to His disciples when they were in danger.
Jesus’ prophecy of Pentecost	Acts 1:4–8	“You shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now.” Jesus comforted His confused disciples with the assurance that the Spirit of God would come upon them in a powerful and permanent way.
Pentecost	Acts 2:1–21	“They were all filled with the Holy Spirit.” The advent of the Spirit at Pentecost gave birth to the church and empowered its members to proclaim the Good News.

the rich man became poor. All earthly wealth is temporary and ultimately worthless (Matt. 6:19–21; 1 Tim. 6:6–10, 17–19; James 5:1–6). 12:24 Jesus describes God’s care of ravens, unclean creatures according to Jewish law and among the least respected of birds (Lev. 11:15; Deut. 14:14). Yet God even cares for them. How much more value are you, says Jesus, pointing out that God will surely care for the disciple as well. 12:25 It is uncertain whether Jesus is saying through His rhetorical question that worry cannot add to one’s physical height or that worry cannot add to one’s life span. In fact, worry can sometimes shorten life. What is clear is that worry is utterly useless and shows a lack of faith in God’s plan for our lives.

12:27–29 Even the wealthy King Solomon did not clothe himself as God has clothed the lilies. The illustration of grass indicates that God cares enough to provide beauty for the parts of His creation that have a short life. Why should we worry if God takes such care of even the smallest blade of grass? The Lord knows our problems and will provide us with what we need. do not seek . . . nor have an anxious mind: Since God will provide, there is no need for us to concentrate on mundane things such as food. This should not be our chief concern, but instead our first priority should be doing the will of God (v. 31). 12:30 The world pursues expensive food and luxurious clothing as ends in themselves. It has its heart set on things, without thinking of

Parable of the Faithful Steward

⁴¹ Then Peter said to Him, “Lord, do You speak this parable only to us, or to all people?”

⁴² And the Lord said, ^j “Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his master will make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of food ⁸ in due season? ⁴³ Blessed is that servant whom his master will find so doing when he comes. ⁴⁴ ^k Truly, I say to you that he will make him ruler over all that he has. ⁴⁵ ^l But if that servant says in his heart, ‘My master is delaying his coming,’ and begins to beat the male and female servants, and to eat and drink and be drunk, ⁴⁶ the master of that servant will come on a ^m day when he is not looking for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him in two and appoint him his portion with the unbelievers. ⁴⁷ And ⁿ that servant who ^o knew his master’s will, and did not prepare himself or do according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. ⁴⁸ ^p But he who did not know, yet committed things deserving

God and thanking Him for such pleasures. The materialistic world is like a group of passengers frantically scurrying to get the best deck chair on a sinking ship. When we are consumed with possessions, there can be little left in our heart for God. your Father knows: We can trust God to provide for us because God knows precisely what we need.

12:33 Sell what you have: In contrast to the world’s hoarding of possessions, the disciple must be generous with what God gives. money bags which do not grow old: By serving God and others, you can invest in your eternal future. You cannot take possessions with you in the next life, but you can store up an eternal treasure by giving to others (see Paul’s statement in Phil. 4:17).

12:34 What people consider valuable is where their energy will be spent. Knowing God and investing in His purposes should be the treasure we seek.

12:35 waist be girded . . . lamps burning: These are two pictures of readiness. A lamp was used at night, while girding the waist involved pulling up the hem of a robe so that one could run. Jesus was calling the disciples to be ready for service.

12:36 Jesus compared the disciples to servants who are ready to serve their master immediately. Paul also used this image in describing his relationship to God (see Rom. 1:1).

12:37 Blessed: Here the blessing is on those who watch attentively for their master’s return. Jesus was speaking of faithful and obedient service. One day Jesus will return to make an accounting of how people served Him (see Rom. 14:10; 2 Cor. 5:10). In a reversal of the servant image, Jesus pointed out that the faithful servant will be served by Jesus on His return. Faithfulness will be rewarded.

12:38 This verse speaks of a return at an unusually late hour. The exact time referred to depends on which system of time was used. In the Roman system the second and third watch would be 9 P.M. to 3 A.M. By the Jewish method it would be 10 P.M. to 6 A.M. Luke usually uses the Roman pattern (see Acts 12:4); but since Jesus is speaking, the Jewish system is also possible. The point is that constant attentiveness is necessary.

12:39, 40 he would have watched: Jesus changed the illustration slightly, comparing the watch to protecting against a robbery. Knowledge of the time would lead to vigilance. But since the time is not known, constant readiness is essential.

12:41 to us, or to all people: Peter asked if Jesus’ teaching was for the disciples only or for all people. Jesus did not answer the question directly. Instead He described a variety of categories of servants. Servants are those who belong to the Master and have their stewardship evaluated (19:11–27). Several responses, from faithfulness to blatant disobedience, are described in vv. 42–48. The issue is who lives life in a way that looks for, and takes seriously, the return of Jesus (see 1 John 2:28).

12:44 he will make him ruler: Such rule will be a part of the administration of Jesus’ kingdom when He returns (see 19:11–27; 1 Cor. 6:2, 3; Rev. 20–22).

12:45 is delaying . . . begins to beat: This servant is depicted as consciously doing the opposite of caring for others, and of treating the Master’s return as irrelevant.

12:46 The image of being slain—cut him in two—indicates the severity of this judgment, especially in contrast to the whippings of vv. 47, 48. Unbelievers are those who did not take seriously the consequences of judgment (see 2 Cor. 5:10; Rev. 3:11).

12:47 knew . . . did not prepare himself or do: This is a category of disobedience, not as blatant as doing the opposite, but unfaithfulness nonetheless. This servant is disciplined with many stripes, though he is not rejected. Such evaluation of church leaders is described in 1 Cor. 3:10–15 and is broadened to apply to all believers in 2 Cor. 5:10.

12:48 Discipline for the ignorant is less severe—beaten with few. The parable suggests degrees of God’s punishment: The faithful are rewarded, the ignorant are disciplined a little, the disobedient are disciplined moderately, and the blatantly disobedient are executed. In each case, the stewardship of the servant is evaluated.

of stripes, shall be beaten with few. For everyone to whom much is given, from him much will be required; and to whom much has been committed, of him they will ask the more.

Christ Teaches on Repentance

⁶ He also spoke this parable: ^a “A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came seeking fruit on it and found none. ⁷ Then he said to the keeper of his vineyard, ‘Look, for three years I have come seeking fruit on this fig tree and find none. 12:49 I came to send fire: Fire is an image associated with God’s judgment (see Jer. 51:4; 23:29). Jesus’ coming brings judgment on those who refuse to accept Him and divides the believers from the faithless. Though Jesus was ready for the judgment of humankind, other things had to happen first (v. 50).

12:50 As a figure for Jesus’ death (see Mark 10:38, 39), baptism in this verse refers to the coming of overflowing waters of divine judgment (see Ps. 18:4, 16; 42:7; 69:1, 2; Is. 8:7, 8; 30:27, 28). Note Jesus’ human response to what He recognized as His necessary death.

12:51 Part of Jesus’ mission was to create a division within humankind. Other texts of Luke speak of Jesus bringing peace (see 2:14; 7:50; 8:48; 10:5, 6; Acts 10:36; Eph. 2:13–17). He offers peace to those who respond to Him.

12:54, 55 a cloud rising out of the west: In Palestine a western breeze meant moisture coming from the Mediterranean Sea. A south wind meant hot air coming from the desert.

12:56 Hypocrites: Jesus rebuked His audience for being able to discern the weather but not what God was doing through Him.

12:58, 59 make every effort . . . to settle with him: The picture here is of a magistrate who functions like a bailiff bringing a debtor into prison. Since the context of this passage is Jesus’ mission, the judge likely represents God. The message of this parable is to become reconciled to God before judgment comes.

13:1 The details of the incident referred to here, in which Jewish blood was shed at or near the temple during a time of sacrifices, are not known. Pilate was known for his insensitivity to the Jewish people early in his rule. The event probably occurred during the Feast of the Passover or Tabernacles, when Galileans most likely would have been at the temple.

13:2 Do you suppose: Jesus’ question reflected the opinion of His audience. The idea that judgment and death are the results of sin led to the belief that tragic death was the result of extreme sin. While such a view was common in Judaism, it was not always a correct conclusion (see Ex. 20:5; Job 4:7; 8:4, 20; 22:5; Prov. 10:24, 25; John 9:1–3).

13:3 unless you repent: Jesus’ point here is that everyone stands at the edge of death until repentance occurs. The death in view here is spiritual, not physical.

13:4 The event referred to here was a natural tragedy as opposed to the violent human act alluded to in vv. 1, 2. However, the same question was raised. Were the people who suffered being judged for their sins? Siloam was located in the southeast section of Jerusalem.

13:5 The manner in which a person dies is not a measure of righteousness; what is important is not to die outside of God’s grace and care. The way to avoid such a fate is to repent, to come to God through the care of the physician Jesus (5:32).

13:6 A fig tree often represents God’s blessing, or a people who have a special relationship with God (see Mic. 7:1, 2). The man in this parable represents God; the fig tree represents Israel.

13:7 for three years: A fig tree was often given some time to bear good fruit since its root structure was complex and took time to develop. Three years would have been enough for the tree to yield some fruit.

13:9 But if not: If the tree, symbolizing Israel, would yield some fruit it could escape judgment; a failure to be fruitful would result in judgment. In v. 35, Jesus declares that the nation’s house is desolate, so judgment comes. That judgment is described in 19:41–44. The fall of Jerusalem, which took place in A.D. 70, is in view. This theme is also addressed in 20:9–19.

Christ Heals the Crippled Woman

¹⁰Now He was teaching in one of the synagogues on the Sabbath. ¹¹And behold, there was a woman who had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bent over and could in no way ⁴raise herself up. ¹²But when Jesus saw her, He called her to Him and said to her, “Woman, you are loosed from your ‘infirmity.’” ¹³^d And He laid His hands on her, and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

¹⁴But the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because Jesus had ‘healed on the Sabbath; and he said to the crowd, ^f“There are six days on which men ought to work; therefore come and be healed on them, and ^gnot on the Sabbath day.”

¹⁵The Lord then answered him and said, ⁵“Hypocrite! ^hDoes not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or donkey from the stall, and lead it away to water it? ¹⁶So ought not this woman, ⁱbeing a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan has bound—think of it—for eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath?” ¹⁷And when He said these things, all His adversaries were put to shame; and all the multitude rejoiced for all the glorious things that were ^jdone by Him.

Parable of the Leaven

Matt. 13:33-35

²⁰And again He said, “To what shall I liken the kingdom of God? ²¹It is like ⁷leaven, which a woman took and hid in three ^lmeasures⁸ of meal till it was all leavened.”

The Way into the Kingdom

²²^m And He went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem. ²³Then one said to Him, “Lord, are there ⁿfew who are saved?”

And He said to them, ²⁴^o “Strive to enter through the narrow gate, for ^pmany, I say to you, will seek to enter and will not be able. ²⁵^q When once the Master of the house has risen up and ^rshut the door, and you begin to stand outside and knock at the door, saying, ^s“Lord, Lord, open for us,” and He will answer and say to you, ^t“I do not know you, where you are from,” ²⁶then you will begin to say, ‘We ate and drank in Your presence, and You taught in our streets.’ ²⁷^u But He will say, ‘I tell you I do not know you, where you are from.’ ^vDepart from Me, all you workers of iniquity.’ ²⁸^w There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, ^xwhen you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and yourselves thrust out. ²⁹They will come from the east and the west, from the north and the south, and sit down in the kingdom of God. ³⁰^y And indeed there are last who will be first, and there are first who will be last.”

13:15 Hypocrite: When the ruler of the synagogue became indignant regarding Jesus’ healing on the Sabbath (vv. 10–14), Jesus pointed out that basic compassion was shown to animals on the Sabbath, so how much more compassion should be shown to a suffering woman (v. 16)?

13:16 daughter of Abraham: This description of the woman indicates how special she was. Jesus pointed out that there was no better day on which to overcome Satan than the Sabbath.

13:18, 19 Jesus compared the growth of God’s kingdom to a little seed that becomes a big tree where many birds can find shelter. A tree of the mustard family would grow to about 12 feet. The image of birds nesting in the trees is found frequently in the OT (see Ps. 104:12; Ezek. 17:22–24; Dan. 4:10–12).

13:20, 21 In this illustration the leaven is hidden in meal or flour equaling about 50 pounds. Leaven permeates bread and makes it rise. Usually this image is negative, as in 1 Cor. 5:6; but in this parable, it is positive. The kingdom will start small, but will grow and eventually fill the earth. The emphasis is not so much on a process of growth as in the difference between the kingdom’s beginning and its end.

13:24 the narrow gate: The suggestion here is that one must enter salvation on God’s terms. Those who seek to enter but are unable are those who seek entrance on their own terms. Many will miss the blessings of God because they think they can achieve salvation on their own merit or on the basis of their own piety, rather than because they came to know God through Jesus (v. 25).

13:25 Once a person’s life has ended, the door of opportunity to respond to Jesus is closed and access into God’s presence cannot be gained. I do not know you: The issue here is being properly and personally related to God through Jesus. Verse 26 makes it clear that the Lord at the door is Jesus, since reference is made to His ministry. Those who seek entry after the door is closed will be rejected, since they did not come to God on His terms through Jesus.

13:26 We ate and drank . . . You taught: The appeal here is by people who experienced Jesus’ presence. The passage primarily involves those Jews who witnessed Jesus’ ministry. They were trying to gain entry into God’s presence based simply on the fact that they had observed Jesus. Jesus refused them, pointing out that it was not enough for them to have been close to Him. In order to have a relationship with God, one must embrace Jesus and come to know Him.

13:27 I do not know you . . . Depart from Me: In this verse, Jesus turns a question about salvation (v. 23) into a question about personally knowing Him. Failure to seek salvation in Jesus means that sin remains in a person’s life.

13:29 east . . . west . . . north . . . south: People would come from all corners of the earth for entrance into God’s kingdom. This passage alludes to the inclusion of Gentiles.

13:30 There will be many surprises in God’s kingdom. Those who

Instruction on the Sabbath

14 Now it happened, as He went into the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees to eat bread on the Sabbath, that they watched Him closely. ² And behold, there was a certain man before Him who had dropsy. ³ And Jesus, answering, are despised on earth—some Gentiles, for example—will be greatly honored in the kingdom. Conversely, those who are considered influential and powerful on earth—the Jewish religious leaders of Jesus’ day, for example—will be excluded from the kingdom.

13:31–33 Herod wants to kill You: This warning from the Pharisees was apparently an effort to get Jesus out of the region and out of their hair. It is hard to know whether the warning was true. In 23:7–9, 15, Herod is portrayed as more curious than hostile. fox: The reference here is to Herod’s cunning. Jesus’ reply seems to take the Pharisees’ warning at face value. I shall be perfected: Jesus predicted His resurrection in Jerusalem. Because it was His call from God, Jesus could not avoid ministering in the region. The verb translated perfected means to complete something, which is why it alludes to Jesus’ resurrection, the decisive moment of His ministry. The reference to today, tomorrow, and the day following is figurative, since Jesus was speaking of more than three remaining days in His ministry.

13:33 it cannot be: Jesus followed a long line of prophets that were executed in the nation’s capital (see 1 Kin. 18:4, 13; 19:10, 14; 2 Chr. 24:21; Jer. 2:30; 26:20–23; 38:4–6; Amos 7:10–17).

13:34 Jerusalem, Jerusalem: The double address indicates Jesus’ deep sorrow (see 2 Sam. 18:33; Jer. 22:29). The city had executed many of God’s messengers. Stephen makes a similar point about the nation of Israel in Acts 7:51–53. I wanted to gather: As a prophet, Jesus spoke for God in the first person. He compared God’s desire to gather the nation to a hen sheltering and protecting her young. Sadly, the nation was not willing to be gathered.

13:35 Your house is left . . . desolate: Jesus declared that the nation stood under a judgment similar to the Exile to Babylon (see Jer. 12:7; 22:5). God would abandon the nation until they responded to the Messiah. Blessed is He: This is a citation of Ps. 118:26. The people of Israel would not see the Messiah again until they were ready to receive Him and recognize that He was sent from God. Psalm 118 reflects the greeting of a priest to a group entering the temple. Jesus used the language of this psalm to illustrate God’s greeting to Him.

14:2 Dropsy is a condition in which water is retained in the body, leading to swollen limbs (see Num. 5:11–27). Dropsy is a symptom and not a specific disease.

14:3 Is it lawful: Note that Jesus raised the question of Sabbath law here, preempting the questioning he had faced in 6:2 (see 6:9).

Keeping the Sabbath

A man’s withered hand is restored; a man with dropsy is healed. Most would rejoice in the restoration of health and marvel at Jesus’ power over illness. But the Pharisees were filled with rage (6:11) or remained disapprovingly silent (14:4). Why?

To the Jewish leaders of Jesus’ day, healing on the Sabbath was sacrilegious. They considered His healings to be work, and the Ten Commandments clearly prohibited work on the Sabbath (see Ex. 20:8–11; Deut. 5:12–15). The Sabbath was holy, a day set apart for God. Just as the Israelites were commanded to tithe part of their earnings to God, they were to give Him their time as well. Breaking the Sabbath was a very grave matter, for God’s law demanded death for those who ignored it (see Ex. 31:14, 15; 35:2).

During the period of the second temple (515 B.C.–A.D. 70), scribes and rabbis pored over the words of Scripture, interpreting every detail. What constituted “work” on the Sabbath? What could be allowed “within the Law”? According to the Law, burdens were not to be carried on the Sabbath. This meant that what exactly constituted a “burden” had to be clarified and defined. On the surface, the scribes had a good reason for interpreting the Law: They did not want anyone to break it inadvertently. But their interpretations increasingly emphasized external adherence to the Law instead of the cultivation of an attitude of submission before the Lord. Perfect obedience to the Law and its interpretation became a source of pride instead of a tangible expression of love for God. By Jesus’ day, the rabbis and scribes had become so strict that they accused Jesus’ disciples of breaking the Sabbath because they had simply plucked some heads of grain, rubbed them in their hands, and eaten them as they walked through a grainfield (6:1, 2).

Jesus’ healings on the Sabbath enraged the religious teachers. It was obvious to them that healing was classified as work and prohibited by the Fourth Commandment (see Deut. 5:14). But to Jesus it was common sense and a good deed. Jesus revealed the rabbis’ hypocrisy with the example of an ox falling down a pit. The Pharisees would allow an ox to be rescued on the Sabbath, but they wanted to prohibit Jesus from rescuing a human being. Their outrage at Jesus’ healing came from their own interpretation of the Law and not from the Law itself. The scribes and rabbis had thought through, categorized, and defined all the minutiae of the Law, but they had missed its central point. The Lord had given the Law to encourage the Israelites to love Him and to love others (see Mark 12:30, 31). He had never prohibited doing good on the Sabbath.

spoke to the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, “Is it lawful to heal on the ¹Sabbath?”

⁴But they kept silent. And He took him and healed him, and let him go. ⁵Then He answered them, saying, ^b“Which of you, having a ²donkey or an ox that has fallen into a pit, will not immediately pull him out on the Sabbath day?” ⁶And they could not answer Him regarding these things.

Parable of the Ambitious Guest

⁷So He told a parable to those who were invited, when He noted how they chose the best places, saying to them: ⁸“When you are invited by anyone to a wedding feast, do not sit down in the best place, lest one more honorable than you be invited by him; ⁹and he who invited you and him come and say to you, ‘Give place to this man,’ and then you begin with shame to take the lowest place. ¹⁰^cBut when you are invited, go and sit down in the lowest place, so that when he who invited you comes he may say to you, ‘Friend, go up higher.’ Then you will have glory in the presence of those who sit at the table with you. ¹¹^dFor whoever exalts himself will be ³humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted.”

¹²Then He also said to him who invited Him, “When you give a dinner or a supper, do not ask your friends, your brothers, your relatives, nor rich neighbors, lest they also invite you back, and you be repaid. ¹³But when you give a feast, invite ^e*the poor, the* ⁴maimed, the lame, the blind. ¹⁴And you will be ^fblessed, because they cannot repay you; for you shall be repaid at the resurrection of the just.”

Parable of the Great Supper

¹⁵Now when one of those who sat at the table with Him heard these things, he said to Him, ^g“Blessed is he who shall eat ⁵bread in the kingdom of God!”

¹⁶^hThen He said to him, “A certain man gave a great supper and invited many, ¹⁷and ⁱsent his servant at supper time to say to those who were invited, ‘Come, for all things are now ready.’ ¹⁸But they all with one accord began to make excuses. The first said to him, ‘I have bought a piece of ground, and I must go and see it. I ask you to have me excused.’ ¹⁹And another said, ‘I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am going to test them. I ask you to have me excused.’ ²⁰Still another said, ‘I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.’ ²¹So that servant came and reported these things to his master. Then the master of the house, being angry, said to his servant, ‘Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in here the poor and the ⁶maimed and the lame and the blind.’ ²²And the servant said, ‘Master, it is done as you commanded, and still there is room.’ ²³Then the master said to the servant, ‘Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled. ²⁴For I say to you ^jthat none of those men who were invited shall taste my supper.’”

Christ Teaches on Discipleship

²⁵Now great multitudes went with Him. And He turned and said to them, ²⁶^k“If anyone comes to Me ^land does not hate his father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, ^myes, and his own life also, he cannot be My disciple. ²⁷And ⁿwhoever does not bear his cross 14:7 In ancient times the best seats at a meal were those next to the host.

14:12, 13 True hospitality and service are given to those who cannot repay. Disciples must have a special concern for the poor, maimed, lame, and blind, as Jesus does (4:16–19).

14:14 you shall be repaid: Even though there may be no reward in this life, God will not overlook what His servants have done to carry out His love and mercy. See 2 Cor. 5:10; Heb. 6:20.

14:15 Blessed is he: One of the guests at the meal reflected on the glory of sitting at the banquet table of God, an image of being saved and living in God’s presence. The man probably assumed that many of the people attending the meal with Jesus would be present at God’s banquet table. Jesus responded to the man’s assumption with a warning.

14:17 those who were invited: In the ancient world, invitations to a feast were sent out well in advance of the meal. Then on the day of the feast, servants would announce the start of the meal. This parable is similar to the one in Matt. 22:1–14, but was probably spoken on a different occasion.

14:20 I have married a wife: While the OT exempted a man from military duty because of marriage (see Deut. 20:7; 24:5), marriage was not an excuse for avoiding social duties. The general point here is that the man regarded his own affairs as more important than the feast.

14:21 poor . . . maimed . . . lame . . . blind: This list matches that of v. 13. The maimed were excluded from full participation in Jewish worship (see Lev. 21:17–23). The master’s second invitation extended the scope of the offer to those who were rejected by society.

14:23 The master’s second invitation extended beyond the city limits, encouraging even more people to come to the feast. This may picture the inclusion of Gentiles in God’s salvation (see Is. 49:6). The instruction to compel them to come in does not mean to force people in, but to urge them. As outsiders, the people might not feel comfortable coming.

14:26 does not hate: The essence of discipleship is giving Christ first place. To “hate” one’s family and even one’s life is rhetorical. It refers to desiring something less than something else. This instruction was especially appropriate in Jesus’ day, since a decision for Jesus could mean rejection by family and persecution even to the point of death. Those who feared family disapproval or persecution would not come to Jesus.

14:27 Jesus’ call here is to follow Him in the way of rejection and suffering. A disciple will be rejected by those in the world who do not honor Christ. Therefore, a disciple must be ready to face and accept such rejection.

and come after Me cannot be My disciple. ²⁸For ^owhich of you, intending to build a tower, does not sit down first and count the cost, whether he has enough to finish it— ²⁹lest, after he has laid the foundation, and is not able to finish, all who see it begin to mock him, ³⁰saying, ‘This man began to build and was not able to finish?’ ³¹Or what king, going to make war against another king, does not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand to meet him who comes against him with twenty thousand? ³²Or else, while the other is still a great way off, he sends a delegation and asks conditions of peace. ³³So likewise, whoever of you ^pdoes not forsake all that he has cannot be My disciple.

Parable of the Lost Coin

⁸“Or what woman, having ten silver ³coins, if she loses one coin, does not light a lamp, sweep the house, and search carefully until she finds it? ⁹And when she has found it, she calls her friends and neighbors together, saying, ‘Rejoice with me, for I have found the piece which I lost!’ ¹⁰Likewise, I say to you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents.”

Parable of the Lost Son

¹¹Then He said: “A certain man had two sons. ¹²And the younger of them said to his father, ‘Father, give me the portion of goods that falls to me.’ So he divided to them ^hhis livelihood. ¹³And not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, journeyed to a far country, and there wasted his possessions with ⁴prodigal living. ¹⁴But when he had spent all, there arose a severe famine in that land, and he began to be in want. ¹⁵Then he went and joined himself

14:30 was not able to finish: Their mocking centers on the dishonor that results from an inability to complete the task. Following Christ is not something to be taken up on a trial basis. It calls for ultimate commitment (see 9:62).

14:31, 32 The picture here is of a king assessing his ability to do battle with another more powerful king. The king sends a delegation only after appreciating the weight and consequences of his decision. Jesus urged the people to think about what it would mean to follow Him, and not to take it lightly.

14:34 In the ancient world, salt was often used as a catalyst for burning fuel such as cattle dung. The salt of the time was impure and could lose its strength over time, becoming useless. Jesus’ point is that the same is true of a “saltless” disciple.

14:35 throw it out: Jesus warned that an ineffective commitment leads to being cast aside. This apparently is a reference to those who are judged as unfaithful disciples (see 1 Cor. 11:30). Remaining useful to God means remaining faithful to Him (9:61, 62).

15:1 the tax collectors and the sinners: The three parables of ch. 15 explain why Jesus associated with despised groups while the Pharisees and scribes did not. The parables in this chapter are found only in Luke.

15:2 eats with them: In the ancient world, table fellowship indicated acceptance of the other guests. This is why the Jewish religious leaders complained about Jesus’ companions at His meals (see 5:30–32; 19:10; Mark 2:15).

15:4 A hundred sheep was a medium-sized flock. The average herd ran from 20 to 200 head, while a flock of three hundred or more was considered large.

15:6 The call to rejoice at finding the lost sheep would have been natural enough, since sheep were valuable property in the ancient world.

15:7 likewise: Jesus compared the joy of finding a lost sheep to the joy of heaven over a sinner’s repentance. The unstated conclusion is that the hope of such a conversion was the reason Jesus associated with the undesirable of society. Persons who need no repentance is a rhetorical way of describing the scribes and Pharisees. A similar description is found in 5:31, where it is said that some do not need a physician. The scribes and Pharisees believed that they did not need to repent because they were not lost.

15:8 ten silver coins: A drachma was a silver coin equal to a day’s wage for a basic laborer. The woman needed a lamp because she lived in a windowless house. Her broom for sweeping would have been made of palm twigs. In this second parable of ch. 15, more detail is given regarding the search effort than in the first parable of vv. 4–7.

15:12 the portion of goods that falls to me: In the ancient world, this son most likely would have been in his teens and single. As the younger son he would have received half of what the elder son received (see Deut. 21:17), or a third of his father’s estate. The early Jews warned fathers against breaking up an estate too early. Here the father granted the request, illustrating how God permits each person to go his or her own way.

15:13 wasted his possessions: The verb here means “to scatter or disperse something.” The term translated prodigal describes a debased, extravagant life (see Prov. 28:7).

15:15 Feeding swine was an insulting job for a Jewish person, since pigs were unclean according to the Law of Moses.

to a citizen of that country, and he sent him into his fields to feed swine. ¹⁶ And he would gladly have filled his stomach with the ⁵ pods that the swine ate, and no one gave him anything.

¹⁷ “But when he came to himself, he said, ‘How many of my father’s hired servants have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! ¹⁸ I will arise and go to my father, and will say to him, ‘Father, ¹⁹ I have sinned against heaven and before you, ¹⁹ and I am no longer worthy to be called your son. Make me like one of your hired servants.’”

²⁰ “And he arose and came to his father. But ²¹ when he was still a great way off, his father saw him and had compassion, and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him. ²¹ And the son said to him, ‘Father, I have sinned against heaven ²² and in your sight, and am no longer worthy to be called your son.’

²² “But the father said to his servants, ²³ ‘Bring out the best robe and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand and sandals on his feet. ²³ And bring the fattened calf here and kill it, and let us eat and be merry; ²⁴ ²⁴ for this my son was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found.’ And they began to be merry.

²⁵ “Now his older son was in the field. And as he came and drew near to the house, he heard music and dancing. ²⁶ So he called one of the servants and asked what these things meant. ²⁷ And he said to him, ‘Your brother has come, and because he has received him safe and sound, your father has killed the fattened calf.’

²⁸ “But he was angry and would not go in. Therefore his father came out and pleaded with him. ²⁹ So he answered

Parable of the Unjust Servant

16 He also said to His disciples: “There was a certain rich man who had a steward, and an accusation was brought to him that this man was ¹ wasting his goods. ² So he called him and said to him, ‘What is this I hear about you? Give an ^a account of your stewardship, for you can no longer be steward.’

³ “Then the steward said within himself, ‘What shall I do? For my master is taking the stewardship away from me. I cannot dig; I am ashamed to beg. ⁴ I have resolved what to do, that when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.’

⁵ “So he called every one of his master’s debtors to him, and said to the first, ‘How much do you owe my master?’ ⁶ And he said, ‘A hundred ² measures of oil.’ So he said to him, ‘Take your bill, and sit down quickly and write fifty.’ ⁷ Then he said to another, ‘And how much do you owe?’ So he said, ‘A hundred ³ measures of wheat.’ And he said to him, ‘Take your bill, and 15:18, 19 I have sinned: The son’s words represent the confession of a sinner. The son expected nothing and relied completely on the mercy of his father. So it is with the sinner who repents.

15:20 The description of the father’s compassion in running to his son and kissing him illustrates the immediate acceptance of a sinner who turns to God.

15:21 no longer worthy to be called your son: Despite his awareness of being accepted by his father, the son continued his confession of his sin. He then asked to become one of his father’s servants. Similarly, a sinner realizes that he or she brings nothing to and deserves nothing from God, but must rely completely on God’s mercy.

15:22 The father accepted his son’s confession but refused his request to make him a servant. Instead the returning son was made a full member of the family again. The robe probably represented the best clothes the father had to offer. The ring may have borne the family seal, signifying the son’s acceptance back into the family. The son’s confession of sin brought full restoration.

15:24 dead . . . alive . . . lost . . . found: The total transformation of the prodigal son is summarized in these two contrasts. Such a transformation is a reason to celebrate. It is also the reason Jesus chose to associate with the lost.

15:28 The older brother’s unhappiness over a fattened calf (v. 27) being killed to celebrate the return of his undisciplined brother illustrates the response of the Pharisees and scribes at the prospect of sinners becoming acceptable to God.

15:29 I never transgressed . . . you never gave me: Note the contrast between the older son’s attitude here and the younger son’s attitude in vv. 19, 21. The older son proclaimed his righteousness and argued that justice had not been done.

15:31 all that I have is yours: The father responded to his disgruntled older son by explaining that just because someone receives a blessing, that does not mean there is no blessing for others. The father also implied that the older son always had the opportunity to celebrate with a fattened calf, since the animals were his.

16:1 A steward was a servant who supervised and administered an estate. The charge brought against this steward is incompetence.

16:2 Give an account . . . you can no longer be steward: The rich man responded to the charge that his steward was incompetent by firing the steward and asking for his records to be brought up to date.

16:6 A hundred measures of oil . . . fifty: Three explanations are commonly given concerning the steward’s right to alter the amount his master was owed: (1) The steward simply lowered the price on his own authority; (2) the steward removed the interest charge from the debt, according to the Law (see Lev. 25:36, 37; Deut. 15:7, 8; 23:20, 21); or (3) the steward removed his own commission, sacrificing only his own money and not that of his master. The

Christ Warns the Pharisees

¹⁴Now the Pharisees, ^gwho were lovers of money, also heard all these things, and they ⁶derided Him. ¹⁵And He said to them, “You are those who ^hjustify yourselves ⁱbefore men, but ^jGod knows your hearts. For ^kwhat is highly esteemed among men is an abomination in the sight of God.

Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus

¹⁹“There was a certain rich man who was clothed in purple and fine linen and ⁸fared sumptuously every day. ²⁰But there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, full of sores, who was laid at his gate, ²¹desiring to be fed with ⁹the crumbs which fell from the rich man’s table. Moreover the dogs came and licked his sores. ²²So it was that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels to ^oAbraham’s bosom. The rich man also died and was buried. ²³And being in torments in Hades, he lifted up his eyes and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

²⁴“Then he cried and said, ‘Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and ^pcool my tongue; for I ^qam tormented in this flame.’ ²⁵But Abraham different rates of reduction reflect the different rates for different commodities.

16:8 The master recognized the foresight in the steward’s generosity. It is debatable whether the steward was dishonest and robbed the master by such reductions or was shrewd in using his authority to discount the goods (vv. 6, 7). The fact that the master commended the steward may suggest that the master was not robbed, and that the steward’s reduction was the result of either an adherence to the Law or a lowering of the steward’s own commission.

16:9 Mammon, or money, should be used generously to build works that last. Money is called unrighteous because it often manifests unrighteousness and selfishness in people (see 1 Tim. 6:6–10, 17–19; James 1:9–11; 5:1–6).

16:10 faithful . . . unjust . . . least . . . much: Small examples of selfishness now result in greater selfishness later. Likewise, small examples of generosity now result in greater generosity later.

16:11 mammon . . . true riches: This is the development of v. 10. A person who cannot handle money certainly cannot handle spiritual matters that are of much more value.

16:16 Jesus indicates a basic division in God’s plan here. The time of promise extended from the Law and Prophets until John the Baptist. Now the promise of God’s kingdom is preached. The new era approaches. Everyone is pressing into it can also be translated “all are urged insistently to come in,” emphasizing the urgency of the message.

16:17 Jesus’ point is not that all the commandments of the law remain in effect forever, but that the goal of God’s law, the promise of God’s rule, is realized.

16:18 commits adultery: Jesus illustrated the moral demands of God’s law by referring to the inviolability of marriage.

16:19 clothed in purple: Purple clothes were extremely expensive because they were made with a special dye extracted from a kind of snail.

16:20, 21 To have his sores licked by dogs threatened Lazarus with infection as well as ritual uncleanness, since dogs fed on garbage, including dead animals.

16:22 Abraham’s bosom was the blessed place of the dead. Angelic escorts for the dead were also known in Judaism. This verse indicates that the dead know their fate immediately.

16:23 Note the reversal of fortune from vv. 19–21. Here the rich man was suffering and Lazarus was at peace. Hades in the OT was the place where the dead are gathered. It is also called Sheol in Ps. 16:10; 86:13. In the NT, Hades is often mentioned in a negative context (see 10:15; Matt. 11:23; 16:18). Hades is where the unrighteous dead dwell. Gehenna is the place where final judgment occurs (see 12:5; Matt. 5:22).

16:24 I am tormented: The rich man desired relief from his suffering. The image of thirst for the experience of judgment is common (see Is. 5:13; 65:13; Hos. 2:3).

16:25 The standard by which the rich man treated others was applied to him. In his lifetime he lacked compassion, so now there was no compassion for him.

mammon

(Gk. mammōnas) (16:9, 11; Matt. 6:24) Strong’s #3126

The Greek word is a transliteration of a common Aramaic word mamona, which means “wealth,” “money,” or “property.” It is impossible to serve this god called “mammon” and the true God at the same time. In ch. 16, this word is used for “riches,” considered an idol, master, or god of the human heart that is in conflict with the true God.

said, ‘Son, ^rremember that in your lifetime you received your good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted and you are tormented. ²⁶And besides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that those who want to pass from here to you cannot, nor can those from there pass to us.’

²⁷“Then he said, ‘I beg you therefore, father, that you would send him to my father’s house, ²⁸for I have five brothers, that he may testify to them, lest they also come to this place of torment.’ ²⁹Abraham said to him, ‘They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.’ ³⁰And he said, ‘No, father Abraham; but if one goes to them from the dead, they will repent.’ ³¹But he said to him, ‘If they do not hear Moses and the prophets, ^uneither will they be persuaded though one rise from the dead.’”

Christ Cleanses Ten Lepers

¹¹Now it happened ^has He went to Jerusalem that He passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. ¹²Then as He entered a certain village, there met Him ten men who were lepers, ⁱwho stood afar off. ¹³And they lifted up their voices and said, “Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!”

¹⁴So when He saw them, He said to them, ^j“Go, show yourselves to the priests.” And so it was that as they went, they were cleansed.

¹⁵And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, returned, and with a loud voice ^kglorified God, ¹⁶and fell down on his face at His feet, giving Him thanks. And he was a ^lSamaritan.

¹⁷So Jesus answered and said, “Were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine? ¹⁸Were there not any found who returned to give glory to God except 16:26 a great gulf fixed: This detail illustrates the fact that the unrighteous, once they have died, cannot enter into the sphere of the righteous.

16:27, 28 The rich man asked for a heavenly envoy to be sent so that his brothers would not repeat his irreversible error. It is difficult to know if his concern for his brothers was sincere, or just a backhanded way of saying that in his own life he had not received adequate warning about the judgment.

(Gk. skandalizo) (17:2; Matt. 5:29; 13:21; John 6:61; 1 Cor. 8:13) Strong's #4624

The word is the verb form of a Greek noun that means “stumbling block” or “snare.” The term refers to the trigger which springs a trap. In the NT it means anything that hinders someone from doing what is right or causes one to sin or fall away from the faith. Jesus emphatically warns that stumbling blocks are sure to come our way. Nonetheless, He condemned those who put stumbling blocks in the way of believers. He says that death by drowning would be preferable to offending “one of these little ones” in the faith.

16:29 They have Moses and the prophets: Abraham made it clear that the rich man’s brothers should have known what to do, since they had the message of God in the ancient writings. The point here is that generosity with money and care for the poor were taught in the OT (see Deut. 14:28, 29; Is. 3:14, 15; Mic. 6:10, 11).

16:31 If they do not hear: A person who rejects God’s message will not be persuaded by resurrection. Though the rich man’s request for a heavenly messenger is denied within the parable, it is honored in the telling of the account, because the parable is part of a Gospel that announces Christ’s resurrection.

17:1, 2 woe to him: Jesus warned that judgment awaits those who cause others to stumble. The severe form of the warning suggests that false teaching, or leading someone into apostasy, is in view here. A millstone was a heavy stone used in a grinding mill.

17:6 Even faith the size of a tiny mustard seed can do wonderful things. The black mulberry tree has a vast root system that allows it to live up to six hundred years.

17:11 Samaria and Galilee: Though Jesus was traveling to Jerusalem, His journey did not follow a direct route.

17:14 Jesus healed the lepers but sent them to the priests to verify their cleansing, just as He did the leper in 5:14.

17:15–18 The Samaritans were a despised race (9:52). A hated foreigner was the only former leper who gave glory to God for his cleansing.

Matt. 24:28

CHAPTER 18 ^{1 a} Luke 11:5-10; Rom. 12:12; [Eph. 6:18]; Col. 4:2; 1 Thess. 5:17 ^{2 i} respect

17:19 Jesus commended the faith that heals, as He did in 7:50; 8:50. The Samaritan apparently received more than physical healing.

17:20 In ancient Israel there was an expectation that the kingdom of God would come with cosmic signs. Such expectation was rooted in texts that linked God's coming with great signs (see Joel 2:28-32). Jesus' concept of the kingdom of God, however, was broader than the time of the final consummation.

17:21 Within you may also be translated "in your midst." This verse indicates that there was an aspect of kingdom promise involved in Jesus' first coming. The kingdom of God is among earthly kingdoms today; but one day the kingdom of God will swallow up all rival kingdoms (see Rev. 11:15). In vv. 22-37, Jesus makes it clear that the kingdom has two phases—one now and one to come. In the beginning of His kingdom on earth, God first prepares a King to rule; then He gathers a people for Him to rule over; then He gives the Ruler a realm in which to reign. The kingdom of God is not the same as the church, though the church is a part of the kingdom. The kingdom now is the presence of God alongside earthly kingdoms. The power of God is shown now in the distribution and work of the Holy Spirit (see Rom. 14:17; 1 Cor. 4:20). One day, however, Jesus will rule over all, and He will share that rule with His people (see Rev. 2:26, 27; 5:9, 10; 20:4-6).

17:24 Lightning is sudden and visible to all. Likewise, the sudden day of the Son of Man will be visible to all. When the Lord returns, He will come quickly and obviously. There will be no doubt as to what has occurred.

17:26 In the days of Noah people paid little attention to God and faced judgment as a result (see Gen. 6:5-13). The same will be the case at Jesus' return.

17:29 destroyed them all: The day of the Son of Man will be a time of total judgment, as were the days of Noah (v. 27) and Lot.

17:32 Lot's wife represents those who are attached to earthly things, those whose hearts are still in this world. Like Lot's wife, such people will perish (see Gen. 19:26).

17:33 whoever loses his life will preserve it: Those who invest their lives in advancing Christ's kingdom, even to the point of suffering and death, will receive great privilege and glory in the climactic reign of Christ (see Matt. 5:10-12; 19:27-30; 2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 20:4-6).

17:34 Taken here suggests judgment, such as when the soldiers took Jesus to crucify Him. Verse 37 makes it clear that those who are taken are taken to final judgment.

17:35, 36 one will be taken and the other left: On that day, the Son of Man will divide humankind into two groups: those who are taken to judgment and those who are left to live and reign with Christ. Other commentators suggest the opposite: The righteous will be taken into God's kingdom. Either way, Jesus is clearly saying that a person's eternal destiny is not determined by being close to those who are righteous. Each person stands before God alone.

17:37 When the disciples asked where Jesus' return would take place, Jesus did not answer directly. the eagles will be gathered: The term for eagles here refers to vultures that gather over dead animals. When the judgment comes, it will be final and terrible, with the stench of death and the presence of vultures everywhere. No one will need to look for the place of judgment; the presence of the birds will reveal where the carcasses are.

18:2 The Romans allowed the Jews to manage most of their own affairs. This judge did not fear God, and was therefore probably a secular judge, not a religious one. The dishonest judge represents corrupted power.

18:3 The woman in this parable is a widow, dependent on society for her support. Luke often takes special note of the plight of widows (see 2:37; 4:25, 26; 7:12; 20:47; 21:2, 3; Acts 6:1-7; 9:39, 41).

widow in that city; and she came to him, saying, ²“Get justice for me from my adversary.” ⁴And he would not for a while; but afterward he said within himself, “Though I do not fear God nor regard man, ⁵yet because this widow troubles me I will ³avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me.”

⁶Then the Lord said, “Hear what the unjust judge said. ⁷And ^cshall God not avenge His own elect who cry out day and night to Him, though He bears long with them? ⁸I tell you ^dthat He will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless, when the Son of Man comes, will He really find faith on the earth?”

Parable of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector

⁹Also He spoke this parable to some ^ewho trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others: ¹⁰“Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. ¹¹The Pharisee ^fstood and prayed thus with himself, ^g“God, I thank You that I am not like other men—extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this tax collector. ¹²I fast twice a week; I give tithes of all that I possess.” ¹³And the tax collector, standing afar off, would not so much as raise ^hhis eyes to heaven, but beat his breast, saying, “God, be merciful to me a sinner!” ¹⁴I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather

Christ Blesses the Children

Matt. 19:13-15; Mark 10:13-16

¹⁵i Then they also brought infants to Him that He might touch them; but when the disciples saw it, they rebuked them. ¹⁶But Jesus called them to Him and said, “Let the little children come to Me, and do not forbid them; for ^jof such is the kingdom of God. ¹⁷k Assuredly, I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will by no means enter it.”

Rich Young Ruler

Matt. 19:16-26; Mark 10:17-27

¹⁸l Now a certain ruler asked Him, saying, “Good Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?”

¹⁹So Jesus said to him, “Why do you call Me good? No one is good but ^mOne, that is, God. ²⁰You know the commandments: ⁿ ‘Do not commit adultery,’ ‘Do not murder,’ ‘Do not steal,’ ‘Do not bear false witness,’ ^o ‘Honor your father and your mother.’”

Get justice: Perhaps the woman was asking for help concerning a financial problem.

18:5 The persistence of the widow is the lesson of the parable. God is a counterexample to the judge. God does not begrudge answering prayer. Jesus’ point is that if an insensitive judge will respond to the continual requests of a widow, God will certainly respond to the continual prayers of believers.

18:7 shall God not avenge His own elect: God will respond to injustice and religious persecution meted out to His people. In the end, He will avenge.

18:8 will He really find faith: Jesus’ question here is whether upon His return believers will still be looking for Him. Persecution can cause the faithful to lose their enthusiasm. In asking this question, Jesus is exhorting believers not to lose heart (v. 1).

be merciful

(Gk. hilaskomai) (18:13; Heb. 2:17) Strong’s #2433

The Greek word means “to be propitious” or “to be favorably inclined.” The term is used only one other time as a verb in the NT, and there it describes how Christ made reconciliation possible between God and humanity by His sacrifice on the Cross (Heb. 2:17). The noun form appears in 1 John 2:2; 4:10; in both places Jesus is called “the propitiation for our sins.” Jesus, as our sacrifice, propitiated God concerning our sins; that is, He appeased God. This tax collector, well aware of his sinful condition, was asking God for reconciliation.

18:11, 12 God, I thank You: The tone of the prayer reveals the Pharisee’s problem. He uses the pronoun I five times in two verses. The Pharisee’s attitude seems to be that God should be grateful to him for his commitment. The man obviously looked down on other people and was proud of his fasting and tithing.

18:13 This is an example of the humble spirit of repentance that Jesus commends. The tax collector knew that he could not say or bring anything to enhance his standing with God. He knew that only God’s mercy and grace, and not his own works, could deliver him.

18:14 Jesus identified the contrast between the Pharisee and the tax collector as one between pride and humility, between those who exalt and those who humble themselves. God will bring down the proud and will exalt the humble (1:52; 14:11).

18:15 they rebuked them: The disciples assumed that Jesus was too important and too busy for children. The parents’ desire for Jesus to touch the children was probably a request to bless them.

18:16 Jesus used the thoughtlessness of His disciples to make two points: (1) All people, even little children, are important to God. (2) The kingdom of God consists of those who respond to Him with the trust that a little child gives to a parent.

18:21 All these things I have kept: Like the Pharisee in vv. 11, 12, the ruler was certain of his own ability to live righteously.

18:22 Sell all that you have and distribute to the poor: This was a radical test of the ruler’s concern for others (12:33, 34). Jesus was determining whether the ruler’s treasure (see Matt. 6:19–21) lay with God or money (16:13). Jesus was not establishing a new requirement for being saved. He was examining the ruler’s orientation to God by directly confronting him with the very thing that was hindering him—namely, his wealth. By contrast, Zacchaeus was a wealthy man who responded to Jesus (19:8–10).

the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow Me.”

²³ But when he heard this, he became very sorrowful, for he was very rich.

²⁴ And when Jesus saw that he became very sorrowful, He said, ^r“How hard it is for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵ For it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.”

²⁶ And those who heard it said, “Who then can be saved?”

²⁷ But He said, ^s“The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.”

Christ Will Reward Sacrifice

Matt. 19:27-29; Mark 10:28-30

²⁸ Then Peter said, “See, we have left ⁵ all and followed You.”

²⁹ So He said to them, “Assuredly, I say to you, ^tthere is no one who has left house or parents or brothers or wife or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, ³⁰ ^vwho shall not receive many times more in this present time, and in the age to come eternal life.”

Christ Heals Bartimaeus

Matt. 20:29-34; Mark 10:46-52

³⁵ ^a Then it happened, as He was coming near Jericho, that a certain blind man sat by the road begging. ³⁶ And hearing a multitude passing by, he asked what it meant. ³⁷ So they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by. ³⁸ And he cried out, saying, “Jesus, ^b Son of David, have mercy on me!”

³⁹ Then those who went before warned him that he should be quiet; but he cried out all the more, “Son of David, have mercy on me!”

⁴⁰ So Jesus stood still and commanded him to be brought to Him. And when he had come near, He asked him, ⁴¹ saying, “What do you want Me to do for you?”

He said, “Lord, that I may receive my sight.”

⁴² Then Jesus said to him, “Receive your sight; ^c your faith has made you well.” ⁴³ And immediately he received his sight, and followed Him, ^d glorifying God. And all the people, when they saw it, gave praise to God.

Christ Abides with Zacchaeus

19 Then Jesus entered and passed through ^a Jericho. ² Now behold, there was a man named Zacchaeus who was a chief tax collector, and he was rich.

18:24, 25 How hard it is for those who have riches: A wealthy person is easily tempted to depend on earthly riches rather than on God. easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle: Jesus used this figure of speech to emphasize the difficulty of turning from wealth to find salvation. Because many Jewish people believed that wealth was evidence of God’s blessing, Jesus’ statements would have been shocking to His audience.

18:26, 27 Who then can be saved: Jesus answered this question by explaining that the change of heart one must experience in order to know God is possible only through Him. Any person who enters the kingdom does so only by the marvelous grace of God (see John 3:3).

18:28 We have left all and followed You: Peter wanted reassurance about the disciples’ sacrifice as compared to the ruler.

18:29, 30 for the sake of the kingdom of God: Jesus assured the disciples that the sacrifices they made in leaving everything to follow Him would be rewarded without measure in His kingdom. The disciples’ wise stewardship of their lives exemplifies the principle of 9:24; 17:33. In these verses there is a clear division of time into the present time and the age to come. Blessings abound in both periods for disciples. In the future will come the same eternal life the ruler asked about in v. 18. The quality of that life will more than compensate for the sacrificial investment of life today (9:24).

18:31 Though Jesus referred to the suffering He was going to face in Jerusalem, a suffering that was predicted by the prophets,

His disciples did not understand the implication of His words until after His resurrection. The theme of Jesus’ suffering is repeated in 24:25, 26, 44–47.

18:32, 33 The entire sequence of events of Jesus’ trial, crucifixion, and resurrection is predicted here in detail.

18:34 understood none of these things: The disciples may have understood something of what Jesus said, but they could not understand why God’s Chosen One would have to face such suffering. For those who were expecting the Promised One to be an exalted figure who would deliver God’s people, it would be very difficult to reconcile such an expectation with such terrible suffering. was hidden: The disciples did not understand the implications of Jesus’ suffering and death until it was explained to them in detail after Jesus was raised from the dead (24:25, 26, 44–47).

18:35 Jesus was nearing Jerusalem: Jericho was about 17 miles from the city.

18:38 Note the irony in this verse. The blind man recognized who Jesus was, the Son of David, more clearly than many people who were blessed with physical sight. The blind man’s cry for mercy demonstrated his belief that Jesus had the power to heal him.

18:43 The gracious work of God led to praise, not only from the one who was blessed but also from those who saw the blessing.

19:2 Zacchaeus, as chief tax collector, most likely bid for the right to collect taxes and then hired another tax collector to actually gather the money.

³And he sought to ^bsee who Jesus was, but could not because of the crowd, for he was of short stature. ⁴So he ran ahead and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see Him, for He was going to pass that way. ⁵And when Jesus came to the place, He looked up ¹and saw him, and said to him, “Zacchaeus, ²make haste and come down, for today I must stay at your house.” ⁶So he ³made haste and came down, and received Him joyfully. ⁷But when they saw it, they all ⁴complained, saying, ^c“He has gone to be a guest with a man who is a sinner.”

⁸Then Zacchaeus stood and said to the Lord, “Look, Lord, I give half of my goods to the ^dpoor; and if I have taken anything from anyone by ^efalse accusation, ^fI restore fourfold.”

⁹And Jesus said to him, “Today salvation has come to this house, because ^ghe also is ^ha son of Abraham; ¹⁰ⁱfor the Son of Man has come to seek and to save that which was lost.”

Christ Gives the Parable of the Ten Minas

¹¹Now as they heard these things, He spoke another parable, because He was near Jerusalem and because ^jthey thought the kingdom of God would appear immediately. ^{12k}Therefore He said: “A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. ¹³So he called ten of his servants, delivered to them ten ⁵minas, and said to them, ‘Do business till I come.’ ^{14l}But his citizens hated him, and sent a delegation

¹⁵“And so it was that when he returned, having received the kingdom, he then commanded these servants, to whom he had given the money, to be called to him, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading. ¹⁶Then came the first, saying, ‘Master, your mina has earned ten minas.’ ¹⁷And he said to him, ^m‘Well done, good servant; because you were ⁿfaithful in a very little, have authority over ten cities.’ ¹⁸And the second came, saying, ‘Master, your mina has earned five minas.’ ¹⁹Likewise he said to him, ‘You also be over five cities.’

²⁰“Then another came, saying, ‘Master, here is your mina, which I have kept put away in a handkerchief. ^{21o}For I feared you, because you are ⁶an austere man. You collect what you did not deposit, and reap what you did not sow.’ ²²And he said to him, ^p‘Out of your own mouth I will judge you, you wicked servant. ^qYou knew that I was an austere man, collecting what I did not deposit and reaping what I did not sow. ²³Why then did you not put my money in the bank, that at my coming I might have collected it with interest?’

19:4 A sycamore tree is similar to an oak tree, with a short trunk and wide lateral branches.

19:7 The crowd was not happy with Jesus’ choice of whom to honor with His fellowship. In the crowd’s opinion, Zacchaeus was a sinner. The term translated complained recalls the grumbling of 5:30 and 15:2, where the same issue was in view. Since tax collectors often took for themselves a high percentage of what they demanded, they were hated and despised in ancient Israel.

19:8 give half . . . restore fourfold: Zacchaeus determined to deal generously with others. In later Judaism, it was considered generous to give away up to 20 percent of one’s belongings; giving away more than this was considered dangerous. Legal restitution for extortion was also 20 percent (see Lev. 5:16; Num. 5:7).

19:11 Evidently the disciples believed that Jesus’ arrival in Jerusalem would signal the arrival of the kingdom of God. Jesus’ parable in vv. 12–27 was designed to dispel this misconception. Note that the disciples raised the same question in Acts 1:6.

19:12 This parable is similar to Matt. 25:14–30, but the occasion is probably different. The story parallels in part what happened to Archelaus, a son of Herod the Great, who came to power in 4 b.c. The people disliked Archelaus, and they appealed to Augustus Caesar not to give him authority. Jesus is not retelling the story of Archelaus, but the historical events meant that the parable had a well-known plot. A significant detail is that the kingdom is received during the journey away from the land to be ruled. This corresponds to Jesus’ leaving this earth to receive the kingdom following His resurrection.

19:13 Do business till I come: This detail shows that Jesus’ return would not be immediate (v. 11). The servants represent Jesus’ followers. They are to serve faithfully until Jesus returns. ten minas: Each servant received one mina, or about four months’ wages for the average worker. The master, symbolizing Jesus Himself, wants to see fruit, or dividends from his investment. Did his servants put the money they received to good use?

19:14 his citizens hated him: This is a separate group from the servants and refers to those who reject Jesus outright.

19:15 how much every man had gained: Having returned with authority to rule, the nobleman asks the servants to give an account of their labor in his absence.

19:16 The first servant earned ten times the amount he was given originally.

19:17 you were faithful . . . have authority over ten cities: Faithfulness is commended and rewarded with greater opportunity. The authority given to the servant represents a role in administering Jesus’ kingdom (see 1 Cor. 6:2, 3; Rev. 2:26–28; 5:9, 10; 20:1–6).

19:20–23 I feared you: The unfaithful servant’s excuse for failure reflects a negative view of the nobleman. If the servant had really feared the master, he would have done something with the money. Even putting the money in the bank would have yielded interest. As it was, the servant failed to respond to the nobleman at all or even to understand him.

19:26 what he has will be taken away from him: Unfaithfulness results in loss of reward (see Rev. 3:11).

of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, and lay them before me.”

The Triumphal Entry

Matt. 21:1-9; Mark 11:1-10; John 12:12-19

²⁸When He had said this, ^sHe went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem. ²⁹And it came to pass, when He drew near to ⁷Bethphage and ^uBethany, at the mountain called ^vOlivet, that He sent two of His disciples, ³⁰saying, “Go into the village opposite you, where as you enter you will find a colt tied, on which no one has ever sat. Loose it and bring it here. ³¹And if anyone asks you, ‘Why are you loosing it?’ thus you shall say to him, ‘Because the Lord has need of it.’”

³²So those who were sent went their way and found it just ^was He had said to them. ³³But as they were loosing the colt, the owners of it said to them, “Why are you loosing the colt?”

³⁴And they said, “The Lord has need of him.” ³⁵Then they brought him to Jesus. ^xAnd they threw their own clothes on the colt, and they set Jesus on him. ³⁶And as He went, many spread their clothes on the road.

³⁷Then, as He was now drawing near the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to ^yrejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works they had seen, ³⁸saying:

⁴⁰But He answered and said to them, “I tell you that if these should keep silent, ^bthe stones would immediately cry out.”

⁴¹Now as He drew near, He saw the city and ^cwept over it, ⁴²saying, “If you had known, even you, especially in this ^dyour day, the things that ^emake for your ^fpeace! But now they are hidden from your eyes. ⁴³For days will come upon you when your enemies will ^gbuild an embankment around you, surround you and close you in on every side, ⁴⁴^hand level you, and your children within you, to the ground; and ⁱthey will not leave in you one stone upon another, ^jbecause you did not know the time of your visitation.”

Cleansing the Temple

Matt. 21:12, 13; Mark 11:15-17

⁴⁵^kThen He went into the temple and began to drive out those who ⁸bought and sold in it, ⁴⁶saying to them, “It is written, ^l*‘My house ⁹is a house of prayer,’* but you have made it a ^m*‘den of thieves.’*”

⁴⁷And He ⁿwas teaching daily in the temple. But ^othe chief priests, the scribes, 19:29, 30 Jesus was in control of the events of the last week of His life, even though those events led to His death. Here He prepared to enter the city riding a colt. Bethphage and Bethany were located just east of Jerusalem, within two miles of the city. The Mount of Olives was in a range of hills just outside of Jerusalem, directly across from the temple.

19:31-34 the Lord has need of it: Such borrowing of an animal was not as strange as it may appear. There was an ancient custom by which a political or religious leader could commandeer property for short-term use. Jesus was entering Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread, festivals that commemorated the great act of God’s deliverance of the nation. Such feasts were often celebrated at this time with the hope that God’s decisive deliverance would come.

19:35 The clothes were probably their outer garments. The scene recalls the declaration of Jehu as king in 2 Kin. 9:13. The ride on the colt or mule resembles the events of 1 Kin. 1:33, in which David made the new king, Solomon, ride to Gihon on a mule. Zechariah had prophesied that the coming King would ride into Jerusalem humbly on a donkey (Zech. 9:9). However, Luke does not emphasize these connections with OT prophecy as Matthew and John do (see Matt. 21:5; John 12:15).

19:36 spread their clothes on the road: The actions here indicate that a dignitary was being greeted (see 2 Kin. 9:13). This is like “rolling out the red carpet” today.

19:38 This verse is a citation of Ps. 118:26, with the title of King added to it. The disciples recognized that Jesus was the promised King sent from God. He is the One who brings peace to the relationship between people and God (1:78, 79).

19:41 wept over it: Jesus knew that so many of the people of Israel had rejected Him that the nation would suffer judgment, in the form of the terrible destruction that came on Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

19:43 build an embankment: This is a prediction of Rome’s successful siege of Jerusalem under Titus. The details reflect a divine judgment for covenant unfaithfulness, similar to the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. (see Is. 29:1-4; Jer. 6:6-21; 8:13-22; Ezek. 4:1-3).

19:44 level you, and your children: The totality of the destruction is made clear in this further description of the siege of Jerusalem. Even children would die, and buildings would be destroyed.

19:45 Jesus’ entrance into Jerusalem begins the final section of Luke’s Gospel. Jesus cleansed the temple in anger after seeing that the place of prayer had become an excuse for corrupt commerce. Merchants were selling sacrificial animals in the outer court of the temple (the court of the Gentiles) at exorbitant prices. Money changers were making an excessive profit exchanging currencies for the temple shekel. John records a temple cleansing in John 2:13-22, but it is not clear whether that event is the same as this one in Luke. Since John places the event early in Jesus’ ministry, Jesus might have cleansed the temple twice. The synoptic Gospels place the cleansing of the temple in the last week of Jesus’ ministry (Matt. 21:12-17; Mark 11:15-19). Some have suggested that John purposely placed the cleansing of the temple out of chronological order as a foretaste of Jesus’ judgment on contemporary religious practices.

19:46 The holy place of worship had become a site for taking economic advantage of people. Jesus’ remark about a house of prayer alludes to Is. 56:7. His comment regarding the den of thieves comes from Jer. 7:11.

19:47 Jesus’ actions at the temple, the most sacred location for Jews, caused the Jewish religious leaders to strengthen their resolve to destroy Him.

and the leaders of the people sought to destroy Him, ⁴⁸and were unable to do anything; for all the people were very attentive to ^phear Him.

Religious Leaders Question Christ's Authority

Matt. 21:23-27; Mark 11:27-33

20 Now ^ait happened on one of those days, as He taught the people in the temple and preached the gospel, that the chief priests and the scribes, together with the elders, confronted Him ²and spoke to Him, saying, “Tell us, ^bby what authority are You doing these things? Or who is he who gave You this authority?” ³But He answered and said to them, “I also will ask you one thing, and answer Me: ⁴The ^cbaptism of John—was it from heaven or from men?”

⁵And they reasoned among themselves, saying, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ He will say, ‘Why ¹then did you not believe him?’ ⁶But if we say, ‘From men,’ all the people will stone us, ^dfor they are persuaded that John was a prophet.” ⁷So they answered that they did not know where it was from.

⁸And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.”

Herodians Question Tribute Money

Matt. 21:45, 46; 22:15-22; Mark 12:12-17

¹⁹And the chief priests and the scribes that very hour sought to lay hands on Him, but they ⁴feared the people—for 20:4 Here as throughout the Gospel of Luke, the ministries of John the Baptist and Jesus are linked (see also 1:5–80; 3:10–18; 7:18–35). Jesus’ question presented the Pharisees with a dilemma. If they recognized John’s ministry as coming from heaven, they would be recognizing the same divine origin of Jesus’ similar “independent,” Spirit-directed ministry. But if the Pharisees denied that John was sent by God, they risked angering the majority of the people, who believed that John’s ministry was divinely directed (vv. 5, 6).

20:9 In a variation of Is. 5:1–7, the vineyard here represents the promise made to Israel, while the vinedressers represent the nation of Israel. The man who planted the vineyard represents God. The imagery of the vineyard recalls the subject of Jesus’ parable in 13:6–9. This parable is also found in Matt. 21:33–44 and Mark 12:1–12, with some slight variations of detail in each account.

20:10 beat him . . . sent him away empty-handed: The treatment of the servant in this parable represents the treatment of the OT prophets by the people of Israel. During the time of the prophets, the nation of Israel produced no fruit; disobedience abounded (see 11:49–51; 13:34; Acts 7:51–53).

20:13 I will send my beloved son: This refers to Jesus (3:21, 22; 9:35).

20:14 This is the heir . . . let us kill him: The vinedressers hoped that with the son gone, the inheritance would fall to those who worked the property, a transfer that was possible in the ancient world. It should be noted that the details of this parable do not represent the thinking of those who crucified Jesus. The leaders of Israel thought they were stopping someone who was dangerous to Judaism, not that they were going to inherit Jesus’ kingdom.

20:15 cast him out . . . killed him: The parallel here of course is Jesus’ death. what will the owner of the vineyard do to them: the parallel question is “What will God the Father do to those who reject and murder His Son?”

20:16 come and destroy those vinedressers: God will exercise judgment on those who killed His Son. He will give the vineyard to others. Jesus is alluding to the inclusion of Gentiles in the promise of God’s kingdom.

20:17 The stone which the builders rejected: This passage, taken from Ps. 118:22, pictures the exaltation of the Righteous One, Jesus, after His rejection. Opposition will not stop God from making the One who is rejected the center of His work of salvation.

20:18 Jesus is the stone. Anyone who goes against the stone will be destroyed. Jesus’ statement is similar to a late Jewish proverb: “If the stone falls on the pot, alas for the pot; if the pot falls on the stone, alas for the pot.” The imagery of Jesus as a stone is also found in 1 Pet. 2:4–8, where Peter compares the believers to living stones built into a spiritual temple for the Lord. chief cornerstone: This could be the large stone which joins the foundation of two walls of a building, or else the capstone at the top of a doorway.

20:19 The Jewish religious leaders wanted Jesus removed because of His direct challenges to them. But because they feared the they knew He had spoken this parable against them.

²⁰ So they watched Him, and sent spies who pretended to be righteous, that they might seize on His words, in order to deliver Him to the power and the authority of the governor.

²¹ Then they asked Him, saying, p“Teacher, we know that You say and teach rightly, and You do not show personal favoritism, but teach the way of God in truth: ²² Is it lawful for us to pay taxes to Caesar or not?”

²³ But He perceived their craftiness, and said to them, ⁵ “Why do you test Me? ²⁴ Show Me a denarius. Whose image and inscription does it have?”

They answered and said, “Caesar’s.”

²⁵ And He said to them, ⁴ “Render ⁶ therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s.”

²⁶ But they could not catch Him in His words in the presence of the people. And they marveled at His answer and kept silent.

Sadducees Question Resurrection

Matt. 22:23-32; Mark 12:18-27

²⁷ Then some of the Sadducees, ⁵ who deny that there is a resurrection, came to Him and asked Him, ²⁸ saying: “Teacher, Moses wrote to us that if a man’s brother dies, having a wife, and he dies without children, his brother should take his wife

For all seven had her as wife.”

³⁴ Jesus answered and said to them, “The sons of this age marry and are given in marriage. ³⁵ But those who are ¹ counted worthy to attain that age, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; ³⁶ nor can they die anymore, for ^u they are equal to the angels and are sons of God, ^v being sons of the resurrection. ³⁷ But even Moses showed in the burning bush passage that the dead are raised, when he called the Lord ^w “the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.” ³⁸ For He is not the God of the dead but of the living, for ^x all live to Him.”

Christ Questions the Scribes

Matt. 22:41-23:14; Mark 12:35-40

³⁹ Then some of the scribes answered and said, “Teacher, You have spoken well.” ⁴⁰ But after that they dared not question Him anymore.

⁴¹ And He said to them, ^y “How can they say that the Christ is the Son of reaction of the crowd, they waited for a more favorable time to do away with Jesus.

20:20 The religious leaders watched Jesus very closely. They pretended to be righteous, which in this context means that they tried to look sincere. They wanted to trap Jesus into saying something that would make Him look like a political revolutionary, then they planned to hand Him over to the Roman governor Pilate. 20:22 Is it lawful for us to pay taxes to Caesar or not: This question concerned the poll tax to Rome, which was different from the taxes collected by the tax collectors. The poll tax was a citizenship tax paid directly to Rome, as an indication that Israel was subject to that Gentile nation. The Pharisees’ query was a trick question. If Jesus answered yes, the people would be angry because He respected a foreign power. If He answered no, He could be charged with sedition.

20:24 Whose image . . . does it have: Jesus’ reply was clever. He had the Pharisees pull out a coin, indicating that they already recognized Roman sovereignty by using Roman coins themselves. A denarius was a silver coin that usually had a picture of a Roman ruler on it. The coins of Tiberius were inscribed TIBERIUS CAESAR, AUGUSTUS, SON OF DIVINE AUGUSTUS. On some of them the reverse bore an image of Tiberius’s mother Livia, portrayed as a goddess of peace with the inscription HIGH PRIEST.

20:25 The Pharisees could not twist Jesus’ wise reply into a charge of sedition (23:2). According to Jesus, Caesar, as the ruler of the empire, had the right to collect taxes. Yet at the same time, God should be honored above any ruler. Honoring God does not make a person exempt from supporting the basic functions of the state (see Rom. 13:1-7), for all figures of authority have been ordained by God.

20:27 The Sadducees, the Pharisees, and the Essenes were three major divisions in first-century Judaism. The Sadducees rejected the oral traditions that the Pharisees so stringently obeyed. Instead they based their teaching only on the first five books of the OT, the books of Moses. They denied that there could be a resurrection, and they contrived a ludicrous example to suggest that the doctrine was impossible.

20:28 In Judaism, a childless widow would marry the brother of her late husband, according to the custom known as levirate marriage (see Deut. 25:5; Ruth 4:1-12). The law was designed to perpetuate the name of a man who died childless.

20:34, 35 Jesus contrasted life in the current age with life in the age to come. Because marriage will not be a part of the age to come, the Sadducees’ absurd example (vv. 28-33) does not apply. Jesus upheld the doctrine of resurrection in His reply, speaking of both the age to come and the resurrection, so that the two concepts were clearly associated. Jesus also noted that only those counted worthy would receive the benefits of the age to come.

20:36 equal to the angels . . . sons of God: The everlasting life of a resurrected person makes that person something like an angel. Paul explains further that in the resurrection we will be given resurrection bodies similar to Christ’s (see 1 Cor. 15:25-58). This will be a new experience that will not necessarily parallel experiences on this earth, such as marriage.

20:38 The God of the . . . living: Jesus points out that if God is the God of the patriarchs, then they must be raised and alive. God has a relationship only with those who are alive. Jesus’ citation of the Law (see Ex. 3:1-6, 15) probably made an impact on the Sadducees, who revered the teachings of the books of Moses.

20:41, 42 Here Jesus takes His turn at raising a theological issue. The dilemma He poses is how the Messiah (the Hebrew word for Christ) could be called the Son of David, when David himself gave Him the title Lord. my Lord: This is a citation from Ps. 110:1 (see also

David? ⁴²Now David himself said in the Book of Psalms:

^z“The LORD said to my Lord,
“Sit at My right hand,

⁴³ Till I make Your enemies Your

^{45b}Then, in the hearing of all the people, He said to His disciples, ^{46c}“Beware of the scribes, who desire to go around in long robes, ^dlove greetings in the market-places, the best seats in the synagogues, and the best places at feasts, ^{47e}who devour widows’ houses, and for a ^fpretense make long prayers. Signs of Christ’s Coming

Matt. 24:4-13; Mark 13:5-13

⁸ And He said: ^h“Take heed that you not be deceived. For many will come in My name, saying, ‘I am He,’ and, ‘The time has drawn near.’ ⁴Therefore do not ⁵go after them. ⁹But when you hear of ⁱwars and commotions, do not be terrified; for these things must come to pass first, but the end will not come immediately.”

^{10j}Then He said to them, “Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. ¹¹And there will be great ^kearthquakes in various places, and famines and pestilences; and there will be fearful sights and great signs from heaven. ^{12l}But before all these things, they will lay their hands on you and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues and ^mprisons. ⁿYou will be brought before kings and rulers ^ofor My name’s sake. ¹³But ^pit will turn out for you as an occasion for testimony. ^{14q}Therefore settle it in your hearts not to meditate beforehand on what you will ⁶answer; ¹⁵for I will give you a mouth and wisdom ^rwhich all your adversaries will not be able to contradict or ⁷resist. ^{16s}You will 22:69; Acts 2:30–36). The Messiah was David’s descendant and yet David gave Him the respect due to a superior, the reverse of what normally occurred in ancient times. Jesus was not denying the title Son of David to the Messiah, He was simply noting that the title Lord, meaning “Master,” is more central. Even David one day will bow at the Messiah’s feet and confess that He is Lord (see Phil. 2:10).

20:46, 47 devour widows’ houses: Jesus noted the scribes’ hypocrisy and their taking advantage of others. Such activity will be judged.

21:1 There were various places around the temple where people could leave contributions. Thirteen such locations were in the forecourt. The receptacles were made in the shape of trumpets. Each represented a different kind of offering. There was also a treasury room near the court of women.

21:2 The poor widow contributed two mites, small copper coins which were the smallest currency available.

21:3 has put in more than all: Jesus contrasted the giving of the rich (v. 1) with the sacrifice of the poor widow.

21:4 put in all the livelihood that she had: The widow did not refuse to give even when she needed more to live on. Her devotion to God through her contributions was her first priority (see 2 Cor. 8:1–5; 9:6–9).

21:5 how it was adorned: The temple was refurbished under Herod the Great with new foundation walls and enlarged areas outside the temple. Great stones of 12 to 60 feet in length were used. The entire effort took from 20 B.C. to around A.D. 64. Thus the refurbishing was in progress during Jesus’ visit, around A.D. 30. The donations were gift offerings for the decoration of the temple and included gold- and silver-plated gates, grape vine clusters, and Babylonian linen tapestries which hung from the temple veil. Even Tacitus, the Roman historian, called it an “immensely opulent temple.”

21:6 not one stone: Jesus noted that the beautiful place of worship was temporary and would be destroyed. He was referring to the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, which itself was a picture of the destruction of the last days.

21:8 Take heed: The first century and early second century were times of great messianic fervor in Judaism, as the Israelites sought freedom from Roman rule. Many people claimed to be the Messiah. Jesus warned His disciples not to be fooled by such claims.

21:11 A wide variety of cosmic and natural events will occur before the end times. Verses 8–11 give signs before the end, while vv. 12–19 speak of events that will happen before the signs of vv. 8–11.

21:12 persecute you . . . for My name’s sake: Jesus predicted the arrests and suffering that the disciples would face as a result of identifying with Him. Some of these events are detailed in Acts 3–5; 7; 21–28. The reference to synagogues, kings, and rulers indicates that all nations would share responsibility for the massacre of the disciples.

21:13 an occasion for testimony: Suffering can be an opportunity to advance the kingdom of God. This is why those who endure suffering and persecution are called blessed (Matt. 5:10–12).

21:15 I will give you a mouth and wisdom: Jesus promises the disciples that the Holy Spirit will assist them in giving testimony (12:11, 12). The initial fulfillment of this promise is found in Acts 4:8–14; 7:54; 26:24–32.

21:16 You will be betrayed: The persecution of the disciples would be betrayed even by parents and brothers, relatives and friends; and they will put ^csome of you to death. ¹⁷ And ^uyou will be hated by all for My name's sake. ^{18 v} But not a hair of your head shall be lost. ¹⁹ By your patience possess your souls.

Destruction of Jerusalem

Matt. 24:15-21; Mark 13:14-19

^{20 w} “But when you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that its desolation is near. ²¹ Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains, let those who are in the midst of her depart, and let not those who are in the country enter her. ²² For these are the days of vengeance, that ^xall things which are written may be fulfilled. ^{23 y} But woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing babies in those days! Parable of the Fig Tree

Matt. 24:32-35; Mark 13:28-31

^{29 e} Then He spoke to them a parable: “Look at the fig tree, and all the trees. ³⁰ When they are already budding, you see and know for yourselves that summer is now near. ³¹ So you also, when you see these things happening, know that the kingdom of God is near. ³² Assuredly, I say to you, this generation will by no means pass away till all things take place. ³³ Heaven and earth will pass away, but My ^gwords will by no means pass away.

Warning to Watch for His Coming

³⁴ “But ^htake heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be weighed down with ⁸carousing, drunkenness, and ⁱcares of this life, and that Day come on you unexpectedly. ³⁵ For ^jit will come as a snare on all those who dwell on the face of the whole earth. ^{36 k} Watch therefore, and ^lpray be painful and severe. Identifying with Jesus often means risking the rejection and denunciation of family, and in some cases martyrdom. 21:19 possess your souls: Patient allegiance to Jesus leads to eternal life (9:24).

21:20 A siege would be the sign that the end was near for Jerusalem and the temple. The other synoptic Gospels (see Matt. 24:15; Mark 13:14) allude to the abomination of desolation in Dan. 9:25–27; 11:31. This passage compares the desecration of the temple to what occurred in 167 B.C., when Antiochus Epiphanes erected an altar to Zeus in the temple. A similar desecration of the temple site occurred during the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

21:22 days of vengeance: Jerusalem had become an object of divine judgment because of its unfaithfulness. Jesus warned of this consequence throughout His ministry (13:9, 34, 35; 19:41–44). The premise for such judgment goes back to the curses of the Mosaic covenant and the OT prophets' warnings of coming judgment (see Deut. 28:49–57; 32:35; Jer. 6:1–8; 26:1–9; Hos. 9:7).

21:24 fall . . . be led away captive: This verse elaborates on Jerusalem's fall. There would be death and captivity, just as the nation experienced under the Assyrians and Babylonians. times of the Gentiles: There would be a period in God's salvation plan when Gentiles would be dominant, of which the fall of Jerusalem would be a clear sign. The fact that the time of the Gentiles will run its course also suggests that Israel will once again play a significant role in God's plan (see Rom. 9–11).

21:25, 26 signs: Jesus shifts His focus to the end times with His second mention of cosmic turmoil (see v. 11; Is. 24:18–20; 34:4; Ezek. 32:7, 8; Joel 2:30, 31). men's hearts failing them: The terror of cosmic chaos will cause apprehension about what is coming.

21:27 the Son of Man coming in a cloud: The reference here is to the authoritative return of Jesus. The allusion to the cloud and the figure comes from Dan. 7:13, 14, with its picture of One who receives authority from the Ancient of Days. Jesus viewed this text in terms of an apocalyptic deliverance. The image of the cloud is important, since God is identified as riding the clouds in the OT (see Ex. 34:5; Ps. 104:3). with power and great glory: The Son of Man has divine authority to judge the world.

21:28 lift up your heads . . . redemption draws near: This is the sign of the deliverance of Jesus' followers. The Son of Man acts on behalf of those who have suffered in His name.

21:29, 30 The tender buds that appear every spring on trees show that summer is approaching; the appearance of the signs Jesus describes will warn of the coming of the end times.

21:31 when you see . . . know: The cosmic signs and earthly chaos are indications that the decisive and consummate rule of God is approaching.

21:32 The most likely meaning of this verse is that when the end comes, it will come quickly. The events of the end times will fall within one generation from start to finish (17:22–24). The word generation can also refer to a race. Thus it may mean that the Jews will continue to exist as a people until the end.

21:33 by no means pass away: The disciples had the assurance that Jesus' promises concerning the end times were more certain than creation itself. God made an unconditional and unilateral covenant, and He will keep it (see Gen. 12:1–3; 15:18–21; Ps. 89).

21:34 Though the events of the end times may not come to pass for a long time, believers should continue to look for their arrival. The Day of Jesus' return should not take us by surprise. We should live as if it is imminent.

21:36 Watch . . . pray: Jesus encouraged His disciples to be persistent in prayer and faith, looking for the day when the Son of Man exonerates the faithful in the judgment, so that they are able to stand before Him (see 1 John 2:28).

always that you may ⁹be counted ^mworthy to escape all these things that will come to pass, and ⁿto stand before the Son of Man.”

³⁷ And in the daytime He was teaching in the temple, but ^pat night He went out and stayed on the mountain called Olivet. ³⁸ Then early in the morning all the people came to Him in the temple to hear Him.

22 Now ^athe Feast of Unleavened Bread drew near, which is called Passover. ² And ^bthe chief priests and the scribes sought how they might kill Him, for they feared the people.

¹⁷ Then He took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, “Take this and divide it among yourselves; ¹⁸ for ^kI say to you, ³I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes.”

²⁰ Likewise He also took the cup after supper, saying, ^o“This cup is the new covenant in My blood, which is shed for you.

22:1 This verse begins the “passion narrative,” the account of Jesus’ death and resurrection. The Feast of Unleavened Bread took place immediately following Passover (see Ex. 12:1–20; Deut. 16:1–8). The two feasts were often considered as one. Passover commemorated the night of the tenth plague in Egypt, when the firstborn of Israel were “passed over” and spared by the angel of death. The Feast of Unleavened Bread celebrated the Exodus (see Ex. 12; Lev. 23:5, 6). Many Jewish pilgrims traveled to Jerusalem to celebrate these feasts.

22:3 The journey to the Cross was not just a matter of human effort or Judas’s plots. Cosmic forces were at work in the opposition to Jesus. Satan is mentioned in the temptations of Jesus, and in 10:18 and 13:16. The name derives from the Hebrew term for “adversary” (see Job 1:9–11).

22:4 Judas’s involvement in the plot to betray Jesus was fortunate from the point of view of the Jewish religious leaders. They could arrest Jesus secretly and later claim that the driving force to stop Him came from within His own group of disciples. The captains, Levites who were members of the temple guard, were the ones who could make the arrest.

22:7 The synoptic Gospels are very clear that Jesus was betrayed on the day of Passover (see Matt. 26:17–19; Mark 14:12–16).

22:11, 12 guest room: Such rooms were often made available to the thousands of pilgrims who came to Jerusalem for the celebration of Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread. Such a room would contain couches for guests at the feasts to recline for the meal. Access to the room was probably gained by stairs on the outside of the house.

22:14–30 A comparison of this account with John 13:1–30 suggests that Luke has rearranged the order of events in a topical manner. Luke has the meal first and all the discourse afterward. In John’s account, Judas was gone by the time the meal was shared. Luke’s account does not mention Judas’s departure. In addition, Luke mentions two cups, while the other three Gospels mention only one. A Passover meal had four courses and four cups. Thus it is obvious that all the Gospel writers summarize the events of the meal. The words over the bread and cup recorded by Luke are very similar to those of 1 Cor. 11:23–26.

22:16 I will no longer eat of it until it is fulfilled: In the kingdom to come, when final victory is celebrated, Jesus again will eat (see Rev. 19:9).

22:18 I will not drink of the fruit: As is made clear in v. 16, Jesus will abstain from celebrating a meal until His return.

22:19 My body . . . do this in remembrance: Jesus instituted a new meal which is not only a memorial of His death, but also a fellowship meal of unity. It is a proclamation and a symbol of the believers’ anticipation of Jesus’ return, when all God’s promises will be fulfilled (see 1 Cor. 10:16, 17; 11:23–26). The bread of the Lord’s Supper represents the body of Jesus, offered on behalf of His disciples.

22:20 This cup is the new covenant: The wine of the Lord’s Supper depicts the giving of life, a sacrifice of blood, which inaugurates the new covenant for those who respond to Jesus’ offer of salvation

(see Heb. 8:8, 13; 9:11-28). This is the strongest substitutionary image in the Gospel of Luke: Jesus died on the Cross in our place and for our sins (see Acts 20:28).

22:22 Jesus would suffer as God's plan unfolded, and the one who betrayed Him would face woe.

22:24 the greatest: Note the sad irony in this verse. While Jesus faced the reality of being betrayed and killed, His disciples argued about which of them was greatest.

22:25 benefactors: This title suggests that the people should be grateful for the generous leaders of their nation and that they should recognize their power and authority.

22:26 as the younger . . . as he who serves: Leadership in the church does not exalt; it serves. It shows respect to others, as a young person would show respect to an elder. True leaders labor for others, as a servant would. In short, the Lord's view of greatness is the exact opposite of the world's view.

22:28 in My trials: Jesus recognized that the disciples had been present and had suffered with Him during His ministry.

22:29 Jesus passed on His kingdom authority to the apostles who would continue planting the church, a part of the kingdom. The authority that Jesus bestowed on them was like the authority that the Father had bestowed on Him.

22:30 eat and drink . . . sit on thrones judging: This is a promise of future blessing and authority. The disciples were promised a seat at the banquet of victory and the right to help Jesus rule over Israel on His return (see Matt. 19:28; 2 Tim. 2:12).

22:31 Satan has asked for you: The Greek word for you here is plural, indicating that Satan had asked permission to trouble all of the disciples.

22:32 I have prayed for you . . . when you have returned: The Greek word for you here is singular, referring specifically to Peter. In effect, Jesus restored Peter even before his fall (vv. 54-62), and He instructed the disciple to shepherd the saints by strengthening them.

22:35, 36 When I sent you: The allusion here is to the disciples' mission recorded in 9:1-6; 10:1-24. When the disciples had depended on God to provide for their needs, those needs were met through generous people. However, the situation had changed. Jesus here instructed His disciples to take a money bag, a knapsack, and a sword on their journeys in order to be prepared for the rejection that was to come.

22:37 this which is written: Jesus cited Is. 53:12, which describes a righteous one who suffers as a criminal. Jesus noted that His death would fulfill Isaiah's prediction.

22:38 Misunderstanding Jesus' instructions in v. 36, the disciples indicated that they had weapons with which to fight (vv. 50, 51).

22:39 Mount of Olives: Matthew 26:36 gives the name Gethsemane, while John 18:1 speaks more generally of a garden.

22:42 Jesus agonized over His approaching death and the effect

Mount of Olives

The Mount of Olives is a north-to-south ridge of hills east of Jerusalem that overlooks the temple. The closeness of the Mount of Olives to Jerusalem's walls made this series of hills a grave strategic danger. The Roman commander Titus had his headquarters on the northern extension of the ridge during the siege of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. He named the place Mt. Scopus, or "Lookout Hill," because of the view it offered over the city walls. The whole hill must have provided a platform for the Roman catapults that hurled heavy objects over the Jewish fortifications of the city. In ancient times the whole mount must have been heavily wooded. As its name implies, it was covered with dense olive groves. On this site Jesus sat with His disciples to discuss the future (Mark 13; 14).

of God's wrath. The cup is a figure of speech for wrath (see Ps. 11:6; 75:7, 8; Jer. 25:15, 16; Ezek. 23:31-34).

22:43 strengthening Him: God's answer to Jesus' prayer did not allow His Son to avoid suffering. However, God did provide angelic help for Jesus to face what was coming. Sometimes God answers prayer by eliminating trials; sometimes He answers by strengthening us in the midst of them.

22:44 His sweat became like great drops of blood: Jesus' earnest prayer and emotion (vv. 42-44) led to a physical reaction. Though Jesus probably did not bleed here, His sweat became like blood.

22:48 Not only did Jesus remind Judas of what he had done, He also noted the irony of being betrayed with a kiss.

22:50 one of them struck the servant: John 18:10 indicates that this impetuous disciple was Peter (see also Matt. 26:51; Mark 14:47). His violent act risked giving the impression that the disciples were seditious.

22:51 touched his ear and healed him: Jesus mercifully healed the ear of one who was taking Him to His death. Jesus illustrated here the love for His enemies that He had commanded in 6:27-36.

22:52 as against a robber: The Greek term for robber was used of both highway bandits and revolutionaries. Jesus rebuked His captors for treating Him as though He were a dangerous lawbreaker.

22:59 for he is a Galilean: According to Mark 14:70, Peter’s accent gave him away as being from the same region as Jesus.

22:61, 62 looked at Peter: Apparently a window opened into the courtyard, and Peter knew that the Lord was aware of his denials. wept bitterly: The Lord knew Peter better than Peter knew himself (v. 34). Peter was greatly grieved that he had failed Jesus.

22:63 mocked Him and beat Him: Matthew 26:67; Mark 14:65 further describe the abuse of Jesus at the hands of the soldiers as involving speaking, spitting, and slapping.

22:64 Prophecy: The soldiers played a game to mock Jesus. They covered His head and asked Him to identify who was striking Him.

22:66 The description here is of a major morning trial that involved all the Jewish religious leaders, the entire council or Sanhedrin. This trial violated various Jewish legal rules given in later sources: meeting on the morning of a feast; meeting at Caiaphas’s home; trying a defendant without defense; and reaching the verdict in one day instead of the two days that were required for capital cases.

22:69 Hereafter means “from now on.” Jesus’ point was that authority would reside with Him from this point on. Though He was on trial, in reality He is the ultimate Judge. on the right hand of the power of God: Jesus’ reply here alludes to the regal enthronement image of Ps. 110:1. This reply is what convicted Him. Apparently what offended Jesus’ audience was His claim to sit in God’s presence and to exercise divine authority. In effect, His answer to their question about being the Christ was more than they expected. It was not blasphemous to claim to be Messiah. What was blasphemous was the claim to be the Judge of the Jewish people, with God’s authority. Jesus’ remark also implies the hope of vindication. Though the people would kill Him, Jesus would end up at God’s side. The title of the Son of Man is an allusion to Dan. 7 (see also Matt. 26:64; Mark 14:62).

22:70 Son of God: The Jewish leaders sensed that Jesus was claiming great authority here. They sensed that Jesus was asserting a unique and highly exalted relationship with God, making Himself the equal of God. In their view, this was not possible.

22:71 from His own mouth: The Jewish leadership concluded that Jesus had made a confession of guilt. Jesus was “convicted” by His claim to a relationship to God in which He exercises an authority like God’s.

23:1 The Roman ruler Pilate was responsible for collecting taxes and keeping the peace. It may be that he was in Jerusalem for judicial hearings, a procedure called an “assize.” The fact that others were crucified with Jesus makes this likely.

23:2 began to accuse: Three charges were lodged against Jesus: (1) perverting the nation, (2) forbidding payment of taxes to Rome, (3) claiming to be the Christ. The first charge, which was a general complaint, involved disturbing the peace. The other two charges could have been construed as challenges to Rome. The second charge was a blatant lie (see 20:20–26). The third charge was true, but not in the threatening sense that the prosecutors suggested. A three-part Roman procedure was followed at the trial: charges, examination, and verdict.

23:3 It is as you say: Jesus gave Pilate the same qualified reply He gave the Sanhedrin in 22:67, 68, 70. Jesus is a king, but He was not a threat to Rome (see John 18:36).

23:4 I find no fault: Pilate’s verdict was that Jesus was innocent. This is the first of several such declarations in this chapter (vv. 14, 15, 22, 41). Jesus’ suffering and death were those of an innocent, righteous One (v. 47).

⁵But they were the more fierce, saying, “He stirs up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, beginning from ⁱGalilee to this place.”

⁶When Pilate heard ²of Galilee, he asked if the Man were a Galilean. ⁷And as soon as he knew that He belonged to ^jHerod’s jurisdiction, he sent Him to Herod, who was also in Jerusalem at that time.

¹⁸And ^uthey all cried out at once, saying, “Away with this Man, and release to us Barabbas”— ¹⁹who had been thrown into prison for a certain rebellion made in the city, and for murder.

²⁰Pilate, therefore, wishing to release Jesus, again called out to them. ²¹But they shouted, saying, “Crucify Him, crucify Him!”

²²Then he said to them the third time, “Why, what evil has He done? I have found no reason for death in Him. I will therefore chastise Him and let Him go.”

23:5 By mentioning the charge that Jesus stirred up the people, the leaders suggested that Pilate risked being found derelict in his duty if he let Jesus go.

23:7 Herod’s jurisdiction: Herod was responsible for Galilee, so Pilate “passed the buck” for the ruling and showed political courtesy at the same time.

23:8 he was exceedingly glad: Herod’s curiosity about Jesus is noted in 9:7-9.

23:9 answered him nothing: Jesus may have remained silent because He had already been declared innocent and yet was still subjected to trial (see Acts 8:32, 33).

23:11 After deciding that he had nothing to fear from Jesus, Herod and his men entertained themselves at Jesus’ expense. Dressing him in a gorgeous robe was probably a sarcastic reference to Jesus’ claim to be king.

23:16 chastise Him and release Him: Pilate hoped that a public whipping might satisfy the crowd and tame Jesus, avoiding the need to resort to the death penalty.

23:17 it was necessary . . . to release one to them: Pilate wanted to take advantage of this custom and let Jesus go (see Matt. 27:15; Mark 15:6).

23:18, 19 Away with this Man: The entire crowd is portrayed as wanting Jesus to die. Luke makes it clear that Jesus’ death was not only instigated by Jewish officials but approved by the Jewish people. Barabbas: The people preferred that a seditious murderer be freed instead of Jesus. The idea of Jesus’ substitution for this noted murderer foreshadows the substitutionary death of Jesus for sinful people.

23:23 Luke mentions the chief priests separately from the crowd since they were the instigators of the plot against Jesus. Because Pilate feared the will of the people, he entered into the conspiracy and shared its guilt, agreeing to put to death someone he knew to be innocent (see Acts 4:25-27).

23:26 Jesus was apparently unable to carry His own cross. Simon a Cyrenian, a man from a leading city of Libya, was chosen to carry the cross for Him (see Acts 6:9; 11:20; 13:1). Mark 15:20, 21 mentions that Simon’s sons were Rufus and Alexander, believers known to Mark’s audience.

23:27 The events of vv. 27-31 are unique to Luke’s account. While such mourning for the dead was required by custom in the ancient world, Jesus’ reply seems to take the people’s mourning as sincere.

23:28 do not weep for Me: Though He was dying, Jesus pointed out that their weeping should be for Jerusalem and its inhabitants, since judgment was going to fall on the city (19:41-44). Jerusalem here represents the entire nation of Israel.

23:29, 30 barren: In the days of judgment, the children, who were usually thought of as cursed, would be better off than those with family because the terror of that time would be so great. Fall on us: Fear of the judgment would be so great that people would prefer to die rather than suffer what was coming. There is an allusion here to Hos. 10:8 (see also Rev. 6:16). People who face God’s judgment desire the relief of death rather than to endure His wrath.

23:31 what will be done in the dry: The idea here seems to be “If this is what is done to a live tree, what will happen to the dead one?” In other words, “If Jesus, the living tree, has not been spared, how much more will dead wood not be spared.” This is Jesus’ final lament over the nation of Israel.

23:32 Jesus’ prediction of dying with the transgressors (see 22:37; see also Isaiah’s prediction in Is. 53:12) was fulfilled when two criminals accompanied Him to death.

23:33 The name of the place in Aramaic is Golgotha, which means “Skull.” Calvary is the Latin name for Golgotha. Possibly the name referred to a geographical feature of the locale, something that resembled a skull.

23:34 Those who put Jesus to death acted in ignorance, not really understanding who it was they were killing. Jesus’ example of interceding for His executioners was followed by Stephen in Acts 7:60. divided His garments and cast lots: The language here alludes to the suffering Righteous One of Ps. 22:18.

Crucifixion

At the time of Jesus’ death, crucifixion was considered the most painful and degrading form of capital punishment in the Roman Empire. It was considered so horrible that it was used by the Romans only for slaves, those from the provinces under their control, and the lowest types of criminals. It was not to be used for a Roman citizen. This is in accord with the biblical account of Christ’s death and with church tradition, which asserts that Peter was also crucified, but Paul, a Roman citizen, was beheaded.

Crucifixion as a means of execution probably grew out of the practice of displaying the heads of captured enemies or criminals on a wooden stake like those used to build a wall or erect fortifications. Later, entire bodies were impaled. By Jesus’ time, crucifixion was a common sight.

Although methods of crucifixion seem to have varied throughout the Roman Empire, through biblical and historical accounts the basic pattern is known. The condemned person was first scourged with a flagellum, a whip of leather thongs with bits of metal or bone attached. This whipping greatly weakened the victim, who then had to carry the crossbeam to the place of execution. A sign specifying the crime was often placed around the criminal’s neck or on the cross. The person was stripped naked, laid on the ground with the crossbeam under his shoulders, and tied or nailed to it. Nailing made the victim die quicker, as it did Jesus, whom the Jewish officials wanted dead before the Sabbath.

The crossbeam was lifted and secured to a post so that the person’s feet were hanging just off the ground. Some archaeologists think a pin or wooden block was placed halfway up the post to provide a seat for the body so that the nails would not tear open the wounds, causing the body to fall. The feet also could be nailed or tied to the post.

Although the pain was excruciating, some victims survived on the cross for days. As in the case of the two criminals crucified with Jesus, the legs of a crucified person were sometimes broken to make the sufferer die. This caused massive shock, followed by loss of circulation and heart failure.

Although completely innocent of all sin, Jesus suffered the most horrible, disgraceful punishment known. But His agonizing death was not an ordinary death, for it was not the final chapter. Jesus turned this apparent defeat into the most glorious victory the world has ever known. At the Cross, He suffered for the sins of the world. Then after His resurrection from the dead three days later, Jesus empowered His disciples with a new message, the Good News that He had finally defeated the power of sin and death. Through the Cross, Jesus offers salvation to all who will believe in Him.

23:36 The drink referred to here was probably wine vinegar, which was inexpensive and quenched thirst better than water. It was a drink of the poor.

23:38 KING OF THE JEWS: This inscription, which gave the charge against Christ, was written in three languages. Jesus was killed for who He is.

23:40 Not everyone rejected Jesus at His crucifixion. The second criminal rebuked his companion in death, warning that he should fear God. The sarcastic thief, who would suffer judgment, was in no position to insult Jesus.

23:41 we indeed justly: One criminal knew the difference between those who had sinned and deserved to die and the One who did not.

23:42 remember me: This remark is amazing for its insight. While others mocked Jesus’ seeming inability to save Himself, this thief recognized that Jesus would live and rule. He wanted to be saved and take part in Christ’s kingdom.

Paradise

(Gk. paradeisos) (23:43; 2 Cor. 12:4; Rev. 2:7) Strong’s #3857

This word literally means “garden” or “park.” It was used with such a meaning in the Greek OT in Eccl. 2:5; Song 4:13. The Septuagint also used paradeisos for the Garden of Eden (see Gen. 2:8). In later Jewish thought, Paradise is the place of the righteous dead in Sheol. Jesus perhaps alluded to this idea in His story of Lazarus going to Abraham in 16:19–31. And when Jesus spoke to the thief on the Cross, He promised him that he would that day be with Him in Paradise (23:43). This again seems to indicate a pleasant place for the righteous among the dead. The promise of Paradise in Rev. 2:7 speaks of the restitution of an Edenic paradise, an everlasting home for believers (compare Gen. 2; Rev. 22).

23:43 you will be with Me: Jesus promised eternal life to the thief, doing what the mockers had asked Him to do in v. 39.

23:44 sixth hour . . . ninth hour: The first hour was sunrise, so the time was 12 P.M. to 3 P.M. During these three hours, signs of creation revealed that the hour was not one of light but of darkness (22:53).

23:45 the sun was darkened: This testimony of creation was designed to signal the importance of Jesus’ death. Passover falls on the full moon, so this cannot have been an eclipse of the sun. The imagery is similar to that associated with the day of the Lord (Joel 2:10, 30, 31; Amos 8: 9; Zeph. 1:15). It is not clear whether the curtain that was torn was the one at the entrance to the tabernacle, or the inner curtain that separated the Holy Place from the Most Holy Place. The tearing of the veil symbolizes a renewed access to God through the death of Christ (see v. 43; Heb 9; 10).

23:46 into Your hands: Jesus’ final words are from Ps. 31:5, where this is the prayer of trust from a righteous sufferer. Jesus exercised that faith here.

23:47 In Matt. 27:54; Mark 15:39, the centurion’s remark is noted as a confession of the Son of God. If Jesus was righteous and innocent, then He is who He claimed to be. Thus a second figure besides the thief on the cross had insight into Jesus’ death.

23:49 The Galileans stood at a distance to watch Jesus’ crucifixion. Their sadness is further explained in 24:16–20.

23:50 Joseph, a council member: Not every Jewish religious leader opposed Jesus.

23:51 He had not consented: Joseph did not agree with the sentence of Jesus. Mark 14:64 suggests that “all” present were in favor of Jesus’ execution, so Joseph may not have attended the trial. waiting for the kingdom of God: The description of Joseph in vv. 50, 51 recalls Zacharias and Elizabeth (1:5, 6) and Simeon and Anna (2:25, 38). The description suggests that Joseph was a follower of Christ.

23:52 the body of Jesus: There is no doubt that Jesus died. Efforts to explain the Resurrection as something like a return from a coma are more impossible than the idea of the Resurrection itself.

all the rest. ¹⁰ It was Mary Magdalene, ^j Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them, who told these things to the apostles. ^{11k} And their words seemed to them like ³ idle tales, and they did not believe them. ^{12l} But Peter arose and ran to the tomb; and stooping down, he saw the linen cloths ⁴ lying by themselves; and he departed, marveling to himself at what had happened.

Christ Appears on the Road to Emmaus

Mark 16:12, 13

^{13m} Now behold, two of them were traveling that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was ⁵ seven miles from Jerusalem. ¹⁴ And they talked together of all these things which had happened. ¹⁵ So it was, while they conversed and reasoned, that ⁿ Jesus Himself drew near and went with them. ¹⁶ But ^o their eyes were restrained, so that they did not know Him.

¹⁷ And He said to them, “What kind of conversation is this that you have with one another as you ⁶ walk and are sad?”

¹⁸ Then the one ^p whose name was Cleopas answered and said to Him, “Are You the only stranger in Jerusalem, and have You not known the things which happened there in these days?”

¹⁹ And He said to them, “What things?”

So they said to Him, “The things concerning Jesus of Nazareth, ^q who was a Prophet ^r mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, ^{20s} and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered Him to be condemned to death, and crucified Him. ²¹ But we were hoping ^t that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, today is the third day since these things happened. ²² Yes, 23:53 Jesus was given an honorable burial (see Deut. 21:22, 23). The linen was probably fine cloth. The tomb had a stone to cover it in order to make it secure (see Matt. 27:66). Guards were posted to stop anyone trying to steal the body (Matt. 27:65, 66).

23:54 Jesus was buried late on Friday, on the day called Preparation, when everything was made ready for the Sabbath, the day when no labor could take place.

23:56 prepared spices and fragrant oils: On Friday the women prepared for the anointing of Jesus' body on the day after the Sabbath, since they could not make preparations on the Sabbath. The spices were used to delay decay and lessen the odor of the body. Mark 16:1 notes that spices were also purchased after the Sabbath. Apparently the women did not anticipate a resurrection.

24:2 Matthew 28:2 mentions that an earthquake moved the stone, which would have fit in a channel in front of the entrance to the tomb. Moving the stone would have been possible, though difficult, for a group of people. The earthquake settles the question of how the stone was moved.

24:4, 5 It may be assumed that the two men who appeared were angels, based on the way their clothes are described as shining garments (see also v. 23). Why do you seek the living: Angels announced that Jesus was alive. Anointing Him would not be necessary.

24:6 is risen . . . Remember: The women were reminded that Jesus had predicted His resurrection as far back as Galilee (see 9:22).

24:10 Three women are named: Mary Magdalene (see 8:2; Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:1; John 20:1), Joanna (8:3), and Mary the mother of James (see Mark 15:40; 16:1). Other women also joined in the report of Jesus' resurrection. Mary, the last one at the Cross and the first one at the tomb, was given the privilege of relaying the first resurrection message.

24:11 Skepticism reigned among the disciples. It is clear that they did not expect a resurrection. they did not believe: The disciples thought the women's story was nonsense.

24:12 Peter arose and ran: Having already experienced a fulfilled prediction of the Lord (22:54–62), Peter hurried to the tomb to check out the women's story. It is hard to say whether Peter believed in the Resurrection when he left the tomb. Does his marveling indicate amazement or faith?

24:19–21 Jesus of Nazareth . . . a Prophet: These disciples on the road to Emmaus regarded Jesus as the Revealer of God's way and the Doer of His work. He who was going to redeem Israel: The disciples had hoped that God would once again save Israel through Jesus.

and “certain women of our company, who arrived at the tomb early, astonished us.”²³ When they did not find His body, they came saying that they had also seen a vision of angels who said He was alive.²⁴ And “certain of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but Him they did not see.”

²⁵ Then He said to them, “O foolish ones, and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! ²⁶ Ought not the Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into His ^xglory?”

²⁷ And beginning at ^yMoses and ^zall the Prophets, He ⁷expounded to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself.

²⁸ Then they drew near to the village where they were going, and ^aHe ⁸indicated that He would have gone farther. ²⁹ But ^bthey constrained Him, saying, “Abide with us, for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent.” And He went in to stay with them.

³⁰ Now it came to pass, as ^dHe sat at the table with them, that He took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. ³¹ Then their eyes were opened and they knew Him; and He vanished from their sight.

³² And they said to one another, “Did not our heart burn within us while He talked with us on the road, and while He opened the Scriptures to us?”

Acts 17:3 ★ ³ NU that the Christ should suffer and rise

24:23 a vision of angels . . . said He was alive: The women reported that there was no body found in Jesus’ tomb, and that angels had announced to them that Jesus lives. The fact that the men were still sad indicates that they did not believe the report. They were among the skeptics of v. 11.

24:24 As far as the disciples were concerned, there was still no decisive proof of Jesus’ resurrection. They wanted to see the resurrected Jesus. Thomas was not alone in his doubts (see John 20:25).

24:25 slow of heart to believe: Jesus, who at this time was still not known to the travelers, rebuked His companions and reminded them of the things that the prophets taught.

24:26 The prophets taught the suffering of the Christ and His entrance into glory. The passages referred to here would include Ps. 16; 100; Is. 53. See the Book of Acts for the apostle’s use of these passages to prove that Jesus is the promised Messiah (see Acts 2:14–36; 8:32, 33). Note how Jesus used the title of Christ (Messiah) to refer to Himself, while the disciples called Him merely a prophet (v. 19).

24:27 Going from the books of Moses to the Prophets, Jesus provided an overview of God’s plan in the Scriptures. This plan is present throughout the entire OT (see Acts 3:22–26; 10:43).

24:34 Before the two travelers could report their experience, the other disciples reported that Simon had seen Jesus as well.

24:37 a spirit: The disciples had a difficult time adjusting to the fact that the raised Jesus was in their midst. They believed they were seeing a heavenly apparition (see v. 39).

24:38 why do doubts arise: Jesus’ appearances were designed to reassure the disciples about the reality of His vindication.

24:39 Jesus pointed out that a raised body is not a disembodied spirit. The presence of flesh and bones indicates that Jesus had been raised bodily, and that He was not a hallucination. He was raised in the same physical body in which He had been put to death. The difference was that His resurrected body is not corruptible and not subject to death. The apostle Paul discusses the resurrection body in 1 Cor. 15:35–58.

24:43 The physical nature of Jesus’ resurrected body was confirmed by the fact that he ate something.

24:44, 45 The plan of God as outlined in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms was being fulfilled in Jesus. This threefold categorization of the ancient Scriptures summarizes the contents of the OT. opened their understanding: The disciples’ comprehension involved seeing how God’s plan, as outlined in the Scriptures, fits together.

24:46 Christ to suffer and to rise: Two parts of God’s plan had been fulfilled. Jesus had been crucified and raised from the dead. OT texts that predict these events are Ps. 118:22 (see Acts 4:11) and Ps. 22.

24:47 Jesus had been considered a pretender and a blasphemer. After His resurrection, people had to change their minds and serve Him for who He really is, the Son of God. This is the message Peter would preach at Pentecost, a message that would result in thousands of people declaring Jesus as their Lord. Jesus summarized the mission of the disciples as preaching repentance, calling people to turn from their own selfish ways to Christ, the One who had died for them. remission of sins: The content of the disciples’ preaching would center on God’s gracious offer of forgiveness to all who would believe (see Acts 2:38; 10:43). in His name: This is a reference to Jesus’ authority. Forgiveness and blessing come only through the work of the risen Jesus (see Acts 2:30–39). The message of Jesus’ salvation can go to all nations, to Jews and Gentiles alike. The offer is made to anyone who will receive it (see Acts 10–15). The disciples’ mission would begin in Jerusalem where Jesus died; from there, it would spread out into the entire world (see Acts 1:8).

24:48 witnesses: Jesus pointed out that the disciples were called to testify to His work (see Acts 1:8, 22; 3:15; 5:32; 10:39, 41; 13:31; 22:15; 26:16).

24:49 Promise of My Father: This is a reference to the baptism of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost (see Acts 2). It was promised in Joel 2:28 (see Acts 2:14–18), and in Jer. 31:31–33. Peter called this coming of the Spirit “the beginning” (see Acts 11:15) because the real fulfillment of God’s promise of salvation would start in those people united by the Spirit to establish the church. tarry in the city of Jerusalem until you are endued with power from on high: The disciples were to remain in Jerusalem until the Spirit empowered them on the day of Pentecost.

24:50 Bethany was just outside Jerusalem (19:29).

24:51 carried up into heaven: This is the first of two descriptions of the Ascension in Luke and Acts (see Acts 1:9–11). Luke may be summarizing here what happened 40 days later to create a link to the Book of Acts.

24:53 continually in the temple praising and blessing God: The disciples’ sorrow over Jesus’ death had been totally reversed (v. 17). Now the disciples awaited the promise of God with joy. Luke’s account continues in the Book of Acts. There he records the disciple’s initial response to Jesus’ commission to preach to all the nations (v. 47).

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO JOHN

THE WORDS “Read This First” have taken an important role in the packaging of modern consumer products. Most consumers think life is too short for instruction manuals, so the packagers state it plainly: If you cannot read the manual, at least read this very important part. “Read This First”—it is for your own good. The Gospel of John makes a similar claim. It is the only book in the Bible that states its purpose clearly and succinctly: It was written to tell individuals how to find eternal life (20:31). This clearly identified purpose sets the Gospel of John apart from the other Gospels. It is not so much a life of Jesus as it is a powerful presentation of His deity. Every chapter presents evidence—both signs and statements—for His divine authority. According to John, believing that Jesus is the Son of God, the Savior of the world, is the beginning of eternal life (3:14–17). What could be more important? John’s statement about his Gospel is as good as a “Read This First” sticker for one’s entire life.

Author The author of the Gospel of John does not identify himself by name, but his identity can be learned from the dialogue recorded in 21:19–24. The author calls himself “the disciple whom Jesus loved” (21:20), a designation that occurs four other times in the book (13:23; 19:26; 20:2; 21:7). This was the same “disciple who . . . wrote these things” (21:24). The author had to be one of the twelve apostles, because he is described as leaning on Jesus’ bosom at the Last Supper, an event to which only the apostles were invited (13:23; see Mark 14:17). These details imply that he was one of the three disciples closest to Jesus: Peter, James, or John (see Matt. 17:1). He could not be Peter, because 21:20 states that Peter looked back and saw this one Jesus loved, and in another place asked a question of him (13:23, 24). On the other hand, James was martyred too early to be the author of this Gospel (see Acts 12:1, 2). Thus it is reasonable to conclude that this book was written by the apostle John. This conclusion is supported by early Christians such as Polycarp (A.D. 60–155), who was a follower of John.

Date In the nineteenth century, many critics claimed that the Gospel of John was written around A.D. 170. Then in 1935 C. H. Roberts discovered a scrap of papyrus in Egypt containing portions of 18:31–33, 37, 38 that disproved their theory. This fragment, the Rylands papyrus, was written around A.D. 125. The Gospel itself must have been written before A.D. 125, or even A.D. 110, allowing time for it to be copied and then carried to Egypt.

Conservative scholars typically date the book between A.D. 85 and A.D. 95. The book makes no reference to the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, implying that such a significant event must have occurred many years earlier. Moreover, the statement about Peter in 21:18, 23 seems to indicate that the Gospel was written when John was an old man. Only then would John have had to explain the death of Peter, or contend with a long-standing rumor of the early church. Others have suggested a date before A.D. 70 on the basis of 5:2, which indicates that Jerusalem was still standing. But there is a question about the interpretation of the tense of the verb to be. It is likely that the reason John used the present tense in this verse was to describe Jerusalem vividly, not to describe its present condition. Without more evidence than the tense of the verb in 5:2, the date of around A.D. 90 still seems most reasonable.

Theology The Gospel of John is a persuasive argument for the deity of Jesus. It concentrates on presenting Jesus as the Word, that is, God (1:1) who became a man (1:14). Thus John meticulously records the statements and describes the miracles of Jesus that can only be attributed to God Himself.

Jesus called Himself the bread of life (6:35, 41, 48, 51), the light of the world (8:12; 9:5), the door for the sheep (10:7, 9), the good shepherd (10:11, 14), the resurrection and the life (11:25), the way, the truth, the life (14:6), and the true vine (15:1, 5). Each of these statements begins with the words, “I am,” recalling God’s revelation of His name, “I AM,” to Moses (see Ex. 3:14). Jesus did not say He gave bread; He said He is the Bread which gives life. He did not say He would teach the way, the truth, and the life; instead He said He is the Way, because He is the Truth and the Life. These are Jesus’ clear claims to deity: He was not a mere man.

Then there are the signs of Jesus’ deity. Miracles in the Gospel of John are called “signs” because they point to Jesus’ divine nature. John records seven such signs: changing water into wine (2:1–11), healing a man’s son (4:46–54), healing a lame man (5:1–9), multiplying bread and fish (6:1–14), walking on water (6:15–21), healing a blind man (9:1–7), and raising Lazarus (11:38–44). These miracles show that Jesus is God; He possesses power over nature. Other indications of Jesus’ deity include the testimonies of John the Baptist (1:32–34), Nathanael (1:49), the blind man (9:35–38), Martha (11:27), and Thomas (20:28)—not to mention Jesus’ own words (5:19–26).

Jesus was also fully man. His body grew weary (4:6), His soul was troubled (12:27; 13:21), and He groaned in His spirit (11:33). At the same time, this God-man was Israel’s Messiah. Andrew told his brother, “We have found the Messiah” (1:41). Nathanael concluded, “You are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!” (1:49). Even the Samaritan woman testified to Jesus’ identity (4:25, 26, 29). Jesus the Messiah was and is the Savior of the world (4:42; 11:27; 12:13).

John urges us to trust in Jesus for eternal life. Our trust is built on our belief that (1) the Father is in Christ, and Christ is in the Father (10:38; 14:10, 11); (2) Christ came from God (16:17, 30), and God sent Him (11:42; 17:8, 21; see 6:29); and (3) He is the Son of God (6:69; 11:27; 20:31). John reveals the Bible’s most important message: Believe and follow Jesus, because He is the way to eternal life.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

John focuses on Jesus’ claim that He was God by including Christ’s seven “I am” statements: “I am the bread of life” (6:35, 48); “I am the light of the world” (8:12); “I am the door” (10:7, 9); “I am the good shepherd” (10:11, 14); “I am the resurrection and the life” (11:25); “I am the way, the truth, and the life” (14:6); “I am the true vine” (15:1).

John doesn’t take any chances that we might miss what these “I am” statements suggest. He records certain occasions when Jesus equates Himself with the Old Testament “I AM” (Yahweh). You can’t be more specific than this: “Most assuredly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I AM” (8:58).

View of the interior of a typical ancient sheep pen. Jesus said, “I am the door. If anyone enters by Me, he will be saved, and will go in and out and find pasture” (John 10:9).

1:1 In the beginning: Genesis 1:1 starts with the moment of creation and moves forward to the creation of humanity. John 1:1 starts with creation and contemplates eternity past. The fact that the Word was with God suggests a face-to-face relationship. In the ancient world, it was important that persons of equal station be on the same level, or face-to-face, when sitting across from one another. Thus the word with indicates a personal relationship, but also implies equal status. The Word, Jesus Christ Himself, is an active Person in communication with the Father (see 1 John 1:2). Moreover, the Word was God. The word order in Greek shows that the Word was “God,” not “a god.” This is a straightforward declaration of Christ’s deity, since John uses Word to refer to Jesus. The Word was of the very quality of God, while still retaining His personal distinction from the Father.

1:2 Neither the Person of Christ, nor His Sonship, came into being at a point in time. Rather, the Father and the Son have always been in loving fellowship with one another.

1:3 All things were made through Him: God the Father created the world (Gen. 1:1) through God the Son (Col. 1:16; Heb. 1:2). All creation was made through Him. Thus He is the Creator God.

1:4 Note that life is not said to have been created; life existed in Christ (5:26; 6:57; 10:10; 11:25; 14:6; 17:3; 20:31). Humans are dependent on God for life. Our existence, spiritually and physically, depends on God’s sustaining power. In contrast, the Son has life in Himself from all eternity. The life, Jesus Christ, is also the light of men. This image conveys the concept of revelation. As the light, Jesus Christ reveals both sin and God to humans (see Ps. 36:9). Later in this Gospel, Christ declares Himself to be both the life (11:25) and the light (8:12). Death and darkness flee when the life and light enter. The dead are raised and the blind receive their sight, both physically and spiritually.

1:5 light shines in the darkness: Christ entered this dark world to give it spiritual light (see Is. 9:2). The word translated comprehend can mean (1) to take hold of; (2) to overpower; or (3) to understand. Therefore, this verse may mean that darkness did not positively take hold of or understand the light, or that darkness did not negatively overcome the light. Both statements are true. Humans did not appropriate or understand the light, nor did they overtake or overpower it. Although Satan and his forces resist the light, they cannot thwart its power. In short, Jesus is life and light; those who accept Him are “sons of light” (12:35, 36). As the creation of light was the beginning of the original creation (Gen. 1:3), so when believers receive the light, they become part of the new creation (2 Cor. 4:3-6).

1:6 John the Baptist is here contrasted with Jesus Christ. Jesus is God (v. 1); John was a man sent from God. Jesus was the Light (v. 4); John was the lamp that bore witness to the Light (vv. 7, 8).

1:7 To bear witness means “to testify” or “to declare.” John uses the word translated witness 33 times as a verb and 14 times as a noun in his Gospel. The term is particularly important to his purpose, which is to record adequate witnesses to Jesus as the Messiah so that individuals might believe in Him (20:30, 31). Believe means “to trust.” John uses this verb almost one hundred times in his Gospel to express what must take place for a person to receive the gift of eternal life.

1:9 In order to give due notice to the incarnation of Jesus, this verse may be rephrased: “That was the true Light coming into the world, which enlightens every man.” Jesus became man in order to reveal the truth to all people. Depending on the context, world can refer to (1) the universe; (2) the earth; (3) humanity; or (4) the human system opposed to God.

1:11 Receive here means “to receive with favor” and implies “welcome.” Instead of a welcome mat, Jesus had a door slammed in His face. The themes of rejection and reception (v. 12) introduced in the prologue (1:1-18) appear again and again throughout the Gospel of John.

1:12 The phrase believe in His name occurs three times in the Gospel of John (1:12; 2:23; 3:18). Name does not refer to the term by which He is called, but to what His name stands for—the Lord is salvation (see Ex. 3:14, 15). In this context, the phrase means to believe that Jesus is the Word, the life, and the Light—that is, He is the Christ, the Son of God (20:31). To them He gave the right refers to the legitimate entitlement to the position of children of God. By believing, undeserving sinners can become full members of God’s family.

the Word

(Gk. ho logos) (1:1; 1 John 1:1; Rev. 19:13) Strong’s #3056

This Greek word was used to speak of the principle of the universe, even the creative energy that generated the universe. The term logos may also have some connection with the OT presentation of Wisdom as a personification or attribute of God (see Prov. 8). In both the Jewish conception and the Greek, the Logos was associated with the idea of beginnings—the world began through the origination and instrumentality of the Word (Gen. 1:3). John may have had these ideas in mind, but more likely he used this word in a new way to identify the Son of God as divine. He is the image of the invisible God (Col. 1:15), the express image of God’s substance (Heb. 1:3). In the Godhead, the Son functions as the Revealer of God and is God in reality.

is, by physical generation or by parents. Nor is the new birth of the will of the flesh, that is, by personal effort. Neither is the birth of the will of man, that is, something done by another individual. Each person must individually trust Jesus Christ for eternal life. It is a gift to be received (4:10, 14), not a reward achieved through any human effort.

1:14 The Word became flesh: The Son of God who was from eternity became human, with limitations in time and space (see Phil. 2:5-8). This is the doctrine of the incarnation: God became human. Nothing of the essential nature of deity was lost in this event; we might rephrase became as “took to Himself.” John uses the word flesh to refer to the physical nature of humans, not to our sinful disposition (contrast Rom. 8:1-11). dwelt among us: Dwelt comes from the Greek word for tent that was used in the Greek OT for the tabernacle, where the presence of God dwelt. In the OT, glory refers to the divine presence (see Ex. 33:18). As God manifested His glory in the tabernacle, so Jesus displayed His divine presence before the apostles (18:6; 20:26, 27). Only begotten (3:16, 18) means unique, one of a kind. The same term is used of Isaac (see Heb. 11:17), who was not the only physical son of Abraham, but was the unique son of promise. All who trust Christ are born of God. In the Gospel of John, these “born ones” are called children of God (vv. 12, 13), but Jesus Christ is the unique Son of God. He is the only Son who is fully God. He is also full of grace and truth. When God revealed Himself to Moses, He proclaimed Himself to be “abounding in goodness and truth” (see Ex. 34:6). As applied to Jesus Christ, this phrase marks Him as the author of perfect redemption and perfect revelation.

1:15 He was before me: Jesus was born after John the Baptist (see Luke 1:36) and began His ministry later than John the Baptist. Yet John the Baptist said Jesus was before him, meaning that Jesus’ existence is from eternity past (v. 30).

1:16 Most people take the words of v. 15 to be John the Baptist’s. Probably the words of vv. 16-18 are those of John the writer of this Gospel, although they too may be John the Baptist’s. Grace for grace means grace piled upon grace. The background of this doubled term, as well as the use of the term in v. 17, is found in Ex. 32-34. Moses and the people had received grace, but they were in tremendous need of more grace (Ex. 33:13).

1:17 Throughout the NT, grace is God’s favor expressed to sinful humankind apart from any human works or worth. Though there was abundant grace and truth expressed by God through the Law He gave Moses, it is in the person of Jesus Christ that grace and truth are realized to the fullest.

1:18 No one has seen God: God is Spirit (4:24) and is invisible (see Col. 1:15; 1 Tim. 1:17) unless God chooses to reveal Himself. Humans cannot look at God and live (Ex. 33:20). Abraham, the friend of God, did not see God. Even Moses, the lawgiver, could not look at God’s face (see Ex. 33:22, 23). However, the Son is in intimate relationship with the Father, face-to-face with God (see 1:1; 6:46; 1 John 1:2). God became visible to human eyes in the man Jesus. It is through seeing the Son that we see God. We cannot see Him today, but we know Him through His word. The bosom, or chest, is used here to designate a close and intimate relationship (see 13:23; Luke 16:23). The One who is the Father’s only begotten Son and who knows God intimately came to earth and declared Him. Declared can also mean “explained.”

1:19, 20 The Jews refers to the Jewish leaders or the council (the Sanhedrin), who would be responsible for examining anyone thought to be a prophet, to see if the person was true or false. The Sanhedrin included Sadducees and Pharisees; those who came to investigate John the Baptist were Pharisees (v. 24). Who are you: In the first century many people were waiting for the coming of the Messiah promised by the OT prophets. John did not claim to be the Messiah, but the rulers were concerned about maintaining peace under the eye of Rome, and they kept a close watch on all prospective messiahs. John was quick to acknowledge that he was not the Christ.

1:21 Are you Elijah: The OT promised that Elijah would come

The Word Was God

John 1:1 is probably the strongest passage in the NT for declaring the deity of Jesus Christ. Because of this, many who deny this biblical doctrine, especially cultists, have attempted to undercut it by arguing that this passage only teaches that Jesus is “a god” and so not fully Deity. This confused position falls on at least two grounds. Such a view is polytheistic, the belief in more than one god. Second, it betrays a misunderstanding of Greek grammar. Verse 1 of the first chapter of John reads, “In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.” The last portion of v. 1 is the major point of contention. It reads in the Greek theos en ho logos, or literally, “the Word was God.” God, or theos, occurs in this verse without the Greek article ho, so that some have contended that the lack of the article in the Greek text should cause the statement to be translated “the Word was a god.” The best understanding for the translation, however, as recognized by Greek scholars, is that since theos is a predicate and precedes the noun logos and a verb, it is natural for it to occur here without the article. Greek scholars are agreed that the verse should be translated as it regularly is in modern and ancient translations, clearly affirming that Jesus is indeed God.

Andrew and Peter Follow Christ

³⁵ Again, the next day, John stood with two of his disciples. ³⁶ And looking at Jesus as He walked, he said, v “Behold the Lamb of God!”

³⁷ The two disciples heard him speak, and they w followed Jesus. ³⁸ Then Jesus turned, and seeing them following, said to them, “What do you seek?”

They said to Him, “Rabbi” (which is to say, when translated, Teacher), “where are You staying?”

³⁹ He said to them, “Come and see.” They came and saw where He was staying, and remained with Him that day (now it was about the tenth hour).

⁴⁰ One of the two who heard John speak, and followed Him, was ^x Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. ⁴¹ He first found his own brother Simon, and said to him, “We have found the ³ Messiah” (which is translated, the Christ). ⁴² And he brought him to Jesus.

before the great day of the Lord (see Mal. 4:5). Are you the Prophet: Moses had predicted that a prophet like himself would come (see Deut. 18:15).

1:23 The voice: Christ is the Word; John the Baptist was the voice. When pressed to identify himself, John the Baptist claimed that he was the fulfillment of Is. 40:3. In Isaiah's day there were few roads. When a king traveled, roads were built so that the royal chariot would not have to travel over rough terrain or be stuck in the mud. Isaiah was saying that before God appeared to manifest His glory, a voice would be heard, inviting Israel to make straight the way by which God Himself would come. John was identifying himself as that voice calling people to make straight the way of the Lord.

1:24 The Pharisees were an influential sect that numbered about six thousand. As strict interpreters of the Law in Israel, they were extremely zealous for ritual and tradition.

1:25 Why . . . do you baptize: Performing the rite of baptism was regarded as making a claim to authority. The Pharisees were asking, “By what authority do you perform this religious rite?”

1:27 Undoing the sandal strap was the job of a slave. The Jewish Talmud says, “Everything that a servant will do for his master a scholar shall perform for his teacher, except the menial task of loosing his sandal thong.” Thus John was saying that “Jesus Christ is the living Lord and I am the voice, His servant and slave. Actually, I'm not even worthy to be His slave.”

1:28 The location of Bethabara is unknown. Some think that Bethany is meant, but not the same Bethany as the familiar one near Jerusalem. Beyond the Jordan means east of the Jordan River. Evidently, this was John's normal place for baptizing.

1:29 The Lamb of God: In the OT, the Israelites sacrificed lambs at the Passover feast (see Ex. 12:21) and as offerings (see Lev. 14:10–25). Jesus Christ is the Lamb that God would give as a sacrifice for the sins not only of Israel, but of the whole world (see Is. 52:13–53:12).

1:31 I did not know Him: John and Jesus were cousins, so they probably knew each other. But John apparently did not know that Jesus was the Messiah. All John knew was that he was to baptize with water and that the Messiah would be made known to Israel through him. God had given John a sign by which he would know the Messiah, namely, the descending of the Holy Spirit as a dove.

1:33 He who baptizes with the Holy Spirit: Seven times the NT mentions this ministry of Jesus. Five are prophetic (see also Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; Acts 1:5); one is historical (see Acts 11:16–18); one is doctrinal (see 1 Cor. 12:13).

1:35 One of the two disciples of John the Baptist was Andrew (v. 40). The other is not named but was probably John, the author of this Gospel.

1:41 He first found: As soon as he came to faith, Andrew must have sought out his brother Simon Peter (note the four distinct days suggested in vv. 29, 35, 43). The excitement of discovering the Son of God, the Messiah (see Matt. 26:63, 64; Mark 14:61, 62; Luke 22:67–70), was contagious among the early believers.

1:42 he brought him to Jesus: Andrew appears two more times in the Gospel of John (6:4–9; 12:20–22); both times he is bringing someone to Jesus. Cephas is the Aramaic word for “rock” (see Matt. 16:18).

Nazareth

Nazareth is a beautifully secluded town nestled in the southernmost hills of the Lebanon mountain range. The city lay close to the important trade routes of Palestine. It overlooked the Plain of Esdraelon through which caravans passed as they traveled from Gilead to the south and west. North of the city was the main road from Ptolemais to the Decapolis, a road over which the Roman legions frequently traveled. This fact may account for the possible source of the name Nazareth in the Aramaic word meaning “watchtower.” This, coupled with a rather bad reputation in morals and religion and a certain crudeness in the Galilean dialect prompted Nathanael, when he first learned of Jesus of Nazareth, to ask, “Can anything good come out of Nazareth?” (1:46).

Matt. 14:33; Luke 1:35 / Matt. 21:5

1:43 From this verse, it might appear that Philip followed Jesus without being evangelized by another disciple, but there are several indications that Philip was approached by Andrew and Peter before he actually met the Lord. Verse 44 says that Andrew and Peter were from the same city as Philip, suggesting that they had talked to him. Furthermore, when Philip told Nathanael what had happened, he said “we” have found the Messiah (v. 45).

1:45 Nathanael is not mentioned in the synoptic Gospels. But in every list of the apostles in Matthew, Mark, and Luke, the name Bartholomew is listed with Philip, as Nathanael is linked with Philip here. It is likely that Nathanael and Bartholomew were the same person. son of Joseph: Philip did not have knowledge of the virgin birth at this time. However, soon all of the disciples would recognize Christ as the Son of God (v. 49).

1:46 Nazareth: Nathanael knew that the OT prophets had predicted that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem. Furthermore, Nazareth was an obscure village. Nathanael simply could not fathom that such a significant person as the Messiah could come from such an insignificant place as Nazareth.

1:47 an Israelite indeed: In his younger life Jacob, the first Israelite, was a cunning, scheming fellow full of deceit. Nathanael was an Israelite, a descendant of Jacob, but he was genuine and sincere. Jesus read Nathanael’s character like an open book (2:24).

1:48, 49 under the fig tree: In the OT, this expression often suggests being safe and at leisure (see 1 Kin. 4:25; Mic. 4:4; Zech. 3:10). Nathanael may have been meditating under the tree about the dream of Jacob referred to in vv. 50, 51. I saw you: Jesus manifested His supernatural knowledge. Apparently, this incident convinced ¹⁴ⁿAnd He found in the temple those who sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the money changers ²doing business.

Nathanael that since Jesus had such knowledge of him, He had to be the Son of God, the King of Israel (20:31). These titles referred to the Messiah.

1:50 greater things: Jesus assured Nathanael that he would see even greater supernatural manifestations in the future. Jesus’ statement may have referred to the miracles performed in chs. 2–11; it may also refer to the future glory of Christ as the coming Son of Man (see 1:51; Dan. 7:13).

1:51 Jacob had a vision of angels ascending and descending a ladder from heaven (Gen. 28:12). The thought here is similar, namely that there will be communication between heaven and earth. Son of Man, an expression used in Dan. 7:13 of a heavenly being, was Jesus’ favorite designation of Himself (Matt. 8:20; Mark 2:10).

2:1, 2 The third day refers to the third day from the last day mentioned (1:43). To walk from where John was baptizing to Cana would probably have taken three days. Cana was about four and a half miles northwest of Nazareth. The wording of the text, the mother of Jesus was there . . . Jesus and His disciples were invited, suggests that Jesus and His disciples were invited because of Mary. Her forwardness in asking Jesus to help when the wine ran out (v. 3) may indicate that she was in some way related to the family holding the wedding.

2:3 Hospitality in the east was a sacred duty. A wedding feast often lasted for a week. To run out of wine at such an important event would have been humiliating for the bride and groom. The family of Jesus was not wealthy, and it is likely their relatives and acquaintances were not either. This may have been a “low-budget” wedding feast.

2:4 Woman was a term of respectful address (19:26). My hour has not yet come seems to mean that the time for Jesus to publicly work miracles, declaring Himself the Messiah, had not yet come. For the use of similar expressions, see 7:6, 8, 30; 8:20; 12:23; 13:1; 16:32; 17:1.

2:5 Jesus’ response to Mary seems to have been a refusal to do anything about the situation. Yet she seemed to expect Him to do something. Perhaps something in the tone of Jesus’ voice let Mary know that He would grant her request.

2:6 six waterpots: Each waterpot held twenty or thirty gallons, for a total of 120 to 180 gallons of the finest wine (v. 10). purification of the Jews: Jewish tradition required several kinds of ceremonial washings. Strict Jews washed their hands before a meal, between courses, and after the meal. This “purifying” extended not only to washing hands, but also to washing cups and vessels (see Mark 7:3, 4). Because the roads were not paved and people wore sandals, water was needed for foot washing. At a large Jewish wedding, a large amount of water would have been required.

2:8–10 master of the feast: At a Jewish wedding, one of the guests served as a governor of the feast, similar to a master of ceremonies at a banquet. Our modern equivalent is probably a head waiter. This person was responsible for seating the guests and the correct running of the feast. the good wine: Usually the better wine was served first. Then, after the guests’ palates were dulled, the everyday wine was served. But this wine was so good that the master of the feast was surprised to see it being served late in the celebration.

2:11 In the Gospel of John, the miracles of Jesus are called signs, indicating that they pointed to His messiahship. John records seven signs (see also 4:46–54; 5:1–9; 6:1–14; 6:15–21; 9:1–7; 11:38–44). This sign signified Christ’s glory—that is, His deity. When Jesus transformed water into wine, He demonstrated His power.

2:13 the Passover of the Jews: Every male Jew was required to go to Jerusalem three times a year—for the Feast of Passover, the Feast of Pentecost, and the Feast of Tabernacles (see Ex. 23:14–19; Lev. 23). Jerusalem: The synoptic Gospels—Matthew, Mark, and Luke—concentrate on Jesus’ Galilean ministry. John focuses on Jesus’ ministry in Jerusalem. The different accounts do not contradict each other; instead, they complement each other.

2:14 The synoptic Gospels place the cleansing of the temple at the conclusion of Jesus’ ministry (see Matt. 21:12, 13), whereas John puts it at the beginning (vv. 14–17). Apparently Jesus cleansed the temple two different times. The language of the synoptic Gospels and that of John differ considerably, indicating two separate events. The Law of Moses required that any animal offered in sacrifice be unblemished, and that every Jewish male over 19 years of age pay a temple tax (see Lev. 1:3; Deut. 17:1). As a result, tax collectors and inspectors of sacrificial animals were present at the temple. However, these officials would not accept secular coins because they had an image of the Roman emperor, whom the pagans worshiped as a god. To put such coins into the temple treasury was thought to be an offense.

¹⁵ When He had made a whip of cords, He drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the oxen, and poured out the changers' money and overturned the tables. ¹⁶ And He said to those who sold doves, "Take these things away! Do not make ^o My Father's house a house of merchandise!" ¹⁷ Then His disciples remembered that it was written, ^p "Zeal for Your house ³ has eaten Me up."

¹⁸ So the Jews answered and said to Him, ^q "What sign do You show to us, since You do these things?"

¹⁹ Jesus answered and said to them, ^r "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

²⁰ Then the Jews said, "It has taken forty-six years to build this temple, and will You raise it up in three days?"

²¹ But He was speaking ^s of the temple of His body. ²² Therefore, when He had risen from the dead, ^t His disciples remembered that He had said this ⁴ to them; and they believed the Scripture and the word which Jesus had said.

Christ Witnesses to Nicodemus

3 There was a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews. ^{2a} This man came to Jesus by night and said to Him, "Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God; for ^b no one can do these signs that You do unless ^c God is with him."

³ Jesus answered and said to him, "Most assuredly, I say to you, ^d unless one is born ¹ again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

⁴ Nicodemus said to Him, "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born?"

⁵ Jesus answered, "Most assuredly, I

So in order to accommodate visitors in need of animals and the right kinds of coins, animal merchants and money changers set up shop in the outer court of the temple. These inspectors, collectors, and exchangers, however, charged high prices.

2:15 Jesus' whip was probably more a symbol than a weapon; nevertheless, it was effective in scattering the money changers and the animals they were selling. Jesus' actions were a sign of authority and judgment.

2:16, 17 The cleansing of the temple was the first public presentation of Jesus to Israel; He presented Himself as Messiah. The Messiah's ministry began in the temple; He came to purify (see Mal. 3:1–3). The expression My Father's house was a distinct claim to messiahship. At the wedding in Cana, Jesus demonstrated His deity and power; here He showed His authority. Recalling the words of Ps. 69:9, the disciples understood that Jesus was claiming to be the Messiah.

2:18 The Jews apparently refers to the religious authorities of Israel (1:19), who also understood that Jesus was representing Himself as the Messiah; therefore, they asked for a sign (see 1 Cor. 1:22).

2:19 Destroy this temple: Jesus was not talking about the physical building; He was referring to His body, as John emphasizes in v. 21. Jesus was speaking of His death. I will raise it up: Note that Jesus did not say, "I will build it again." He was referring to His resurrection, three days after His death. The sign Jesus gave the Jews was the sign of His death and resurrection (see Matt. 12:39; 16:4).

born again

(Gk. gennaō anōthen) (3:3, 7) Strong's #1080; 509

The Greek word anōthen translated here as again could also be rendered "from above." The birth that Jesus spoke of was either a new birth or a heavenly birth—or both. It seems that Jesus was speaking of a heavenly birth because He later used the analogy of the wind, coming from some unknown, heavenly source, to depict the spiritual birth. But Nicodemus clearly understood Jesus to be speaking of a second birth—being born again. Jesus explains this new or heavenly birth in 3:6–8, contrasting being born of the flesh with being born of the Spirit.

2:20 forty-six years: Herod the Great began restoring the temple in 20 B.C. The work was not finished at the time of this conversation. In fact, it was not completed until around A.D. 64, under Herod Agrippa.

2:21, 22 The disciples understood that Jesus was the Messiah (v. 17; 1:41, 45, 49), but they did not understand that He was speaking of the resurrection of His body until it actually happened.

2:23 many believed in His name: This was saving faith. John's purpose in recording Jesus' miracles was for people to believe and have eternal life (20:30, 31).

2:24 Commit is the same Greek word translated believe in v. 23. There is a play on words here. These individuals trusted Jesus, but Jesus did not entrust Himself to them. Nicodemus is an illustration (see ch. 3).

3:1 The phrase ruler of the Jews indicates that Nicodemus was a member of the Jewish council, the group that had sent a committee to investigate John the Baptist (1:24). Nicodemus no doubt knew that John the Baptist had denied being the Messiah (1:20), but had said that the Messiah was present (1:26, 27).

3:2 The fact that Nicodemus came to Jesus by night may reveal the timidity of his faith (12:42); however, his faith was developing (7:50, 51; 19:39).

3:3 born again: The Greek word translated again can mean either "from above" or "anew." The new birth, or regeneration (see Titus 3:5), is the act by which God imparts spiritual life to one who trusts Christ. Without this spiritual birth, a person cannot perceive spiritual things (see 1 Cor. 2:10, 13–16), nor can he or she enter the kingdom of God (v. 5).

3:5 There are several interpretations of the phrase born of water and the Spirit. (1) Jesus was referring to water baptism (see Acts 10:43–47). (2) Water is to be understood as a symbol for the Holy Spirit. Thus the phrase could be translated "born of water, even the Spirit." (3) Water is to be understood as a symbol of the Word of God. Similar imagery can be found in other NT passages, specifically Eph. 5:26; 1 Pet. 1:23. (4) Jesus used the phrase "born of water" to refer to physical birth. He then used the contrasting phrase "of the Spirit" to refer to spiritual birth. (5) Jesus used the phrase "born of water" to refer to John the Baptist's baptism. (6) Jesus used the OT imagery of "water" and "wind" to refer to the work of God from ⁹Nicodemus answered and said to Him, ^h"How can these things be?"

²²After these things Jesus and His disciples came into the land of Judea, and above (see Is. 44:3–5; Ezek. 37:9, 10). Wind is an alternate translation of the term Spirit (v. 8).

3:6 That which is born of the flesh is flesh: Flesh cannot be made into spirit. A person must experience a spiritual rebirth (v. 7).

3:7 In the Greek text, you is plural. In v. 2, Nicodemus used the word "we," probably referring to the Jewish ruling council, the Sanhedrin. Here Jesus spoke not only to Nicodemus, but to all whom he represented.

3:8 Jesus used the wind as an illustration of the work of the Holy Spirit. The Greek word translated Spirit also means "wind." As the wind seemingly blows where it wills, so the Holy Spirit sovereignly works. Likewise, no one knows the origin or destination of the wind, but everyone knows it is there. The same is true of the Holy Spirit.

3:10 Jesus answered Nicodemus's question (vv. 13–15), but first He rebuked Nicodemus for being a teacher of the Hebrew Scriptures and not knowing about spiritual birth (see Is. 44:3; Ezek. 36:26, 27).

3:11 you do not receive: Again you is plural (v. 7). Jesus had others in mind beyond Nicodemus. Here Jesus rebuked not only Nicodemus, but the other Pharisees as well.

3:12 Earthly things refers to things that occur on earth, like the new birth (vv. 3, 5–7), the wind (v. 8), and perhaps miracles. Heavenly things refers to events like Christ's ascension (6:61, 62) and the coming of the Holy Spirit (16:7). Nicodemus may have believed in Jesus' miracles (v. 2); the majority of the Jewish council did not (v. 11).

3:13 In v. 9, Nicodemus, referring to the new birth, asks, "How can these things be?" Here Jesus answers the question. New birth is by the Son, by the Cross (v. 14), and by faith (v. 15).

3:14 Every time the words lifted up occur in the Gospel of John there is a reference to Jesus' death (8:28; 12:32, 34). When Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness (see Num. 21:9), those who looked at it lived. So it is with the Son of Man (1:51).

3:15 This is the first time eternal life is mentioned in John's Gospel (see 4:36; 5:39; 6:54, 68; 10:28; 12:25; 17:2, 3). When a person trusts Christ, he or she is born again and receives eternal and spiritual life, God's kind of life.

3:16 God so loved the world: God's love is not restricted to any one nation or to any spiritual elite. World here may also include all of creation (see Rom. 8:19–22; Col. 1:20).

3:17 At His first coming, Jesus came so that the world through Him might be saved. When Jesus comes again, He will come in judgment upon those who refused His offer of salvation.

3:18 To believe is to receive life (vv. 15, 16) and avoid judgment. A person who does not believe not only misses life, but is condemned already. The idea of believing in Jesus' name is also found in 1:12.

3:19 Condemnation refers to the reason for judgment. The light referred to here is Jesus, the light of the world (1:7–9; 8:12; 9:5).

3:20 People offer many excuses for not accepting Christ. Some cite the presence of hypocrites in the church. Others claim inability to believe some of the truths about Christ or the gospel. These are merely attempts to conceal a heart in rebellion against God. The ultimate reason people do not come to Christ is that they do not want to.

3:21 The one who does the truth (see 1 John 1:5) is obviously already a believer because his or her deeds are done in God. Therefore, "coming to the light" is more than exercising faith. A person who comes to the light not only believes, but also openly identifies with the light so that his or her works can be seen as things done in union with God.

3:22 baptized: The impression here is that Jesus baptized. John corrects this idea in 4:2. Jesus provided the authority, but the disciples performed the baptisms.

the only begotten Son

(Gk. ho monogenēs huios) (1:18; 3:16, 18; 1 John 4:9) Strong's #3439; 5207

The Greek word for only begotten suggests a one and only son; it does not necessarily convey the idea of a birth. For example, Isaac is called Abraham's only begotten in Heb. 11:17 and in the Septuagint, the Greek OT (see Gen. 22:2, 12, 16), when actually Abraham had two sons: Ishmael and Isaac. The Son of God is the Father's one and only, His unique Son. Although the Father has begotten many children through the new birth (1:12, 13), none of these are exactly like Jesus Christ, the unique Son of God. His Sonship is from eternity. As the unique Son of God, He has a special glory and an unrivaled place of honor.

CHAPTER 4 ¹ ^t John 3:22, 26; 1 Cor. 1:17

3:24 The synoptic Gospels, particularly Matthew and Mark, give the impression that the imprisonment of John the Baptist came right after the baptism of Jesus. This verse indicates that there was an interval between Jesus' baptism and John's imprisonment during which both ministered.

3:25 The Greek word translated then often means "therefore." The disciples of Jesus and the disciples of John were both baptizing people; as a result, a question arose. The question came from John's disciples when they entered into a discussion with the Jews. Purification here refers to baptism.

3:26 John the Baptist's disciples were loyal to him. They were deeply concerned that one of his "disciples," Jesus, was competing with and surpassing him. In their astonishment, they exaggerated the predicament, saying, all are coming to Him. They were concerned that John was losing his audience to another preacher.

3:27 John the Baptist clarified the relationship between himself and Jesus. First, he talked about himself (vv. 27-29); then he talked about Jesus (vv. 30-36). John explained that he could not accept the position of supremacy that his disciples wanted to thrust upon him because he had not received it from heaven.

3:29 In explaining why people were flocking to Jesus (v. 26), John the Baptist pointed out that the bridegroom receives the bride. John compared himself to the friend of the bridegroom, who was appointed to arrange the preliminaries of the wedding, to manage the wedding, and to preside at the wedding feast. When the friend of the bridegroom finished his job, he had to get out of the way. His joy came from the success of the bridegroom. John was satisfied with his position in life. He was content to be a "voice" (1:23) and a friend.

3:30 John the Baptist insisted that Jesus Christ had to increase in popularity and that he, John, had to decrease. John explained that Jesus had to increase because of (1) His divine origin (v. 31), (2) His divine teaching (vv. 32-34), and (3) His divine authority (vv. 35, 36). Even though John encouraged his disciples to also follow Jesus, there were still some found many years later in Ephesus (see Acts 19).

3:31 He who comes from above refers to Jesus Christ. He who is of the earth refers to John the Baptist. John emphasized his earthly origin and its limitations. John proclaimed divine truth on earth; Jesus, on the other hand, is from heaven and above all.

3:32 no one receives His testimony: No one, apart from God's work in him or her (6:44), can accept Jesus Christ.

3:33 Certified means "to seal." In a society where many could not read, seals were used to convey a clear message, even to the illiterate. A seal indicated ownership to all and expressed a person's personal guarantee. To receive Jesus' testimony is to certify that God is true regarding what He has sealed.

3:34 Unlike human teachers, Jesus was not given the Spirit by measure—that is, in a limited way (see Is. 11:1, 2). The Holy Spirit was given to Jesus completely. All three Persons of the Trinity are referred to in this verse: God the Father sent Christ the Son, and gave Him the Holy Spirit without measure.

3:35 God the Father not only gave Jesus, in His humanity, the Holy Spirit (v. 34), He also gave Him all things, including the authority to give life (5:21) and judge (5:22). The phrase into His hand signifies the Son's authority over the use of "all things."

3:36 The verb translated has is in the present tense. The one who believes has eternal life as a present possession. Likewise, the one who refuses to believe on Christ has the wrath of God abiding on him or her as a present reality.

4:1 Therefore refers the reader back to 3:22-36. Christ's success in winning disciples had created jealousy among John's followers and provoked questions among the Pharisees. Since Jesus did not want to be drawn into a controversy over baptism at this stage of His ministry, He left Judea for Galilee (v. 3).

4:3 again: Jesus had been to Galilee before (1:43-2:12). He had left Capernaum to go to Jerusalem for the Passover.

4:4 The shortest route from Judea in the south to Galilee in the north went through Samaria. The journey took three days. Christ needed to go through Samaria if He wanted to travel the direct route. The Jews often avoided Samaria by going around it along the Jordan River. The hatred between the Jews and Samaritans went back to the days of the Exile. Samaria was the region between Judea and Galilee. When the northern kingdom was exiled to Assyria, King Sargon of Assyria repopulated the area with captives from other lands. The intermarriage of these foreigners and the Jews who had been left in the land complicated the ancestry of the Samaritans. The Jews hated the Samaritans and considered them to be no longer "pure" Jews. Jesus, however, had no such bias.

4:5 Jacob had purchased a parcel of ground (see Gen. 33:18, 19), which he bequeathed on his deathbed to Joseph (Gen. 48:21, 22).

Jesus in Judea and Samaria

- 1 The most important port in the Holy Land in NT times.
- 2 The birthplace of Jesus (Matt. 2:1; Luke 2:4).
- 3 John the Baptist baptized here (John 3:23). Aenon was also the probable location of John's ministry.
- 4 Here Jesus talked with a Samaritan woman at Jacob's well (John 4:5).
- 5 The mountain referred to by the Samaritan woman at the well as the worship center for the Samaritans (John 4:20–23).
- 6 Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead (John 11:43–44). Here at Bethany Jesus was anointed in the house of Simon the Leper (Matt. 26:6). It was also the scene of the Ascension (Luke 24:50–51).

7 Jesus healed a blind man here at Jericho (Matt. 20:29) and called Zacchaeus down from a tree (Luke 19:1). The Good Samaritan helped a traveler en route here (Luke 10:30).

8 Most important biblical city. Jesus was crucified at Jerusalem as predicted (Matt. 16:21; Mark 10:33; Luke 18:31).

that ^bJacob ^cgave to his son Joseph. ⁶Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied from His journey, sat thus by the well. It was about the sixth hour.

⁷A woman of Samaria came to draw water. Jesus said to her, "Give Me a drink." ⁸For His disciples had gone away into the city to buy food.

⁹Then the woman of Samaria said to Him, "How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman?" For ^dJews have no dealings with ^eSamaritans.

¹⁰Jesus answered and said to her, "If you knew the ^fgift of God, and who it is who says to you, 'Give Me a drink,' you would have asked Him, and He would have given you ^gliving water."

¹¹The woman said to Him, "Sir, You have nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. Where then do You get that living water? ¹²Are You greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank from it himself, as well as his sons and his livestock?"

¹³Jesus answered and said to her, "Whoever drinks of this water will thirst again, ¹⁴but ^hwhoever drinks of the water that I shall give him will never thirst. But the water that I shall give him ⁱwill become in him a fountain of water springing up into everlasting life."

¹⁵The woman said to Him, "Sir, give me this water, that I may not thirst, nor come here to draw."

Christ Witnesses to the Disciples

²⁷And at this point His disciples came, and they marveled that He talked with a

4:10 Living water (see 7:37–39; Is. 12:1–6) springs from an unfailing source and is ever-flowing. Jesus, of course, was talking about eternal life (see 4:14; Rom. 6:23).

4:11 The Samaritan woman did not comprehend Jesus' spiritual message. She was thinking only of physical water and could not understand how Jesus could provide water without a means of drawing it, especially since the well was deep.

4:16 Jesus mentioned the woman's husband in order to expose her sin (v. 18).

4:19 Because of what Jesus told her about herself, the woman concluded that Jesus Christ was a prophet, a person divinely inspired with supernatural knowledge (see 1 Sam. 9:9).

4:20 By mentioning the two different worship sites, the woman was perhaps trying to shift the conversation away from the subject of her own sins to theological questions. Or perhaps she realized that she was a sinner (v. 18), and knew that she was required to offer a sacrifice. The woman probably assumed that because Jesus was a Jew, He would insist that the sacrifice be offered in the temple at Jerusalem. The Jews insisted that the exclusive place of worship was Jerusalem. But the Samaritans had set up a rival worship site on Mt. Gerizim, which according to their tradition was where Abraham went to sacrifice Isaac, and where later on he met Melchizedek. When the blessings and curses were read to the wilderness generation of Israel, the blessings were read from Mt. Gerizim (see Deut. 11:29; 27:12). Deuteronomy 27:4 instructed that an altar be erected on Mt. Ebal, opposite Mt. Gerizim. But the Samaritan scripture changed the verse to read "Mt. Gerizim." The Samaritans altered history and tampered with the text of Scripture to glorify Mt. Gerizim.

4:22 Salvation is of the Jews means that the Messiah would come from the Jewish people.

4:24 God is Spirit . . . worship Him . . . in spirit and truth: God is not limited by time and space. When people are born of the Spirit, they can commune with God anywhere. Spirit is the opposite of what is material and earthly, for example, Mt. Gerizim. Christ makes worship a matter of the heart. Truth is what is in harmony with the nature and will of God. It is the opposite of all that is false. Here the truth is specifically the worship of God through Jesus Christ. The issue is not where a person worships, but how and whom.

4:25 The Samaritans believed that the Prophet of Deut. 18:15 would teach all things when he came.

4:26 I . . . am He: Using the same words that God used when He revealed Himself to Moses (see Ex. 3:14), Jesus clearly stated that He is the Messiah.

(Gk. pēgē) (4:14; Rev. 7:17; 21:6) Strong's #4077

The Greek word denotes a spring of running water. How different this is from a well that requires much manual labor to dig and to draw out the water. The gift that Jesus gives—a fountain springing up into eternal life—suggests the availability and accessibility of the divine life for all believers. The expression "into everlasting life" probably means "resulting in eternal life." The result of drinking the water Jesus freely gives is that the drinker receives eternal life.

woman; yet no one said, “What do You seek?” or, “Why are You talking with her?”

²⁸The woman then left her waterpot, went her way into the city, and said to the men, ²⁹“Come, see a Man ^xwho told me all things that I ever did. Could this be the Christ?” ³⁰Then they went out of the city and came to Him.

³¹In the meantime His disciples urged Him, saying, “Rabbi, eat.”

³²But He said to them, “I have food to eat of which you do not know.”

³³Therefore the disciples said to one another, “Has anyone brought Him anything to eat?”

³⁴Jesus said to them, ^y“My food is to do the will of Him who sent Me, and to ^zfinish His work. ³⁵Do you not say, ‘There are still four months and then comes ^athe harvest’? Behold, I say to you, lift up your eyes and look at the fields, ^bfor they are already white for harvest! ^{36c}And he who reaps receives wages, and gathers fruit for eternal life, that ^dboth he who sows and he who reaps may rejoice together. ³⁷For in this the saying is true: ‘One sows and another reaps.’ ³⁸I sent you to reap that for which you have not labored; ^fothers have labored, and you have entered into their labors.”

Christ Witnesses to the Samaritans

³⁹And many of the Samaritans of that city believed in Him ^θbecause of the word of the woman who testified, “He told me all that I ever did.” ⁴⁰So when the Samaritans had come to Him, they urged Him to stay with them; and He stayed there two days. ⁴¹And many more believed because of His own ^hword.

Christ Is Received by the Galileans

⁴³Now after the two days He departed from there and went to Galilee. ⁴⁴For ^jJesus Himself testified that a prophet has no honor in his own country. ⁴⁵So when He came to Galilee, the Galileans received Him, ^khaving seen all the things He did in Jerusalem at the feast; ^lfor they also had gone to the feast.

Christ Heals the Nobleman's Son

⁴⁶So Jesus came again to Cana of Galilee ^mwhere He had made the water wine. And there was a certain ²nobleman whose son was sick at Capernaum. ⁴⁷When he heard that Jesus had come out of Judea into Galilee, he went to Him and implored Him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death. ⁴⁸Then Jesus said to him, ⁿ“Unless you people see signs and wonders, you will by no means believe.”

⁴⁹The nobleman said to Him, “Sir, come down before my child dies!”

⁵⁰Jesus said to him, “Go your way; your son lives.” So the man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him, and he went his way. ⁵¹And as he was now going down, his servants met him and told him, saying, “Your son lives!”

⁵²Then he inquired of them the hour when he got better. And they said to him, “Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.” ⁵³So the father knew that it was at the same hour in which Jesus said

4:29 all things that I ever did: In her excitement, the woman exaggerated. She did not report what Jesus actually told her, but what He could have told her. Note the woman's spiritual journey. She first viewed Christ as a Jew (v. 9), then as a prophet (v. 19), and finally as the Messiah.

4:34 My food is to do the will of Him who sent Me: This food is not simply knowing the will of God, but doing it. This verse highlights the obedience of Jesus to God in His ministry and foreshadows His words on the Cross (19:30).

4:35 In vv. 35–38, Jesus offered His disciples an opportunity to do something that would be “food” for them. He was speaking about the Samaritans. In them, He saw an opportunity for a spiritual harvest for which the disciples would not have to wait long.

4:36 The reaper of a spiritual harvest receives wages—that is, fruit which brings joy. In this case, Jesus sowed by giving the message to the woman. He was about to reap because He would see the whole city saved. Also the disciples were going to reap the harvest that Christ had sown. Note the “hundredfold” wages Jesus promises in Matt. 19:27–29 (see 1 Cor. 3:6–8; 2 Cor. 5:10).

4:38 Jesus applied what He had just said to His disciples. The others may have been John the Baptist and his disciples. They had labored in Judea (3:22–36). Thus Jesus' disciples were reaping what others had sowed (vv. 1, 2).

4:42 The title Savior of the world is used only here and in 1 John 4:14. The Jews of Jesus' day taught that to approach God one first had to be a Jew. By including this incident in the Gospel, John demonstrates that Jesus is for all people of the world.

4:44 His own country has been taken to mean: (1) Judea, (2) Nazareth, or (3) Galilee. Having no honor or reception in Nazareth, Jesus went elsewhere in Galilee.

4:45 The feast refers to the Passover (see 2:13–25). The Galileans who had gone to the feast received Jesus when He came to Galilee.

4:46 Nobleman is literally royal officer, one in service of the king. Herod Antipas was technically the “tetrarch” of Galilee, but he was referred to as a king.

4:53, 54 The nobleman is said to have believed twice, once in v. 50 and again in v. 53. In v. 50, he believed Jesus' promise that his son would not die. But believing that Jesus can and will heal is not enough to save. What was it that the nobleman believed in v. 53? The explanation is found in v. 54. The miracle that Jesus performed was His second sign (see also 2:11). These signs were performed so that people might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing they might have life (20:31). When the Jewish nobleman realized that his son had been healed, he knew that Jesus was more than a mere mortal. The nobleman placed his faith in Jesus and was born again.

to him, “Your son lives.” And he himself believed, and his whole household.

⁵⁴This again is the second sign Jesus did when He had come out of Judea into Galilee.

Christ Heals the Paralytic Man

5 After ^athis there was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus ^bwent up to Jerusalem. ²Now there is in Jerusalem ^cby the Sheep Gate a pool, which is called in Hebrew, ¹Bethesda, having five porches. ³In these lay a great multitude of sick people, blind, lame, ²paralyzed, ³waiting for the moving of the water. ⁴For an angel went down at a certain time into the pool and stirred up the water; then whoever stepped in first, after the stirring of the water, was made well of whatever disease he had. ⁵Now a certain man was there who had an infirmity thirty-eight years. ⁶When Jesus saw him lying there, and knew that he already had been in that condition a long time, He said to him, “Do you want to be made well?”

⁷The sick man answered Him, “Sir, I have no man to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; but while I am coming, another steps down before me.”

⁸Jesus said to him, ^d“Rise, take up your bed and walk.” ⁹And immediately the man was made well, took up his bed, and walked.

Christ Heals on the Sabbath

And ^ethat day was the Sabbath. ¹⁰The Jews therefore said to him who was cured, “It is the Sabbath; ^fit is not lawful for you to carry your bed.”

¹¹He answered them, “He who made me well said to me, ‘Take up your bed and walk.’”

¹²Then they asked him, “Who is the Man who said to you, ‘Take up your bed and walk’?” ¹³But the one who was ^ghealed did not know who it was, for Jesus had withdrawn, a multitude being in that place. ¹⁴Afterward Jesus found him in the temple, and said to him, “See, you have been made well. ^hSin no more, lest a worse thing come upon you.”

¹⁵The man departed and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well.

¹⁶For this reason the Jews ⁱpersecuted Jesus, ⁴and sought to kill Him, because He had done these things on the Sabbath.

Equality with God in Nature

¹⁷But Jesus answered them, ^j“My Father has been working until now, and I have been working.”

¹⁸Therefore the Jews ^ksought all the more to kill Him, because He not only broke the Sabbath, but also said that God was His Father, ^lmaking Himself equal with God.

Equality with God in Power

¹⁹Then Jesus answered and said to them, “Most assuredly, I say to you, ^mthe Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He sees the Father do; for whatever He does, the Son also does in like manner. ²⁰For ⁿthe Father loves the Son, and ^oshows Him all things that He Himself does; and He will

5:1 The feast of the Jews is probably not the Passover, which John usually refers to by name (2:13; 6:4; 11:55). It may have been Tabernacles.

5:2 The Sheep Gate was a gate in the wall of Jerusalem near the temple, through which sheep were brought for sacrifice. The pool of Bethesda was a double pool surrounded by colonnades on four sides, with a fifth colonnade standing on the dividing wall that separated the northern and southern pools. The five porches were in the colonnades on the two sides, with two on each end and one in the middle.

5:9 John records this miracle because it was a witness to Jesus’ deity. Jesus Himself told John the Baptist that the proof of His messiahship was that the lame would walk (see Matt. 11:1–5), for the prophet Isaiah had predicted this long before: “The lame shall leap like a deer” (see Is. 35:1–6). Carrying a bed on the Sabbath was considered a violation of the Law of Moses (v. 10).

5:10 The Jews probably refers to Jewish leaders who were members of the council. The Law of Moses taught that the Sabbath must be different from other days. On it, neither people nor animals could work. The prophet Jeremiah had prohibited carrying burdens or working on the Sabbath (Jer. 17:21, 22). Nehemiah made it clear that trading on the Sabbath as if it were an ordinary day was forbidden (Neh. 13:15–19). Over the years, the Jewish leaders had amassed thousands of rules and regulations concerning the Sabbath. By Jesus’ day, they had 39 different classifications of work. According to them, carrying furniture and even providing medical treatment on the Sabbath were forbidden. Jesus did not break the Law; He violated the traditions of the Pharisees which had grown up around the Law.

5:13 The sick man was healed without exercising any faith. He did not know who Jesus was when he was healed. Jesus had withdrawn: John records Jesus quietly withdrawing from a crowd on four occasions (see also 8:59; 10:39; 12:36). However, Jesus caught up with the man later (v. 14).

5:16 This is the first recorded declaration of open hostility toward Jesus in the Gospel of John.

5:17 My Father: Jesus is “the only begotten Son” (1:14, 18; 3:16, 18)—that is, the unique Son of God. Here He claims not only a unique relationship with God the Father, but also equality with God in nature. Since God continually does good works without allowing Himself to stop on the Sabbath, the Son does likewise, since He is equal with God. Certainly the Jewish leaders understood the implications of Jesus’ claims (v. 18).

5:19 The Son can do nothing of Himself means that action by the Son apart from the Father is impossible because of the unity of the Father and the Son (v. 17). Whatever He does, the Son also does is a claim of deity and unity with the Father.

5:20 The Son does what the Father does (v. 19) because the Father loves the Son. Moreover, because the Father loves the Son, He reveals all to Him. The Father would show the Son greater works than the healing of the sick man. Jesus would raise the dead (v. 21) and eventually judge humanity (v. 22).

show Him greater works than these, that you may marvel. ²¹For as the Father raises the dead and gives life to them, ²²even so the Son gives life to whom He will.

Equality with God in Authority

²²For the Father judges no one, but ²³has committed all judgment to the Son, ²⁴that all should honor the Son just as they honor the Father. ²⁵He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent Him.

²⁴“Most assuredly, I say to you, ²⁵he who hears My word and believes in Him who sent Me has everlasting life, and shall not come into judgment, ²⁶but has passed from death into life. ²⁷Most assuredly, I say to you, the hour is coming, and now is, when ²⁸the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear will live. ²⁹For ³⁰as the Father has life in Himself, so He has granted the Son to have ³¹life in Himself, ³²and ³³has given Him authority to execute judgment also, ³⁴because He is the Son of Man. ³⁵Do not marvel at this; for the hour is coming in which all who are in the graves will ³⁶hear His voice ³⁷and come forth—³⁸those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation. ³⁹¶

5:21 the Son gives life: As God raises people from the dead and gives them life, so Christ gives people spiritual life (v. 24). Jesus claimed the same power as God, thus claiming that He is equal with God.

5:22 all judgment to the Son: The Jews recognized that God alone had the right to judge humanity. In claiming that the Father committed all judgment to Him, Jesus again claimed equality with God.

5:23 honor the Son just as they honor the Father: To claim the same honor as the Father is to claim equality with the Father. Here Jesus claimed equal authority with God.

5:24 The phrase believes in Him who sent Me is unusual. Christ, not the Father, is usually the object of this verb in John. The issue in this passage is the unity of the Father and the Son (vv. 17–23). All who believe in the One who sent Christ will believe in Christ. shall not come into judgment: A judgment to decide a person's eternal destiny is no longer possible for the one who has already been given eternal life. However, all believers will stand before the judgment seat of Christ (see Rom. 14:10; 2 Cor. 5:10), not for punishment of sin, but to determine inheritance in Messiah's kingdom.

5:26 For indicates that this verse explains the previous verse. Christ can give life because He Himself possesses life. He not only has a part in giving it, He is the source of it. This is another testimony to Jesus' deity, because only God has life in Himself.

5:28 the hour is coming: Christ not only gives spiritual life now (v. 25). He will give physical life later.

5:29 Two separate resurrections (see Rev. 20:4, 5), the resurrection of life and the resurrection of condemnation are presented here in the fashion of the OT prophets, who often grouped together events of the future without distinction of time (see Is. 61:2). Jesus was teaching the universality of resurrection, not the timing of it. those who have done good: The only “good” anyone can do is to believe on Christ, the One God sent (6:28, 29). All other good actions flow from that. Anything good that is done without that belief means nothing to God and will result in the resurrection of condemnation.

5:30 Christ's judgment is righteous because it is in accordance with God's divine will. In v. 19 Jesus said, “The Son can do nothing of Himself”; here He says He can do nothing independent of the Father.

5:31, 32 My witness is not true: If Christ were the only one bearing witness of what He was claiming, His witness would not be accepted. According to Jewish legal practice, a person's testimony about himself was not accepted in court. So in this case, Jesus offered another witness—John the Baptist (v. 33).

5:35 Jesus is the Light (1:4, 5). John was a lamp. He was: Jesus used the past tense because by this time John's work had been ended either by imprisonment or by death.

5:36 the works: John did not perform any signs (10:41). Those were specific works that the Son was to perform, as predicted in the OT (see Is. 35:5, 6) to attest to the fact that He was sent by the Father (vv. 1–15; 2:1–11; 4:43–54).

5:37 the Father Himself . . . has testified: This is not a reference to the voice from heaven at the baptism of Christ, but to Scripture (vv. 38, 39).

(Gk. martureō) (5:31, 32; 7:7; 8:13; 1 John 4:14; 5:9) Strong's #3140

This Greek word means “to bear witness.” According to Jewish law, a testimony to oneself is no testimony at all. Truth or validity had to be established by two or three witnesses (Deut. 17:7; 19:15). Therefore, Jesus' witness to Himself would not validate His claims; He needed the witness of another. That other witness was not John the Baptist, but Jesus' Father. In the following verses, Jesus called upon several witnesses to affirm His claims, but actually He needs only one witness, His Father's.

⁷ Philip answered Him, ^g “Two hundred denarii worth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may have a little.”

¹⁰ Then Jesus said, “Make the people sit down.” Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand. ¹¹ And Jesus took the loaves, and when He had given thanks He distributed them ² to the disciples, and the disciples to those sitting down; and likewise of the fish, as much as they wanted. ¹² So when they were filled, He said to His disciples, “Gather up the fragments that remain, so that nothing is lost.” ¹³ Therefore they gathered them up, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves which were left over by those who had eaten. ¹⁴ Then those men, when they had seen the sign that Jesus did, said, “This is truly ^j the Prophet who is to come into the world.”

Christ Walks on the Water

Matt. 14:22-33; Mark 6:45-52

¹⁵ Therefore when Jesus perceived that

5:39 The Jewish religious leaders of Jesus’ day diligently searched the OT Scriptures, but did not see Jesus as the Messiah and did not believe in Him (v. 38).

5:42 The love of God here is not love from God but love for God. Love from God is evidenced in Christ (3:16; Rom. 5:8). Since God loves us, we should love Him (Deut. 6:5; 1 John 4:19).

5:43 Jesus came in the Father’s name, revealing God to the people, but they rejected Him. Ironically, if someone had come in his own name, giving his own ideas in harmony with the people’s ideas, the people would have received him.

5:44 The people did not believe in Jesus because they did not seek honor that comes from the only God. This honor may be similar to Paul’s view of the glory that will be revealed in us in the presence of God (see Rom. 8:18).

5:45 Trust means “hope.” Christ will not have to accuse the people on Judgment Day because the one in whom they placed their hope, Moses, will. The people will be condemned by the very Law they professed to keep.

5:46 he wrote about Me: Moses wrote about Christ in the promises to the patriarchs, in the history of the deliverance from Egypt, in the symbolic institutions of the Law, and in the prediction of a Prophet like himself (see Luke 24:25, 26). If the people had believed Moses, they would have received Jesus gladly. Over three hundred OT prophecies were specifically fulfilled in the First Coming of Christ.

5:47 you do not believe his writings: The ultimate problem was that the people did not believe the Word of God written through Moses.

6:1 After these things: About six months elapsed between 5:47 and this verse. Herod Antipas had killed John the Baptist and was seeking Jesus. The disciples had preached throughout Galilee, and many people were curious about Jesus (v. 5). John further identifies the Sea of Galilee as the Sea of Tiberias, an indication that his Gospel was written for those outside of Palestine. The Jewish people called this body of water the Lake of Genessaret. The Romans called it Tiberias, after the city built on its western shore by Herod Antipas and named for the Emperor Tiberius.

6:7 One denarius was a day’s wage for a laborer or field hand (see Matt. 20:2). Two hundred denarii would have been almost two-thirds of a year’s wages.

6:9 Barley loaves were an inexpensive food of the common people and the poor.

6:11 The miraculous multiplication of the food demonstrated Jesus’ deity, because only God can create. This is the only miracle of Jesus that is recounted in all four Gospels.

6:14 The Prophet is a reference to Deut. 18:15. The men’s statement does not necessarily indicate that they believed Jesus was the Messiah. Some made a distinction between the Prophet and the Messiah (compare 1:20, 21). The bread (v. 11) may have reminded them of Moses and manna. Thus they concluded that Jesus was the Prophet that Moses had foretold.

6:15 make Him king: Moses had not only miraculously provided food for the Israelites, he had also led them out of bondage in Egypt. Perhaps these men felt that Jesus could lead them out of bondage to the Romans. Christ was at the zenith of His popularity, and the

they were about to come and take Him by force to make Him ^kking, He departed again to the mountain by Himself alone.

¹⁶Now when evening came, His disciples went down to the sea, ¹⁷got into the boat, and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was already dark, and Jesus had not come to them. ¹⁸Then the sea arose because a great wind was blowing. ¹⁹So when they had rowed about ³three or four miles, they saw Jesus walking on the sea and drawing near the boat; and they were ^mafraid. ²⁰But He said to them, ⁿ“It is I; do not be afraid.” ²¹Then they willingly received Him into the boat, and immediately the boat was at the land where they were going.

“I Am the Bread of Life”

²²On the following day, when the people who were standing on the other side of the sea saw that there was no other boat there, except ⁴that one ⁵which His disciples had entered, and that Jesus had not entered the boat with His disciples, but His disciples had gone away alone—²³however, other boats came from Tiberias, near the place where they ate bread after the Lord had given thanks—²⁴when the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, nor His disciples, they also got into boats and came to Capernaum, ^oseeking Jesus. ²⁵And when they found Him on the other side of the sea, they said to Him, “Rabbi, when did You come here?”

²⁶Jesus answered them and said, “Most assuredly, I say to you, you seek Me, not because you saw the signs, but because you ate of the loaves and were filled. ²⁷^pDo not labor for the food which perishes, but ^qfor the food which endures to everlasting life, which the Son of Man will give you, ^rbecause God the Father has set His seal on Him.”

²⁸Then they said to Him, “What shall we do, that we may work the works of God?”

²⁹Jesus answered and said to them, temptation to take the kingdom without the Cross must have been great (see Matt. 4:8–10). The parallel passages say that He went to the mountain by Himself to pray (see Matt. 14:23; Mark 6:46). Here is our greatest resource in times of testing.

6:16–18 His disciples went down to the sea: In Mark 6:45 we discover that the disciples went to the sea because Jesus compelled them to do so. It was already dark by the time the disciples got out on the lake. The wind began to pick up, setting the stage for Jesus to provide another revelation of Himself.

6:19–21 This miracle, the fifth sign recorded by John, pointed to Jesus’ deity. Only God could walk on water, calm the sea, and supernaturally transport the disciples to their destination.

6:22–24 The multitude had seen that there was only one boat and that Jesus had not entered the boat with His disciples. They

Tiberias

The city of Tiberias stands on a rocky cliff on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee. Founded by Herod Antipas (about A.D. 20), it was named after the emperor, Tiberius Caesar. It was said to have occupied the site of Rakkath (Josh. 19:35) and to have been built over a graveyard. Because of this, it was declared unclean by the Jews, who would not enter the city. Although Tiberias was an important city in the days of Christ, there is no record that He ever visited it. Ironically, after the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 135, Tiberias became the center of rabbinic learning. Here the Mishna was completed about A.D. 200 and the Jerusalem (or Palestinian) Talmud was finished about A.D. 400. The pointing system later used by the Masoretes to add vowels to the Hebrew text was first developed in Tiberias.

6:27 Do not labor for the food: The impression that one must work for eternal life is quickly corrected when Jesus adds which the Son of Man will give you. The Son provides life as a gift (4:10). Set His seal on Him means that the Father has authorized and authenticated the Son as the Giver of life.

6:30 When Jesus said “believe in Him whom He sent,” (v. 29), the people must have understood that He was claiming to be the Messiah. Therefore, they asked for a sign—despite the fact that they had just witnessed the miracle of the feeding of the multitudes.

6:31 There was a tradition that said the Messiah would cause manna to fall from heaven as Moses did (see Ex. 16:4, 15). The people probably also saw this “miracle worker” as the perpetual provider of physical needs rather than spiritual ones.

6:32 The crowd misrepresented the truth, so Jesus corrected them. The manna had not come from Moses; it had been provided by God. Moreover, God still gives true bread—that is, eternal life (v. 33).

6:34 Lord can mean “sir,” which is no doubt the meaning here (4:11, 15).

6:35 Bread of life means “bread which supplies life.” Manna satisfied physical needs for a while; Christ satisfies spiritual need forever (4:13, 14).

6:36 seen . . . not believe: Seeing does not necessarily mean believing (v. 30; 11:46–57), although sometimes it does (11:45; 20:29). On the other hand, Christ blesses those who believe without having seen (20:29).

6:38 For indicates an explanation of the previous statement. Christ will not cast out any who come to Him because He came to do the Father’s will.

6:39, 40 The will of the Father is twofold: (1) that all who come to the Son will be received and not lost; (2) that all who see and believe on the Son will have everlasting life.

6:41 The Jews referred to representatives of the council. They complained that Jesus said He was the bread which came down from heaven. Although this exact phrase is not found in Jesus’ statements, it is a fair summary of what He said (vv. 33, 35, 38). Jesus did claim that He was from heaven.

6:42 the son of Joseph: The religious leaders’ proof that Jesus was not from heaven was that they knew His parents. To them, there was nothing supernatural about Jesus’ origin.

6:45 God draws people by teaching them. Everyone, then, who hears and learns from the Father will come to Christ.

6:46, 47 Hearing and learning (v. 45) fall short of seeing the Father. John declares, “No one has seen God at any time” (1:18; 5:37). Here

The Holy Spirit in John

The Holy Spirit is the third person of the Trinity who exercises the power of the Father and the Son in creation and redemption. Because the Holy Spirit is the power by which believers come to Christ and see with new eyes of faith, He is closer to us than we are to ourselves. Like the eyes of the body through which we see physical things, He is seldom in focus to be seen directly because He is the one through whom all else is seen in a new light. This explains why the relationship of the Father and the Son is more prominent in the Gospels, because it is through the eyes of the Holy Spirit that the Father–Son relationship is viewed.

The Holy Spirit appears in the Gospel of John as the power by which Christians are brought to faith and helped to understand their walk with God. He brings a person to new birth: “That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit” (3:6); “It is the Spirit who gives life” (6:63). The Holy Spirit is the Paraclete, or Helper, whom Jesus promised to the disciples after His ascension. The Trinity of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are unified in ministering to believers (14:16, 26). It is through the Helper that Father and Son abide with the disciples (15:26).

This unified ministry of the Trinity is also seen as the Spirit brings the world under conviction of sin, righteousness, and judgment. He guides believers into all truth with what He hears from the Father and the Son (15:26). It is a remarkable fact that each Person of the Trinity serves the others as all defer to one another: The Son says what He hears from the Father (12:49, 50); the Father witnesses to and glorifies the Son (8:16–18, 50, 54); the Father and Son honor the Holy Spirit by commissioning Him to speak in their name (14:16, 26); the Holy Spirit honors the Father and Son by helping the community of believers.

Like Father and Son, the Holy Spirit is at the disposal of the other persons of the Trinity, and all three are one in graciously being at the disposal of the redeemed family of believers. The Holy Spirit’s attitude and ministry are marked by generosity; His chief function is to illumine Jesus’ teaching, to glorify His person, and to work in the life of the individual believer and the church.

surely, I say to you, ^ahe who believes ⁱin Me has everlasting life. ⁴⁸^rI am the bread of life. ⁴⁹^sYour fathers ate the manna in the wilderness, and are dead. ⁵⁰^tThis is the bread which comes down from heaven, that one may eat of it and not die. ⁵¹ⁱI am the living bread ^uwhich came down from heaven. If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever; and ^vthe bread that I shall give is My flesh, which I shall give for the life of the world.”

⁵²The Jews therefore ^wquarreled among themselves, saying, “How can this Man give us His flesh to eat?”

⁵³Then Jesus said to them, “Most assuredly, I say to you, unless ^xyou eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you have no life in you. ⁵⁴^yWhoever eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. ⁵⁵For My flesh is ²food indeed, and My blood is ³drink indeed. ⁵⁶He who eats My flesh and drinks My blood ^zabides in Me, and I in him. ⁵⁷As the living Father sent Me, and I live because of the Father, so he who feeds on Me will live because of Me. ⁵⁸^aThis is the bread which came down from heaven—not ^bas your fathers ate the manna, and are dead. 8:14, 18; Zech. 14:16-19

Jesus adds that only the Son has seen the Father. Though a person has not seen the Father, he or she can believe in Christ and have everlasting life.

6:48, 49 Christ is the bread of life. Those who believe in Him have life (v. 47). The manna in the wilderness did not ultimately sustain life. Those who ate it eventually died because it could not provide everlasting life.

6:51 Eats of this bread is a synonym for faith (vv. 35, 48–50).

6:52 His flesh to eat: Jesus was speaking figuratively, but the Jewish leaders took Him literally.

6:53–58 Eats My flesh and drinks My blood: Jesus had made it abundantly clear in this context that eternal life is gained by believing (vv. 29, 35, 40, 47). These verses teach that the benefits of Jesus' death must be appropriated, by faith, by each individual.

6:60 Disciple literally means “learner” and is used in a variety of ways in the NT. It can include unbelievers (see v. 64), believers who go beyond initial faith to baptism and obedience (8:31), or it can mean the apostles in particular (see 2:11). The context determines what meaning is intended. Here it simply means learner. Some of the crowd were students; they came to learn. Not all of these had believed in Christ. It was hard for the Jewish learners to accept the idea of eating flesh and drinking blood. Jews were forbidden to even taste blood.

6:62 Jesus was asking, “If the thought of eating flesh and drinking blood offends you, would you be further offended at the idea of My ascension?”

6:63, 64 Jesus was trying to get the religious leaders to see beyond the physical aspects of His teaching to the real issue—namely, that if they believed on Him they would have everlasting life. Because they did not believe, many of these disciples did not follow Jesus any longer (v. 66).

6:65 The people did not believe (v. 64) because it was not granted to them by the Father. There is a balance in this chapter between God's initiative and human response. The multitude is told about the election of the Father (v. 37), and yet all are invited to believe (v. 40). The same is true of the Jewish leaders (vv. 44, 47) and those called disciples (v. 63).

6:68, 69 John wrote so that people might believe “that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God” (20:31). The similarity between the confession of Peter and the purpose statement of John is inescapable.

6:70, 71 Judas Iscariot never made Peter's confession of faith in Christ. Though he was a disciple and even one of the twelve, it is never said that he believed.

7:1 The Jews here means the religious authorities, not the people in general (5:18). Many common people had responded to Jesus with joy (see Mark 12:37).

7:2 The Feast of Tabernacles was one of the three great Jewish religious festivals (Passover and Pentecost were the other two). It was called the Feast of Tabernacles because for seven days the people lived in makeshift shelters or lean-tos made of branches and leaves. The feast commemorated the days when the Israelites wandered in the wilderness and lived in tents (see Lev. 23:40–43). The festival was in September–October, about six months after the events of ch. 6. 7:3, 4 Jesus’ brothers argued, “If You are really working miracles and thus claiming to be the Messiah, do not hide in obscure Galilee. If you are doing miracles at all, then do them in Jerusalem at the Feast to convince the whole nation.” These words were sarcastic, as v. 5 explains.

7:6 Earlier, Jesus had told His mother, “My hour has not yet come” (see 2:4; compare 12:23). Here He told His brothers also that the time for manifesting Himself to the world had not yet come. Jesus mentioned on several occasions that the time for Him to be publicly manifested on the Cross was in the future (2:4; 7:6, 8, 30; 8:20).
7:7 The world cannot hate you: The world was not about to hate Jesus’ brothers, because they were part of it.

it hates Me ^h because I testify of it that its works are evil. ⁸ You go up to this feast. I am not ² yet going up to this feast, ⁱ for My time has not yet fully come.” ⁹ When He had said these things to them, He remained in Galilee.

Christ Secretly Goes to the Feast

¹⁰ But when His brothers had gone up, then He also went up to the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret. ¹¹ Then ^j the Jews sought Him at the feast, and said, “Where is He?” ¹² And ^k there was much complaining among the people concerning Him. ^l Some said, “He is good”; others said, “No, on the contrary, He deceives the people.” ¹³ However, no one spoke openly of Him ^m for fear of the Jews.

¹⁶ ³ Jesus answered them and said, ^p “My doctrine is not Mine, but His who sent Me. ¹⁷ ^q If anyone wills to do His will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it is from God or whether I speak on My own authority. ¹⁸ ^r He who speaks from himself seeks his own glory; but He who ^s seeks the glory of the One who sent Him is true, and ^t no unrighteousness is in Him. ¹⁹ ^u Did not Moses give you the law, yet none of you keeps the law? ^v Why do you seek to kill Me?”

31 ^l Matt. 12:23

7:13 The Jews is a reference to the Jewish leaders, especially the members of the council (1:19).

7:14 The middle of the feast would have been the fourth day of the seven-day feast. During the first half of the festival Jesus remained in seclusion (v. 10). During the second half He began to teach publicly. This is the first mention in the Gospel of John of Jesus teaching in the temple.

7:15 Having never studied means never having attended a rabbinical school. Similar bewilderment was later expressed regarding Jesus' disciples (see Acts 4:13).

7:16 not Mine, but His: Jesus' statement indicates that He did not receive His teaching from the rabbis, nor did He fabricate it. Instead His teaching came directly from God.

7:18, 19 is true: The test of a teacher is whether or not he delivers God's message. Jesus gave God's message; so did Moses. The religious leaders were breaking Moses' law by seeking to kill Jesus.

7:22, 23 Circumcision began with Abraham (see Gen. 17:10). The Law of Moses required infants to be circumcised on the eighth day (see Lev. 12:3). The Jews obeyed this law, even if the eighth day fell on the Sabbath. Jesus asked why the leaders were angry with Him for making a man completely well on the Sabbath.

7:27 The Jewish people seem to have expected the Messiah to appear suddenly from nowhere. They reasoned that since they knew where Jesus came from, He could not be the Messiah. They were ignorant of the Scriptures, for Micah had predicted the Messiah would come from Bethlehem (see Mic. 5:2).

7:28, 29 Cried out signifies a loud cry of strong emotion. You . . . know Me . . . where I am from: Jesus reminded the leaders that they knew His origin. Their problem was that they did not know God, who sent Jesus. He explained to them that He knew God, was from God, and was sent by God.

7:30 take Him: Because of Jesus' public claims of divine origin (v. 29), the religious leaders sought to arrest Him. because His hour had not yet come: John passes over the immediate reason they were unable to arrest Him and gives the ultimate explanation (see 2:4). God is sovereign and He alone sets the time. As with Jesus, so with us; no one can touch us without the Father's consent (see 10:29).

7:31 In contrast to the leaders, many of the Jewish people believed because of the miracles Jesus performed (20:30, 31).

7:32 to take Him: The Jewish leaders decided earlier that they wanted to kill Christ (see 5:16), but this is the first real attempt on His life.

sent officers to take Him. ³³ Then Jesus said ⁶ to them, ^m “I shall be with you a little while longer, and then I ⁿ go to Him who sent Me. ³⁴ You ^o will seek Me and not find Me, and where I am you ^p cannot come.”

³⁵ Then the Jews said among themselves, “Where does He intend to go that we shall not find Him? Does He intend to go to ^q the Dispersion among the Greeks and teach the Greeks? ³⁶ What is this thing that He said, ‘You will seek Me and not find Me, and where I am you cannot come?’”

Christ Reveals the “Living Water”

³⁷ On the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried out, saying, ^s “If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink. ³⁸ He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, ^u out of his heart will flow rivers of living water.” ³⁹ But this He spoke concerning the Spirit, whom those ⁷ believing in Him would receive; for the ⁸ Holy Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet ^w glorified.

 CHAPTER 8 ² ¹ M very early

7:33 a little while longer: Jesus’ time on earth was limited; soon He would be crucified and then ascend to the Father. His life was not determined by the Jewish religious leaders (v. 32), but by the Father.

7:34, 35 you cannot come: Christ would be in heaven; the people would not be able to come to Him there. Where does He intend to go: The Jewish leaders did not comprehend what Jesus meant. They could only think of one of the various places where Jews had been scattered.

7:37–39 On each day of the feast, the people came with palm branches and marched around the great altar. A priest took a golden pitcher filled with water from the Pool of Siloam, carried it to the temple, and poured it on the altar as an offering to God. This dramatic ceremony was a memorial of the water that flowed from the rock when the Israelites traveled through the wilderness. On the last day of the feast, the people marched seven times around the altar in memory of the seven circuits around the walls of Jericho. Perhaps at the very moment that the priest was pouring water on the altar, Jesus’ voice rang out: If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink.

7:38 as the Scripture has said: The reference is not to a single passage, but to the general emphasis of such passages as Deut. 18:15; Is. 58:11; Zech. 14:8 (see also Num. 24:7). In contrast to the small amount of water poured out each day during the feast, there will be a river of water coming out of those who believe in Christ. Not only will they be satisfied themselves, but they will also become a river so that others may drink and be satisfied (v. 39).

7:39 John explains that Jesus was speaking of the Holy Spirit who would satisfy personal thirst and produce a perennial fountain for the satisfaction of others. The Holy Spirit would come after Jesus’ crucifixion and ascension. Jesus prepared His disciples for this in the Upper Room (14:16–20; 15:26, 27; 16:7–15).

7:40–42 Moses predicted that the Prophet, the seed of David, would come (see Deut. 18:15, 18; 2 Sam. 7:14–16). These people knew that the Messiah was to come from Bethlehem (see Mic. 5:2). However, they did not know that Jesus had been born there. They thought He was from Galilee (see v. 41; Matt. 16:13, 14). They knew the Scripture, but they did not take the time to know the Messiah (5:39).

7:49 this crowd . . . is accursed: The Pharisees accused the people of being ignorant of the Law and thus under God’s curse (see Deut. 28:15). The irony of the situation was that it was the Pharisees, not the crowds, who were under God’s wrath because they had rejected His Son (3:36).

7:50, 51 Nicodemus made a plea for justice (3:2; 12:42, 43), but his plea was rejected.

7:52 no prophet has arisen out of Galilee: Actually, the prophets Jonah, Hosea, Nahum, and perhaps Elijah, Elisha, and Amos were from Galilee or close to it.

8:1 The people went to their own houses (7:53). Jesus, who had no place to lay His head (see Luke 9:58), spent the night on the Mount of Olives.

8:2 Early in the morning literally means “at dawn.” all the people came: Because the Feast of Tabernacles had concluded the day before (7:2, 37), many visitors were still in Jerusalem. Attracted by the appearance of a noted rabbi, a crowd rapidly gathered. He sat: Teachers in ancient Israel sat when they taught. Jesus assumed the position of an authoritative teacher.

ple came to Him; and He sat down and ^ataught them. ³Then the scribes and Pharisees brought to Him a woman caught in adultery. And when they had set her in the midst, ⁴they said to Him, “Teacher, ²this woman was caught in ^badultery, in the very act. ^{5c}Now ³Moses, in the law, commanded us ⁴that such should be stoned. ⁷So when they continued asking Him, He ⁷raised Himself up and said to them, ^e“He who is without sin among you, let him throw a stone at her first.” ⁸And again He stooped down and wrote on the ground. ⁹Then those who heard it, ^fbeing ⁸convicted by their conscience, went out one by one, beginning with the oldest even to the last. 8:3 Abruptly bringing the adulterous woman into the midst of the proceedings was a rude disruption. The Pharisees were bent on confounding Jesus (7:45).

8:4, 5 such should be stoned: Stoning was specified in certain cases of adultery (see Deut. 22:23, 24), though not all. (It is not clear why the authorities intended to punish the woman but not the man.) In the Greek text, the pronoun You is emphatic. The religious leaders were trying to trap Jesus into saying something that was contrary to the Law.

8:6 testing Him: If Jesus had said not to stone her, He would have contradicted Jewish law. If He had said to stone her, He would have run counter to Roman law, which did not permit Jews to carry out their own executions (18:31). What Jesus wrote on the ground is a matter of conjecture. Some suggest that He wrote the Ten Commandments recorded in Ex. 20.

8:11 Sin no more implies that Jesus forgave her. He did not condemn her, but neither did He condone her sin.

8:12 I am the light of the world: As the sun is the physical light of the world, so Jesus is the spiritual light of the world. As the light of the world, Jesus exposes sin (vv. 1–11) and gives sight (9:1–7).

8:13 Not true here does not mean “false”; it means “not sufficient.” The Pharisees challenged Jesus on legal grounds, because no man on trial in a Jewish court was allowed to testify on his own behalf. Their point was that if Jesus was the only one testifying as to who He claimed to be, it would not be enough to prove His case.

8:14 My witness is true: In 5:31, Jesus argued on the basis of legality and offered other witnesses. Sometimes, however, an individual is the only one who knows the facts about himself. Thus self-disclosure is the only way to truth (7:29; 13:3).

8:15 According to the flesh could mean either “according to appearance” or “by human standards.” The religious leaders formed conclusions based on human standards and an imperfect, external, and superficial examination. Jesus did not judge according to human standards or outward appearances.

8:16–18 I am not alone: Jesus could claim that His pronouncements were true and accurate even though the Law of Moses required two witnesses for a testimony to be valid (see Deut. 17:6; 19:15): Both He and the Father through the signs bore testimony to Jesus’ words and works.

8:19 Where is Your Father: Since the Father was part of Jesus’ proof of Himself, the Pharisees wanted to know where this Father was. You know neither: Even if the Pharisees could see the Father, they would not receive what Jesus said. Jesus came to reveal the Father (1:18), and they had not received Him.

8:22 kill Himself: Later Jewish belief placed suicide on the same level with murder.

8:23 from beneath: Jesus was not referring to hell, but to this world.

8:24 I am was God’s designation of Himself (see Ex. 3:14). Jesus was claiming to be God. This assertion was not understood by the

Jewish Discontent

Jewish discontent was centered around taxation. In the economy of the time, taxation was heavy. The city of Rome supported itself by imposing and gathering taxes. The Roman system allowed for the lease of taxation rights to entrepreneurs, who taxed their region for profit above what was due to Rome. This method of taxation invited trouble. Jews who worked in the tax system were regarded as traitors, even though the situation might have been even worse if foreigners acted as tax agents. Jewish discontent with Roman rule also had a nationalistic element (8:33). The Jews had not forgotten their independence under the Maccabees, and even the Jews who were scattered in many regions throughout the Roman Empire retained their cultural identity. Political discontent was injected with religious fervor because the Jews considered themselves to be a holy nation, and not just a nation among others (Deut. 26:18, 19; 27:9).

²⁷ They did not understand that He spoke to them of the Father.

³³ They answered Him, ^q“We are Abraham’s descendants, and have never been in bondage to anyone. How can You say, ‘You will be made free?’” religious leaders at this time. Later, Jesus’ claim to be the “I AM” (v. 58) prompted the Jewish leaders to seek His life (v. 59).

8:28 Lift up is a reference to the Crucifixion.

8:30 The Greek phrase translated believed in occurs almost exclusively in John’s Gospel (1:12; 2:11; 3:15, 16, 18, 36; 6:29, 35, 40, 47; 7:38, 39; 9:35, 36; 10:42; 11:25, 26, 45; 12:44, 46). The phrase describes faith in Jesus’ message (see 1 Cor. 1:21), which results in eternal life.

8:31 Abide means to remain, to continue. A believer who continues to obey the Word is a disciple, a learner.

8:32 One who abides in the Word of God knows the truth (v. 31; 17:17). The word free refers to freedom from the bondage of sin. Obedience to the Lord means fellowship with Him, protection from sin, and experiencing His love.

8:33 They answered Him: Throughout this chapter, Jesus was engaged in an exchange with His antagonists, the Pharisees (v. 13). They are also designated by the term Jews (vv. 22, 48, 52, 57) and the pronoun they (vv. 19, 25, 27, 33, 39, 41, 59). We . . . have never been in bondage: The Pharisees’ objection is startling. In their past, the Israelites had been in bondage to the Egyptians, the Assyrians, and the Babylonians. At the time they spoke, Israel was under the power of Rome.

8:34 slave of sin: Jesus was speaking of spiritual slavery. Such a slave cannot break away from his bondage. He must have someone else set him free (see Rom. 8:34).

8:35 A slave was not a permanent resident of a house. A son remained a family member with family privileges forever. This proverbial saying is applied in v. 36. The application proves that the “Son” here is Jesus Christ (see “the Son of Man” in v. 28). As a family member, the Son can bestow family privileges on others.

8:37 Abraham’s descendants may have been physical heirs of Abraham, but they were not his spiritual descendants unless they had faith. But instead of trusting Christ to forgive their sins, the religious leaders wanted to kill Him. They heard the word, but did not believe it. Thus they could not experience its truth.

8:39 Abraham is our father: The Pharisees believed that being a descendant of Abraham guaranteed them a place in heaven. The works of Abraham included paying honor to those who spoke in the name of God (see Gen. 14; 18).

8:41 We were not born of fornication: From ancient times, this has been interpreted as a sneer, as if to say, “We are not illegitimate children, but You are.” Apparently gossip had followed Jesus for many years, alleging that He had been conceived out of wedlock.

8:44 your father: Jesus knew what was in the hearts of people and the ^odesires of your father you want to ^hdo. He was a murderer from the beginning, and ⁱdoes not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaks a lie, he speaks from his own resources, for he is a liar and the father of it. ⁴⁵But because I tell the truth, you do not believe Me. ⁴⁶Which of you convicts Me of sin? And if I tell the truth, why do you not believe Me? ⁴⁷He who is of God hears God's words; therefore you do not hear, because you are not of God."

⁴⁸Then the Jews answered and said to Him, "Do we not say rightly that You are a Samaritan and ^khave a demon?"

⁴⁹Jesus answered, "I do not have a demon; but I honor My Father, and ^lyou dishonor Me. ⁵⁰And ^mI do not seek My own glory; there is One who seeks and judges. ⁵¹Most assuredly, I say to you, ⁿif anyone keeps My word he shall never see death."

⁵²Then the Jews said to Him, "Now we know that You ^ohave a demon! ^pAbraham is dead, and the prophets; and You say, 'If anyone keeps My word he shall never taste death.' ⁵³Are You greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? And the prophets are dead. ^qWho do You make Yourself out to be?"

⁵⁴Jesus answered, ^r"If I honor Myself, My honor is nothing. ^sIt is My Father who honors Me, of whom you say that He is ⁶your God. ⁵⁵Yet ^tyou have not known Him, but I know Him. And if I say, 'I do not know Him,' I shall be a liar

Christ Heals the Blind Man

9 Now as Jesus passed by, He saw a man who was blind from birth. ²And His disciples asked Him, saying, "Rabbi, ^awho sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?"

³Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned, ^bbut that the works of God should be revealed in him. ⁴^cI ^umust work the works of Him who sent Me while it is ^dday; the night is coming when no one can work. ⁵As long as I am in the world, ^eI am the light of the world."

⁶ ^f Mark 7:33; 8:23

(2:25), so He could trace their actions to their source. The devil is a murderer; his agents wanted to kill Christ.

8:48 The Jewish leaders charged Jesus with being a Samaritan and having a demon. In the process, they turned back to Jesus both charges that He had brought against them, namely, that they were not legitimate children of Abraham (vv. 39, 40) and that they were of the devil (v. 44). The conversation between Jesus and the Jewish rulers had become very heated. On the Pharisees' part, emotions were running high and reason was being set aside.

8:49 The Jewish leaders were dishonoring Jesus even though their eternal destiny depended on what they did with His message (v. 51).

8:50 One: God the Father will seek Christ's glory and judge those who dishonor Him.

8:51 Jesus graciously held out to the Jewish leaders the promise of forgiveness and eternal life. My word refers to the word concerning who He is. Death here refers not to physical death, but to spiritual death resulting in eternal separation from God.

8:53 greater than . . . Abraham: Abraham and the prophets kept God's word and died. Jesus was claiming not that He would prevent physical death, but that He could give eternal life. To the Jewish leaders, this was proof that Jesus was demon-possessed.

8:56 My day: Abraham looked for the One who would fulfill all that was promised to him—promises that included blessings for all nations (see Gal. 3:8, 9, 29).

8:58, 59 I AM: Jesus was not just claiming to have lived before Abraham; He was claiming eternal existence. He was claiming to be God Himself (see Ex. 3:14). This time the Jewish leaders understood that Jesus was claiming to be God, so they took up stones to stone Him for blasphemy (see Lev. 24:16).

9:1 The man who was blind from birth was a beggar (v. 8). Beggars waited by the gates of the temple for gifts from worshipers. Therefore, it is likely that this scene took place near the temple shortly after the confrontation recorded in ch. 8.

9:2 who sinned: It was commonly supposed that sickness was a result of sin. It would follow that sins committed by a baby still in the womb or sin committed by parents could result in a baby being born with a disease. Jesus rejected both suggestions (v. 3).

9:3 God allowed the man to be born blind so that Jesus could heal him and thus reveal the works of God, His healing power.

9:6 Mixing clay with saliva was a common practice used for eye infections. Jesus may have used the clay to provide an opportunity for the man to exercise his faith in washing it off.

I AM

(Gk. egō eimi) (6:35; 8:58; 10:7, 14; 15:1; 18:5) Strong's #1473; 1510

This expression denotes "self-identity in self-sufficiency." In one breath, Jesus asserted His eternal preexistence and His absolute deity. Abraham, as with all mortals, came into existence at one point in time. The Son of God, unlike all mortals, never has a beginning. He is eternal; and He is God. This is evident in Jesus' use of the words "I AM" for Himself. This statement recalls the Septuagint (the Greek OT) translation of Ex. 3:6, 14, in which God unveiled His identity as the "I AM WHO I AM." Thus Jesus was claiming to be the ever-existing, self-existent God.

9:7 Siloam: Hezekiah had a tunnel cut through solid rock to transport water from Gihon (the “Virgin’s Fountain”) into the city of Jerusalem, to the Pool of Siloam (see 2 Kin. 20:20; 2 Chr. 32:30). John emphasizes that the name Siloam means “Sent,” because Jesus had just announced that He had been sent by God (v. 4).

The Signs of Jesus in the Gospel of John

A blind man sees; a lame man walks. Everywhere Jesus went, people were amazed at His miraculous powers. John uses Jesus’ miracles as an organizing principle in his Gospel. He calls them all semeia, or “signs,” indicating that each miracle was a concrete demonstration of Jesus’ divinity and messiahship. Their purpose was to engender belief as they did for the disciples (2:11) and the nobleman’s household (4:52). But these same miracles would incite some to anger and violence (11:45–52). John records seven specific “signs.” The first was Jesus’ miracle of turning water into wine in Cana (2:1–11). In 2:11, John specifically mentions that this sign signified Christ’s glory, that is, His deity. With this sign Jesus demonstrated His creative power over nature, and His disciples appropriately placed their faith in Him (2:11).

The second sign was Jesus’ healing of the nobleman’s son (4:46–54). Although the son was in Capernaum and Jesus was in Cana, He told the boy’s father, “Your son lives” (4:50). This sign indicated that Jesus was more than a mere mortal; He possessed the power not only to defeat disease, but to transcend space. Jesus did not have to be physically present to heal. Once again, the sign produced belief (4:52).

But with the third sign, another reaction to Jesus’ miracles can be seen. A man at the pool of Bethesda had been sick for a long time. When Jesus told him, “Rise, take up your bed and walk” (5:8), immediately he was well. But this healing took place on the Sabbath. Instead of rejoicing with the healed man, the Jewish leaders reprimanded him for carrying his bed on the Sabbath. The Jewish leaders’ traditions and ideas kept them from believing in the clear signs of Jesus.

The fourth sign was Jesus’ miraculous feeding of the five thousand (6:1–15). By creating a great quantity of food out of five loaves and two fishes, Jesus was again demonstrating His deity, for only God can create. But the crowd, instead of submitting to Jesus’ teaching and following Him, wanted to make Him their king. They sought out Jesus for the food for their stomachs, and not for the spiritual food that would give them eternal life (6:26, 27).

The fifth sign was Jesus’ walking on the water (6:16–21). After the feeding of the five thousand, the disciples took a boat to cross the Sea of Galilee on their way to Capernaum. When they were three or four miles out, they saw Jesus walking on the water toward them. This time, Jesus demonstrated His complete control of nature, from the winds above to the water below. This was another sign of His deity, and another reason for the disciples to place complete trust in Him.

Jesus’ sixth sign highlights the different responses to Jesus’ miraculous works. In this account, the Pharisees’ spiritual blindness is clearly contrasted with the vibrant faith of the blind man. After being healed, this man told others about Jesus and correctly concluded that He was from God. The blind man saw clearly what Jesus’ sign meant, and believed (9:38). But the Pharisees refused to believe. They ridiculed the man’s faith and arrogantly questioned Jesus (9:34, 40, 41).

The wedding at Cana; the first “sign” of Jesus

Wikimedia Commons

The seventh sign was Jesus’ raising of Lazarus from the dead (11:1–44). Lazarus had been buried for four days when Jesus arrived in Bethany. With the simple words “Lazarus, come out,” Jesus restored to life the brother of Mary and Martha. This last sign was the greatest: Jesus at once demonstrated His power over the grave and pointed to His own resurrection. Not even death could limit Him, for He was truly God.

These seven signs certainly should have been enough to convince anyone that Jesus was the promised Messiah. Yet the miracles singled out by John were no more than “samples” of the enormous scope of Jesus’ signs and wonders (21:25). For John, all these signs pointed to the two miracles that are the greatest of all: Jesus’ incarnation (1:14) and resurrection (20:1–18). Jesus is God’s only Son become man. Although He died for our sins, He was raised from the dead. Today, He still lives and intercedes for all who believe in Him.

He said, "I do not know."

¹³They brought him who formerly was blind to the Pharisees. ¹⁴Now it was a Sabbath when Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes. ¹⁵Then the Pharisees also asked him again how he had received his sight. He said to them, "He put clay on my eyes, and I washed, and I see."

¹⁶Therefore some of the Pharisees said, "This Man is not from God, because He does not ⁵keep the Sabbath."

Others said, ^j"How can a man who is a sinner do such signs?" And ^kthere was a division among them.

¹⁷They said to the blind man again, "What do you say about Him because He opened your eyes?"

He said, ^l"He is a prophet."

¹⁸But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind and received his sight, until they called the parents of him who had received his sight. ¹⁹And they asked them, saying, "Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?"

²⁰His parents answered them and said, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; ²¹but by what means he now sees we do not know, or who opened his eyes we do not know. He is of age; ask him. He will speak for himself."

²²His parents said these things because ^mthey feared the Jews, for the Jews had agreed already that if anyone confessed that He was Christ, he ⁿwould be put out of the synagogue. ²³Therefore his parents said, "He is of age; ask him."

²⁴So they again called the man who was blind, and said to him, ^o"Give God the glory! ^pWe know that this Man is a sinner."

²⁵He answered and said, "Whether He is a sinner or not I do not know. One thing I know: that though I was blind, now I see."

²⁸Then they reviled him and said, "You are His disciple, but we are Moses' disciples. ²⁹We know that God ^qspoke to ^rMoses; as for this fellow, ^swe do not know where He is from."

³⁰The man answered and said to them, ^t"Why, this is a marvelous thing, that you do not know where He is from; yet He has opened my eyes! ³¹Now we know that ^uGod does not hear sinners; but if anyone is a worshiper of God and does His will, He hears him. ³²Since the world began it has been unheard of that anyone opened the eyes of one who was born blind. ³³^vIf this Man were not from God, He could do nothing."

³⁴They answered and said to him, ^w"You were completely born in sins, and are you teaching us?" And they ^xcast him out.

³⁵Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when He had ^yfound him, He said to him, "Do you ^zbelieve in ^athe Son of ⁷God?"

³⁶He answered and said, "Who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?"

³⁷And Jesus said to him, "You have both seen Him and ^ait is He who is talking with you."

³⁸Then he said, "Lord, I believe!" And he ^bworshiped Him.

³⁹And Jesus said, ^c"For judgment I have come into this world, ^dthat those who do not see may see, and that those who see may be made blind."

⁴⁰Then some of the Pharisees who were with Him heard these words, ^eand said to Him, "Are we blind also?"

9:16 some of the Pharisees said . . . Others said: The Pharisees could not believe that Jesus was from God because He had healed on the Sabbath, thereby breaking the oral traditions that had grown up around the Law. But those who fairly evaluated Jesus' miraculous signs came to the conclusion that He was from God.

9:17 The blind man concluded that Jesus was a prophet. This does not mean he had decided that Jesus was the Messiah (1:20, 21; 6:14).

9:22 To be put out of the synagogue was to be excommunicated. The Jews had three types of excommunication: one lasting 30 days, during which the person could not come within six feet of anybody else; one for an indefinite time, during which the person was excluded from all fellowship and worship; and one that meant absolute expulsion forever. These judgments were very serious because no one could conduct business with a person who was excommunicated.

9:24 The command to Give God the glory was a solemn charge to declare the whole truth (see Josh. 7:19; 1 Sam. 6:5). Attempting to put words in the man's mouth, the Jewish leaders said they knew Jesus was a sinner. In their view, healing on the Sabbath was breaking the Law. So to them, Jesus was a sinner (5:16).

9:28 You are His disciple: The healed man had not claimed to be Jesus' disciple. He only asked the Jewish leaders if they were interested in this case because they wished to become Jesus' disciples (v. 27).

9:30-33 unheard of: There is no healing of a blind man recorded anywhere in the OT.

9:36 Who is He: Faith must have a proper object. Jesus, not faith, saves. Faith is only a channel to the worthy object, the Lord Jesus Christ.

9:38 Note the progression throughout this chapter of the healed man's understanding of the person of Christ. First, he called Jesus "a man" (v. 11); then "a prophet" (v. 17); and finally he realized that Jesus is the Son of God (vv. 35-38).

9:39 For judgment I have come into this world: Jesus did not come into the world to execute judgment (3:17). Nevertheless, the inevitable result of His coming is judgment, because some refuse to believe (3:18). As the light of the world, Jesus came that the blind might see and those who think they can see will be made blind.

⁴¹ Jesus said to them, ^f“If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you say, ‘We see.’ Therefore your sin remains.

“I Am the Good Shepherd”

10 “Most assuredly, I say to you, he who does not enter the sheepfold by the door, but climbs up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. ² But he who enters by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. ³ To him the doorkeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice; and he calls his own sheep by ^a name and leads them out. ⁴ And when he brings out his own sheep, he goes before them; and the sheep follow him, for they know his voice. ⁵ Yet they will by no means follow a ^b stranger, but will flee from him, for they do not know the voice of strangers.” ⁶ Jesus used this illustration, but they did not understand the things which He spoke to them.

⁷ Then Jesus said to them again, “Most assuredly, I say to you, I am the door of the sheep. ⁸ All who ever came ¹ before Me are thieves and robbers, but the sheep did not hear them. ⁹ ^c I am the door. If anyone enters by Me, he will be saved, and will go in and out and find pasture. ¹⁰ The thief does not come except to steal, and to kill, and to destroy. I have come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly.

shepherd gives His life for the sheep. ¹² But a ² hireling, he who is not the shepherd, one who does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and ^e leaves the sheep and flees; and the wolf catches the sheep and scatters them. ¹³ The hireling flees because he is a hireling and does not care about the sheep. ¹⁴ I am the good shepherd; and ^f I know My sheep, and ^g am known by My own. ¹⁵ ^h As the Father knows Me, even so I know the Father; ⁱ and I lay down My life for the sheep. ¹⁶ And ^j other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they will hear My voice; ^k and there will be one flock and one shepherd.

¹⁹ Therefore ^p there was a division again among the Jews because of these sayings. ²⁰ And many of them said, ^q “He has a demon and is ³ mad. Why do you listen to Him?”

²¹ Others said, “These are not the words of one who has a demon. ^r Can a demon ^s open the eyes of the blind?”

The Opposition at the Feast of Dedication in Jerusalem

²² Now it was the Feast of Dedication

10:1 In John 7, Jesus journeyed to Jerusalem for the Feast of Tabernacles (see 7:2, 10). All of the events between 7:10 and 10:39 take place on that visit to Jerusalem. Thus chs. 9 and 10 are closely connected, suggesting that Jesus had the Pharisees of ch. 9 in mind when He spoke the opening words of ch. 10. A sheepfold was a walled enclosure or high fence made with stakes, and having one door or gate; often the enclosure was a cave. some other way: The Pharisees had secured their power by illegitimate means. A thief steals in secret; a robber plunders openly with violence.

10:2 In contrast to the thief, the true shepherd would come through the door.

10:3 The doorkeeper was the undershepherd. Calls expresses personal address rather than a general or authoritative invitation. by name: The naming of sheep was an ancient practice (see Ps. 147:4; Is. 40:26). This was good practice for the undershepherd who has been given the charge of a portion of God’s flock (see 1 Pet. 5:2).

10:4 Brings out is a translation of the same Greek word used in 9:34, 35 of the Pharisees casting out the man born blind. The false shepherds put out the sheep to rid themselves of trouble. The true shepherd puts out the sheep in order to feed them. The sheep know the voice of the true shepherd.

10:5 A stranger is anyone whom the sheep do not know, not necessarily a thief and a robber. Sheep would not follow a stranger’s voice even if he used the shepherd’s call and imitated his tone.

10:7 In vv. 1–5, Jesus is the shepherd; here He is the door. Some shepherds lay down across the entry of the sheepfold at night to sleep. Wild beasts would be discouraged from entering, and sheep would not exit. Thus the shepherd was also the door.

10:8 The thieves and robbers were the Pharisees (v. 1).

10:9 Jesus, the shepherd, gives spiritual life and access to spiritual food.

10:10 more abundantly: The thieves take life; the shepherd gives it. Abundant life includes salvation, nourishment, healing (v. 9), and much more. Life here refers to eternal life, God’s life. It speaks not only of endlessness, but of quality of life. With Christ, life on earth can reach much higher quality, and then in heaven it will be complete and perfect.

10:11 Jesus is the good shepherd who gives His life for the sheep (see 3:16; 1 John 3:16), as opposed to the wicked thief who takes their lives. While life in v. 10 refers to eternal life, life here refers to physical life. Jesus laid down His physical life in order to give us eternal life.

10:12 The hireling is a hired shepherd, a mercenary, who tends the flock for his own interest. When a hired shepherd sees a wolf coming he flees, not caring about the sheep.

10:16 The other sheep were not Jews in heathen lands, but Gentiles. The Jewish people had asked if Jesus would go and teach the Gentiles (7:35). Jesus now declared that He had sheep among the despised heathen. One flock anticipates the salvation of the Gentiles and the formation of the church, in which converted Jews and Gentiles would form one spiritual body (see 1 Cor. 12:13; Gal. 3:28; Eph. 2:16).

10:18 As the good shepherd, Jesus had the power—that is, the authority—not only to voluntarily lay down His life for the sheep (vv. 11, 15, 17), but also to take it up again. No one but God can do that.

10:19–21 After Jesus’ analogy of the good shepherd, the editorial comment by John is fitting. In the analogy, Jesus was the good shepherd whose sheep hear His voice, implying that there are sheep who do not hear His voice. John’s comment, true to the purpose of his Gospel, indicates that some believe and others do not. This is the same division that occurred in 9:16.

10:22 The events of 7:1–10:21 occurred during the Feast of Tab-

Herod's Temple

King Herod sought to appease his Jewish subjects by constructing an enormous, ornate, cream-colored temple of stone and gold. Building began in 19 B.C. The main building was finished by 9 B.C., but the entire structure was not completed until A.D. 64. The temple building occupied an area that measured about 490 yards from north to south and 325 yards from east to west. The entire temple complex was enclosed by a massive stone wall, the southeast corner of which stood about 50 yards above the floor of the Kidron ravine. The parapet above this corner may have been the “pinnacle of the temple” referred to in Matt. 4:5. In A.D. 70, the Romans destroyed the temple and burned it to the ground. All that currently remains is the Western Wall, also called the Wailing Wall, where Jews still gather to pray.

ernacles, which fell in the middle of October. The Feast of Dedication was celebrated for eight days in December; thus there was a period of about two months between vv. 21 and 22. In 167 B.C., Antiochus Epiphanes desecrated the temple in Jerusalem, as prophesied in Dan. 11:31. The Maccabees restored and purified the temple. In commemoration of the restoration, the Feast of Dedication was instituted. Today it is also known as the Feast of Lights or Hanukkah. John notes that the events of 10:22 occurred in winter to explain why the Lord chose a sheltered spot in which to teach (v. 23).

10:23 A pavilion surrounded the temple. Solomon's porch was a long, covered cloister or colonnade in the temple court, probably on the east side.

10:25 Jesus answered: Jesus reminded the Jewish leaders of His words and works. Jesus was the Messiah and said so. He told the woman at the well that He was the Messiah (4:25, 26), as well as the man born blind (9:35-37). His works include all the miracles He performed as signs pointing to His messiahship (see 20:31).

10:26 as I said to you: At the Feast of Tabernacles, Jesus had told the leaders that they were not among His sheep (see vv. 14, 15; 8:42-44, 47).

10:27-29 Jesus described three characteristics of His sheep: (1) They hear His voice (v. 4). He knows them (see Rom. 8:29). (2) They follow Him. The following of the sheep is a metaphor for faith. Other metaphors for faith in this Gospel include drinking water (4:14), eating bread (6:50, 51), eating flesh and drinking blood (6:54). (3) They shall never perish; their eternal life can never be taken away. The Father's hand is more powerful than that of any enemy.

10:30 I and My Father are one: The Jewish opponents understood that Jesus was claiming to be God (vv. 31, 33).

10:31 again: This was not the first time that the Jewish leaders took up stones against Jesus (see 8:59).

10:32, 33 The Jewish antagonizers revealed the reason for their them, “Many good works I have shown you from My Father. For which of those works do you stone Me?”

³³The Jews answered Him, saying, “For a good work we do not stone You, but for ‘blasphemy, and because You, being a Man, ^dmake Yourself God.”

³⁴Jesus answered them, “Is it not written in your law, ^e‘I said, “You are gods”’?

³⁵If He called them gods, ^fto whom the word of God came (and the Scripture ^gcannot be broken), ³⁶do you say of Him ^hwhom the Father sanctified and ⁱsent into the world, ‘You are blaspheming,’ ^jbecause I said, ‘I am ^kthe Son of God’?

³⁷If I do not do the works of My Father, do not believe Me; ³⁸but if I do, though you do not believe Me, ^mbelieve the works, that you may know and ⁿbelieve ^othat the Father ^pis in Me, and I in Him.”

³⁹Therefore they sought again to seize Him, but He escaped out of their hand.

⁴⁰And He went away again beyond the Jordan to the place ^qwhere John was baptizing at first, and there He stayed.

⁴¹Then many came to Him and said, “John performed no sign, ^rbut all the things that John spoke about this Man were true.” ⁴²And many believed in Him there.

11 Now a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, the town of ^aMary and her sister Martha. ²^bIt was that Mary who anointed the Lord with fragrant oil and wiped His feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick. ³Therefore the sisters sent to Him, saying, “Lord, behold, he whom You love is sick.”

“This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified through it.”

⁵Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus. ⁶So, when He heard that he was sick, ⁷He stayed two more days in the place where He was. ⁸Then after this He said to the disciples, “Let us go to Judea again.”

⁹The disciples said to Him, “Rabbi, lately the Jews sought to ^dstone You, and are You going there again?”

⁹Jesus answered, “Are there not twelve hours in the day? ^eIf anyone walks in the day, he does not stumble, because he sees the ^flight of this world. ¹⁰But ^gif one walks in the night, he stumbles, because the light is not in him.” ¹¹These things He said, and after that He said to them, “Our friend Lazarus ^hsleeps, but I go that I may wake him up.”

¹²Then His disciples said, “Lord, if he sleeps he will get well.” ¹³However, Jesus spoke of his death, but they thought that He was speaking about taking rest in sleep.

¹⁴Then Jesus said to them plainly, “Lazarus is dead. ¹⁵And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, that you may believe. Nevertheless let us go to him.”

¹⁶Then ⁱThomas, who is called the Twin, said to his fellow disciples, “Let us also go, that we may die with Him.”

¹⁷So when Jesus came, He found that he had already been in the tomb four days. ¹⁸Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about ^jtwo miles away. ¹⁹And many of the Jews had joined the women around Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

opposition to Jesus—He was claiming a unique unity with the Father, a unity that clearly indicated His own deity. The Jewish leaders considered this to be blasphemy.

10:34 In the OT, judges were called gods. They exercised godlike judicial sovereignty. Psalm 82:6, the verse quoted here, refers to judges who violate the Law. Jesus’ argument was that if the divine name had been applied by God to mere men, there could be neither blasphemy nor folly in its application to the incarnate Son of God Himself.

10:35 Broken actually means “to loose, untie.” This is a strong statement of the inerrancy of the Holy Scriptures. Notice how Jesus made the veracity of His argument rest on the absolute trustworthiness of Scripture.

10:38 believe the works: Jesus asked the Jewish leaders to at least consider His miracles because these indicated and demonstrated His deity. Note that the heart of the issue is belief. John never deviates from this single condition for being born again. The word translated believe is used 99 times in this book.

10:40 beyond the Jordan: This sojourn into Perea is also noted in Matt. 19:1; Mark 10:1.

11:1 Bethany, a small village on the southeast slope of the Mount of Olives, was located about two miles from Jerusalem (v. 18).

11:2 Mary who anointed: The anointing had not yet taken place (12:1–3). When John wrote, the anointing was well known, so he used the event to distinguish this Mary from other women with the same name.

11:4 Not unto death means not having death as its final result. may be glorified: By raising Lazarus from the dead, Jesus would demonstrate His deity in an undeniable way.

11:6–8 stayed two more days: God’s purpose was to glorify His Son (v. 4) and to cause the disciples to grow (v. 15). Had Jesus immediately rushed to Lazarus’s bedside and healed him, Lazarus would not have died and Jesus would not have been able to manifest His glory by raising Lazarus. God’s timing to accomplish His purpose is perfect. The disciples were skeptical. In their minds, for Jesus to go back to Judea would mean death.

11:15 Jesus was not glad that Lazarus was dead. He was glad for the opportunity the disciples would soon have to see an amazing miracle. The disciples had already believed (2:11), but each new trial offered an opportunity for their faith to grow.

11:16 the Twin: In Thomas, the twins of belief and unbelief combined with each other for mastery. He seems to have combined devotion to Jesus with a tendency to see the dark side of things. Jesus said, “Let us go,” that the disciples might believe (v. 15). Thomas said, Let us also go, that we may die. While the Lord saw their development in faith, Thomas saw their deaths. Yet in his loyalty, he followed anyway.

Jesus’ Seven “I Am” Statements

Jesus’ “I am” statements would have particular significance to the first-century Jewish listener. God had revealed Himself to Moses with a resounding “I AM” (Ex. 3:14). Now Jesus was using the same words to describe Himself (4:26; 6:20; 13:19).

Title	Reference	Context	Significance
"I am the bread of life."	6:35, 41, 48, 51	After Jesus had fed the five thousand and the people wanted more free food.	As bread sustains physical life, so Christ offers and sustains spiritual life. The nourishment and satisfaction He offers are permanent.
"I am the light of the world."	8:12	During the Feast of Tabernacles. At this feast a huge candelabra was lit in the women's court of the temple. It reminded the Israelites of the pillar of fire which guided their ancestors during the wilderness wanderings.	To a world stumbling about in the darkness of sin, Christ offers Himself as a constant guide. Light is also symbolic of holiness.
"I am the door of the sheep."	10:7, 9	During a discourse with Israel's religious leaders in which Jesus in essence declared them to be unfit shepherds of the nation.	Shepherds guided their flocks into stone enclosures each night to protect them. These structures had no doors. The shepherd would sit or lie in the opening to prevent predators from attacking. Thus Jesus was describing His care and constant devotion to those who are His.
"I am the good shepherd."	10:11, 14	Same as above.	Unlike hirelings who might run away and leave the flock unprotected, Jesus is committed to caring for and keeping watch over His people.
"I am the resurrection and the life."	11:25	After Lazarus had died.	Jesus is the Lord of all life and possesses the power to raise the dead. Death is not the final word, for all who are in Christ will live forever.
"I am the way, the truth, and the life."	14:6	When the disciples were confused about Jesus' statements about heaven.	Jesus is the one and only way to the Father. He is the source of all truth and the source for all knowledge about God. He offers to spiritually dead people the very life of God.
"I am the true vine."	15:1, 5	In the Upper Room discourse on the night of His arrest.	The Old Testament contains many references to Israel as God's vine (Ps. 80:8; Is. 5:1–7; Ezek. 15; Hos. 10:1). But because of the nation's unfruitfulness, Jesus came to fulfill God's plan. By attaching ourselves to Christ, we enable His life to flow in and through us. Then we cannot help but bear fruit that will honor the Father. In this metaphor, He is the Gardener.

²⁰Now Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met Him, but Mary was sitting in the house. ²¹Now Martha said to Jesus, “Lord, if You had been here, my brother would not have died. ²²But even now I know that ^jwhatever You ask of God, God will give You.” ²³Jesus said to her, “Your brother will rise again.” ²⁴Martha said to Him, ^k“I know that he will rise again in the resurrection at the last day.” ²⁵Jesus said to her, “I am ^lthe resurrection and the life. ^mHe who believes in Me, though he may ⁿdie, he shall live. ²⁶And whoever lives and believes in Me shall never die. Do you believe this?” ²⁷She said to Him, “Yes, Lord, ^oI be-

11:25–27 Christ is the resurrection for those who believe and are physically dead. He is the life for those who believe and have not yet died. When Jesus asked Martha if she believed, she responded with words similar to the ones John used to describe the purpose of his book (20:31). In order to have eternal life, a person must place his or her faith in Jesus, who is the Christ, the Son of God, who came into the world to bring eternal life to those who believe.

11:32 if You had been here: Mary said the same thing to the Lord as Martha had (v. 21). No doubt they had expressed this thought to one another often in the previous few days.

³³ Therefore, when Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her weeping, He groaned in the spirit and was troubled. ³⁴ And He said, “Where have you laid him?”

They said to Him, “Lord, come and see.”

³⁵ Jesus wept. ³⁶ Then the Jews said, “See how He loved him!”

³⁷ And some of them said, “Could not this Man, ¹who opened the eyes of the blind, also have kept this man from dying?”

³⁸ Then Jesus, again groaning in Himself, came to the tomb. It was a cave, and a ²stone lay against it. ³⁹ Jesus said, “Take away the stone.”

Martha, the sister of him who was dead, said to Him, “Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days.”

⁴⁰ Jesus said to her, “Did I not say to you that if you would believe you would ³see the glory of God?” ⁴¹ Then they took away the stone ⁴from the place where the dead man was lying. And Jesus lifted up His eyes and said, “Father, I thank You that You have heard Me. ⁴² And I know that You always hear Me, but ⁵because of the people who are standing by I said this, that they may believe that You sent Me.” ⁴³ Now when He had said these things, He cried with a loud voice, “Lazarus, come forth!” ⁴⁴ And he who had died came out bound hand and foot with ⁶graveclothes, and ⁷his face was wrapped with a cloth. Jesus said to them, “Loose him, and let him go.”

^a told them the things Jesus did. ⁴⁷ ^b Then the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered a council and said, ^c “What shall we do? For this Man works many signs. ⁴⁸ If we let Him alone like this, everyone will believe in Him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation.”

⁴⁹ And one of them, ^d Caiaphas, being high priest that year, said to them, “You know nothing at all, ⁵⁰ ^e nor do you consider that it is expedient for ⁵ us that one man should die for the people, and not that the whole nation should perish.”

⁵¹ Now this he did not say on his own authority; but being high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation, ⁵² and ^f not for that nation only, but ^g also that He would gather together in one the children of God who were scattered abroad.

⁵³ Then, from that day on, they plotted to ^h put Him to death. ⁵⁴ ⁱ Therefore Jesus no longer walked openly among the Jews, but went from there into the country near the wilderness, to a city called ^j Ephraim, and there remained with His disciples.

⁵⁵ ^k And the Passover of the Jews was near, and many went from the country up to Jerusalem before the Passover, to ^l purify themselves. ⁵⁶ ^m Then they sought Jesus, and spoke among themselves as they stood in the temple, “What do you think—that He will not come to the feast?” ⁵⁷ Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a command, that if anyone knew where He was, he should report it, that they might ⁿ seize Him.

Mary Anoints Christ

Matt. 26:6-12; Mark 14:3-9

12 Then, six days before the Passover, Jesus came to Bethany, ^a where Lazarus was ¹ who had been dead, whom 11:33 Groaned means to be deeply moved. Troubled means to be stirred up, disturbed. Jesus was moved by the mourning of Mary and indignant at the hypocritical lamentations of His enemies.

11:35 Wept simply means “shed tears.” Jesus did not weep aloud in hopeless grief like the others (v. 33). He knew what He was about to do, but His compassion for their pain moved Him to tears.

11:37 Some people misinterpreted Jesus’ tears as powerlessness. They complained that He had healed others, but now was incapable. 11:38 a cave: Having a private burial place indicates that the family was wealthy.

11:43 cried: This loud cry was either the result of strong emotion or in order that the multitude might hear. Lazarus: Augustine once said that if Jesus had not designated Lazarus by name, all the graves would have been emptied at His command (5:28). Raising Lazarus from the dead is the seventh sign of Jesus’ messiahship, the greatest miracle of all, giving life back to the dead.

11:48 Place refers either to Jerusalem or to the temple. The real concern of the Jewish leaders is seen here. They were not as upset at Jesus’ supposed blasphemy as they were about losing their positions of authority.

11:49–52 In the opinion of Caiaphas, Jesus should die rather than plunge the nation into destruction. John adds that by virtue of his office, Caiaphas pronounced a message of God unconsciously: one man should die for the people. Caiaphas was a prophet in spite of himself. John also saw in Caiaphas’s words a prophecy that Jesus should die not only for Israel but for the Gentiles as well.

11:53 Humanly speaking, the resurrection of Lazarus was a major factor that led to the plot by the Jewish religious leaders to kill Christ. At this point the council decided informally, if not formally, to put Jesus to death. John marks the growth of the hostility step by step (5:16; 7:1, 32, 45; 8:59; 9:22; 10:39). It is ironic that these men believed they could put to death permanently One who could raise the dead.

11:54 no longer walked openly: Jesus withdrew from public life for a while. He met privately with His disciples. Wilderness usually refers to the desert of Judea which extended to Jericho.

12:1 six days before the Passover: If Jesus’ crucifixion took place on a Friday, this dinner occurred during the evening of the previous Saturday. Verse 12 seems to support this conclusion, because the Jerusalem entry took place on Sunday.

He had raised from the dead. ^{2b}There they made Him a supper; and Martha served, but Lazarus was one of those who sat at the table with Him. ³Then ^cMary took a pound of very costly oil of ^dspikenard, anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped His feet with her hair. And the house was filled with the fragrance of the oil.

⁴But one of His disciples, ^eJudas Iscariot, Simon's son, who would betray Him, said, ⁵"Why was this fragrant oil not sold for ²three hundred denarii and given to the poor?" ⁶This he said, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and ^fhad the money box; and he used to take what was put in it.

⁷But Jesus said, "Let her alone; ³she has kept this for the day of My burial. ⁸For ^gthe poor you have with you always, but Me you do not have always."

⁹Now a great many of the Jews knew that He was there; and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might also see Lazarus, ^hwhom He had raised from the dead. ¹⁰ⁱBut the chief priests plotted to put Lazarus to death also, ^{11j}because on account of him many of the Jews went away and believed in Jesus.

The Triumphal Entry

Matt. 21:1-9; Mark 11:1-10; Luke 19:29-38

^{12k}The next day a great multitude that had come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, ¹³took branches of palm trees and went out to meet Him, and cried out:

 The King of Israel!"

^{14m}Then Jesus, when He had found a young donkey, sat on it; as it is written:

¹⁵"Fearⁿ not, daughter of Zion; Behold, your King is coming, Sitting on a donkey's colt."

^{16o}His disciples did not understand these things at first; ^pbut when Jesus was glorified, ^qthen they remembered that these things were written about Him and that they had done these things to Him.

¹⁷Therefore the people, who were with Him when He called Lazarus out of his tomb and raised him from the dead, bore witness. ^{18r}For this reason the people also met Him, because they heard that He had done this sign. ¹⁹The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, ^s"You see that you are accomplishing nothing. Look, the world has gone after Him!"

²⁰Now there ^twere certain Greeks among those ^uwho came up to worship at the feast. ²¹Then they came to Philip, ^vwho was from Bethsaida of Galilee, and asked him, saying, "Sir, we wish to see Jesus."

²²Philip came and told Andrew, and in turn Andrew and Philip told Jesus.

The Messiah Teaches

²³But Jesus answered them, saying, ^w"The hour has come that the Son of Man should be glorified. ²⁴Most assuredly, I say to you, ^xunless a grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, it remains 12:2 They probably refers to the people of the village. The inhabitants of Bethany wished to express their thanks to Jesus, who by a glorious miracle had honored their obscure village. Lazarus was the guest of honor.

12:3 very costly oil: Judas Iscariot said that this oil cost three hundred denarii (v. 5). One denarius was a laborer's wage for one day (see Matt. 20:2). Thus the oil cost approximately a year's wages. anointed the feet: Mary also anointed Jesus' head (see Matt. 26:7; Mark 14:3). The custom of that time was to anoint the heads of guests. Anointing Jesus' head was an act of honor; anointing His feet was a display of devotion.

12:7 My burial: Anointing was the first stage of embalming (19:39). Whether Mary knew it or not, she was anticipating Jesus' death, which would come within the week.

12:8 the poor you have with you always: We will never lack an opportunity to care for the poor (see Deut. 15:11).

12:10, 11 plotted to put Lazarus to death also: The chief priests were mostly Sadducees. They had an additional reason to kill Lazarus. He was a living refutation of their doctrine that there was no resurrection (see 11:57; Acts 23:8). Yet this was not a meeting of the Jewish council, nor was it a formal sentence of death. on account of him: The ultimate motivation for wanting to kill Lazarus was that because of him many were believing in Jesus. Went away implies that these individuals were withdrawing from the Jewish leaders.

12:13-15 took branches of palm trees: This was the Sunday before Christ arose, today called Palm Sunday. cried out ... King of Israel: Until this point, Jesus had discouraged expressions of support from the people (6:15; 7:1-8). Here He allowed public enthusiasm. He entered Jerusalem on the back of a young donkey. This act fulfilled prophecy (see Zech. 9:9) and as such was a symbolic proclamation that Jesus is the Messiah.

12:16 did not understand: The disciples did not catch the prophetic significance of Jesus' act. when Jesus was glorified: After Christ's death, resurrection, and ascension, the disciples finally understood that the OT prophecies concerning the Messiah had been fulfilled in Jesus.

12:17-19 These verses explain the series of events that led to the condemnation and crucifixion of Jesus.

12:20 The fact that these Greeks came to Jerusalem to worship at the feast indicates that they were Jewish proselytes. By recording this incident, perhaps John was hinting that the salvation rejected by many of the Jews was already passing to the Gentiles.

12:23 The hour has come: Prior to this, Jesus had stated that His hour had not yet come (2:4; 7:6, 30; 8:20). Now the time had come for Christ to die and be raised from the dead (see 13:1; 16:32; 17:1).

12:24 unless a grain ... dies: When a seed dies, it produces fruit. Life comes by death. This principle is true not only in nature, but it is also true spiritually. Jesus was speaking first and foremost of Himself. He is the grain of wheat. His death would produce much fruit and would result in many living for God.

alone; but if it dies, it produces much ⁴grain. ²⁵*y* He who loves his life will lose it, and he who hates his life in this world will keep it for eternal life. ²⁶If anyone serves Me, let him ^zfollow Me; and ^awhere I am, there My servant will be also. If anyone serves Me, him My Father will honor.

²⁷*b*“Now My soul is troubled, and what shall I say? ‘Father, save Me from this hour’? ^cBut for this purpose I came to this hour. ²⁸Father, glorify Your name.”

^dThen a voice came from heaven, saying, “I have both glorified it and will glorify it again.”

²⁹Therefore the people who stood by and heard it said that it had thundered. Others said, “An angel has spoken to Him.”

³⁰Jesus answered and said, ^e“This voice did not come because of Me, but for your sake. ³¹Now is the judgment of this world; now ^fthe ruler of this world will be cast out. ³²And I, ^gif I am ⁵lifted up from the earth, will draw ^hall peoples to Myself.” ³³ⁱ This He said, signifying by what death He would die.

³⁴The people answered Him, ^j“We have heard from the law that the Christ remains forever; and how can You say, ‘The Son of Man must be lifted up’? Who is this Son of Man?”

³⁵Then Jesus said to them, “A little while longer ^kthe light is with you. ^lWalk

³⁷But although He had done so many ^psigns before them, they did not believe in Him, ³⁸that the word of Isaiah the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spoke:

^q“*Lord, who has believed our report?
And to whom has the arm of the LORD been revealed?*”

³⁹Therefore they could not believe, because Isaiah said again:

⁴⁰“*He^r has blinded their eyes and hardened their hearts,
^sLest they should see with their eyes,
Lest they should understand with their hearts and turn,
So that I should heal them.*”

⁴¹^t These things Isaiah said ⁶when he saw His glory and spoke of Him.

⁴²Nevertheless even among the rulers many believed in Him, but ^ubecause of the Pharisees they did not confess Him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue; ⁴³^v for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

12:25, 26 The phrase loves his life describes those who serve only themselves. In a very short time, Jesus was going to give the disciples an opportunity to identify this problem in their lives (13:1–7). Hates his life involves serving Christ. Each believer must establish his or her priorities. We cannot give ourselves fully to this life and yet be committed to the life to come. Follow Me in this context means to follow Jesus’ example of self-sacrifice (13:15). Jesus set the example of “hating” His life in this world so that He could accomplish eternal purposes (see Phil. 2:5–8).

12:27 My soul is troubled: Jesus’ agony over His impending death was not confined to Gethsemane, where He prayed, “O My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from Me” (see Matt. 26:39). He felt the agony and expressed it almost a week before Gethsemane.

(Gk. sêmeion) (2:11; 3:2; 4:54; 10:41; 11:47; 12:37; 20:30) Strong’s #4592

The Greek word John uses for signs means “a distinguishing mark” or “an indication” of the authenticity of a person or an object. Paul uses the word to refer to his signature, which authenticated his letter to the Thessalonians (see 2 Thess. 3:17). In the Gospel of John, sêmeion means “a portent,” a miracle that points to the divine Creator. In his Gospel, John speaks of Jesus’ miracles as signs pointing people to the truth that Jesus is the divine Son of God who came down from heaven. In contrast, the authors of the synoptic Gospels typically speak of Jesus’ miracles as demonstrations of His divine power (see Matt. 11:20–23; Mark 3:15).

12:34 Christ remains forever: The people understood that lifted up meant removal from the earth by death. They argued that Scripture teaches that the Messiah would abide forever (see Ps. 110:4; Is. 9:7; Ezek. 37:25). To them, the Messiah would not have to die. They did not understand that He would be raised.

12:35, 36 Instead of answering the people’s questions (v. 34), Jesus gave them a warning. Walk while you have the light: Jesus is the light (1:4; 8:12; 9:5). He wanted the people to believe and abide in Him (v. 46).

12:37 they did not believe: Their unbelief is startling. However Jesus’ predicted suffering and death did not fit the people’s idea of the Messiah.

12:38 the word of Isaiah . . . might be fulfilled: John quotes Is. 53:1 to prove that their unbelief is predictable.

12:39, 40 The consequence of repeated rejection is loss of the capacity to believe. Isaiah taught that some could not believe because God hardened their hearts (see Is. 6:10) after they repeatedly rejected the truth.

12:41 John uses the words His glory to speak of the manifestation of God Himself. John quotes Is. 6:9 (see v. 40) as a prophecy of the people’s unbelief and their rejection of Christ. In that verse, Isaiah was talking about God Himself. Therefore in this passage John is teaching that Jesus is God.

12:42, 43 Rulers refers to members of the council. Because the rulers did not confess Him, some claim that their faith was not genuine. The text, however, says that they believed in Him, a construction in Greek that typically indicates saving faith (8:30). Moreover, the word nevertheless marks a stark contrast between these believers and the unbelief spoken of in vv. 37–41. These men were genuine believers. Their problem was that they feared the opinions of their fellow leaders. Such believers will be ashamed at Christ’s return (see 1 John 2:28).

⁴⁴Then Jesus cried out and said, ^w“He who believes in Me, ^xbelieves not in Me ^ybut in Him who sent Me. ⁴⁵And ^zhe who sees Me sees Him who sent Me. ⁴⁶^aI have come as a light into the world, that whoever believes in Me should not abide in darkness. ⁴⁷And if anyone hears My words and does not ⁷believe, ^bI do not judge him; for ^cI did not come to judge the world but to save the world. ⁴⁸^dHe who rejects Me, and does not receive My words, has that which judges him—^ethe word that I have spoken will judge him in the last day. ⁴⁹For ^fI have not spoken on My own authority; but the Father who sent Me gave Me a command, ^gwhat I should say and what I should speak. ⁵⁰And I know that His command is everlasting life. Therefore, whatever I speak, just as the Father has told Me, so I ^hspeak.”

And Peter said to Him, ⁱ“Lord, are You washing my feet?”
⁷Jesus answered and said to him, “What I am doing you ^jdo not understand now, ^kbut you will know after this.”

⁸Peter said to Him, “You shall never wash my feet!”

Jesus answered him, ^l“If I do not wash you, you have no part with Me.”

¹⁰Jesus said to him, “He who is bathed needs only to wash his feet, but is completely clean; and ^myou are clean, but not all of you.” ¹¹For ⁿHe knew who would betray Him; therefore He said, “You are not all clean.”

¹³ ^o Matt. 23:8, 10; Luke 6:46; [1 Cor. 8:6; 12:3]; Eph. 6:9; [Phil. 2:11]

12:44, 45 not in Me but in Him: Jesus insisted that anyone who believed in Him was at the same time exercising belief in God the Father. Jesus explained that He was the personal manifestation of God (see 1:18; Col. 1:15; Heb. 1:3).

12:47 I do not judge may be rephrased as “I do not execute judgment.” Christ will judge, but at His first coming He did not come to judge but to save (3:17).

13:1 To the end means either “to the last” or “utterly and completely.” What follows in vv. 1–11 demonstrates Jesus' complete love. Jesus loved His disciples, even though He knew that one would betray Him, another would deny Him, and all would desert Him for a time.

13:2 Being ended may also be translated “having begun.” It was customary for slaves to wash guests' feet as the guests arrived, before they sat down to eat (vv. 4, 5). In any case, it appears that the supper had not ended, but was in progress. The statement of Jesus' complete love in v. 1 is contrasted with the fact that Judas would soon betray Him.

13:4 His garments: Jesus laid aside His outer garment, which would have impeded His movements. towel: By putting on an apron, Christ looked like the slave to whom the task of washing the feet of guests was assigned. Though the disciples realized what Jesus was doing, none of them offered himself for the task. Servanthood was not on their minds. Jesus loved them knowing all about them, including the worst one of them, Judas.

13:8 no part with Me: The washing was a symbol of spiritual cleansing (vv. 10, 11). If Peter did not participate in the cleansing, he would not enjoy fellowship with Christ (see 1 John 1:9).

13:9, 10 but also my hands and my head: Given Jesus' dramatic statement, Peter had no choice but to submit. Only this time he went too far in the other direction. At first he wanted to tell the Lord what to do (v. 8). Now he wanted to dictate the manner in which Jesus did it. But Jesus told him he did not need a bath; he only needed Jesus to wash his feet that were dusty from the road. This is symbolic.

A believer has already been “cleansed.” He or she only needs the cleansing of daily sins that comes through confession (see 1 John 1:9). Thus Jesus' washing of the disciples' feet not only is a model of service, but it represents the ultimate in service—forgiveness of sins.

13:11 You are not all clean: This is the second indication of the presence of a traitor among the apostles (6:70). Apparently this comment did not attract much attention.

13:13 Teacher and Lord were the ordinary titles of respect given to a rabbi.

(Gk. nīptō) (13:5; 6, 8, 10; 1 Tim. 5:10) Strong's #3538

(Gk. louō) (13:10; Acts 9:37; Rev. 1:5) Strong's #3068

In speaking to Peter, Jesus used two different Greek words to indicate two different kinds of washing. The Greek word nīptō (13:5, 6, 8, 10) is used to indicate the washing of the extremities, the hands and the feet. The Greek word louō specifically means “bathing.” According to the social customs of those times, once a person had bathed his entire body, he needed only to wash his feet before partaking of a meal. In His response to Peter, Jesus used both words in order to advance a precious truth: just as those who have bathed need only to wash their feet, so believers who have been bathed by the Lord through His word and the Spirit (see 15:3; Eph. 5:26; Titus 3:5) need only to wash themselves daily from the filth and defilement they accumulate by their contact with the world.

¹⁸ "I do not speak concerning all of you. I know whom I have chosen; but that the ^uScripture may be fulfilled, ^v 'He who eats ³ bread with Me has lifted up his heel against Me.' ¹⁹ Now I tell you before it comes, that when it does come to pass, you may believe that I am He. ²⁰ Most assuredly, I say to you, he who receives whomever I send receives Me; and he who receives Me receives Him who sent Me."

²¹ When Jesus had said these things, ^z He was troubled in spirit, and testified and said, "Most assuredly, I say to you, ^a one of you will betray Me." ²² Then the disciples looked at one another, perplexed about whom He spoke.

²³ Now ^b there was ⁴ leaning on Jesus' bosom one of His disciples, whom Jesus loved. ²⁴ Simon Peter therefore motioned to him to ask who it was of whom He spoke.

²⁵ Then, leaning ⁵ back on Jesus' breast, he said to Him, "Lord, who is it?"

²⁶ Jesus answered, "It is he to whom I shall give a piece of bread when I have dipped it." And having dipped the bread, He gave it to ^c Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. ²⁷ Now after the piece of bread, Satan entered him. Then Jesus said to him, "What you do, do quickly." ²⁸ But no one at the table knew for what reason He said this to him. ²⁹ For some thought, because ^e Judas had the money box, that Jesus had said to him, "Buy those things we need for the feast," or that he should give something to the poor.

³⁰ Having received the piece of bread, he then went out immediately. And it was night.

Christ Announces His Departure

³¹ So, when he had gone out, Jesus said, ^f "Now the Son of Man is glorified, and ^g God is glorified in Him. ³² If God is glorified in Him, God will also glorify Him in Himself, and ^h glorify Him immediately. ³³ Little children, I shall be with you a ⁱ little while longer. You will seek Me; ^j and as I said to the Jews, 'Where I am going, you cannot come,' so now I say to you. ³⁴ A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another; as I have loved you, that you also love one another. ³⁵ By this all will know that you are My disciples, if you have love for one another."

Christ Foretells Peter's Denial

Matt. 26:34, 35; Mark 14:30, 31; Luke 22:33, 34

³⁶ Simon Peter said to Him, "Lord, where are You going?"

Jesus answered him, "Where I ^m am going you cannot follow Me now, but ⁿ you shall follow Me afterward."

³⁷ Peter said to Him, "Lord, why can I not follow You now? I will ^o lay down my life for Your sake."

Mark 14:29-31; Luke 22:33, 34

13:14, 15 you also ought to wash one another's feet: The Lord was using His practical action to give an example of love to His disciples (v. 1).

13:18 Jesus quoted Ps. 41:9 to explain the action of Judas. Lifting up his heel was a gesture of insult, or a preparation to kick. The blow had not yet been given. This was the attitude of Judas at that moment. He was eating with the disciples, but he was ready to strike.

13:21 troubled: Faced with bereavement (11:33), His own death (12:27), and betrayal, Jesus was deeply stirred.

13:23 leaning on Jesus' bosom: At this time people did not generally sit at a table to eat. They reclined on the left side of a low platform, resting on the left elbow and eating with the right hand, their feet extended outward. Reclining in such a way, a man's head was near the bosom of the person on his left. The disciple whom Jesus loved is never named in Scripture, but the tradition of the early church designates him as John, the author of this Gospel.

13:24 Peter ... motioned to him to ask: Evidently Peter was not sitting next to Jesus. He was nearer to John, so he beckoned John to ask Jesus who was going to betray Him.

13:27 First, the devil put ideas in the head of Judas (v. 2); here Satan entered Judas. Note that Judas's actions were the result of the deepest thoughts of his heart.

13:30 it was night: Not only did Judas go out into the darkness of the night, he had also entered into spiritual darkness, separated from Jesus, the Light of the World (8:12; 9:5).

13:31, 32 the Son of Man is glorified: Jesus would be revealed as the divine Son of God and Savior of the world by His death and resurrection, and the gift of the Holy Spirit. God would be glorified in Him in that God's love, truth, and righteousness would be revealed in what Jesus was doing.

13:33 The time had come for Jesus to announce His departure to His disciples. Little children is an expression of tender affection used nowhere else in the Gospels. John did not forget the expression; he used it repeatedly in 1 John.

13:34 The command to love was new because Jesus gave it a new standard. Moses said, "Love your neighbor as yourself" (see Lev. 19:18). Jesus said the new standard was as I have loved you. Jesus gave His disciples the example of love that they were to follow (vv. 1-17).

13:35 By this: Unbelievers recognize Jesus' disciples not by their doctrinal distinctives, nor by dramatic miracles, nor even by their love for the lost. They recognize His disciples by their deeds of love for one another.

13:36 Lord, where are You going: This question, which Jesus had already addressed twice before, indicates that Peter completely missed the point of what Jesus said in vv. 34, 35.

13:37 I will lay down my life: Peter was ready to die for Jesus.

³⁸Jesus answered him, “Will you lay down your life for My sake? Most assuredly, I say to you, the rooster shall not ^pcrow till you have denied Me three times.

Unfortunately, he was not ready, at this point, to live for Him. He was ready to attack single-handed a cohort of soldiers with his sword (see 18:10), but he was not willing to wash the feet of his brothers as Jesus had just done (see 13:4). Actually, Peter had things backwards. Christ was about to lay down His life for Peter, instead of Peter laying down his life for Christ. In spite of all this, Christ did not give up on Peter (see Luke 22:31, 32). Later Peter would die for Christ (21:18, 19). Church tradition states that Peter was crucified upside down, at his request, for he felt himself unworthy to be crucified like his Lord.

13:38 till you have denied Me three times: At these words of Jesus, Peter was stunned and said nothing. He is not mentioned again until 18:10.

14:1 After announcing Judas’s betrayal (13:21), His own imminent departure (13:33), and Peter’s denial (13:38), Jesus told His disciples not to be troubled, but to trust Him.

14:2 Mansions refers to dwelling places. Everybody has a longing for a permanent, secure place. Such places have already been set aside for all of God’s children.

14:3 I will come again and receive you: Peter may have failed Jesus (13:38), but Christ will not fail to return for Peter and for everyone else who has believed in Him (see 1 Thess. 4:16, 17).

14:6 Through His death and resurrection, Jesus is the way to the Father. He is also the truth and the life. As truth, He is the revelation of God. As life, He is the communication of God to us.

14:7, 8 known My Father also: Jesus came to reveal the Father (1:18). To know Jesus is to know the Father (see 1 John 2:23). show us the Father: Jesus had just said that to see Him is to see the Father. Yet Philip asked to see the Father. Like Thomas, Philip seems to have been slow to comprehend (v. 5).

14:9 The Lord rebuked Philip because he should have known the answer to the question he asked. He who has seen Me has seen the Father: The Lord patiently explained again that He was revealing God the Father to them (v. 7). It is impossible to escape the claim Jesus was making. Clearly, He was claiming to be God.

14:12 Jesus had accomplished the greatest works possible, including raising the dead. How could He say that believers would do greater works? The answer is seen in the extent of what the apostles did. Jesus’ work on earth was confined to Palestine; the apostles would preach everywhere and see the conversion of thousands. Peter’s message at Pentecost brought more followers to Jesus than did Jesus’ entire earthly ministry. The disciples were able to do this work because Christ would go to the Father and send the Holy Spirit to empower them.

14:16 All three members of the Trinity are mentioned here. Jesus prayed to the Father who would give the Holy Spirit.

14:17 The Holy Spirit is called the Spirit of truth (see 15:26; 16:13; 1 John 4:6) because He is truth and guides us into all truth (see 1 Cor.

The Greek word for believe literally means “to place one’s trust in another”; it occurs over 90 times in the Gospel of John alone. To believe in Jesus is to believe in His person and to trust in Him completely for salvation (3:15, 16). Many of Jesus’ contemporaries believed in Jesus’ miraculous powers, but they would not believe in Jesus Himself (6:23–26). Others wanted to believe in a political Messiah, but would not believe in the One who suffered for their sins (Mark 15:32). But we must be careful to believe and trust in the Jesus presented in the Scriptures, in the Son of God who sacrificed His life for our sins (Gal. 1:3, 4; Phil. 2:5–8).

The Relationship of Believers to Christ
15 “I am the true vine, and My Father is the vinedresser. ^{2a}Every branch in Me that does not bear fruit

CHAPTER 15 ^{2 a} Matt. 15:13

2:13; 2 Pet. 1:21). Neither sees Him nor knows Him does not mean merely that the world is not able to visually identify the Holy Spirit because He is spirit. Something more is meant: The Spirit of God is active in the world, but His acts go unnoticed by the world (see 1 Cor. 2:14).

14:18 orphans: Earlier, Jesus called the disciples “little children” (13:33). Here He told them He would not leave them fatherless; He would come to them. There are three suggested interpretations as to when that statement would be fulfilled: (1) after the Resurrection, (2) at Pentecost, in the person of the Holy Spirit, and (3) at the Second Coming.

14:19 you will see Me: Jesus would come to the disciples (v. 18), but not with the same kind of presence they experienced at that moment. The world saw Jesus only in the flesh; the disciples would see Him in a spiritual sense.

14:20, 21 These two verses are the conclusion of Jesus’ answer to Philip’s request, “show us the Father” (v. 8). As the believer lovingly obeys Christ’s commandments, he or she will experience a more intimate knowledge of Him.

14:22 The disciples had expected the Messiah to come publicly and deliver Israel from Rome and the corrupt priesthood of the temple. Jesus had said that the disciples would see Him, but the world would not (v. 19). Judas (not Iscariot) wanted to know how that could be.

14:23 loves Me . . . keep My word: In response to Judas’s question (v. 22), Jesus explained that His manifestation to the disciples would be in response to their love and obedience. make Our home with him: If a believer loves and obeys the Lord, he or she will experience fellowship with God.

14:24 not love . . . not keep: If a person does not love Jesus, he or she will not obey Him. Disobedience is a serious matter, for Jesus’ words are the words of God.

14:25, 26 Jesus told His disciples these things while He was with them, but when the Holy Spirit came, He would remind the disciples of all things that Jesus had said, and would teach . . . all things (see 1 Cor. 2:13). This promise was primarily fulfilled through the lives of the apostles in the writing of the NT. Matthew and John wrote down Jesus’ words. Peter wrote about the gospel in his two letters and may have dictated some of his memories of Jesus to Mark.

14:27 Peace: The customary good-bye among the Jews was to say shalom, meaning “peace.” The Lord was about to depart, so He added to this farewell by saying, My peace. The word My is emphatic. This is no conventional wish; this is Jesus’ personal, special grant of peace. The peace that Christ gives banishes fear and dread from the heart, for Jesus is in control of all circumstances.

14:28 My Father is greater than I: This does not mean that Jesus is less than deity. Greater indicates a difference in rank. As the humble, submissive Son, Jesus submitted Himself to the authority of His Father (1 Cor. 11:3; 15:28).

14:30 He has nothing in Me indicates Jesus’ sinlessness. Jesus’ yielding to what was about to happen did not mean that Satan had any power over Him. Jesus would soon voluntarily yield to the death of the Cross, in loving obedience to the Father (v. 31).

15:1 true vine: In this phrase the word true is emphatic. My Father: With such a vinedresser, the branches can experience complete confidence and security.

15:2 Every branch is said to be in Christ. Paul uses the phrase “in vine

(Gk. ampelos) (15:1, 4, 5; Matt. 26:29; James 3:12) Strong’s #288

This word can describe a single grapevine or an entire vineyard. Either way, the image evokes the picture of corporate dependence. Israel was the vine of God’s planting, but it failed to bear the proper fruit (Is. 5:1–7; Jer. 2:19–21). Jesus, with His believers incorporated in Him, is the true vine—the true fulfillment and actualization of the vine. As the entire race of Israel sprang from the patriarch Israel, the new generation of God’s people is here viewed as originating from Christ, organically united to Him, as branches emanating from the vine. This is a fulfillment of Ps. 80:17, in which “the son of man” is said to be the vine planted by God.

He ¹takes away; and every branch that bears fruit He prunes, that it may bear ^bmore fruit. ^{3c}You are already clean because of the word which I have spoken to you. ^{4d}Abide in Me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, unless it abides in the vine, neither can you, unless you abide in Me.

⁵“I am the vine, you are the branches. He who abides in Me, and I in him, bears much ^efruit; for without Me you can do ^fnothing. ⁶If anyone does not abide in Me, ^ghe is cast out as a branch and is withered; and they gather them and throw them into the fire, and they are burned. ⁷If you abide in Me, and My words ^habide in you, ⁱyou² will ask what you desire, and it shall be done for you. ^{8j}By this My Father is glorified, that you bear much fruit; ^kso you will be My disciples.

The Relationship of Believers to Each Other

^{12o} This is My ^p commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. ^{13q} Greater love has no one than this, than to lay down one’s life for his friends. ^{14r} You are My friends if you do whatever I command you. ¹⁵ No longer do I call you servants, for a servant does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you friends, ^s for all things that I heard from My Father I have made known to you. ^{16t} You did not choose Me, but I chose you and ^u appointed you that you should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit should remain, that whatever you ask the Father ^v in My name He may give you. ¹⁷ These things I command you, that you love one another.

The Relationship of Believers to the World

^{18w} “If the world hates you, you know that it hated Me before it hated you. ^{19x} If you were of the world, the world would love its own. Yet ^y because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you.

1 John 3:13 19 x 1 John 4:5 y John 17:14

Christ” to speak of a Christian’s legal and family position as a result of God’s grace. The emphasis of in Me in this passage, however, is on deep, abiding fellowship. Jesus’ purpose was to move His disciples from servants to friends (vv. 13–15). This would involve a process of discipline in regard to His commandments. not bear fruit: No plant produces fruit instantaneously; fruit is the result of a process. Such is also the case with believers. Prunes means “cleanses.” Once the fruit is on the vine, the vinedresser cleanses the fruit of bugs and diseases. The spiritual counterpart is cleansing which is done through the Word (v. 3).

15:4 For the branch to produce more fruit, it must abide, which means to dwell, to stay, to settle in, to sink deeper. The way to abide in Christ is to obey (see 15:10; 1 John 3:24). The believer who lovingly obeys the Word of God produces much fruit.

15:5 can do nothing: Apart from Christ, a believer cannot accomplish anything of permanent spiritual value.

15:6 Not abiding in Christ has serious consequences: (1) The person is cast out as a branch, indicating the loss of fellowship; (2) the person is withered, indicating a loss of vitality; (3) the person is burned, indicating a loss of reward. The fire here is figurative, symbolizing either fiery trials (see 1 Pet. 1:7; 4:12) or the fire at the judgment seat of Christ (see 1 Cor. 3:11–15). Failure to abide produces spiritual disaster. they gather them: Note the movement from “He” (the Father who is the vinedresser, v. 2) to “you” (the believer who does or does not abide, v. 4) to “they” (unbelievers looking for signs of life; see 13:35).

15:8 By this: Notice the striking parallel between this verse and 13:35. The love of 13:35 is pictured as fruit here. The text has come full circle in showing how strategic it is for disciples to love each other, as Christ’s method of evangelizing the lost. “They shall know” becomes so you will be Christ’s disciples. Where there is good fruit, there are also seeds for propagation.

15:9 As the Father loved Me, I also have loved you: The love of God the Father for God the Son is the measure of the love of the Son for believers.

15:10 abide in My love: Christ loves believers unconditionally (v. 9). But as believers obey Christ’s Word and abide in His love, they come to experience and understand His love for them more and more (see Eph. 3:14–19).

15:11 That your joy may be full is an expression peculiar to John (see 3:29; 16:24; 17:13; 1 John 1:4; 2 John 12). It describes a believer’s experience of Christ’s love: complete joy.

15:12 love one another: To abide, a believer must obey (v. 10). To obey, a believer must love other believers (13:34, 35).

15:13 lay down one’s life: In rashness and with confidence in the flesh, Peter had offered to lay down his life for Jesus. In actuality, he was not ready to die for Jesus; he was not even ready to live for Him (18:17, 18, 25–27). The supreme example of love is Jesus’ humility in sacrificial service (13:15).

15:14 if you do: Jesus is our model for love (v. 13). Intimacy with Him is the motive for loving as He loves. If believers obey His command to love, they enjoy the intimacy of His friendship. Note that friendship, unlike sonship, is not a once-for-all gift, but develops as the result of obeying Jesus’ command to love.

15:15 No longer . . . servants: Until this point, Jesus had called His disciples servants (12:26; 13:13–16). A servant does what he is told and sees what his master does, but does not necessarily know the meaning or purpose of it. friends: A friend knows what is happening because friends develop deep fellowship by communicating with one another.

15:16 I chose you: Jesus had initiated the relationship with His disciples (see 1 John 4:10). It started with selection, moved to servanthood, and grew to friendship. that you should go and bear fruit: Having chosen the disciples, Jesus commissioned them to bring forth permanent fruit through prayer.

15:18 hated Me: As Jesus spoke these words, the Pharisees were planning to kill Him (11:45–57). The world hated Him, so it should not be surprising that the world hates His followers.

²⁰Remember the word that I said to you, ²¹‘A servant is not greater than his master.’ If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. ²²‘If they kept My word, they will keep yours also. ²³But ²⁴all these things they will do to you for My name’s sake, because they do not know Him who sent Me. ²⁵‘If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin, ²⁶but now they have no excuse for their sin. ²⁷‘He who hates Me hates My Father also. ²⁸‘If I had not done among them ²⁹the works which no one else did, they would have no sin; but now they have ³⁰seen and also hated both Me and My Father. ³¹But this happened that the word might be fulfilled which is written in their law, ³²‘They hated Me without a cause.’

15:22, 23 no sin . . . no excuse: The world’s hatred of Jesus was a sin against God, for He revealed the Father Himself to them. My Father also: Since Christ and the Father are one, those who hate Christ hate the Father.

15:26, 27 He will testify . . . you also will bear witness: As the disciples spoke, the Holy Spirit would bring inner conviction to unbelievers concerning Christ. This in turn would make the disciples witnesses for Jesus.

16:2 They will put you out of the synagogues . . . kills you: The persecution that the disciples would face included excommunication and even execution. Excommunication had economic as well as religious implications, because much of the life of an ancient Jew revolved around the synagogue. Offers expresses the idea of offering a sacrifice. The murderers of believers would imagine that they were offering a sacrifice to God.

16:4 at the beginning: Jesus had been preparing His disciples to assimilate the truth (see Prov. 22:6). In His wisdom, the Lord never gives us more than we can handle.

16:5 none of you asks Me, ‘Where are You going?’: Peter had asked this very question (13:36) and Thomas had suggested it (14:5). However, things were different now. The disciples had learned about denials, suffering, and death. To go with Jesus involved the most serious consequences.

16:7 The disciples must have thought, “How can it be to our advantage to be alone? The Romans hate us because they see us as disturbers of the peace. The Jewish leaders hate us because they see us as blasphemers. You alone love us, and You are leaving us.” So Jesus explained the benefits of His departure. When Jesus left, the believers would have (1) the provision of the Holy Spirit (vv. 7–15); (2) the potential of full joy (vv. 16–24); (3) the possibility of fuller knowledge (vv. 25–28); (4) the privilege of peace (vv. 29–33). I will send Him: Jesus explained that the Holy Spirit will convict the world (vv. 7–11) and communicate truth to the apostles (vv. 12–15). to you: The Holy Spirit would not be given to the world, but to believers. The coming of the Spirit would be more profitable to believers than even the physical presence of Christ, since the Spirit could dwell in all believers at the same time.

16:8 Convict means “convince” or “reprove.” The Holy Spirit would demonstrate the truth of Christ beyond the fear of contradiction. The Holy Spirit convicts unbelievers through believers who witness about Christ (15:26, 27). Believers are the mouthpiece for God’s voice. The content of the witness that the Spirit reinforces includes truth about sin, righteousness, and judgment.

16:9 of sin: Note the singular sin, not sins. Our witness should not focus on sins (adultery, gluttony, pride, and other sins), but on the full payment that Christ has made for all sin. Reception of the full pardon is the only cure for the disease of sin.

16:10 of righteousness: After Christ’s departure the Holy Spirit would convict the world of the nature of righteousness and the need for righteousness. Jesus’ work on the Cross was completely righteous. This is demonstrated by the Father’s emptying of the tomb, signifying His satisfaction with the righteous payment and His acceptance of Christ into His presence.

16:11 of judgment: Satan, the ruler of this world, rules in the hearts of unregenerate people and blinds their minds (see 1 Cor. 2:6–8). Satan was judged at the Cross, and the Holy Spirit would convince people of the judgment to come. Satan has been judged, so all who side with him will be judged with him. There is no room for neutrality. A person is either a child of God or a child of the devil.

16:12 You refers to the apostles. Technically, what the Lord says about the ministry of the Holy Spirit in vv. 12–15 applies primarily to the apostles. The Holy Spirit’s ministry to them was threefold: (1) He would guide them into all truth (v. 13); (2) He would tell them of the future (v. 13); (3) He would help them glorify Christ (vv. 14, 15). Jesus’ words were fulfilled in the apostles’ preaching and writings. The Holy Spirit guided the apostles by revealing to them not only the truths embodied in Jesus’ life and death, but also the glorious future of all believers. The apostles, in turn, wrote it down in the NT, which glorifies—that is, reveals—Jesus Christ. The word bear means “to carry a burden” and is used later of Christ carrying the

¹³ However, when He, ^othe Spirit of truth, has come, ^pHe will guide you into all truth; for He will not speak on His own authority, but whatever He hears He will speak; and He will tell you things to come. ^{14q} He will glorify Me, for He will take of what is Mine and declare it to you. ^{15r} All things that the Father has are Mine. The Prediction of Christ's Death and Resurrection

¹⁶ “A ^s little while, and you will not see Me; and again a little while, and you will see Me, ^tbecause I go to the Father.”

¹⁷ Then some of His disciples said among themselves, “What is this that He says to us, ‘A little while, and you will not see Me; and again a little while, and you will see Me’; and, ‘because I go to the Father’?” ¹⁸ They said therefore, “What is this that He says, ‘A little while’? We do not ⁴ know what He is saying.”

¹⁹ Now Jesus knew that they desired to ask Him, and He said to them, “Are you inquiring among yourselves about what I said, ‘A little while, and you will not see Me; and again a little while, and you will Cross (19:17). In other words, there were truths that they could not understand (v. 13) or handle until the Holy Spirit came at Pentecost.

16:13 Spirit of truth: The phrase means that the Holy Spirit is the source of truth (14:17; 15:26). guide: The Holy Spirit would not compel or carry the disciples into truth. He would lead; their job was to follow. All truth refers to the truth necessary to be mature saints and thoroughly equipped servants (see 2 Tim. 3:16, 17). Things to come includes truths about the church (see Eph. 3:1–7), as well as future events.

16:14 For indicates that the last part of the verse explains glorify Me. The Holy Spirit glorifies Christ by declaring Him or making Him known. It is the work of the Holy Spirit to throw light on Jesus Christ, who is the image of the invisible God. Christ is to be on center stage; that is the desire of both the Father and the Spirit. The apostles received truth from the Holy Spirit, truth about things to come, and truth about Christ. Then under the guidance of the Holy Spirit they wrote those truths in documents known today as the NT (see 14:25, 26; 1 Cor. 2:13).

16:15 To say that the Holy Spirit will take what belongs to Christ (v. 14) does not mean He will concentrate on Christ to the exclusion of the Father. There is no division within the Godhead. What the Father has, the Son has (17:10). What the Son has, the Spirit will declare (see 1 Cor. 2:13). However, the focus will be on Christ because He is the “image of the invisible God” (see Col. 1:15). His steps are the only ones we can follow because He is the only one we have “seen.” 16:16 You will see Me has been interpreted to mean: (1) the disciples would literally see Jesus after the Resurrection; (2) the disciples would spiritually see Jesus after the ascension because of the work of the Holy Spirit. Verse 22 seems to support the literal sight after the Resurrection.

16:18 A little while: The biggest question weighing on the disciples’ minds was the time factor. They simply did not understand the strange intervals marked by their separation from Jesus.

16:20, 21 weep and lament: When Jesus died, the disciples would openly express their intense sorrow. The world would rejoice, assuming that it was rid of Jesus. But the sorrow of the disciples would be turned into joy. This is not merely a case of sorrow being followed by joy, but of sorrow becoming joy. The sorrow itself would be transformed. The death of Jesus would be first a sorrow and then a joy. To explain His words (in v. 20), Jesus used the example of a pregnant woman. A woman . . . in labor has sorrow, but the very sorrow is transformed into joy in the birth of the child.

16:22 I will see you again refers to Jesus’ postresurrection appearances. your joy no one will take: The disciples’ sorrow would depart; their joy would remain. Jesus’ death and resurrection brings the joy of forgiven sins (see 1 Pet. 1:8) that the world cannot take away.

16:25 An example of figurative language is the allegory of the grapevine in 15:1–8, which presents the work of the Father in producing the fruit of love in believers. A figure of speech can be more vivid and graphic than ordinary prose.

16:26, 27 In My name means by Christ’s authority. I do not say . . . I shall pray the Father for you: Because Jesus provides forgiveness of sins through His death and now intercedes for all believers at the right hand of the Father (see Heb. 7:25), we have direct access to the Father. We do not need the intercession of a priest, because Jesus acts as our High Priest before God. For indicates that v. 27 explains

(Gk. paroimia) (10:6; 16:25, 29; 2 Pet. 2:22) Strong’s #3942

The Greek word can mean “proverb” (as in 2 Pet. 2:22), “enigmatic saying” (as in 16:25, 29), or “similitude.” John did not use the Greek word parabolē, meaning “parable,” which is common in the synoptic Gospels; and the synoptic Gospels do not have the word paroimia. The two words are nearly synonymous. The only difference is that in John’s Gospel the word paroimia may connote the idea of a similitude or analogy. Whatever the exact definition, Jesus’ similitude was not understood by His listeners because their sin had hardened their hearts and had made them unable to comprehend the spiritual truths about which Jesus spoke (see Matt. 13:10–17).

16:29, 30 we believe: Jesus had read the disciples’ hearts (v. 19) and answered their questions. Like the Samaritan woman, they concluded that He knew all things (4:39). To the disciples, Jesus’ supernatural knowledge proved His divine mission.

(Gk. doxazō) (7:39; 12:23; 13:31, 32; 17:5; Rom. 1:21; 8:30; Gal. 1:24) Strong’s #1392

This Greek term means “to give glory,” or “to make glorious.” It was one of John’s favorite expressions concerning what would happen to Jesus as the result of His crucifixion and resurrection (see 7:39; 12:23, 24). These events would show the world that Jesus was no ordinary man. The resurrection, especially, would show that He was the glorious Son of God worthy of all honor. In His final prayer, Jesus asked the Father to be glorified alongside of Him (that is, in the Father’s presence) by means of the glory He had with the Father before the world existed. In other words, Jesus was praying to enter into that pristine state of coequal glory with the Father, a position He possessed from eternity as God’s only Son (see 1:1, 18). He would enter into that glory in a new way—as the God-man, the crucified and risen Lord Jesus Christ.

16:32 you will be scattered: The disciples would desert Jesus. Knowing this, Jesus still loved them, an amazing example of unconditional love.

16:33 Tribulation is literally “pressure,” and figuratively means “affliction” or “distress.” Be of good cheer means “be confident and courageous.” When we place our trust in God, He can give us peace in the midst of pressure. See Phil. 1:27–30 for Paul’s explanation of the principle of joy in suffering.

17:1, 2 the hour has come: Throughout the Gospel of John, Jesus referred to the Cross as His “hour” (2:4; 7:30; 8:20; 12:23; 13:1). The time for Him to die had arrived. Glorify Your Son: Jesus was asking that His mission to the world would be made known through the Cross. The reasons for this request are twofold: (1) that Your Son also may glorify You. In the Cross, Jesus reveals the Father to the world, that is, His love and justice; and (2) that through Jesus’ death on the Cross, God would provide forgiveness of sins and give eternal life to all those who believe in His Son.

17:3 that they may know You: Eternal life consists of a growing knowledge of the only true God, as opposed to false gods.

17:4, 5 I have glorified You: Jesus made known the Father by completing the work God gave Him to do. glorify Me: Jesus looked to the Father to restore Him to the glory He had in heaven before He left (see Phil. 2:6). This is another indication of Christ’s preexistence and deity (1:1–14).

17:9 I do not pray for the world indicates that Jesus was praying only for present and future believers (see 17:20; Luke 23:34).

17:11 This verse reveals Jesus’ keen sensitivity to the plight of His disciples brought on by His departure. He was going to the Father, but they would be left behind. Jesus asked the Father to keep the disciples through His name, that is, to keep them true to the revelation of God that Jesus had given to them while He was with them. The disciples would have a new union with the Father and Son through the future indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

17:12 none of them is lost: Jesus protected the disciples during His earthly ministry (18:9). Judas, the son of perdition, is distinguished from the rest of the apostles. He was never really one of those given to Christ (18:8, 9). He had never really been a believer (6:64-71); he had not been cleansed (13:11).

17:13 I speak in the world: Jesus prayed aloud (v. 1) so that His words would comfort the apostles when they remembered that Jesus gave them into His Father's keeping.

17:14-16 of the world: This verse has profound implications for discipleship. Our desire should not be to isolate ourselves from the world, but to use Christ's word and the Holy Spirit's power to serve Him while our life lasts. Yet at the same time, we should not become like the world, succumbing to the evil influences of the world. The term evil one can be translated as a common noun, evil, or as a reference to a person, Satan.

17:17 Sanctify means “to set apart.” There are two ways to understand this statement: (1) as separate for holiness, or (2) as set apart for service. According to the first view, Jesus was praying not only that the disciples should be kept from evil, but that they should advance in holiness. However in v. 18, sanctification seems to refer to the disciples' mission, indicating that sanctify may also mean that Jesus was setting apart His disciples for this. Your word is truth is a strong statement of Jesus' confidence in the veracity of Scripture. People's opinions may vary, and experiences are notoriously untrustworthy, but God's Word always remains true.

17:20 those who will believe: Jesus not only prayed for those the Father had given Him (v. 9) but for all future believers—for their unity (vv. 20-23) and their future glory (vv. 24-26). If you are a believer, these words are Jesus' prayer for you.

17:21 all may be one: The present tense of the verb “to be” indicates that Jesus was praying for the unity that takes place through the sanctification of believers. This is what Jesus was commanding in 13:34, 35: His followers had to love each other so that the world may believe in the reality of Jesus' love. The loving relationship of believers to each other is the greatest witness to Jesus Christ.

17:22 The glory, the revelation of Jesus Christ through His disciples, is the means to unity. Such unity begins with belief and correct thinking about Jesus and God the Father, that is, with doctrine. But correct belief must bear fruit—a life that demonstrates God's love and produces the unity between all the believers.

17:23 I in them, and You in Me: The mutual indwelling of the Father in the Son and the Son in the church is also the means to unity, the ultimate expression of God's love (see 13:35; Rom. 8:17).

17:24 May be with Me is a prayer for the future glorification of believers. may behold My glory: The apostles saw Christ's glory in His words and works (v. 22). Christ prayed for all believers to behold His glory, unveiled in the full revelation of His deity.

17:25, 26 The ultimate reason for future believers to know the love of God is so that God's love may be replicated in them, thus drawing the entire world to Christ.

18:1 The Brook Kidron was a ravine between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives.

18:3 A detachment was a cohort of about six hundred men, or one-tenth of a legion. However, sometimes this Greek word was used for one-third of a cohort, or two hundred men. These soldiers were probably the experienced Roman troops stationed at the Antonia, a fortress near the temple. The officers who came with the detachment were members of the temple police under the command of the Jewish council, the Sanhedrin.

The Function of the Synagogue

A distinction must be made between synagogue worship and tabernacle or temple worship. The tabernacle of Moses' day was enclosed by curtains. No one but the priests could enter this area. The later temples of Solomon, Zerubbabel, and Herod (the temple of Jesus' day) had courts or porches where the people could pray or have discussions (Matt. 26:55; Luke 2:46; Acts 2:46), but the temple precincts proper were for the priests only.

In synagogues, on the other hand, the people took part in worship, reading of the Scriptures, and prayer. By NT times, synagogues were very numerous and popular. They became centers of community activity, playing a number of roles. Sometimes they were local courts of justice (Matt. 10:17; 23:34).

troops, and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, came there with lanterns, torches, and weapons. ⁴Jesus therefore, knowing all things that would come upon Him, went forward and said to them, "Whom are you seeking?"

And they said, "Jesus of Nazareth."

First Jewish Trial Before Annas

Matt. 26:69, 70; Mark 14:66-68; Luke 22:55-57

¹²Then the detachment of troops and the captain and the officers of the Jews arrested Jesus and bound Him. ¹³Annas and ^kthey led Him away to ^lAnnas first, for he was the father-in-law of ^mCaiaphas who was high priest that year. ¹⁴ⁿNow it was Caiaphas who advised the Jews that it was ²expedient that one man should die for the people.

¹⁵^oAnd Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so ^pdid ³another³ disciple. Now that disciple was known to the high priest, and went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest. ¹⁶^qBut Peter stood at the door outside. Then the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went 18:4 knowing all things: Knowing He was about to be arrested, Jesus could have escaped, but He did not. He submitted Himself voluntarily to the ordeal that was ordained by God.

18:6 fell to the ground: For a moment, Christ unveiled His majesty. His statement of deity, I am, manifested such glory that it literally threw the soldiers to the ground.

18:8 For the third time in this passage, Jesus claimed to be I am (vv. 5, 6), echoing God's self-revelation in Ex. 3:14. let these go: As He was being arrested, Jesus demonstrated His love for the apostles.

18:10 Note the contrast between Peter and Jesus. By fighting the guard, Simon Peter vehemently exercised his own self-will; Jesus in contrast voluntarily submitted to the will of God. One swung the sword of self-will; the other drank from the cup of God's will. See Matt. 16:22, 23 for another attempt by Peter to control God's plan for Jesus. cut off his right ear: Jesus mercifully restored the ear (Luke 22:51) that Peter cut off. He often does the same in our lives when we act rashly. His purposes are fulfilled in spite of us.

18:12 A captain was the chief officer of a Roman cohort (v. 3).

18:13 Annas was high priest from A.D. 7 to 14. He was deposed by the Romans. Then Caiaphas, Annas's son-in-law, was appointed to the position and served from A.D. 18 to 37. However, according to Jewish law the high priest was a lifetime position, so the Jews still considered Annas to be high priest. So they took Jesus to Annas first. Caiaphas would soon be involved, however, since he had the authority to carry out the plan (see v. 14).

18:14 In passing, John reminds the reader of the earlier prediction of Caiaphas (11:50-52): Jesus would die for the entire nation.

18:15 another disciple: Although this other disciple is never identified, the consensus is that he was John, the author of this Gospel.

He said, “I am not.”

¹⁸Now the servants and officers who had made a fire of coals stood there, for it was cold, and they warmed themselves. And Peter stood with them and warmed himself.

¹⁹The high priest then asked Jesus about His disciples and His doctrine.

²⁰Jesus answered him, ^s“I spoke openly to the world. I always taught ^tin synagogues and ^uin the temple, where ⁴the Jews always meet, and in secret I have said nothing. ²¹Why do you ask Me? Ask ^vthose who have heard Me what I said to them. Indeed they know what I said.”

²²And when He had said these things, one of the officers who stood by ^wstruck ⁵Jesus with the palm of his hand, saying, “Do You answer the high priest like that?”

²³Jesus answered him, “If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why do you strike Me?”

First Roman Trial Before Pilate

Matt. 27:2, 11-14; Mark 15:1-5; Luke 23:1-5

^{28b}Then they led Jesus from Caiaphas to the Praetorium, and it was early morning. ^cBut they themselves did not go into the ⁶Praetorium, lest they should be defiled, but that they might eat the Passover. ^{29d}Pilate then went out to them and said, “What accusation do you bring against this Man?”

³⁰They answered and said to him, “If He were not ⁷an evildoer, we would not have delivered Him up to you.”

³¹Then Pilate said to them, “You take Him and judge Him according to your law.”

Therefore the Jews said to him, “It is not lawful for us to put anyone to death,” ^{32e}that the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled which He spoke, ^fsignifying by what death He would die.

^{33g}Then Pilate entered the ⁸Praetorium again, called Jesus, and said to Him, “Are You the King of the Jews?”

³⁴Jesus answered him, “Are you speaking for yourself about this, or did others tell you this concerning Me?”

18:17 I am not: This was the first of Peter’s three denials prophesied by Jesus (13:38).

18:21 Ask those who have heard Me: According to the law, the witnesses for the defense had to be called first. Jesus should not have been questioned until witnesses had testified.

18:22 the officers . . . struck Jesus: This was illegal according to Jewish law. There was to be no punishment before conviction.

18:23 bear witness: Jesus invited His accusers to present evidence that He had done something wrong.

18:25 I am not: This was the second of Peter’s three denials prophesied by Jesus (13:38).

18:27 Peter then denied again: For the third time, Peter denied the Lord, as Jesus had said he would (13:38). In the Upper Room, Peter had boasted that he would remain true to the Lord to the end (see 13:37; Matt. 26:33, 35). In the garden he surrendered to the desires of his body, by sleeping three times when the Lord had commanded the disciples to stay up in prayer (Mark 14:32–42). Now he submitted to the pressure of the world and denied the Lord three times.

18:28 The Praetorium was the Roman governor’s official residence, probably the Fortress Antonia near the temple. Early morning refers to the fourth watch of the night, from 3 to 6 A.M. A Roman court could have been held immediately after sunrise, and this scene could have taken place around 6 A.M. defiled: During Passover, if a Jew entered a house that contained leaven, he or she would be ceremonially defiled and unable to celebrate the feast. Thus Jews would not enter the residence of any Gentile for fear of being ceremonially defiled. Passover: The main meal of the Passover had taken place. The synoptic Gospels report that Jesus celebrated that meal the night before (see Matt. 26:17–29; Mark 14:12–25; Luke 22:7–22). However, there were other ceremonial meals during the Passover, which lasted the entire week.

18:29, 30 What accusation: Pilate was not ignorant of the accusation. He was merely requesting that it be formally stated. If He were not an evildoer: Jesus’ accusers had no charge that would stand up in a Roman court. Therefore they sullenly replied, “If He were not an evildoer, we would not have delivered Him up to you.”

18:31 You take Him and judge Him: The accusations did not warrant a trial before Pilate. It is not lawful: The Romans did not allow the Jews to impose capital punishment. These Jewish leaders had no interest in a just trial; they simply wanted permission from Rome to have Jesus executed.

18:32 signifying by what death He would die: Jesus had said, “If I am lifted up from the earth,” indicating the method of His death, crucifixion (12:32, 33). The Jewish method of execution was stoning. However, Jesus had already indicated that He would be crucified. John is pointing out that the Jewish leaders’ inability to impose capital punishment themselves fulfilled Jesus’ prediction describing His death.

18:33 Are You the King of the Jews: The Jews charged that Jesus claimed to be their king. From their standpoint, this was the most damaging accusation possible because it would be regarded by the Romans as treason and would be punishable by death. In the Greek text, you is emphatic, perhaps indicating that Pilate did not think the forlorn figure before him looked like the defiant rebels he was used to dealing with as claimants to the Jewish throne.

18:34 Are you speaking for yourself: In reply to Pilate, Jesus gave no violent protest of innocence, nor was He sullenly defiant. Jesus

³⁵ Pilate answered, “Am I a Jew? Your own nation and the chief priests have delivered You to me. What have You done?”

³⁶ ^h Jesus answered, “My kingdom is not of this world. If My kingdom were of this world, My servants would fight, so that I should not be delivered to the Jews; but now My kingdom is not from here.”

³⁷ Pilate therefore said to Him, “Are You a king then?”

Jesus answered, “You say rightly that I am a king. For this cause I was born, and for this cause I have come into the world, ^j that I should bear ^k witness to the truth. Everyone who ⁱ is of the truth ^m hears My voice.”

³⁸ Pilate said to Him, “What is truth?” And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews, and said to them, “I find no fault in Him at all.

⁴ Pilate then went out again, and said to them, “Behold, I am bringing Him out to you, ^c that you may know that I find no fault in Him.”

⁵ Then Jesus came out, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. And Pilate said to them, “Behold the Man!”

⁶ ^d Therefore, when the chief priests and officers saw Him, they cried out, saying, “Crucify Him, crucify Him!”

Pilate said to them, “You take Him and crucify Him, for I find no fault in Him.”

⁷ The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and according to ² our law He ought to die, because ^f He made Himself the Son of God.”

⁸ Therefore, when Pilate heard that saying, he was the more afraid, ⁹ and went again into the Praetorium, and said to Jesus, “Where are You from?” ^g But Jesus gave him no answer.

¹⁰ Then Pilate said to Him, “Are You not speaking to me? Do You not know that I have ³ power to crucify You, and ³ power to release You?”

¹¹ Jesus answered, ^h “You could have no power at all against Me unless it had been given you from above. Therefore ⁱ the one who delivered Me to you has the greater sin.”

¹² From then on Pilate sought to release Him, but the Jews cried out, saying, “If politely but directly asked whether Pilate was asking on his own initiative or whether the charge was secondhand. If Pilate’s question originated with him, he was using king in the Roman sense of a political ruler. If not, then king was being used in the Jewish sense of the messianic King.

18:35 Am I a Jew: Pilate was asking, “Is it likely that I, a Roman governor, would have any interest in a Jewish question?”

18:36 My kingdom is not of this world: Jesus pointed out that though He was a king, he was no threat to Rome because His kingdom would not come by a worldly revolution.

18:37 bear witness to the truth: The truth was the seal of God. hears My voice: If Pilate wanted to know the truth, he would understand what Jesus was saying.

18:38 What is truth: This question has been interpreted as (1) a cynical denial of the possibility of knowing truth; (2) a contemptuous jest at anything so impractical as abstract truth; and (3) a desire to know what no one had been able to tell him. No fault is a legal term meaning that there were no grounds for a criminal charge. Teaching the truth was not against the law. Pilate pronounced Jesus not guilty.

18:39 you have a custom: It appears that some in the crowd suggested that a prisoner should be released in honor of the Passover (see Mark 15:8, 11). Pilate jumped at the possible compromise. By promising to release Jesus on account of the custom rather than by proclaiming Him innocent, Pilate would avoid insulting the Jewish leaders, who had already pronounced Him guilty.

18:40 The people demanded that Pilate release Barabbas, who was not only a robber, but a rebel (Mark 15:7) and a murderer (Luke 23:19).

19:1 scourged Him: Scourging was part of a capital sentence. But in this case it was inflicted before formal judgment.

19:2 The crown of thorns was in mockery of a kingly crown. Placing a purple robe on Jesus made Him a caricature of a royal conqueror. 19:3 Hail, King of the Jews was probably a sarcastic echo of what the soldiers had heard at Jesus’ triumphal entry or at His trial.

19:4 I am bringing Him out to you: Perhaps Pilate was appealing to the people’s compassion so that he could release Jesus.

19:6 Crucify Him: The Jewish leaders anticipated an outburst of pity. Therefore they began demanding Jesus’ death. You . . . crucify Him: Pilate was enraged. I find no fault in Him: This was the third time Pilate declared that he could find no legal grounds for capital punishment (18:38; 19:4).

19:7 We have a law: The Jewish leaders were telling Pilate, “If you are appealing to us, we say that according to our law, He must die.” As governor, Pilate was bound by Roman custom to respect Jewish law. He made Himself the Son of God: The Jewish leaders were accusing Jesus of violating the laws against blasphemy (see Lev. 24:16).

19:8 he was the more afraid: Though not mentioned earlier, Pilate had no doubt become fearful. The claim of Jesus’ deity further excited his fears.

19:9 Jesus gave . . . no answer: Three times Pilate had publicly pronounced Jesus innocent (18:38; 19:4, 6). If he had really wanted to know the truth, he would have believed what Jesus had already told him (18:37).

19:11 given you from above: Jesus acknowledged that Pilate had the power to take His life, but only because God allowed him that power. The one who delivered Me to you is a reference to Caiaphas (18:24, 28), who had the greater sin because as a religious leader he had that much greater a responsibility to recognize the Messiah.

19:12 not Caesar’s friend: The Jews shifted their focus from the religious charge (v. 7) to the political charge (18:33), which they backed

Jesus' Trials
Before Jewish Religious Authorities
Preliminary hearing before Annas (18:12–24)	Although the Romans had deposed Annas, in the eyes of the Jews he still functioned as the high priest because the office was for life. Annas questioned Jesus, but Jesus demanded a legal hearing.
Hearing before Caiaphas (Matt. 26:57–67; Mark 14:53–65)	Caiaphas was the high priest appointed by the Romans. Two false witnesses testified against Jesus and Caiaphas asked Jesus if He was the Messiah. Jesus answered yes, and Caiaphas concluded that Jesus was guilty of blasphemy.
Trial before the Sanhedrin (Matt. 27:1, 2; Mark 15:1; Luke 22:66–71)	The council of Jewish religious leaders confirmed Caiaphas's conclusion. In this trial, Jesus admitted He was the Son of God and declared that He would sit on the right hand of God the Father.
Before the Roman Authorities
First hearing before Pilate (18:28–37; Matt. 27:11–14; Mark 15:2–5; Luke 23:1–5)	The Jewish religious leaders brought Jesus to Pilate in order to get permission to execute Him. They accused Him of treason. Pilate saw Jesus' innocence, but briefly questioned Him. In this interview, Jesus revealed to Pilate that His kingdom was not of this earth.
Hearing before Herod (Luke 23:6–12)	Pilate sent Jesus to Herod because Jesus was from Galilee, the region ruled by Herod. Jesus remained silent before Herod.
Final hearing before Pilate (18:38—19:16; Matt. 27:15–26; Mark 15:6–15; Luke 23:13–25)	Pilate did not want to condemn an innocent man, but he was afraid of another Jewish uprising. Therefore, he finally gave in to the cries of the crowd: "Crucify Him."

you let this Man go, you are not Caesar's friend. ^jWhoever makes himself a king speaks against Caesar."

¹³^k When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus out and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called The Pavement, but in Hebrew, Gabbatha. ¹⁴ Now ^l it was the Preparation Day of the Passover, and about the sixth hour. And he said to the Jews, "Behold your King!"

¹⁵ But they cried out, "Away with Him, away with Him! Crucify Him!"

Pilate said to them, "Shall I crucify your King?"

The chief priests answered, ^m "We have no king but Caesar!"

¹⁶ⁿ Then he delivered Him to them to be crucified. Then they took Jesus ⁴ and led Him away.

Matt. 27:32–38, 48, 50; Mark 15:21–26, 36, 37; Luke 23:26–33, 38, 46

¹⁷^o And He, bearing His cross, ^p went out to a place called the Place of a Skull, which is called in Hebrew, Golgotha, ¹⁸ where they crucified Him, and ^q two others with Him, one on either side, and Jesus in the center. ¹⁹^r Now Pilate wrote a title and put it on the cross. And the writing was:

JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

²⁰ Then many of the Jews read this title, for the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin.

²¹ Therefore the chief priests of the up with an appeal to Caesar's own political interest. This new plea forced Pilate to choose between yielding to an indefinite sense of right or escaping the danger of an accusation at Rome.

19:13 The Pavement no doubt referred to a large paved area in the Fortress Antonia.

19:14 The Preparation Day of the Passover refers to the Friday of Passover week (v. 31), the preparation for the Sabbath of the Passover. Some have suggested that this may be the Thursday before the Passover, the same time that the Passover lamb was offered as a sacrifice. However this interpretation appears to conflict with the narrative of the three synoptic Gospels, where it seems that Jesus is described as being crucified on Friday (Matt. 27:62). The sixth hour was 6 A.M. according to the Roman system of time.

19:15, 16 The Jewish leaders preferred proclaiming a heathen emperor as their king to acknowledging Jesus as their Messiah. Trapped by his own fear, Pilate handed over the innocent Jesus to endure a punishment Pilate knew He did not deserve.

19:17 The Place of a Skull probably got its name from the shape of the hill.

19:18 they crucified Him: Of all the apostles, John alone witnessed the crucifixion. However, he spares his readers the revolting details. The two others were thieves (see Matt. 27:38; Mark 15:27).

19:19 wrote a title: It was a Roman custom to write the name of the condemned person and his crime on a plaque to be placed above his head at the execution. Mark calls this title "the inscription of His accusation" (see Mark 15:26).

19:20 written in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin: Multilingual inscriptions were common. The title was written in the local, common, and official languages of the day. Everyone could read the message in his or her own language.

19:21 The addition of the phrase of the Jews to the title chief priests (probably referring to Caiaphas and Annas) occurs nowhere else in the NT. The addition probably corresponds to the title given Jesus. The chief priest of the Jews objected to Jesus being called King of the Jews. They did not want a messianic designation connected with Him.

Jews said to Pilate, “Do not write, ‘The King of the Jews,’ but, ‘He said, “I am the King of the Jews.””

²² Pilate answered, “What I have written, I have written.”

²³ Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took His garments and made four parts, to each soldier a part, and also the tunic. Now the tunic was without seam, woven from the top in one piece. ²⁴ They said therefore among themselves, “Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be,” that the Scripture might be fulfilled which says:

*“They divided My garments among them,
And for My clothing they cast lots.”*

Therefore the soldiers did these things.

²⁵ Now there stood by the cross of Jesus His mother, and His mother’s sister, Mary the wife of ^v Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. ²⁶ When Jesus therefore saw His mother, and ^w the disciple whom He loved standing by, He said to His mother, ^x “Woman, behold your son!” ²⁷ Then He said to the disciple, “Behold your mother!” And from that hour that disciple took her ^y to his own home.

²⁸ After this, Jesus, ⁵ knowing that all things were now accomplished, ^z that the Scripture might be fulfilled, said, “I thirst!” ²⁹ Now a vessel full of sour wine was sitting there; and ^a they filled a sponge with sour wine, put it on hyssop, and put it to His mouth. ³⁰ So when Jesus had received the sour wine, He said, ^b “It is finished!” And bowing His head, He gave up His spirit.

³¹ Therefore, because it was the Preparation Day, ^d that the bodies should not remain on the cross on the Sabbath (for that Sabbath was a ^e high day), the Jews asked Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away. ³² Then the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first and of the other who was crucified with Him. ³³ But when they came to Jesus and saw that He was already dead, they did not break His legs. ³⁴ But one of the soldiers pierced His side with a spear, and immediately ^f blood and water came out. ³⁵ And he who has seen has testified, and his testimony is ^g true; and he knows that he is telling the truth, so that you may ^h believe. ³⁶ For these things were done that the Scripture should be fulfilled, ⁱ “Not one of His bones shall be broken.” ³⁷ And again an-

19:22 Pilate refused to change the title. As did Caiaphas, Pilate affirmed more than he ever intended. The title proclaimed to all that Jesus is indeed the promised Messiah.

19:23 the soldiers: According to Roman law, the garments of a condemned criminal belonged to the executioners. Jesus had two items of clothing. The cloak was a large, loose garment. The tunic was a close-fitting garment that went from the neck to the knees.

19:24 The outer garment could be conveniently divided, but the inner garment could not. Thus the soldiers divided the outer one and cast lots for the inner one. Unknowingly, the soldiers fulfilled David’s prophecy in Ps. 22:18. This passage had long been considered a messianic prophecy.

19:26 The disciple whom He loved refers to John, the author of this Gospel.

19:27 Behold your mother: Jesus placed Mary in the care of John.

19:28 that the Scripture might be fulfilled: Everything foretold concerning the earthly life of Jesus had been accomplished.

19:29 Sour wine was not the same as the drugged wine that had been offered to Jesus earlier (“wine mingled with myrrh”; see Mark 15:23). Jesus did not take that wine because He wanted to die fully conscious. He did take a sip of this wine; one of the agonies of crucifixion was incredible thirst, added to the terrible pain.

19:30 It is finished . . . He gave up His spirit: Having fulfilled every command of the Father and every prophecy of Scripture, Jesus voluntarily died. This was not a cry of exhaustion, but of completion. Jesus had done what He had agreed to do.

19:31 The Preparation Day was Friday, the day before the Sabbath (see v. 14). bodies should not remain on the cross: It is ironic that in the midst of a deliberate judicial murder the Jews were scrupulous about keeping the ceremonial law. According to Jewish law (Deut. 21:23), it was necessary to remove the bodies of executed criminals before sunset. To avoid breaking the Law, the Jews requested that the legs of the condemned be broken so that the men would die quickly and could be removed from their crosses. Breaking the legs was not always part of crucifixion. But with his legs broken, a victim could no longer lift his body in order to breathe and would soon suffocate. High day is literally “great day.” The coming Sabbath was especially important because it was the Sabbath of the Passover Week.

19:34 To make certain that Jesus was dead, one of the soldiers pierced His side with a spear. After the soldier did this, blood and water came out, indicating that Jesus was already dead. Only blood would have flowed from a living body.

19:35 he who has seen: John’s words can be trusted because he is giving an eyewitness account, so that his readers will believe that Jesus is the Savior.

19:36 One should trust Christ not only because John gives an accurate account of His death (v. 35), but also because He fulfilled Scripture (v. 37), proving that He is

So he came and took the body of Jesus. ³⁹ And ^mNicodemus, who at first came to Jesus by night, also came, bringing a mixture of ⁿmyrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds. ⁴⁰ Then they took the body of Jesus, and ^obound it in strips of linen with the spices, as the custom of the Jews is to bury. ⁴¹ Now in the place where He was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had yet been laid. ⁴² So ^pthere they laid Jesus, ^qbecause of the Jews’ Preparation Day, for the tomb was nearby.

the tomb first. ⁵ And he, stooping down and looking in, saw ^fthe linen cloths lying there; yet he did not go in. ⁶ Then Simon Peter came, following him, and went into the tomb; and he saw the linen cloths lying there, ⁷ and ^gthe ¹handkerchief that had been around His head, not lying with the linen cloths, but folded together in a place by itself. ⁸ Then the ^hother disciple, who came to the tomb first, went in also; and he saw and believed. ⁹ For as yet they did not ²know the ⁱScripture, that He must rise again from the dead. ¹⁰ Then the disciples went away again to their own homes.

Christ Appears to Mary Magdalene

¹¹ But Mary stood outside by the tomb weeping, and as she wept she stooped down and looked into the tomb. ¹² And she saw two angels in white sitting, one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. ¹³ Then they said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping?”

She said to them, “Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid Him.”

^{14k} Now when she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, and ^ldid not know that it was Jesus. ¹⁵ Jesus said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you seeking?”

She, supposing Him to be the gardener, said to Him, “Sir, if You have carried Him away, tell me where You have laid Him, and I will take Him away.”

¹⁶ Jesus said to her, ^m“Mary!”

She turned and said to ³Him, “Rabboni!” (which is to say, Teacher).

¹⁷ Jesus said to her, “Do not cling to the Messiah. Both the lack of broken bones and the piercing of His side fulfilled prophecies recorded in the OT (see Ex. 12:46; Zech. 12:10).

19:38 Joseph, a rich member of the Jewish council (see Matt. 27:57; Mark 15:43), had not agreed with their decision (see Luke 23:50).

19:39 Nicodemus, like Joseph (v. 38), was a member of the council (3:1). At last, Nicodemus identified himself with the One who had come from above (12:42). A hundred pounds was a large amount. Nicodemus intended to cover Jesus’ entire body with spices—a common burial custom.

19:41 a new tomb: Matthew specifies that the tomb belonged to Joseph (see Matt. 27:60). This too was a fulfillment of a prophecy: The Messiah would be buried in a rich man’s grave (see Is. 53:9).

20:1 while it was still dark: Apparently Mary Magdalene arrived ahead of the other women (see Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:1; Luke 24:10). Mary Magdalene, out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons, was the last one at the Cross and the first one at the grave.

20:2 The other disciple, whom Jesus loved, was John, the author of this Gospel. They have taken away the Lord: Mary Magdalene jumped to the wrong conclusion. we: Other women were with Mary Magdalene (Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:1; Luke 24:10).

20:5 the linen cloths lying there: No one who came to steal the body would have taken the time to unwrap it and leave the cloths behind.

20:6 saw: The Greek term implies an intense stare, in contrast to the more casual look described in v. 5. Peter went into the tomb to get a good look. He carefully examined the place where Jesus’ body had been.

20:7 folded together: The handkerchief around Christ’s head had not been thrown aside, as might have been done by a thief. It had been folded and laid aside. Perhaps the implication is that Christ did not rush out of the tomb, but left His grave clothes neatly folded.

20:8 The other disciple, commonly believed to be the apostle John, saw the tomb and the grave clothes and believed that Christ had been raised from the dead.

20:9 they did not know the Scripture: The disciples believed because of what they saw in the tomb (v. 8), not because of what they knew from OT passages describing the Savior’s resurrection (see Luke 24:25–27). Jesus had prophesied His death and resurrection in the disciples’ presence, but the disciples had not understood what He was talking about. Later Jesus would instruct them about how His life and death fulfilled the Scriptures (see Luke 24:13–27, 44–47).

20:16 When Christ uttered her name, Mary recognized His voice. Mary addressed Christ as Rabboni, an Aramaic term which John translates for his Greek readers.

20:17 Cling means “to fasten oneself to” or “to hold.” Mary had grabbed Christ and was holding on to Him as if she would never turn Him loose. Christ explained to her that He could not stay because He

Me, for I have not yet ^aascended to My Father; but go to ^oMy brethren and say to them, ^p“I am ascending to My Father and your Father, and to ^qMy God and your God.”

¹⁸ Mary Magdalene came and told the ⁴disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that He had spoken these things to her.

Christ Appears to the Disciples (Thomas Present)

1 Cor. 15:5

²⁶ And after eight days His disciples were again inside, and Thomas with them. Jesus came, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, “Peace to you!” ²⁷ Then He said to Thomas, “Reach your finger here, and look at My hands; and ^areach your hand here, and put it into My side. Do not be ^bunbelieving, but believing.”

²⁸ And Thomas answered and said to Him, “My Lord and my God!”

²⁹ Jesus said to him, ⁶ “Thomas, because you have seen Me, you have believed. ^c Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed.”

The Purpose of John's Gospel

³⁰ And ^dtruly Jesus did many other signs in the presence of His disciples, which are not written in this book; ³¹ ^ebut these are written that ^fyou may believe that Jesus ^gis the Christ, the Son of God, ^h and that believing you may have life in His name.

had to ascend to His Father. My brethren referred to the disciples (v. 18). Jesus sent Mary to them with the first postresurrection testimony. Though it may be that Mary was formerly a woman of ill-repute, this did not keep Jesus from commissioning her to bring the gospel message to the apostles (see Mark 16:11). My Father and your Father: God is the Father of Christ and of believers (1:14, 18; 3:16, 18).

20:19 Jesus came and stood in the midst: Christ's appearance was miraculous, because the doors were shut. Jesus, as God, could perform a variety of miracles without requiring a change in His humanity. Here Christ's body was a physical body, the same body in which He died and was buried. The difference is that His flesh had been changed to take on immortality and incorruptibility (see 1 Cor. 15:53).

20:21 As indicates that the disciples were commissioned to carry on Christ's work, not to begin a new one.

20:22 Receive the Holy Spirit: The ministry to which Jesus called the disciples (v. 21; see also Matt. 28:16-20; Luke 24:47-49) required spiritual power. The reference here is to a special preparation of the apostles who were to become the foundation of the church at Pentecost. Here Jesus breathed the Spirit into the disciples. At Pentecost the Spirit unified the believers into one body and empowered them to testify of Jesus (see 1 Cor. 12:13). The reception of the Spirit here is reminiscent of the creative breath of God into Adam in Gen. 2:7. Yet the gift here was not a human spirit, but the Spirit of the living God.

20:23 If you forgive: The apostles did not take Jesus' words to mean that they had the power to forgive sins (see Acts 8:22). They knew that only God could forgive sins (see Mark 2:7). Neither the apostles nor the church had the power to forgive specific sins or to prevent forgiveness for any individual. Fundamentally Jesus was speaking of the responsibility of the church to declare the gospel to all the world, so that those who believe in Jesus can find the precious gift of forgiveness (see Matt. 16:19).

20:24, 25 Thomas was not present when Jesus appeared to the disciples in the closed room (vv. 19-23). Unless I see in His hands: When Jesus appeared to the other disciples, He showed them His hands and His side (v. 20). No doubt they told Thomas about it; hence his request.

20:28 My Lord and my God: In awestruck wonder, Thomas not only believed that Christ was risen from the dead, but he also saw that the Resurrection proved His deity.

20:29 Those who have not seen includes all who have believed in Christ since His ascension to the Father (see 1 Pet. 1:8, 9).

20:31 John states the purpose of his book. His purpose was to convince his readers that Jesus is the Christ, the Messiah who fulfilled God's promises to Israel. Jesus is the Son of God, God in the flesh. By believing these things, a person obtains eternal life (1:12).

(Gk. zōē) (1:4; 6:35; 11:25; 14:6; 20:31; Eph. 4:18; 1 John 5:11) Strong's #2222

This word in classical Greek was used for life in general. There are a few examples of this meaning in the NT (see Acts 17:25; James 4:14; Rev. 16:3), but in most instances the word is used to designate divine, eternal life, the life of God (Eph. 4:18). This life resided in Christ, and He has made it available to all who believe in Him. Human beings are born with the natural life, called psuchē in Greek, which can be translated “soul,” “personality,” or “life.” Eternal life can be received only by believing in the One who is Himself life, Jesus Christ.

Christ Appears to the Seven Disciples

21 After these things Jesus showed Himself again to the disciples at the ^aSea of Tiberias, and in this way He showed Himself: ²Simon Peter, ^bThomas called the Twin, ^cNathanael of ^dCana in Galilee, ^ethe sons of Zebedee, and two others of His disciples were together. ³Simon Peter said to them, “I am going fishing.”

They said to him, “We are going with you also.” They went out and ^fimmediately got into the boat, and that night they caught nothing. ⁴But when the morning had now come, Jesus stood on the shore; yet the disciples ^fdid not know that it was Jesus. ⁵Then ^gJesus said to them, “Children, have you any food?”

They answered Him, “No.”

⁶And He said to them, ^h“Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and you will find some.” So they cast, and now they were not able to draw it in because of the multitude of fish.

⁷Therefore ⁱthat disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, “It is the Lord!” Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on his outer garment (for he had removed it), and plunged into the sea. ⁸But the other disciples came in the little boat (for they were not far from land, but about two hundred cubits), dragging the net with fish. ⁹Then, as soon as they had come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid on it, and bread. ¹⁰Jesus said to them, “Bring some of the fish which you have just caught.”

¹¹Simon Peter went up and dragged the net to land, full of large fish, one hundred and fifty-three; and although there were so many, the net was not broken. ¹²Jesus said to them, ^j“Come and eat breakfast.” Yet none of the disciples dared ask Him, ¹⁴This is now ^kthe third time Jesus showed Himself to His disciples after He was raised from the dead.

Christ Speaks to Peter

¹⁵So when they had eaten breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, “Simon, son of ²Jonah, do you love Me more than these?”

He said to Him, “Yes, Lord; You know that I ³love You.”

He said to him, ^l“Feed My lambs.”

¹⁶He said to him again a second time, “Simon, son of ⁴Jonah, do you love Me?”

He said to Him, “Yes, Lord; You know that I ⁵love You.”

^mHe said to him, “Tend My ⁿsheep.”

¹⁷He said to him the third time, “Simon, son of ⁶Jonah, do you ⁷love Me?” Peter was grieved because He said to him the third time, “Do you ⁷love Me?”

And he said to Him, “Lord, ^oYou know all things; You know that I ⁷love You.”

Jesus said to him, “Feed My sheep. ¹⁸Most assuredly, I say to you, when you were younger, you girded yourself and walked where you wished; but when you are old, you will stretch out your hands, and another will gird you and carry you where you do not wish.”

¹⁹This He spoke, signifying ^qby what death he would glorify God. And when He had spoken this, He said to him, ^r“Follow Me.”

²⁰Then Peter, turning around, saw the disciple ^swhom Jesus loved following, ^twho also had leaned on His breast at the supper, and said, “Lord, who is the one who betrays You?” ²¹Peter, seeing him, 21:2 John, the author of this Gospel, was one of the sons of Zebedee. The omission of his name here is consistent with his reserve about everything connected with himself in his book.

21:4 the disciples did not know: Perhaps the apostles did not recognize Jesus because they were preoccupied with their work as Mary Magdalene had been with her sorrow (20:14). In addition, there was not much light at this time of day. When the morning had now come refers to daybreak.

21:5 have you any food: The question from the shore was probably regarded as a request to buy fish. The disciples answered that they had nothing to sell.

21:7 That disciple whom Jesus loved is commonly considered to be John, the author of this Gospel. Peter . . . plunged into the sea: John was the first to recognize the Lord; Peter was the first to act. Though Peter often made bad decisions, he had zeal that would eventually be channeled to good use (see Acts 2:14–41).

21:8 Two hundred cubits is about a hundred yards.

21:14 The phrase the third time applies to the disciples as a group. John himself has related three appearances before this one, the first being to Mary Magdalene (20:19–23, 26–29).

21:15 More than these means more than the other disciples (see Matt. 26:22). On two different occasions Peter had claimed extraordinary love for Christ, even comparing himself to other men (see 13:37; Matt. 26:33).

21:16 Tend means to shepherd. Lambs need to be fed (v. 15); sheep need to be guided. Peter would need to care for diverse people in different ways, as Christ had done with His disciples.

21:17 Peter denied the Lord at least three times. Here he affirmed his love for the Lord for the third time.

21:18 Peter must have been bewildered by Christ's words to him. Jesus had just spoken of the future ministry of Peter; now He spoke of Peter's death. When Peter was younger, he walked where he wished, moving about without restriction. When Peter became older, he would stretch out his hands, looking for help. Another will gird you means that Peter would be bound as a condemned criminal. The day would come when Peter would be totally under the control of Roman executioners, who would carry him where he would not wish to go, to death (v. 19). His death is hinted at in 2 Pet. 1:13, 14. Jesus' words here confirm the early church tradition that Peter was crucified upside down.

21:20, 21 The disciple whom Jesus loved is commonly considered to be John, the author of this Gospel. what about this man: Peter wanted to know if John too would suffer a violent death.

The Restoration of Peter

John is the only Gospel writer who records the account of Jesus restoring Peter to His ministry after Peter’s three denials (18:17, 25–27; 21:15–19). Only a short time before this dramatic encounter with the risen Lord, Peter had boldly announced that he would give his life for Jesus. Jesus responded by informing Peter that he would actually deny Him three times that same night (13:37, 38).

Later that evening, Jesus was arrested. While He stood trial before the chief priest, Peter hid outside in the courtyard. Three times Peter was recognized as one of Jesus’ followers; three times he denied knowing Jesus, thus fulfilling Jesus’ words. Luke 22:62 tells us that when Peter realized what he had done, he “wept bitterly.”

Imagine, then, Peter’s emotions during his encounter with the resurrected Savior by the Sea of Tiberias. On the one hand, he was no doubt overjoyed to see the risen Lord. On the other hand, he may still have been ashamed and embarrassed about his desertion of Jesus in the hour of His greatest need.

Three times the Lord asked Peter if Peter loved Him. The first two times, Christ used the word agapaō, signifying a love of commitment, a love of the will. Peter responded with the word phileō, indicating his strong emotion for the Lord. The word suggests warmth, fondness, and friendship.

When Peter acknowledged that he loved Christ, the Lord gave him the task of feeding His lambs and taking care of His sheep. Expressing love for Christ implies accepting a duty to do the work of God and to be faithful. Peter had some difficulty with such faithfulness during Christ’s earthly ministry. As Christ was getting ready to depart, He wanted to elicit a commitment from Peter.

The third time Jesus asked Peter if he loved Him He used the word phileō, indicating strong friendship. Christ had taught that a friend who loves will lay down his life for a friend. Peter, instead, had denied Christ three times. With Peter’s final response, “You know that I love You,” Christ had drawn a commitment from Peter and assured the other disciples of the bond between Himself and Peter. In the process, He demonstrated His complete forgiveness of Peter. With this exchange, the Lord restored Peter to a position of leadership in the ongoing ministry of the gospel.

²²Jesus said to him, “If I ⁸will that he remain ^utill I come, what is that to you? You follow Me.”

²³Then this saying went out among the brethren that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but, “If I will that he remain till I come, what is that to you?”

The Conclusion of John’s Gospel

²⁴This is the disciple who ^vtestifies of these things, and wrote these things; and we know that his testimony is true.

²⁵^wAnd there are also many other things that Jesus did, which if they were written one by one, ^xI suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that would be written. Amen.

21:22, 23 You follow Me: The Lord told Peter that he should be concerned with following God’s will himself and not worrying about God’s will for others. this disciple would not die: The rumor was that Jesus would return before John died.

21:24 This is the disciple: The disciple was the one whom Jesus loved (v. 20). This is basically John’s signature to his Gospel.
21:25 there are also many other things that Jesus did: The Gospel of John is truthful (v. 24), but it is not exhaustive.

THE ACTS

OF THE APOSTLES

THE INFECTIOUS NEWS first appeared in Jerusalem, then spread quickly from person to person and from city to city. It faced opposition everywhere it went. But the world was ill-equipped to fight it. Empowered by the Holy Spirit, the followers of Christ relayed the Good News about Jesus everywhere. In less than 35 years, the gospel had reached cities from Jerusalem to Rome.

Luke wrote the Book of Acts to show the fulfillment of Jesus' words, "I will build My church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it" (see Matt. 16:18). Before Jesus ascended to heaven, He commanded His followers to make disciples of all nations (see Luke 24:46–49). Luke begins Acts with a reiteration of that commission and a description of how it would be carried out (1:8). This commission not only ties the Book of Acts to the Gospel of Luke, but it also provides an outline for the book: the witness in Jerusalem and Judea (1:1—6:7); the witness in Judea and Samaria (6:8—9:31); and the witness to the ends of the earth (9:32—28:31).

The Book of Acts begins in Jerusalem with the disciples huddled in a room on the Day of Pentecost. Then the Holy Spirit came upon them and authorized them to be His witnesses. The rest of Acts describes the ripple effect of that great event. Jesus' followers first witnessed to the Jews in Jerusalem, with Peter at the center of the movement. Then persecution broke out (7:60), scattering believers into Samaria and the rest of the known world. Saul of Tarsus, once a leader of the persecution, became a leader of the persecuted. In chapter 11, the focus of the Book of Acts moves from Peter's ministry to the Jews to Saul's ministry to the Gentiles. Under his more familiar name Paul, this converted persecutor established churches in Asia Minor and Europe. The Book of Acts records three of Paul's missionary journeys, as well as his voyage to Rome to face his trial. The book ends abruptly with Paul under house arrest in Rome. The ending is fitting, because the entire Book of Acts is itself just a prologue. Jesus has not finished His work on earth. The narrative begun by Luke in this book will not end until Jesus Christ returns in glory (see 1:11; 1 Cor. 15:28).

Author The Book of Acts begins with a reference to the author's "former account" written to a man named Theophilus (1:1), a clear reference to the Gospel of Luke (see Luke 1:3). Even though the author does not mention himself by name in either the Gospel or Acts, early tradition identifies Luke as the author of both volumes. As early as the second century, ancient authors, such as Irenaeus (c. A.D. 180) indicate this.

Called “the beloved physician” by Paul (see Col. 4:14), Luke was a doctor Paul met in Troas (see 16:8–11). He cared for Paul during the illnesses he suffered on his missionary endeavors. Paul’s references to Luke in 2 Timothy 4:11 and Philemon 24 portray Luke as Paul’s faithful traveling companion. After the two met in Troas, Luke included himself with the missionary team recorded in Acts (see 16:10, the beginning of the so-called “we” sections in the book). Luke’s faithful friendship to Paul continued until Paul’s death in Rome, for Luke was one of the few people who did not desert him (see 2 Tim. 4:11).

Date The Book of Acts does not record Paul’s death. Instead it ends abruptly during Paul’s residence in Rome (see 28:30). Paul’s house arrest in Rome occurred around A.D. 61, marking the earliest possible date for the book’s completion. Acts makes no reference to the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 or to Nero’s persecution of Christians following the fire of Rome in A.D. 64. Surely Luke would have mentioned these significant events if they had occurred when he wrote. Moreover, the many references to Paul’s vindication before Roman officials would not make sense if Nero had already started his vehement persecution of Christians. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that Acts was written between A.D. 61 and 64.

Purpose The Book of Acts provides a condensed history of the early church, an eyewitness account of the miraculous spread of the gospel from Jerusalem to Rome. The book details how the Holy Spirit authorized our spiritual forebears to carry out Jesus’ mandate to be His witnesses throughout the world. The accounts in Acts include stirring examples for us to follow, but the recurring theme of the Book of Acts is that our spiritual ancestors were empowered by the Holy Spirit. That same power is available to us. God has not left us at the mercy of our own weaknesses; He has sent the Holy Spirit to help us follow their example (see Eph. 5:17, 18), and to be Jesus’ witnesses in all of the earth.

Theology The Book of Acts is a historical narrative, but at the same time it has profound theological significance. A believer’s faith rests upon the facts of history: the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. These historical events were recorded by Luke in his Gospel in order to evoke belief. If the historical fact of Christ’s resurrection is not true, then a believer’s faith has no foundation. As Paul states, “If Christ is not risen, your faith is futile; you are still in your sins” (1 Cor. 15:17). The Book of Acts reassures believers that their faith in Christ rests on fact. The extraordinary growth of the early church was based directly on the resurrected Christ. His command and empowerment of the disciples through the Holy Spirit is the only reasonable explanation for the incredible and rapid spread of the gospel in the first century. The early Christians were not testifying about a dead Christ, but a living Christ whom they had seen with their own eyes (1:1–5; Luke 24:36–53; 2 Pet. 1:16). The same is true for us today. Jesus lives and continues to work through the church.

CHRIST IN THE SCRIPTURES

Although Jesus ascends into heaven in chapter 1, He figures significantly in the rest of the Book of Acts. The resurrected Christ is the central theme of the sermons, defenses, and the life of the church through the entire book.

Luke intended Acts to be an apologetic that logically attests to Jesus’ divinity. And he accomplished his purpose. Notice his references to the eyewitness accounts of Jesus’ resurrection, the firsthand testimonies of Jesus’ followers (including a converted critic of Christianity by the name of Saul), and the evidence of the Holy Spirit’s supernatural power. No wonder Luke quotes Peter as saying, “To Him all the prophets witness that, through His name, whoever believes in Him will receive remission of sins” (10:43). “Nor is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved” (4:12).

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Sabbath Day's Journey

“A Sabbath day’s journey” (1:12) referred to the distance a Jew could travel on the Sabbath without breaking the law. This distance was usually reckoned to be about “two thousand cubits” (about a thousand yards) because of the distance between the ark of the covenant and the rest of the Israelite camp in the wilderness (Josh. 3:4). The idea was that every person within the camp or city would be close enough to the center of worship to take part in the services without having to travel such a great distance that the Sabbath became a harried and busy day. This law, although noble in intent, was soon abused by a strict legalism. In the NT, Jesus often clashed with the Pharisees because of their blind legalism over observance of the Sabbath (Matt. 12:1–9).

upon you; and ^m you shall be ³ witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and ⁿ Samaria, and to the ^o end of the earth.”

Jesus Ascends to Heaven

^{9p} Now when He had spoken these things, while they watched, ^q He was

1:1 Luke addressed his Gospel to the “most excellent Theophilus” (see Luke 1:3), using a title that indicates Theophilus was a person of high rank. The formal title is dropped here.

1:2, 3 Taken up refers to Christ’s ascension, the end of His earthly ministry. These verses look back to Luke 24:51 and ahead to vv. 9, 22. the apostles . . . to whom He also presented Himself alive: The resurrected Jesus presented Himself “not to all the people, but to witnesses chosen before by God” (10:41). In the forty days between Jesus’ resurrection and ascension, there are recorded some 10 or 11 appearances of Jesus to believers confirming His resurrection from the dead. On the last of these appearances, Jesus gathered His apostles together and commanded them not to leave Jerusalem (v. 4). Many infallible proofs serve as the basis for the believer’s confidence in the resurrection of our Lord. The Greek word translated infallible proofs speaks of “convincing, decisive proof.” Christian belief is not built on speculation or myth but on the sovereign acts and words of God incarnate in the time-space universe. The kingdom of God was the central topic of discussion between Christ and His apostles during the 40 days between Jesus’ resurrection and ascension. The goal of history is not the Cross, but the crown—the time when King Jesus reveals Himself in all His majesty and reigns in glory (see Is. 11; Dan. 7:13, 14; 1 Cor. 15:24–28; Rev. 20:4–6).

1:4 As predicted by John the Baptist (see Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; John 1:33) and reiterated by Jesus Himself, the Promise of the Father was the promise of baptism in the Holy Spirit. There are seven references in Scripture to baptism in the Spirit. Five are prophetic (see v. 5; Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; John 1:33); one is historical (11:15, 16), referring to the Day of Pentecost; and one is doctrinal (see 1 Cor. 12:13), explaining the meaning of baptism in the Spirit.

1:5 shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit: The passive tense of the verb indicates that baptism does not depend upon our efforts to obtain the promise, but upon the Lord’s will. The simple future tense demonstrates that there is no uncertainty or doubt in the promise. The Greek word for baptized means “to immerse” or “to dip.” It also connotes being identified with someone or something. Spirit baptism means we have been placed in spiritual union with one another in the body of Jesus Christ, the church (see 1 Cor. 12:12, 13).

1:6 Therefore: Christ’s statement that the Spirit was about to be given evidently triggered concern among the disciples about the establishment of the kingdom. Connecting the coming of the Spirit and the coming of the kingdom was consistent with OT thought (see 3:21; Is. 32:15–20; 44:3–5; Ezek. 39:28, 29; Joel 2:28–3:1; Zech. 12:8–10). At this time expresses the anxiety of the apostles as they anticipated the kingdom rule that Christ had spoken of in the preceding days and weeks (v. 3). The popular expectation and hope was that Christ would establish His kingdom immediately.

1:7 It is not for you to know: Jesus did not correct His disciples’ views concerning the restoration of the kingdom to Israel (v. 6). Instead He corrected their views concerning the timing of the event. This was the same erroneous thinking that He had sought to correct with His parable in Luke 19:11–27, the parable of the minas. times or seasons: These words speak to the issue of timing differently. Times refers to chronology or the duration of time—“how long.” Seasons refers to the epochs or “events” that occur within time. The disciples were not to know how long it would be before Christ set up His kingdom, nor were they to know what events would transpire before the establishment of it. Peter points out that even the OT prophets did not know the timing between the sufferings of Christ and the glories that would follow (1 Pet. 1:11).

1:8 Instead of being concerned about the date of Christ’s return, the disciples’ job was to carry His message throughout the world. you shall receive power: This does not refer to personal power for godly living, as demonstrated in the lives of OT saints (see Abraham in Gen. 22; Joseph in Gen. 39; Moses in Ex. 14; Daniel in Dan. 6). This was power for a new task—namely, to take the gospel to the ends of the earth. Be witnesses is Christ’s command to His disciples to tell others about Him regardless of the consequences. Church tradition tells us that all but one of the 11 apostles who heard this promise became martyrs. (John died in exile.) God empowered His disciples to be faithful witnesses even when they faced the most vehement opposition.

1:9–11 Jesus promised that He would not leave nor forsake us, but would be with us always, even to the end of the age (see Matt. 28:20; taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. ¹⁰ And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them ^r in white apparel, ¹¹ who also said, “Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven? The Upper Room Prayer Meeting

¹² Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day’s journey. ¹³ And when they had entered, they went up ^u into the upper room where they were staying: ^v Peter, James, John, and Andrew; Philip and Thomas; Bartholomew and Matthew; James the son of Alphaeus and ^w Simon the Zealot; and ^x Judas the son of James. ¹⁴ ^y These all continued with one ^z accord in prayer ⁵ and supplication, with ² the women and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with ^a His brothers.

John 14:18). He fulfilled this promise in the form of the Holy Spirit, who dwells within believers (see John 16:4–7). taken up . . . cloud received Him . . . He went up: These three statements portray the gradual, majestic departure of Jesus from the earth. will so come: The Second Coming of Christ and the establishment of His kingdom (vv. 6, 7) will occur the same way Jesus ascended: physically, visibly, and in the clouds.

1:12 A Sabbath day’s journey was the distance permitted by Jewish custom for travel on a Sabbath day (see Ex. 16:29; Num. 35:5; Josh. 3:4), about a half mile. Anyone who traveled farther than this would be regarded as breaking the fourth commandment.

1:13 The upper room could have been the room where Jesus spent the last Passover with His disciples, or the room in which He appeared to them after His resurrection (recorded in Luke 24). It is possible that the same room was the site of both events. This room may have belonged to Mary, the mother of John Mark. Her house is mentioned in 12:12 as a meeting place of disciples. Jesus’ followers were staying in this upper room, waiting in Jerusalem as the Lord had directed, until they received the power Jesus had promised (v. 5).

1:14 with one accord: This phrase, which is found 11 times in the Book of Acts, is made up of two words that mean “same” and “mind.” The phrase speaks of people sharing the same mind or thinking like-mindedly. It does not refer to people who all think and feel the same way about everything, but to people who set aside personal feelings and commit themselves to one task—in this case witnessing to others about the Lord Jesus Christ (see Rom. 15:5, 6). Jesus said the world would know that He was sent from the heavenly Father when people saw the love between believers (see John 17:21): The unity among the believers described in Acts was a demonstration of this love. Mary the mother of Jesus receives special recognition in the group. While on the Cross, Jesus had requested that John care for His mother (see John 19:25–27).

1:15, 16 From the earliest days of the apostles’ calling, Peter assumed a position of leadership. Though he often made mistakes, he was never bashful about dealing with problems. It was inevitable that the matter of Judas Iscariot be dealt with. In the upper room a hundred and twenty people gathered. No doubt the majority of them were among those who saw the risen Christ (see 1 Cor. 15:6). Though Christ spent most of His time with the Twelve, there were many other disciples who traveled with Jesus (see John 6:66). Holy Spirit spoke . . . mouth of David: Peter equated the speech of David with the voice of the Holy Spirit. This is an example of the biblical doctrine of inspiration, which asserts that the words of Scripture are equally the words of God and the words of men, with no error (see 2 Tim. 3:16; 1 Pet. 1:11; 2 Pet. 1:20, 21).

1:18, 19 purchased a field: The field that was obtained with the money Judas received for betraying Jesus was actually purchased by the priests after Judas hanged himself (see Matt. 27:6–8). Since the money legally belonged to Judas, the priests purchased the field in his name. burst open . . . entrails gushed out: Apparently the noose Judas used to hang himself broke and his body fell, rupturing in the middle. This is why the place was called the Field of Blood. 1:20–22 Peter applied Psalms 69 and 109 to the apostles’ situation. Psalm 69:25 speaks of the removal of the psalmist’s enemy. Psalm 109:8 mentions the replacement of an enemy by someone else. Peter, enlightened by the teaching of Jesus (see 1:3; Luke 24:44–46), regarded these scriptural references as ultimately speaking of Judas the traitor. It was the defection of Judas, not his death, that caused Peter to ask the disciples to choose another to replace him. When James was later killed (12:2), no replacement was chosen for him.

(Gk. epi to auto) (1:15; 2:1, 44; 1 Cor. 11:20; 14:23) Strong’s #1909; 847

This Greek idiom means “toward the same thing” or “in the same place”; it conveys the idea of united purpose or collective unity. In the early church it acquired a special meaning, indicating the union of the Christian body. All the members of the church not only gathered together regularly, they shared all things in common and were committed to each other and Christ with united fervor.

Jesus went in and out among us, ²²beginning from the baptism of John to that day when ^kHe was taken up from us, one of these must ^lbecome a witness with us of His resurrection.”

²³And they proposed two: Joseph called ^mBarsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. ²⁴And they prayed and said, “You, O Lord, ⁿwho know the hearts of all, show which of these two You have chosen ²⁵^o to take part in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.” ²⁶And they cast their lots, and the lot fell on Matthias. And he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

The Crowd's Response

⁵And there were dwelling in Jerusalem Jews, ^fdevout men, from every nation under heaven. ⁶And when this sound occurred, the ^gmultitude came together, and were confused, because everyone heard them speak in his own language. ⁷Then they were all amazed and marveled, saying to one another, “Look, are not all these who speak ^hGalileans? ⁸And how is it that we hear, each in our own ³language in which we were born? ⁹Parthians and Medes and Elamites, those dwelling in Mesopotamia, Judea and ⁱCappadocia, Pontus and Asia, ¹⁰Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya adjoining Cyrene, visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes, ¹¹Cretans and ⁴Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own tongues the wonderful works of God.” ¹²So they were all amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, “Whatever could this mean?”

¹³Others mocking said, “They are full of new wine.”

Peter specified two qualifications for the appointed apostle. First, he had to have accompanied the disciples from the beginning of Jesus' ministry, His baptism. The replacement had to be someone who had seen what the apostles had seen and heard what they had heard, an eyewitness to the miracles and teachings of Jesus. Second, he had to be an eyewitness of Jesus' resurrection.

1:24–26 cast their lots: It was customary for the Jews to determine the will of God on certain questions by this method. The names of Matthias and Justus, probably written on stones, were put in a jar that was shaken until one of the names fell out. The name that fell out of the vessel would be the one that God had chosen to take the place of Judas. The fall of the lot was determined not by chance but by God's sovereignty.

2:1 Pentecost was one of the three major Jewish festivals; the other two are the Passover and the Feast of Tabernacles. From the Greek word for “fifty,” Pentecost was so named because it fell on the fiftieth day after the Sabbath of the Passover. Pentecost was also known as “the Feast of Weeks,” “the Firstfruits of the Wheat Harvest,” and “the Day of Firstfruits.” During this harvest celebration, the Jews brought to God the firstfruits of their harvest in thanksgiving, expecting that God would give the rest of the harvest as His blessing. This particular Day of Pentecost was the day of firstfruits of Christ's church, the beginning of the great harvest of souls who would come to know Christ and be joined together through the work of the Holy Spirit. they were all . . . in one place: The place may have been part of the temple. It is difficult to imagine how the large crowd mentioned in v. 5 could have observed the activities in the upper room or congregated in the narrow streets outside the house where the disciples were meeting.

2:2 A sound like a rushing mighty wind was needed to attract the multitudes to the small gathering of apostles who were sitting, the normal position for listening to someone speak, rather than standing for prayer.

2:3 there appeared to them divided tongues, as of fire: After the great crowd-gathering sound of v. 2 came the visual manifestation of God. Fire often indicated the presence of God. God initially appeared to Moses in a burning bush that was not consumed (see Ex. 3). God guided the children of Israel with a pillar of fire by night

(see Ex. 13:21, 22), and He descended before them in fire on Mt. Sinai (see Ex. 19:18). God sent fire to consume Elijah's offering on Mt. Carmel (see 1 Kin. 18:38, 39), and He used a vision of fire to warn Ezekiel of His coming judgment (see Ezek. 1:26, 27).

2:4 The word translated tongues here is the normal Greek word for known languages. Speaking in “tongues” or diverse languages underscored the universal outreach of the church. These witnesses were speaking foreign dialects to the people who had gathered for Pentecost from other nations. The Day of Pentecost, as one of the three major Jewish celebrations, was a pilgrimage event. People who lived outside Israel traveled to Jerusalem to celebrate the festival. They came from Arabia, Crete, Asia, and even as far away as Rome. Many of these people stayed in Jerusalem for the entire 50-day celebration. Spirit gave them utterance: Note that the text does not say that the Spirit spoke through the apostles, but that the Spirit gave them the ability to speak in languages that they had not previously known.

2:5–11 men, from every nation under heaven: People from all over the known world were in Jerusalem. Most of them probably knew Greek, but they also spoke the various languages of the Mediterranean world. everyone heard them speak in his own language: The visitors to Jerusalem probably expected the apostles to use Aramaic or Greek, but instead they heard their own dialect. The visitors were astonished because they knew this was most unlikely unless the speakers had come from their land. This was a sign from heaven, a supernatural event. the wonderful works of God: It appears that the “speaking in tongues” did not consist of proclaiming the gospel. Rather, the apostles were praising God's mighty works (see 10:46; 1 Cor. 14:16).

2:12, 13 A contrast is made between two groups of people, the Hellenists and the Hebraists (6:1). Both groups heard the apostles speaking in tongues. Verse 12 speaks of the reaction of the Hellenists, who were from various parts of the world: they understood the dialects in which the apostles spoke and consequently viewed the event as miraculous. On the other hand, those mentioned in v. 13 were Judeans and did not understand the foreign languages the apostles were speaking. They concluded the apostles were drunk and speaking gibberish.

2:14 Peter, the first disciple to recognize the truth about Jesus (see Matt. 16:13–19), was also the first to bear witness of Him. Peter preached his sermon to men of Judea who had judged the whole episode as being the effect of too much wine (vv. 13, 15).

2:16–21 Peter began his sermon by quoting Joel 2:28–32 from the Greek translation of the OT. In that passage, God had promised that there would be a time when all those who followed Him would receive His Spirit, and not just prophets, kings, and priests. Peter pointed out that that time had come to pass. God would speak to and through all those who would come to Him, whether in visions, dreams, or prophecy. This was the beginning of the last days. God’s final act of salvation began with the pouring out of His Spirit. This final act of deliverance will continue to the end of this age.

2:23 being delivered by the determined purpose: Jesus Christ was God’s provision for the judgment of sin; yet it was our sinfulness that made His death necessary. In other words, it was both the sinfulness of humanity and God’s plan to save humanity that put Jesus to death on the Cross (see Is. 53:10). God exercises sovereign control over all events—even the death of His Son. Yet at the same time, people are still responsible for their own sinful actions.

³⁶“Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Christ.”

³⁷Now when they heard this, ^hthey were cut to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, “Men and brethren, what shall we do?”

³⁸Then Peter said to them, ⁱ“Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the ²remission of sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. ³⁹For the promise is to you and ^jto your children, and ^kto all who are afar off, as many as the Lord our God will call.”

2:25-36 Joel prophesied that the Spirit would come; Jesus fulfilled that promise when He sent the Spirit (see John 14:16). If Jesus was dead, He could not have sent the Spirit. Therefore, He must be alive. Furthermore, Jesus could not have sent the Spirit unless He had ascended as Lord to heaven. Therefore, Jesus is both our Master and our Savior. let me speak freely: Peter knew (v. 29) that no one could dispute the point he was about to make from Ps. 16:8-11, in which the Messiah is described as not decaying. Because David had been buried and had not come back to life, the psalm had to be speaking about someone else, David's heir. Peter pointed out that this heir is Jesus, who was put to death and resurrected. Not only had Jesus been raised from the dead, He is now at the right hand of God. As further proof of this Peter quoted David again. According to Ps. 110:1, the Messiah would sit at the right hand of God. David had not ascended to the heavens. But the apostles declared themselves to be witnesses of the very ascension spoken of in this psalm, the ascension of Jesus. Based on these points, Peter's conclusion is clear: Jesus, the One who had been crucified, is both Lord and Christ.

2:37 Peter's argument was irrefutable. Cut to the heart, the Judeans asked what they should do. This was the point of new birth. The Spirit of God brought conviction to their hearts, the springboard of action.

2:38 Repent: Repentance for the Judeans involved rejecting their former attitudes and opinions concerning who Jesus was. be baptized: When a person recognizes who Jesus Christ really is, the result is the desire to do what He commands. The first action that Jesus requires of a new believer is baptism (see Matt. 28:19, 20), the outward expression of inward faith. The idea of an unbaptized Christian is foreign to the NT (v. 41; 8:12, 36; 9:18; 10:48; 16:15, 33; 18:8). for the remission of sins: Is Peter saying that we must be baptized to receive forgiveness of our sins? Scripture clearly teaches that we are justified by faith alone, not by works (see Rom. 4:1-8; Eph. 2:8, 9). The critical word in this phrase is the word for, which may also be translated “with a view to.” A comparison of Peter's message in 10:34-43 makes it clear that “remission of sins” comes to “whoever believes.” Believers are baptized in view of God's work of forgiveness, not in order to receive that forgiveness. God's forgiveness in Christ gives baptism its significance. Baptism is a public declaration that a person's sins have been forgiven because of the finished work of Christ on the Cross. The gift of the Holy Spirit was the promise of Jesus in John 14:16, 17. The Holy Spirit puts us in communion with the Father and the Son. This indwelling of the Spirit is a beautiful promise of the New Covenant (see Jer. 31:33, 34), an indication not only that our sins are forgiven, but also that the Lord has placed His law within us.

2:39 Peter exhorted his listeners to repent. In other words, each person had to make the decision to turn away from his or her sinful habits and turn to God in faith (16:31, 33, 34). Then God would forgive that person's sins and declare them righteous because of Jesus' work on the Cross. to you and to your children: In first-century Israel, a father held tremendous influence in his home. When a father chose to receive Christ and be baptized, his children would follow his lead.

(Gk. prognōsis) (2:23; 1 Pet. 1:2) Strong's #4268

The Greek term indicates “knowledge beforehand,” either of things that are seen or things that are intended or arranged. These meanings are illustrated in Acts 26:5; Rom. 11:2; 1 Pet. 1:2, 20; 2 Pet. 3:17. In the present context, the word denotes God's knowledge of His Son's death on the Cross long before the event occurred. This is clearly affirmed by Peter (see 1 Pet. 1:20) and is the implication of Rev. 13:8. Jesus' death for our redemption was not an afterthought; it was part of God's eternal plan.

2:40–43 three thousand souls: The response to Peter’s sermon was tremendous. Such impressive growth in the number of believers created additional needs and responsibilities. The apostles had the duty of training this large group and bringing them into fellowship with the other believers. This was a four-step process: (1) The new believers were to be trained in the apostles’ doctrine. Uniformity of belief concerning the person of Jesus Christ—based on the eyewitness testimony of His followers—was essential. (2) The new believers were to be trained in the fellowship of the church. The Greek word translated fellowship means sharing in the lives of other believers. (3) The new believers were to be trained in the breaking of bread, probably a reference to the Lord’s Supper (see 1 Cor. 11:23, 24). Some believe this is a broader reference to the “love feast,” a meal of fellowship in the early church. (4) The new believers were to be trained in the discipline of prayer. Corporate prayers were viewed as an essential part of the spiritual growth of the church. Wonders and signs apparently were given by the Lord to the apostles to validate their divinely ordained position and to verify the truthfulness of their witness in the establishment of the early church (see Heb. 2:3, 4).

(Gk. proskartereō, proskarterēsis) (2:42, 46; Rom. 12:12; 13:6) Strong’s #4342; 4343

The NT makes it clear that faith alone can save. But it makes it equally clear that perseverance in doing good works is the greatest indication that an individual’s faith is genuine (James 2:14–26). Indeed, perseverance springs from a faithful trust that God has been steadfast toward His people. Through persevering in God’s work, Christians prove their deep appreciation for God’s saving grace (1 Cor. 15:57, 58). As a result of perseverance, the Christian can expect not only to enhance the strength of the church, but also to build up strength of character (Rom. 5:3, 4). In short, Christians can expect to become closer to God. They learn that they can persevere primarily because God is intimately related to them (Rom. 8:25–27) and especially because they have the assurance of a final reward in heaven (1 John 5:13).

Missionary Efforts

Christ had established His church at the crossroads of the ancient world. Trade routes brought merchants and ambassadors through Palestine where they came into contact with the gospel. Thus in the Book of Acts we see the conversion of officials from Rome (10:1–48), Ethiopia (8:26–40), and other lands.

Soon after Stephen’s death, the church began a systematic effort to carry the gospel to other nations. Peter visited the major cities of Palestine, preaching to both Jews and Gentiles. Others went to Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch of Syria. Hearing that the gospel was well received in these areas, the church in Jerusalem sent Barnabas to encourage the new Christians in Antioch (11:22, 23). Barnabas then went to Tarsus to find the young convert named Saul. Barnabas took Saul back to Antioch, where they taught in the church for over a year (11:26).

A prophet named Agabus predicted that the Roman Empire would suffer a great famine under Emperor Claudius. Herod Agrippa was persecuting the church in Jerusalem; he had already executed James the brother of Jesus, and had thrown Peter into prison (12:1–4). So the Christians in Antioch collected money to send to their friends in Jerusalem, and they dispatched Barnabas and Saul with the relief. Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem with a young man named John Mark (12:25).

By this time, several evangelists had emerged within the church at Antioch so the congregation sent Barnabas and Saul on a missionary trip to Asia Minor (chs. 13–14). This was the first of three great missionary journeys that Saul (later known as Paul) made to carry the gospel to the far reaches of the Roman Empire.

The early Christian missionaries focused their teachings upon the Person and work of Jesus Christ. They declared that He was the sinless Servant and Son of God who had given His life to atone for the sins of all people who put their trust in Him (Rom. 5:8–10). He was the One whom God raised from the dead to defeat the powers of sin (Rom. 4:24, 25; 1 Cor. 15:17).

God. ¹⁰Then they knew that it was he who ^hsat begging alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

Preaching in Solomon's Portico

¹¹Now as the lame man who was healed held on to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the porch ⁱwhich is called Solomon's, greatly amazed. ¹²So when Peter saw ^{it}, he responded to the people: "Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this? Or why look so intently at us, as though by our own power or godliness we had made this man walk? ¹³*j*The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, ^kglorified His Servant Jesus, whom you ^ldelivered up and ^mdenied in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let ^{Him} go. ¹⁴But you denied ⁿthe Holy One ^oand the Just, and ^pasked for a murderer to be granted to you, ¹⁵and killed the ²Prince of life, ^qwhom God raised from the dead, ^rof which we are witnesses. ¹⁶*s*And His name, through faith in His name, has made this man strong, whom you see and know. Yes, the faith which ^{comes} through Him has given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

¹⁷"Yet now, brethren, I know that ^tyou did ^{it} in ignorance, as ^{did} also your rulers. ¹⁸But ^uthose things which God foretold ^vby the mouth of all His prophets, that the Christ would suffer, He has thus fulfilled.

Zech. 13:6; 1 Pet. 1:10

2:44, 45 The disposal and distribution of possessions in the early church was directed among all, as anyone had need. When a physical or spiritual need became known in the church, action was taken to address it (see 1 John 3:17). The NT believers demonstrated their love for one another by giving self-sacrificially.

3:1 went up . . . to the temple: The disciples of Jesus continued to follow Jewish tradition. A prayer service accompanied each of the two daily sacrifices, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. The ninth hour would have been 3 p.m.

3:2 The lame man was laid near the gate called Beautiful. This gate opened into the Court of the Women from the outer Court of the Gentiles. It served, in a sense, as the front door to the temple proper. The Beautiful Gate would have been an ideal place for the man to position himself for begging. Those who ignored the man's pleas may have found it difficult to worship due to the guilt they felt for refusing to help such a powerless person. Moreover, as people left the temple they would be more apt to give to someone who was waiting there for help.

3:6 The apostles indicated immediately that they did not represent themselves in what they were about to do. They represented Jesus Christ. Because of His name—who He is—the beggar would receive the miracle of God. The phrase "in the name of Jesus" is not a magical formula used to give some affirmation or guarantee to a prayer. A person's name represented that person's authority and influence. The power in the name of Jesus comes from what the Holy Spirit will do because of that name. Note that Peter and John did not lay their hands on the beggar and pray for God to heal him. Rather as apostles with the power of God to perform signs and wonders, they simply told him to rise up and walk.

3:7 his feet and ankle bones received strength: Luke, a physician by profession, described what took place. Instantly strength was given to the portions of the body that needed it. Blood supply was increased to the muscle. The brain sent signals to the nerve endings of the ankles and feet. The hardened fluid between the joints was softened, and the atrophied muscles and ligaments regained flexibility. The feet suddenly could bear the man's weight.

3:10 The people had seen the beggar day after day, maybe year after year. His healing was not a staged event. When the beggar stood and walked, the only reasonable explanation was that God had healed him.

3:11, 12 the people ran together to them: People were following after them, but the apostles immediately gave all the glory to Jesus.

3:13–16 glorified His Servant Jesus: Peter's reference to "His Servant" comes from Is. 52:13, a messianic psalm. Jesus can be considered the Servant of God because He gave His life as a guilt offering for the sins of all humanity. The Father raised Jesus from the dead as confirmation that His sacrifice was accepted. Peter pointed to the healing of the beggar as a sign of the glorification of Christ. The people had handed Jesus over to Pilate to be crucified. Yet God had raised the crucified Jesus from the dead. It was in the name of this very same Jesus that the crippled man was healed.

3:17, 18 you did . . . God foretold: Throughout Peter's sermon in ch. 2, he balances the human responsibility of the Jews and Romans with the eternal plan of God.

¹⁹ ^w Repent therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, so that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, ²⁰ and that He may send ³ Jesus Christ, who was ⁴ preached to you before, ²¹ ^x whom heaven must receive until the times of ^y restoration of all things, ^z which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since ⁵ the world began. ²² For Moses truly said to the fathers, ^a “The LORD your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your brethren. Him you shall hear in all things, whatever He says to you.” ²³ And it shall be that every soul who will not hear that Prophet shall be utterly destroyed from among the people. ²⁴ Yes, and ^b all the prophets, from Samuel and those who follow, as many as have spoken, have also ⁶ foretold these days. ²⁵ ^c You are sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying to Abraham, ^d “And in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed.” ²⁶ To you ^e first, God, having raised up His Servant Jesus, sent Him to bless you, ^f in turning away every one of you from your iniquities.”

greatly disturbed that they taught the people and preached in Jesus the resurrection from the dead. ³ And they laid hands on them, and put them in custody until the next day, for it was already evening. ⁴ However, many of those who heard the word believed; and the number of the men came to be about five thousand.

Addressing the Sanhedrin

⁵ And it came to pass, on the next day, that their rulers, elders, and scribes, ⁶ as well as ^b Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the family of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem. ⁷ And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, ^c “By what power or by what name have you done this?”

⁸ ^d Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, “Rulers of the people and elders of Israel: ⁹ If we this day are judged for a good deed done to a helpless man, by what means he has been made well, ¹⁰ let it be known to you all, and to all the people of Israel, ^e that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, ^f whom God raised from the dead, by Him this man stands here before you whole. ¹¹ This is the ^g “stone which was rejected by you builders, which has become the

3:19 The word translated refreshing refers to restoration of strength and nourishment. Strength is restored when hope is restored. Peter challenged the people to repent and be converted, to change their thinking about Jesus as their Messiah and to serve Him.

4:1–4 The Sadducees were greatly disturbed for two reasons. First, the Sadducees were skeptics who rejected all the OT except the books of Moses, and who denied the resurrection from the dead. Peter’s teaching about the resurrection challenged their beliefs and teaching. Second, the Sadducees were leaders of the Jews at that time. They came from wealthy families and consorted with the Roman government in order to maintain their position, influence, and wealth. The last thing the Sadducees wanted was for a couple of Jewish men to declare the resurrection of a king. laid hands on them . . . believed: The attempt to silence God’s truth by arresting His messengers did not hinder His work. Though God’s servants are chained, His word is never chained (see 2 Tim. 2:9). The result of the Sadducees’ taking two men into custody was that five thousand people believed the gospel message.

4:6 were gathered together: The Sanhedrin, which consisted of 70 men plus the high priest, was the highest Jewish court. The group consisted of the wealthiest, most educated, and most powerful Jewish men in Israel. Annas the high priest: Annas had been removed as high priest in A.D. 14 by the Romans. At the time of Christ, the high priests were appointed by the Roman governors. Apparently Annas had become a political threat to Rome. The Jewish people refused to acknowledge Roman authority over such matters; so even though Annas was officially removed from his office, the Jewish people still considered him high priest. Caiaphas, the son-in-law of Annas, was the actual high priest. John was most likely the son of Annas who succeeded Caiaphas in A.D. 37.

4:7 Because the healing of the lame man was indisputable (3:1–10), the question was how the man was healed and by whose authority or name the healing had been performed.

4:8–10 Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit: This is the second description in the Book of Acts of someone being filled with the Holy Spirit (see v. 31; 2:4; 9:17; 13:9). The initial filling accompanied the baptism in the Spirit. This filling brought boldness for God’s work. Jesus had promised His disciples that they would stand before kings and rulers and that the Spirit of God within them would implant in their minds exactly what to say to these leaders (see Matt. 10:16–20).

4:11 the chief cornerstone: The OT refers to the cornerstone as the foundation of the earth (Job 38:6), the foundation (Is. 28:16), the stone for the corner (Jer. 51:26), the head cornerstone (Ps. 118:22), or the headstone (Zech. 4:7). Thus the image of a cornerstone is used as both the chief stone and the stone at the corner of a foundation. In the first century A.D., the expression chief cornerstone was also used to refer to the stone placed on the summit of the Jerusalem temple. Thus Peter used the phrase to point out that when the people rejected Jesus Christ, they rejected the One who completed the plan of God for humankind. The phrase and its significance here would

The Greek word plēthō is used for describing the filling of anything from a sponge to a boat (Matt. 27:48; Luke 5:7). Luke uses this common term to describe how the Holy Spirit influences a person. He uses the expression filled with the Holy Spirit eight times in his writings. In every case, the filling of the Holy Spirit enables the person so endowed to speak or preach for God. Thus, the filling of the Spirit is directly related to the prophetic ministry, the revelation or explanation of God’s Word.

chief cornerstone.”^{12h} Nor is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved.”

The Name of Jesus Forbidden

¹³ Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, ⁱ and perceived that they were uneducated and untrained men, they marveled. And they realized that they had been with Jesus. ¹⁴ And seeing the man who had been healed ^j standing with them, they could say nothing against it. ¹⁵ But when they had commanded them to go aside out of the council, they conferred among themselves, ¹⁶ saying, ^k “What shall we do to these men? For, indeed, that a ^l notable miracle has been done through them is ^l evident² to all who dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it. ¹⁷ But so that it spreads no further among the people, let us severely threaten them, that from now on they speak to no man in this name.”

^{18m} So they called them and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus. ¹⁹ But Peter and John answered and said to them, ⁿ “Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you more than to God, you judge. ^{20o} For we cannot but speak the things which ^p we have seen and heard.” ²¹ So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding no way of punishing them, ^q because of the people, since they all ^r glorified God for ^s what had been done. ²² For the man was over forty years old on whom this miracle of healing had been performed.

Prayer for Boldness

²³ And being let go, ^t they went to their own companions and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said to them. ²⁴ So when they heard that, they raised their voice to God with one accord and said: “Lord, ^u You are God, who made heaven and earth and the sea, and all that

Sharing in All Things

³² Now the multitude of those who believed ^g were of one heart and one soul; ^h neither did anyone say that any of the things he possessed was his own, but they had all things in common. ³³ And with ⁱ great power the apostles gave ^j witness to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. ³⁶ And ⁴ Joseph, who was also named have been well understood in the first century, especially among the Jewish rabbis and people who knew the Scriptures.

4:12 no other name: Only by placing faith in the historical Jesus—the One who came, died, and was raised again—can a person be saved.

4:13 Even though Peter and John were uneducated Galilean fishermen, they spoke with confidence and freedom. Their presentation of the gospel was powerful because they were personal witnesses of everything they spoke about (1:22).

4:14–18 they could say nothing: The Sanhedrin knew that the miracle was real. The apostles offered their explanation: The miracles were the work of the resurrected Christ. But instead of believing, the members of the Sanhedrin concerned themselves with “damage control.” They tried to intimidate the apostles by warning them not to speak or teach in the name of Jesus.

4:19 listen to you more than to God: There is no authority apart from God. When human authority rejects God’s authority, it becomes twisted and loses its right to demand compliance (5:29). From the beginning, God’s people have resisted any command that was against God’s will (for example, the Jewish midwives of Ex. 1; Moses’ parents in Heb. 11:23; Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-Nego in Dan. 3).

4:23–31 The response of Peter and John’s companions after the apostles’ release was a spontaneous outburst of praise, song, and prayer.

4:32–37 Luke notes that for the early Christians, being filled with the Holy Spirit meant not only proclaiming the Word of God, but also sharing their possessions with those in need.

5 But a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession. ²And he kept back part of the proceeds, his wife also being aware of it, and brought a certain part and laid it at the apostles' feet. ^{3a}But Peter said, "Ananias, why has ^bSatan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and keep back part of the price of the land for yourself? ⁴While it remained, was it not your own? And the young men came in and found her dead, and carrying her out, buried her by her husband. ^{11g}So great fear came upon all the church and upon all who heard these things.

Continuing Power in the Church

¹²And ^hthrough the hands of the apostles many signs and wonders were done among the people. ⁱAnd they were all with one accord in Solomon's Porch. ¹³Yet ^jnone of the rest dared join them, ^kbut the people esteemed them highly. ¹⁴And believers were increasingly added to the Lord, multitudes of both men and women, ¹⁵so that they brought the sick out into the streets and laid them on beds and couches, ^lthat at least the shadow of Peter passing by might fall on some of them. ¹⁶Also a multitude gathered from the surrounding cities to Jerusalem, bringing ^msick people and those who were tormented by unclean spirits, and they were all healed.

Imprisoned Apostles Freed

¹⁷ⁿThen the high priest rose up, and all those who were with him (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and they were filled with ^lindignation, ^{18o}and laid their hands on the apostles and put them in the common prison. ¹⁹But at night ^pan

5:1, 2 Ananias and Sapphira wanted to have a reputation like that of Barnabas (4:36, 37), but they did not have the same character he had. At a time when others were seeking to serve their fellow believers, Ananias and Sapphira were seeking to serve themselves.

5:3 why has Satan filled your heart: Ananias and Sapphira believed in the Lord Jesus Christ; however, they had succumbed to the temptations of greed and pride. Note that the same word filled is used here in connection with Satan as is used in 4:8 of the Holy Spirit. The term means to take possession of or control. God's children, who have been freed from the tyranny of Satan, have the ability to choose whom they will allow to control them. When we choose to sin, we open the door to Satan. The Evil One tempted Ananias and Sapphira with wicked desires and thoughts, and they yielded their will to these temptations. lie to the Holy Spirit: The author of all lies is Satan (see John 8:44). When Ananias and Sapphira deliberately lied, they took upon themselves the moral character of the one who is behind all lies, the devil himself.

5:4 You have not lied to men but to God: The Holy Spirit is the third person of the triune Godhead. To lie to Him (v. 3) is to lie to God. in your own control: Ananias and Sapphira could have kept a part of their proceeds or they could have kept it all; their stewardship was between them and the Lord. But the problem was that they wanted others to believe they had sacrificed everything when in fact they had given only a portion to the Lord.

5:5 fell down and breathed his last: The severity of the punishment may seem extreme to some people, much like the story of Achan in Josh. 7:16–26. However, Prov. 6:16–19 tells us how God feels about deception and division. The early church was vulnerable to great spiritual danger. Yet Jesus had promised (Matt. 16:18) that the power of hell would not destroy this fledgling church in its infant stage. God would move with great discipline to ensure its purity and survival.

5:8 Peter gave Ananias's wife an opportunity to tell the truth. Sapphira would not be disciplined for the sin of her husband. Even though Ananias and Sapphira were married, they were also brother and sister in Jesus Christ. Sapphira was responsible for her own personal relationship with God. When Sapphira committed the same sin of rebellion and deception that her husband had committed, she received her own punishment.

5:12 Signs refers to supernatural occurrences that point to a warning, instruction, or encouragement from God. A sign gave credibility to the fact that what was being said was from God. Wonders points to the response to a sign. By its very nature a wonder caused awe in those who saw or heard it. Signs and wonders were given by God to confirm His word (see Matt. 12:38, 39).

5:15 In the ancient world many people believed that a person's shadow could possess magical healing powers. The people referred to in this verse were not necessarily Christians, but those who believed that Peter, as an advocate of a new religion, had magical powers. The people imposed their superstitions upon this new faith. 5:16 they were all healed: God, working miracles through the apostles, never failed to bring complete physical restoration.

5:18 The imprisonment of the apostles apparently was a common event in the early church.

5:19 an angel of the Lord: The word for angel basically means "messenger." The phrase "angel of the Lord" is commonly used in the OT to refer to spiritual messengers of God. Sometimes these messengers were human beings and other times they were angelic

BIBLE TIMES & CULTURE NOTES

Gamaliel

Gamaliel is only mentioned twice in the NT (5:34; 22:3), but he exerted a profound influence on the course of Christianity. In the first instance, the Sanhedrin met to deal with the Christians, who insisted that the Sanhedrin was responsible for the Messiah's death. In this emotionally heated session, Gamaliel rose and gave a surprisingly insightful speech that obviously swayed the Sanhedrin (5:38, 39). Rather than the flogging they anticipated, Peter and the apostles were given a severe warning and were released. The second reference was made by Paul, Gamaliel's former pupil. Paul was appealing to a Jewish mob, and he was not hesitant to link himself to this great teacher. Gamaliel's further influence on Paul can only be surmised. Paul's clear and logical manner of explaining the great doctrines of the Christian faith was no doubt the result, at least in part, of his schooling "at the feet of Gamaliel."

²¹ And when they heard that, they entered the temple early in the morning and taught. ^r But the high priest and those with him came and called the ² council together, with all the ³ elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

²⁶ Then the captain went with the officers and brought them without violence, ^t for they feared the people, lest they should be stoned. ²⁷ And when they had brought them, they set them before the council. And the high priest asked them, ²⁸ saying, ^u "Did we not strictly command you not to teach in this name? And look, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, ^v and intend to bring this Man's ^w blood on us!"

²⁹ But Peter and the other apostles answered and said: ^x "We ought to obey God rather than men. ³⁰ ^y The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom you murdered by ^z hanging on a tree. ³¹ ^a Him God has exalted to His right hand to be ^b Prince and ^c Savior, ^d to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. ³² And ^e we are His witnesses to these things, and so also is the Holy Spirit ^f whom God has given to those who obey Him."

Gamaliel's Advice

³³ When they heard this, they were ^g furious ⁷ and plotted to kill them. ³⁴ Then one in the council stood up, a Pharisee named ^h Gamaliel, a teacher of the law held in respect by all the people, and commanded them to put the apostles outside for a little while. ³⁵ And he said to them: "Men of Israel, ⁸ take heed to yourselves what you intend to do regarding these men. ³⁶ For some time ago Theudas rose beings. In some places the phrase may even refer to the preincarnate Christ. Considering the events of this particular passage, it is clear that a supernatural visitor is in view.

5:20 Note that the angel's orders were not to escape from the city, but to return to the temple courts, where the disciples had been first arrested, and speak to the people. The fact that the disciples would return to the place of their arrest was an open testimony to the Jewish leaders and the general public that these men were willing to die for the truth they were proclaiming.

5:29 We ought to obey God: As to the accusation of disobedience to authority, Peter put the charge in context. Jesus had said, "You shall be witnesses to Me" (1:8). The council said in effect, "You shall not be His witnesses" (see v. 28). All authority comes from God. When any authority commands what God has forbidden, or forbids what God has commanded, a Christian must obey the Author of all authority, God Himself. We submit to governmental authority because the One who instituted the authority is God Himself. When we submit to government, we are submitting to God.

5:30 Tree here refers to the Cross (see Deut. 21:22, 23; 1 Pet. 2:24).

5:31 The declaration that God has exalted Him to His right hand would have been understood by the Sanhedrin as a reference to the Resurrection. The apostles' claim regarded the resurrected Jesus as equal with God (see John 5:18; 10:33).

5:34 Gamaliel was a highly respected Pharisee, the grandson of the famous Rabbi Hillel, a brilliant spiritual leader. Gamaliel was the teacher of Saul, who would later become the apostle Paul (22:3). Gamaliel was given the honored title of "Rabban," meaning "Our Teacher." It is said in the Mishna—the commentary on the Torah, the first five books of the OT—that when Gamaliel died, "the glory of the Torah ceased, and purity and sanctity died out also." This is an impressive eulogy for a Jewish teacher.

5:36, 37 A certain Theudas is mentioned by the Jewish historian Josephus, who places Theudas's revolt against Rome around A.D. 44. According to Gamaliel, the revolution by Theudas took place before Judas of Galilee, who began the Zealot movement around A.D. 6. The Romans quickly punished Theudas and his followers, forcing the movement underground. Some scholars believe Luke erred in placing Theudas before Judas of Galilee. However, it is more likely that Gamaliel and Josephus spoke of two different men. Theudas was a very common name. There were a number of insurrections and revolution attempts recorded: Josephus himself refers to ten thousand of them. Most likely, the revolution of Theudas that Gamaup, claiming to be somebody. A number of men, about four hundred, ⁹joined him. He was slain, and all who obeyed him were scattered and came to nothing. ³⁷After this man, Judas of Galilee rose up in the days of the census, and drew away many people after him. He also perished, and all who obeyed him were dispersed. ³⁸And now I say to you, keep away from these men and let them alone; for if this plan or this work is of men, it will come to nothing; ³⁹ⁱbut if it is of God, you cannot overthrow it—lest you even be found ^jto fight against God.”

⁴⁰And they agreed with him, and when they had ^kcalled for the apostles ^land beaten ^mthem, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go. ⁴¹So they departed from the presence of the council, ^mrejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for ^lHis name. ⁴²And daily ⁿin the temple, and in every house, ^othey did not cease teaching and preaching Jesus as the Christ.

⁵And the saying pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Stephen, ^ha man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, and ⁱPhilip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and ^jNicolas, a proselyte from Antioch, ⁶whom they set before the apostles; and ^kwhen they had prayed, ^lthey laid hands on them.

liel referred to took place before A.D. 6 and was led by a different Theudas than the person Josephus mentions in his history.

5:40 they agreed with him: God first delivered the disciples from jail by supernatural means, sending an angel from heaven (vv. 19, 20). Then God delivered them through natural means, causing an enemy of Christianity to argue for their release. This passage is proof of the work of God’s sovereign hand in history. He can even use the thoughts of those who oppose the gospel to preserve and protect His servants.

5:41 This verse provides the first instance of physical persecution against the followers of Jesus Christ—in this case against the leaders of the Christian movement. The apostles’ response would set a precedent for other Christians who would be persecuted. Instead of complaining or feeling sorry for themselves, they rejoiced that they were counted worthy by God to endure the abuse. The apostles knew that more important things than preserving their health and life were at stake. God was using the suffering of the disciples to bring people into His kingdom (see Matt. 5:10–12; Phil. 1:29; 2 Tim. 2:12).

6:1 The Hellenists were those of Jewish descent who grew up outside the land of Israel. They spoke Greek, were raised in Hellenistic culture, and used the Greek translation of the Hebrew OT, the Septuagint (2:5). The Hebrews were Palestinian Jews who spoke Aramaic and used the Hebrew OT. There may have been an animosity between the groups, even among the new believers, which gave rise to distrust and tension over the care of the widows who were neglected. In Jewish law, a woman did not receive an inheritance. She was dependent on her husband or another relative.

6:2 should leave the word of God: The issue here was not blame, but rather what could be done to remedy the apparent injustice. The apostles knew that the problem of supporting the needy required attention. Though the apostles were sensitive enough to recognize the problem, they were also careful to recognize the priorities that are placed on church leaders by God. They could not leave what God had called them to do—declaring and teaching the word of God and establishing the church in prayer. serve tables: In NT times, business was transacted over tables. The work of administering and distributing care to those in need would have been carried on over tables and thus was a ministry of service rather than a ministry of speaking. The words serve here and ministry in v. 4 translate Greek words that are related to the English word deacon.

6:3 seek out: The leaders of the church included the congregation in the search process. The local council in Jewish communities usually consisted of seven men known as the “seven of the town.” The men who would be chosen would be known among the people for their good reputation because they were full of the Holy Spirit and wisdom. The men’s lives were consistent with their confession of faith. They knew the will of God and understood how to carry it out in their lives (see Eph. 5:15–18). They could be trusted with responsibility and authority.

6:4 prayer and . . . word: Note the order here. Prayer was primary for the apostles (2:42).

6:5 they chose Stephen . . . Nicolas: All these names are Greek. The selection of Hellenists no doubt was a wise and gracious gesture to the people who had initially raised the complaint concerning the widows (v. 1).

6:6 The laying on of hands was not for these men to receive the Holy Spirit, because the seven men were already “full of the Holy Spirit” (vv. 3, 5). Instead the apostles were conferring on these men the responsibility of carrying out the ministry. The laying on of hands was a meaningful tradition that dated back to the days of Moses (see Num. 27:15–23), and it identified people with the ministries to be performed.

6:7 the word of God spread: What Jesus Christ had done in the lives of these people was spreading throughout the region. Men and women became disciples who lived in submission to Christ’s lordship. They were not ashamed of their faith, but with great boldness they went out to bear witness to the truth of the gospel that had changed their lives. This is what Jesus promised would happen. a great many of the priests: It is estimated that in Jerusalem there were some eight thousand priests. Luke is not referring here to those who attacked the faith (4:1, 2; 5:17, 18). Most priests were not from the high priestly families. They had ordinary vocations that permitted them to serve their turn in the temple periodically—much like Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist. These were humble, devoted men of God who became obedient

Stephen's Address: The Call of Abraham

7 Then the high priest said, “Are these things so?”
²And he said, ^a“Brethren and fathers, listen: The ^bGod of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in ^cHaran, ³and said to him, ^d“Get out of your country and from your relatives, and come to a land that I will show you.” ⁴Then ^ehe came out of the land of the Chaldeans and dwelt in Haran. And from there, when his father was ^fdead, He moved him to this land in which you now dwell. ⁵And God gave him no inheritance in it, not to the faith, recognizing Jesus as the Christ. Their service in the temple was enhanced because they understood the truth behind the rituals they performed.

6:8 Stephen was full of wisdom (v. 3), full of the Holy Spirit (v. 5), and full of faith and power. He had the gifts, the boldness, and the brilliance to be a powerful witness; yet even his witness would be rejected by the religious leaders. Hearts are opened only by God, not by our gifts, boldness, or brilliance.

6:9 the Synagogue of the Freedmen: A synagogue was a local place of worship, a community center for worship and studying the Scriptures. In contrast, the temple was the one worship center for all Judaism, the focus of Jewish rituals such as sacrifice. There were many synagogues both in Judea and throughout the Roman world. The one referred to in this verse was for Hellenistic Jews from outside Jerusalem.

6:12 Resistance to the gospel had gone from discussion to debate, from debate to slander, and from slander to violence. The antagonist stirred up the people by convincing them that the essence of the Jewish faith—the things held as most sacred: the temple, the Law, Moses, and even God—was under attack by Stephen. The issue was not the work of Christ on the Cross but the core of traditional Jewish religion.

7:1 The high priest presumably was Caiaphas, the man who had presided over the Sanhedrin’s trial of Jesus.

7:2 The God of glory appeared: God intervened in history again and again to speak to His people. When God first spoke to Abraham, it was not in the temple of Jerusalem; it was not even in Palestine.

7:4 The text does not explain why Abraham settled in Haran when the Promised Land was Canaan. All we know is that Abraham chose to wait for his father to die before he journeyed to the Promised Land (see Gen. 12:1).

7:5 gave him no inheritance in it: God moved Abraham along his spiritual pilgrimage from blessing to blessing. Possession was

Stephen the Martyr

In the Book of Acts, the infant church faced opposition from Jew and Gentile alike. But with every successive wave of persecution, the church grew more and more. In hardships and trials, Christians depended increasingly on the Lord for strength and guidance. In so doing, they demonstrated their faith to others.

Stephen, one of the seven men chosen to minister to the needs of the neglected in the early church, became the first martyr of the Christian faith, but he certainly was not the last. Although falsely accused of blaspheming Moses and God, his unfair treatment and violent death would serve as an example to persecuted believers throughout the centuries who would face similar trials for upholding the name of Christ.

The Book of Acts tells us that right after the stoning of Stephen, a zealous young Pharisee named Saul continued the persecution of the new faith by hunting its members down and imprisoning them to face similar charges and similar fates. Although Saul was trying to stop the spread of the Christian faith, other eventual persecutors such as the Roman Emperor Nero (A.D. 37–68) cared little about the blaspheming of a Jewish deity. Nero was merely looking for scapegoats to take the blame for the great fire that destroyed most of Rome in A.D. 64.

Later Christian martyrs would face death at the hands of their so-called fellow believers. William Tyndale (1494–1536) was burned at the stake for heresy because he dared to translate the Bible into the English language, thus making it more accessible to the common person. Others have traveled into remote areas fully aware of the dangers of retribution from pagans. In 1956, five American missionaries were murdered in the jungles of Ecuador by headhunters called the Aucas. This same tribe was eventually converted to Christianity through the persistence of missionaries, who emulated the perseverance of the martyred missionaries who had gone before them.

Since Stephen’s death, countless Christians have died for their witness to the truth of the gospel. They set their eyes on Jesus instead of on this world. They did not value the approval of people over the approval of their Savior. Therefore, they refused to disown Jesus. For their courage to stand up for the truth, Jesus promises to acknowledge them before His Father in heaven (see Matt. 10:32, 33).

even enough to set his foot on. But even when Abraham had no child, ^aHe promised to give it to him for a possession, and to his descendants after him. ^bBut God spoke in this way: ^cthat his descendants would dwell in a foreign land, and that they would bring them into ^dbondage and oppress them four hundred years. ^e*“And the nation to whom they will be in bondage I will ^fjudge,”* said God, ^g*“and after that they shall come out and serve Me in this place.”* ^hThen He gave him the covenant of circumcision; ⁱand so Abraham begot Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; ^jand Isaac begot Jacob, and ^kJacob begot the twelve patriarchs.

he died, he and our fathers. ¹⁶ And ^bthey were carried back to Shechem and laid in ^cthe tomb that Abraham bought for a sum of money from the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem.

God Delivers Israel by Moses

¹⁷ “But when ^dthe time of the promise drew near which God had sworn to Abraham, ^ethe people grew and multiplied in Egypt ¹⁸till another king ^farose who did not know Joseph. ¹⁹ This man dealt treacherously with our people, and oppressed our forefathers, ^gmaking them expose their babies, so that they might not live. ²⁰ ^hAt this time Moses was born, and ⁱwas well pleasing to God; and he was brought up in his father’s house for three months. ²¹ But ^jwhen he was set out, ^kPharaoh’s daughter took him away and brought him up as her own son. ²² And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was ^lmighty in words and deeds.

²³ “Now when he was forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren, the children of Israel. ²⁴ And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended and avenged him who was oppressed, and struck down the Egyptian. ²⁵ For he supposed that his brethren would have understood that God would deliver them by his hand, but they did not understand. ²⁶ And the next day he appeared to two of them as they were fighting, and tried to reconcile them, saying, ‘Men, you are not the goal, apparently, since God would not let Abraham settle down—to stagnate in God’s past blessing.

7:6, 7 Before Abraham’s descendants would be allowed to enjoy the land as their home, they would be tested in a furnace of affliction in a foreign land.

7:8 The covenant of circumcision was the symbol given to Abraham that he might never forget that God had promised to bless him. The sign of this promise was transmitted from generation to generation, from Gen. 17 to the time of Stephen’s confrontation with the Sanhedrin. Abraham was saved by faith (Gen. 15:6), and the symbol of circumcision was an outward sign demonstrating the genuineness of his faith. Similarly, God would bless Stephen’s audience not because of their circumcision, but because of their faith.

7:9 The patriarchs refers to Jacob, the grandson of Abraham, and his 12 sons. Jacob’s name, meaning “Usurper,” was changed by God to Israel, meaning something like “God’s Defender.” His 12 sons were the founders of the 12 tribes of Israel.

7:11 The famine proved to be the providential means of bringing Joseph’s brethren to Egypt in search of grain—and more importantly, of reconciling them with Joseph.

7:14 Stephen stated that seventy-five people in all went to Egypt. Genesis 46:26 indicates that 66 people accompanied Jacob to Egypt, not including Jacob, Joseph, and the 2 sons of Joseph. Stephen derived the number 75 from the Septuagint translation of the OT. The translators apparently added 9 wives (Gen. 46:26 says the number 66 did not include the wives). It was only 9 and not 12 because the wives of Judah and Simeon had died and Joseph’s wife was already in Egypt.

7:16 Why did Stephen make the point that the patriarchs were buried in Shechem? At the time of Stephen’s defense, Shechem was the center of Samaritan life. Nearby was Mt. Gerizim, the site of another temple (see John 4:20). Stephen was charged with speaking against the temple in Jerusalem as if this were tantamount to speaking against God Himself. Stephen’s point was that God had been speaking and moving in the lives of His people in and out of Jerusalem, with and without a temple. The most important address God made to His people was at Mt. Sinai, which was nowhere near Jerusalem.

7:17–19 Abraham’s descendants enjoyed prosperity and great growth that proved threatening to the Egyptians and to Pharaoh, who did not know Joseph.

7:22 No person has been given the attention in Jewish tradition that Moses has. It is said that Pharaoh initially had no son; therefore, Moses was being prepared by Pharaoh’s daughter to succeed to the throne. For this reason, Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. Later, Pharaoh had a son of his own to succeed him instead of Moses. Jewish tradition also states that Moses became a great captain among the Egyptians, leading them to victory against the Ethiopians. Thus he was mighty in words and deeds.

7:23–29 In the opinion of some Jewish rabbis, forty was the age at which a man had grown to maturity. Moses’ life is divided into three parts: the first 40 years in the palace of Pharaoh, the second 40 years in the desert, and the third 40 years carrying out God’s will to deliver His people. Moses began his period of wilderness training after he had tried to free the Israelites in a way that God had not chosen. We must be careful to do God’s work in God’s way, in God’s time, and for God’s reasons. It has been said that Moses spent 40 years thinking he was somebody, then spent 40 years finding out he was nobody. Finally, he spent 40 years finding out what God could do with somebody who was nobody.

Jewish History

Political change can often lead to changed perspectives on history. The destruction of Jerusalem and its temple by the Romans in A.D. 70 forced the Hebrews to radically rethink the significance of Jerusalem and its institutions. Stephen and his fellow Christians had already departed from the earlier Jewish view that the world revolved around Israel, which in turn revolved around the temple and the Law. They still saw Jerusalem as more than just a city, but they made it into a new symbol of a higher ideal. Stephen's view of history brought the conflict between the new movement and the city fathers to a boil. Outraged, the council stoned Stephen to death and allowed Saul to start persecuting believers. Stephen's perspective on Jerusalem challenges us as modern Christians to reflect on our loyalty to beloved institutions. Our highest allegiance must be to Christ.

7:30–34 In relating the burning bush incident, Stephen once again underscored the fact that God is free to reveal Himself wherever He pleases. Wherever God does so, that ground becomes holy ground.

7:35–40 Stephen pointed out that Moses, the very one the Jewish leaders accused him of speaking against (6:11), was rejected by the leaders' forefathers as God's appointed leader and redeemer—just as the leaders were rejecting Jesus. It was this same Moses who spoke of the coming of Jesus in Deut. 18. Stephen challenged the religious leaders of his day either to believe all of what Moses taught or none of it. our fathers would not obey: The Talmud, the Jewish commentary on the OT, calls the rebellion involving the golden calf "that unspeakable deed." The rabbis did not want to talk about it, forbidding a translation of the account in the vernacular for the synagogue services. The Jewish religious leaders wanted to bury the incident, but Stephen wanted to dig it back up.

Stephen the Martyr

57 Then they cried out with a loud voice, stopped their ears, and ran at him with one accord; ⁵⁸ and they cast him out of the city and stoned him. And ^jthe witnesses laid down their clothes at the feet of a young man named Saul. ⁵⁹ And they stoned Stephen as he was calling on God and saying, “Lord Jesus, ^kreceive my spirit.” ⁶⁰ Then he knelt down and cried out with a loud voice, ^l“Lord, do not charge them with this sin.” And when he had said this, he fell asleep.

Saul Persecutes the Church

8 Now Saul was consenting to his death. At that time a great persecution arose against the church which was at Jerusalem; and ^athey were all scattered

7:44 The ancient tabernacle had been the focus of the Israelites’ national worship. Even after the miraculous deliverance from Egypt there was a tendency among the people to forget God’s presence with them. The tabernacle was a constant testimony of God’s presence no matter where the people went. Paul tells us that we are the tabernacle, the temple of God (see 1 Cor. 3:16). We can never move out of the presence of God, for we carry His presence with us (see Ps. 139).

7:46–48 It was David’s desire to give God a permanent dwelling. The danger of David’s request was that some might identify the presence of God with one place, as if God were confined to that location. God honored David’s desire by permitting his son Solomon to build such a house and by filling it with the Shekinah glory, a demonstration of His presence. But God did not live in the temple. The Creator cannot be confined by anything He has made. His presence fills all that He has made. Solomon understood this when he dedicated the temple (see 1 Kin. 8:27–30). In his speech, Stephen emphasized that God could not be confined to temples made with hands.

7:52 Which of the prophets: Stephen put the council on the spot. The members of the council wanted to appear open to God’s truth, but they and their ancestors rarely wanted to hear God’s truth through His messengers. Jesus made essentially the same charges in Matt. 23:34–36. Stephen did not shrink from accusing the Sanhedrin of handing Jesus over to death, thus becoming His murderers. He used even stronger language than Peter had (3:13–15).

7:55 Stephen at that moment was full of the Holy Spirit, which was evidenced by the fact that all he wanted to do was please God. He was consumed only with doing God’s will by responding to this terrifying moment in the way that would glorify Him. Stephen completely trusted the Holy Spirit to empower him to respond in the proper way.

7:56 I see . . . the Son of Man: Gazing at death may be terrifying, but gazing past death to the presence of Jesus waiting for the believer is the hope that dissolves the fear. We have the opportunity to glorify God in the face of death, boldly declaring our confidence in the fact that we will spend eternity in the presence of God. Stephen’s use of the title Son of Man is similar to the Lord’s appellation of Himself in Matt. 16:13 and the apocalyptic statements about the Messiah in Dan. 7:13.

7:59, 60 Because Jewish law did not allow an execution within the walls of the Holy City, the religious leaders took Stephen outside the city walls. Jewish custom was that the first witness would push the condemned person face forward into a pit some 12 feet deep. If the man survived the fall, the body would be turned over and large boulders would be thrown down on his chest to crush his ribs. If he remained alive, stones would be thrown by the whole congregation. The situation may have been a little different with Stephen, perhaps due to the executioners’ haste; the text indicates that Stephen knelt (v. 60). Lord Jesus, receive my spirit: Stephen’s work was done. He was immediately ushered into the presence of Jesus (see Luke 23:43; 2 Cor. 5:8; Phil. 1:21–23). Lord, do not charge them: As Jesus had done, Stephen requested mercy for his killers.

8:1 The church father Augustine wrote that the church owes Paul to the prayer of Stephen. Saul, who later became the apostle Paul, never forgot the way Stephen died—he also did not conceal that he was in full agreement with the killing (22:20). God promises in Rom. 8:28 that all things work together for good. Even though Paul ³As for Saul, ^che made havoc of the church, entering every house, and dragging off men and women, committing them to prison.

Christ Is Preached in Samaria

⁴Therefore ^dthose who were scattered went everywhere preaching the word. ⁵Then ^ePhilip went down to ¹the city of Samaria and preached Christ to them. ⁶And the multitudes with one accord heeded the things spoken by Philip, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did. ⁷For ^funclean spirits, crying with a loud voice, came out of many who were possessed; and many who were paralyzed and lame were healed. ⁸And there was great joy in that city.

in the city and ^hastonished the ³people of Samaria, claiming that he was someone great, ¹⁰to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, "This man is the great power of God." ¹¹And they heeded him because he had astonished them with his ⁴sorceries for a long time. ¹²But when they believed Philip as he preached the things ⁱconcerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, both men and women were baptized. ¹³Then Simon himself also believed; and when he was baptized he continued with Philip, and was amazed, seeing the miracles and signs which were done.

The Sorcerer's Sin

¹⁴Now when the ^japostles who were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them, ¹⁵who, when they had come down, prayed for them ^kthat they might receive the Holy Spirit. ¹⁶For ^las yet He had fallen upon none of them. ^mThey had only been baptized in ⁿthe name of the Lord Jesus. ¹⁷Then ^othey was struggling against the work of the early church and the church was experiencing its worst persecution up to that time, it was this struggle that would eventually lead Paul, the man who wrote at least half of the NT, to eternal life. they were all scattered: This phrase speaks of scattering seeds on the ground so that something will grow. The members of the church in Jerusalem may not have understood what was happening to them, but Jesus would not let His church become limited racially, culturally, or geographically. These early believers became missionaries as much as refugees. At this point the entire church began to pay the price of discipleship. except the apostles: The initial target of the great persecution was the Hellenistic or Greek-speaking Jewish believers, in the person of Stephen.

8:3 Stephen's death supplied the spark for the persecution, and Saul supplied the leadership (v. 1). He made havoc describes a wild boar ravaging something in an attempt to destroy it (22:4, 19; 26:9–11). Saul had all the legal papers he needed to direct this persecution, and he had the authority to put people to death. Saul was arresting the Christians, men and women, and taking them to prison. After Saul was converted to Christ, the Lord appeared to Ananias, instructing him to go minister to Saul. However, because Ananias had heard about the tremendous pain and suffering Saul had afflicted upon the Jewish believers, he was afraid to go (ch. 9).

8:5 Philip went to preach the gospel to Samaria as Jesus had commissioned (1:8). In the first century, the Jews and the Samaritans hated each other. The Jews considered the Samaritans half-breeds and religious deviants. Following the fall of the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 B.C., Samaria had been resettled by colonists brought to the land by the Assyrians. These colonists intermarried with the remaining Jews, and the Samaritans were descendants of these mixed marriages. The Samaritans rejected the OT Scriptures beyond the five books of Moses. Furthermore, they built a rival temple on Mt. Gerizim. To express their disdain for the Samaritans, Jews traveling to Galilee would generally avoid Samaria by crossing over the Jordan River into Perea. But the gospel message transcended the first-century barrier between the Jews and Samaritans. The Spirit of God created a loving fellowship of believers out of the hate that existed. The formation of the Samaritan church indicates that there is no room for racism in the church (see 1 Cor. 12; Gal. 3:26–28), for Jesus died for the sins of the whole world.

8:13 Simon himself also believed: Though this man was baptized, he had a long way to go in Christian doctrine and personal growth. Some people believe Peter's words in v. 21 indicate that Simon's confession and baptism were not genuine. Church history later associates Simon with heresy and identifies him as an enemy of the Christian faith. His actions have given to the vocabulary of the church the word "simony," which means buying and selling of church offices.

8:14 the apostles . . . sent Peter and John: Jesus had given "the keys of the kingdom" (see Matt. 16:19) to Peter. He was the one God would use to open the doors to the Jews (ch. 2), the Samaritans (ch. 8), and the Gentiles (ch. 10).

8:15 that they might receive the Holy Spirit: Peter and John were the official messengers from Jerusalem to tell the Samaritans what had occurred at Pentecost. The Samaritans had to know that salvation came from the Jews; the Jews, in turn, had to understand that the same salvation had come to the Samaritans. Jesus said in John 17 that the world would know that Jesus came from the Father when the world saw the unity of the body of Christ. With the tremendous hatred that existed between the Jews and Samaritans, God demonstrated to both sides that they would be united together as a church. The dependence of the Samaritans upon the Jews to persecution

(Gk. diōgmos) (8:1; 2 Thess. 1:4; 2 Cor. 12:10) Strong's #1375

Persecution is the hatred and affliction that follows the witness and holy life of God's people in a hostile world. Jesus taught that God's prophets always faced persecution (Matt. 5:12); so His disciples should expect the same (Matt. 10:23). The early Christians saw the persecution of Jesus' followers as a participation in His redemptive suffering: filling up "what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ" (Col. 1:24). The idea of the coming Messiah held that the suffering of God's people was part of the coming of the kingdom—evidence that a person is truly one of God's own. Therefore they are "blessed" (Matt. 5:10) and should "rejoice" and "glorify God" since "the time has come for judgment to begin at the house of God" (1 Pet. 4:13–17).

laid hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit.

¹⁸And when Simon saw that through the laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Spirit was given, he offered them money, ¹⁹saying, "Give me this power also, that anyone on whom I lay hands may receive the Holy Spirit."

²⁰But Peter said to him, "Your money perish with you, because ²⁰you thought that ^athe gift of God could be purchased with money! ²¹You have neither part nor portion in this matter, for your ^rheart is not right in the sight of God. ²²Repent therefore of this your wickedness, and pray God ^sif perhaps the thought of your heart may be forgiven you. ²³For I see that you are 'poisoned by bitterness and bound by iniquity.'"

²⁴Then Simon answered and said, "Pray to the Lord for me, that none of the things which you have spoken may come upon me."

²⁵So when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem, preaching the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans.

³⁰So Philip ran to him, and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah, and said, "Do you understand what you are reading?"

³¹And he said, "How can I, unless someone guides me?" And he asked Philip to come up and sit with him. ³²The place in the Scripture which he read was this:

receive the gift of the Holy Spirit was the healing sign that the two sides were to become one.

8:18–25 Simon saw . . . the Holy Spirit was given: The text does not indicate what exactly Simon saw. The gift of tongues was a sign to the nation of Israel (see 1 Cor. 14:20–22), so it is likely that the same sign was present at each step of the opening of the gospel—at Jerusalem, at Samaria, and at the home of Cornelius (ch. 10). Alternatively, the word saw may simply mean that Simon perceived what was happening. Give me this power: Verse 13 indicates that Simon was a believer. However, he confused the work of God with his previous magical practices. Because others had paid him for the secrets of his magic, he may have simply thought that this was the best way to approach Peter. He soon learned the error of his ways.

8:26 go toward the south along the road: This road descended from Jerusalem to Gaza, southwest of Jerusalem, near the Mediterranean coast of Palestine. Gaza was the last settlement before the desert wasteland stretching to Egypt. This was the road most travelers took to Africa. God had a divine appointment for Philip to meet the Ethiopian eunuch. The gospel would take a leap from the Samaritans to the "end of the earth" (1:8)—in this case, Africa.

8:27 he arose and went: Compare Philip's response with the unquestioning obedience of Abraham (see Gen. 22:3). Faith in God means being ready to move without explanation. a eunuch of great authority: Technically a eunuch is a man who has been emasculated. However, by the first century the term had become a government title used for important military or political officials. The ancient kingdom of Ethiopia was ruled by a queen mother or Candace, who ruled on behalf of her son the king. Because the king was considered the child of the sun, he was too holy to become involved in secular affairs. Therefore, his mother took over the responsibility. The eunuch in this passage was the minister of finance, a prominent position in the Ethiopian regime. He was responsible for distributing the funds of the treasury based on the desires of the queen mother. had come to Jerusalem to worship: Many Gentiles in the first century had grown weary of the multiple gods and loose morals of their nations. They were searching in Judaism for the truth. If they accepted Judaism as their faith, they would obey all the rules and regulations of the Law of Moses. This would include being circumcised and baptized. This type of convert was called a proselyte. Gentiles who did not become proselytes but did attend the Jewish synagogues to listen to the Scriptures were called God-fearers. We cannot be sure which the Ethiopian eunuch was.

8:28, 29 The chariot referred to in this passage was probably an ox-drawn wagon. Most likely the eunuch was part of a caravan journeying in the same direction, moving slowly down the road. As was the practice of the day, the man was reading aloud. Philip, prompted by the Spirit, spoke to the man about the prophecy of Isaiah, explaining the prophetic words about Christ.

8:30 Do you understand what you are reading: This question indicates the diligence that is required in the study of Scripture (see 2 Tim. 2:15). The Spirit of God does not eliminate the need for human teachers or diligent study. The Spirit is not given to make study needless but to make study effective.

(Gk. amnos) (8:32; John 1:29, 36; 1 Pet. 1:19) Strong's #286

The NT writers often identified Jesus as being "the lamb," or "the Lamb of God." They were drawing upon many images in the OT concerning sacrificial lambs. No doubt, the title "Lamb of God" would be associated in the minds of the Jews with the Passover lamb (see Ex. 12), the lamb led to the slaughter in Isaiah's prophecies (Is. 53:7), and the lambs used in the daily sacrifices of sin offerings (Lev. 14:12, 21, 24; Num. 6:12). In depicting Jesus as a lamb, the Scriptures were declaring that Jesus was the substitutionary sacrifice provided by God for our sins. The announced Messiah came not to be a philosopher, nor to be a teacher of morality. He came to do what we could not do for ourselves—take away our sin.

³⁴So the eunuch answered Philip and said, “I ask you, of whom does the prophet say this, of himself or of some other man?” ³⁵Then Philip opened his mouth, ^cand beginning at this Scripture, preached Jesus to him. ³⁶Now as they went down the road, they came to some water. And the eunuch said, “See, here is water. ^dWhat hinders me from being baptized?”

³⁷⁶Then Philip said, ^e“If you believe with all your heart, you may.”

And he answered and said, ^f“I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.”

³⁸So he commanded the chariot to stand still. And both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water, and he baptized him. ³⁹Now when they came up out of the water, ^gthe Spirit of the Lord caught Philip away, so that the eunuch saw him no more; and he went on his

The Damascus Road: Saul Converted

9 Then ^aSaul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest ²and asked ^bletters from him to the synagogues of Damascus, so that if he found any who were of the Way, whether men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem.

³^cAs he journeyed he came near Damascus, and suddenly a light shone around him from heaven. ⁴Then he fell to the ground, and heard a voice saying to him, “Saul, Saul, ^dwhy are you persecuting Me?”

3 ^c Acts 22:6; 26:12, 13; 1 Cor. 15:8 4 ^d [Matt. 25:40]

8:35 preached Jesus to him: First-century Jews did not speak much about a suffering Messiah. The Jewish people, facing the yoke of Roman rule, believed that the Messiah would come as the Lion of Judah, a delivering King, not a weak lamb. They believed and taught that the suffering One spoken of by Isaiah was the suffering nation of Israel. Most likely this eunuch had heard the “official” teaching of this passage in Jerusalem but still had some questions. Philip showed him that suffering One was Jesus. He had to suffer on the Cross for the sins of all of humanity.

8:36 What hinders me from being baptized: Having heard the message of Christ’s sacrifice for sin, the eunuch responded to the conviction of the Holy Spirit. Irenaeus, an early church father who lived between A.D. 130 and 202, wrote that the eunuch returned to Ethiopia and became a missionary to his own people.

8:39, 40 caught Philip away . . . Philip was found: The Greek word translated caught here is also used in 1 Thess. 4:17 for the catching away of the church into the air. Though this passage may say only that Philip went from the desert to Azotus, most likely the terminology indicates a miraculous transportation.

9:1 Saul was still restless in his zeal to defend his Jewish faith from the new, supposedly dangerous Jewish messianic sect (8:3). the disciples: Christians were originally referred to as “disciples” and “belonging to the Way.” Jesus Himself had used both of these titles (see Matt. 28:19; John 14:6). Disciple means a follower, an imitator, one who has a master.

9:2 The letters were documents authorizing Saul to arrest Christians in Damascus, 140 miles northeast of Jerusalem. Rome permitted the Jewish Sanhedrin to control Jewish affairs. At this time the new church was a Jewish affair. synagogues: The early Jewish believers in Jesus were still attending the synagogues. The synagogues in Damascus had to cooperate with anyone who had the authorization that Saul possessed. Saul planned to take the followers of Jesus who had escaped to Damascus back to Jerusalem to stand trial before the Sanhedrin (26:9–11), and probably to face a death sentence. The Way was a title for the followers of Jesus (see 19:9, 23; 22:4; 24:14, 22; John 14:6).

9:3–9 A light shone that was brighter than the sun and continued to shine around Saul (26:13). The light was so intense and penetrating that Saul fell to the ground, as did everyone who was with him (26:14). persecuting Me: In persecuting the church, Saul was persecuting the body of Christ whose individual members are in Christ (see 1 Cor. 12:27). The arguments of Stephen in his final speech, the spread of the gospel, and the extraordinary response of believers to the gospel were like goads to Saul, but Saul in his fury continued to resist such promptings from the Holy Spirit. hearing a voice but seeing no one: The men with Saul stood speechless, hearing the voice but not seeing the individual speaking. In ch. 22, Paul indicates that those with him saw the light but did not understand the voice, even though they heard the sound of it. when his eyes were opened he saw no one: Ironically while Saul was blind, he would see his own spiritual blindness.

Roman Damascus

Damascus represented much more to Saul, the strict Pharisee, than any other stop on his campaign of repression. It was the hub of a vast commercial network with far-flung lines of caravan trade reaching into north Syria, Mesopotamia, Anatolia, Persia, and Arabia. If the new “Way” of Christianity flourished in Damascus, it would quickly reach all these places. From the viewpoint of the Sanhedrin and of Saul, the archpersecutor, it had to be stopped in Damascus.

The dominant political figure at the time of Paul’s escape from Damascus (2 Cor. 11:32, 33) was Aretas IV, king of the Nabateans (9 B.C.–A.D. 40), though normally the Decapolis cities were attached to the province of Syria and were thus under the influence of Rome.

The city itself was a veritable oasis, situated in a plain watered by the biblical rivers Abana and Pharpar. Roman architecture overlaid the Hellenistic town plan with a great temple to Jupiter and a mile-long colonnaded street, the “Straight Street” of Acts 9:11. The city gates and a section of the town wall may still be seen today, as well as the lengthy bazaar that runs along the line of the ancient street.

⁵ And he said, “Who are You, Lord?”

Then the Lord said, “I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. ¹ It is hard for you to kick against the goads.”

⁶ So he, trembling and astonished, said, “Lord, what do You want me to do?”

Then the Lord said to him, “Arise and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do.”

⁷ And ^e the men who journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice but seeing no one. ⁸ Then Saul arose from the ground, and when his eyes were opened he saw no one. But they led him by the hand and brought him into Damascus. ⁹ And he was three days without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

¹⁷ And Ananias went his way and entered the house; and ^qlaying his hands on him he said, “Brother Saul, the Lord ⁴Jesus, who appeared to you on the road as you came, has sent me that you may receive your sight and ^rbe filled with the Holy Spirit.” ¹⁸ Immediately there fell from his eyes something like scales, and he received his sight at once; and he arose and was baptized.

¹⁹ So when he had received food, he was strengthened. ^s Then Saul spent some days with the disciples at Damascus.

And he declared to them how he had seen the Lord on the road, and that He had spoken to him, ^a and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus. ²⁸ So ^b he was with them at Jerusalem, coming in and going out. ²⁹ And he spoke boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus and disputed against the ^c Hellenists, ⁶ ^d but they attempted to kill him. ³⁰ When the brethren found out, they brought him down to Caesarea and sent him out to Tarsus.

Aeneas Healed

³² Now it came to pass, as Peter went ^j through all parts of the country, that he also came down to the saints who dwelt in Lydda. ³³ There he found a certain man named Aeneas, who had been bed-ridden eight years and was paralyzed. ³⁴ And Peter said to him, “Aeneas, ^k Jesus

9:17 Jesus, who appeared to you: Saul was not dreaming on the road to Damascus but instead had seen the resurrected Lord.

9:21 The people in Damascus were amazed that Saul was preaching, because Saul had come to kill Christians, not defend their faith. Saul’s fame as a persecutor of Christians was well known to the Jews in Damascus. The leaders of the synagogues were probably notified of his coming and instructed by the high priest to welcome this zealous defender of Judaism. They seem to have been unnerved at first, not only by the fact that Saul had become a Christian, but by the strength of his faith and of his argument from Scripture that Jesus was indeed the promised Savior of Israel, the Messiah.

9:22, 23 So powerful was Saul’s argument from Scripture that Jesus is the Christ that the Jews plotted to kill him. They even enlisted the cooperation of the governor of Damascus under King Aretas IV of Arabia, who reigned from 9 B.C. to A.D. 40.

9:25 let him down through the wall in a large basket: If the Jewish leaders had caught the Damascus disciples helping Saul pursue his service to the Lord, the result probably would have been widespread persecution. In ancient times city walls contained all kinds of openings—windows without glass. Saul’s escape here recalls the spies’ escape from Jericho in Josh. 2:15 and David’s escape from King Saul in 1 Sam. 19:12. Basket here refers to a wide, flexible container used to carry large quantities of things. This was the first of many attempts on Paul’s life.

9:26, 27 It is no wonder that the disciples in Jerusalem were cautious about Saul, wondering whether his “conversion” was actually an attempt to infiltrate their ranks and catch them all. Barnabas, who had the gift of encouragement, saw Paul’s true heart and defended him to the other apostles.

9:29 Stephen had also debated the Hellenistic Jews (6:9). In a sense, Saul picked up where Stephen left off.

9:30 Tarsus, the birthplace of Saul, was about three hundred miles north of Jerusalem and about ten miles inland from the Mediterranean Sea. Tarsus was a well-known university city, surpassed in educational opportunities only by Athens and Alexandria.

9:31 Then the churches . . . had peace: This peace was not due solely to Saul’s conversion. Tiberius, the emperor of Rome, died around this time. He was replaced by Caligula, who wanted to erect a statue of himself in the temple at Jerusalem. Thus Jewish energy was directed away from persecuting Christians and toward Caligula. Here we see God’s sovereign hand at work, giving the early church a short season of respite.

9:34, 35 Jesus the Christ heals you: Everyone who witnessed the healing believed. The outcome of the one physical healing was many spiritual healings. Many turned to the Lord because they saw more than a crippled man walking around; they saw proof that Jesus was alive from the dead and had authority over disease.

the Christ heals you. Arise and make your bed.” Then he arose immediately.³⁵ So all who dwelt at Lydda and ¹Sharon saw him and ^mturned to the Lord.

Dorcas Restored to Life

³⁶At Joppa there was a certain disciple named ⁹Tabitha, which is translated ¹Dorcas. This woman was full ⁿof good works and charitable deeds which she did. ³⁷But it happened in those days that she became sick and died. When they had washed her, they laid her in ^oan upper room. ³⁸And since Lydda was near Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent two men to him, imploring him not to delay in coming to them. ³⁹Then Peter arose and went with them. When he had come, they brought him to the upper room. And all the widows stood by him weeping, showing the tunics and garments which Dorcas had made while she was with them. ⁴⁰But Peter ^pput them all out, and ^qkneled down and prayed. And turning to the body he ^rsaid, “Tabitha, arise.” And she opened her eyes, and when she saw Peter she sat up. ⁴¹Then he gave her his hand and lifted her up; and when he had called the saints and widows, he presented her alive. ⁴²And it became known throughout all Joppa, ^sand many believed on the Lord. ⁴³So it was that he stayed many days in Joppa with ^tSimon, a tanner.

Cornelius Sends a Delegation

10 There was a certain man in ^aCaesarea called Cornelius, a centurion of what was called the Italian ¹Regiment, ^{2b}a devout man and one who ^cfeared God with all his household, who gave ²alms generously to the people, and prayed to God always. ³About ³the ninth hour of the day ^dhe saw clearly in a vision an angel of God coming in and saying to him, “Cornelius!”

⁴And when he observed him, he was afraid, and said, “What is it, lord?”

So he said to him, “Your prayers and your alms have come up for a memorial before God. ⁵Now ^esend men to Joppa, and send for Simon whose surname is Peter. ⁶He is lodging with ^fSimon, a tanner, whose house is by the sea. ^gHe ⁴will tell you what you must do.” ⁷And when the angel who spoke to him had departed, Cornelius called two of his household servants and a devout soldier from among those who waited on him continually. ⁸So when he had explained all these things to them, he sent them to Joppa.

Peter's Vision

⁹The next day, as they went on their journey and drew near the city, ^hPeter went up on the housetop to pray, about ⁵the sixth hour. ¹⁰Then he became very hungry and wanted to eat; but while they made ready, he fell into a trance ¹¹and ⁱsaw heaven opened and an object like

9:43 To be a tanner was not desirable or socially acceptable in Israel. A tanner had to deal with dead animals, contrary to Jewish ceremonial practices, not to mention the unpleasantness of the work itself and its attendant odor.

10:1, 2 The following two chapters mark an important turning point in the Book of Acts. Those who were scattered by persecution from Jerusalem had been preaching the gospel only to Jews (11:19). At this point, they began to overcome their prejudices and carry the message of Christ to the Gentiles. As a centurion, Cornelius would have been part of a cohort, a regiment of the Roman military. A legion numbered about six thousand men. Each legion had ten cohorts of about six hundred men each. The cohorts were divided into centuries of a hundred men, and each century was commanded by a centurion, something like a modern sergeant. Cornelius was a Gentile of Italian descent. He and his family were “God-fearers,” similar to the Ethiopian eunuch (8:27). Caesarea, which was about 30 miles north of Joppa on the coast, was the capital of Judea under the Roman procurators.

10:6 lodging with Simon, a tanner: God cut away Peter’s prejudices by having him stay for many days not only with a Gentile, but with one whose trade Peter likely considered repulsive.

10:7 when the angel . . . departed, Cornelius called: Cornelius’s desire was to be pleasing to God. The fact that he readily obeyed the angel is a sign of how much he desired the truth. With this kind of attitude, there is no question that Cornelius was open to receiving the truth of the gospel the moment he heard it.

10:9–16 While his host was preparing the noon meal, Peter fell into a trance during which he was commanded to kill and eat all kinds of animals, reptiles, and birds. The problem was that the animals were mixed: clean and unclean beasts were gathered together (see Lev. 11). Jewish people were taught from childhood never to touch or eat any animal that was unclean. However, here Peter was being commanded by God to do just that. Three times God corrected Peter’s resistance with the words, what God has cleansed you must not call common. Food may have been his first consideration, but Peter would soon understand the greater message. The vision was a sign from heaven that Jews were no longer to call Gentiles unclean. From that point on, these two groups would be on equal footing before the Father. God was breaking down Peter’s prejudices.

one who feared God

(Gk. phoboumenos ton theon) (10:2, 22; 13:16, 26) Strong’s #5399; 2316

Simply stated, this expression means “God-fearer.” Luke identifies such a category of people throughout the Book of Acts (see 10:2, 22, 35; 13:16, 26 for the expression “fearing God,” and 13:43, 50; 16:14; 17:4, 17; 18:7 for the expression “devout” or “worshiping God”). The God-fearers were Gentiles who were interested in Judaism but were not necessarily converts or proselytes. They worshiped the same God and observed the same laws as the Jews did, but they did not become circumcised. Many of these God-fearers were the first Gentiles to become Christians. Cornelius was the prototype of such a God-fearer.

a great sheet bound at the four corners, descending to him and let down to the earth. ¹²In it were all kinds of four-footed animals of the earth, wild beasts, creeping things, and birds of the air. ¹³And a voice came to him, “Rise, Peter; kill and eat.”

¹⁴But Peter said, “Not so, Lord! ^jFor I have never eaten anything common or unclean.”

¹⁵And a voice spoke to him again the second time, ^k“What God has ⁶cleansed you must not call common.” ¹⁶This was done three times. And the object was taken up into heaven again.

Summoned to Caesarea

¹⁷Now while Peter ⁷wondered within himself what this vision which he had seen meant, behold, the men who had been sent from Cornelius had made inquiry for Simon’s house, and stood before the gate. ¹⁸And they called and asked whether Simon, whose surname was Peter, was lodging there.

¹⁹While Peter thought about the vision, ^lthe Spirit said to him, “Behold, three men are seeking you. ^{20m}Arise therefore, go down and go with them, doubting nothing; for I have sent them.”

²¹Then Peter went down to the men ⁸who had been sent to him from Cornelius, and said, “Yes, I am he whom you seek. For what reason have you come?”

²²And they said, “Cornelius the centurion, a just man, one who fears God and ⁿhas a good reputation among all the nation of the Jews, was divinely instructed by a holy angel to summon you to his house, and to hear words from you.” ²³Then he invited them in and lodged them.

On the next day Peter went away with them, ^oand some brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

Peter Meets Cornelius

²⁴And the following day they entered Caesarea. Now Cornelius was waiting for them, and had called together his relatives and close friends. ²⁵As Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him and fell down at his feet and worshiped him. ²⁶But Peter lifted him up, saying, ^p“Stand up; I myself am also a man.” ²⁷And as he

10:23 Peter went away with them: Though Peter chose to travel in public with three Gentiles, he was careful to take six believing Jewish brethren with him (11:12) as witnesses.

10:27 many . . . had come together: The great faith of Cornelius is demonstrated by the fact that he had a house full of people when Peter arrived.

10:34–42 God shows no partiality: The good news of the gospel is not for a certain population. In every nation every kind of person is welcome into the kingdom of God. This is precisely what Christ had told the apostles (see Matt. 28:19).

dead. ⁴³ⁿTo Him all the prophets witness that, through His name, ^owhoever believes in Him will receive ^premission⁵ of sins.”

The Holy Spirit Falls on the Gentiles

⁴⁴While Peter was still speaking these words, ^qthe Holy Spirit fell upon all those who heard the word. ⁴⁵^rAnd ⁶those of the circumcision who believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, ^sbecause the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out on the Gentiles also. ⁴⁶For they heard them speak with tongues and magnify God.

Then Peter answered, ⁴⁷“Can anyone forbid water, that these should not be baptized who have received the Holy Spirit ^tjust as we have?” ⁴⁸^uAnd he commanded them to be baptized ^vin the name of the Lord. Then they asked him to stay a few days.

Peter Defends God's Grace

11 Now the apostles and brethren who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God. ²And when Peter came up to Jerusalem, ^athose of the circumcision contended with him, ³saying, ^b“You went in to uncircumcised men ^cand ate with them!”

⁴But Peter explained it to them ^din order from the beginning, saying: ⁵^e“I was in the city of Joppa praying; and in a trance I saw a vision, an object descending like a great sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came to me. ⁶When I observed it intently and considered, I saw four-footed animals of the earth, wild beasts, creeping things, and birds of the air. ⁷And I heard a voice saying to me, ‘Rise, Peter; kill and eat.’ ⁸But I said, ‘Not so, Lord! For nothing common or unclean has at any time entered my mouth.’ ⁹But the voice answered me again from heaven, ‘What God has cleansed you must not call common.’ ¹⁰Now this was done three times, and all were drawn up again into heaven. ¹¹At that very moment, three men stood before the house where I was, having been sent to me from Caesarea. ¹²Then ^fthe Spirit told me to go with them, doubting nothing. Moreover ^gthese six brethren accompanied me, and we entered the man’s house. ¹³^hAnd he told us how he had seen an angel standing in his house, who said to him, ‘Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon whose surname is Peter, ¹⁴who will tell you words by which you and all your household will be saved.’ ¹⁵And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, ⁱas upon us at the beginning. ¹⁶Then I remembered the word of the Lord, how He said, ^j‘John indeed baptized with water, but ^kyou shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit.’ ¹⁷If therefore God gave them the same gift as He gave us when we believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, ^mwho was I that I could withstand God?”

¹⁸When they heard these things they became silent; and they glorified God, saying, ⁿ“Then God has also granted to the Gentiles repentance to life.”

10:43 In order to receive remission of sins, one has to believe—nothing more, nothing less.

10:44–46 The Holy Spirit fell upon all those who heard: The Jewish believers present were amazed because they saw that the Gentiles had received the same gift of speaking in tongues that they had received (ch. 2). The good news had reached the Jews, the Samaritans, and now the Gentiles. All were united by the same faith in the same Lord with the same gift of the Holy Spirit.

10:47, 48 Willingness to be baptized is the consistent response in the Book of Acts of all who placed their faith in Christ. It is the appropriate response (see Matt. 28:19, 20) of a regenerated heart (2:36–38).

11:1 The Jews were not fond of the Gentiles. In some rabbinical writings, the Gentiles were considered to have been created by God to kindle the fires of hell. They were called dogs (see Matt. 15:26) and unclean (10:14).

11:2 Those of the circumcision refers to Jewish Christians who believed that Gentiles had to become Jews when they became Christians. The Jewish Christians had been circumcised as a seal of the Mosaic covenant and had kept the Jewish laws. They were not pleased that the Gentiles were considered equal to them in the eyes of God, based on nothing more than their faith in Christ. They wanted the Gentiles to be circumcised and to keep the Law of Moses in order to become Christians. contended with him: This was not a polite discussion, but an intense quarrel. The Jewish Christians were upset because Peter had broken Jewish law by going into the home of a Gentile and eating with him. The Jewish Christians justified their prejudice by claiming that it was God who had forbidden eating with Gentiles. However, the Levitical laws were not intended to teach ostracism.

11:4–10 in a trance I saw a vision: Because of the importance of the issue of personal prejudice, Luke repeats the account of the vision of the sheet and the unclean animals that God used to free Peter from his racial bigotry (10:9–16).

11:12 Peter had wisely taken six brethren with him when he visited Cornelius’s home (10:23). He anticipated the argument from “those of the circumcision” (v. 2).

11:15 began to speak: Apparently Peter considered the words he spoke in Caesarea (10:34–43) to be just the introduction to the sermon he had intended to preach. as upon us: The manifestation of the Holy Spirit was the same to the Gentiles at Caesarea as it was to the Jews at Jerusalem (10:44). At the beginning is a reference to the Day of Pentecost (2:4).

11:16 baptized with the Holy Spirit: This statement is found seven times in the NT (see also 1:5; Matt. 3:11; Mark 1:8; Luke 3:16; John 1:33; 1 Cor. 12:13). The reference is to a once-for-all act whereby Christ places believers in the care and safekeeping of the Holy Spirit until the day He returns.

11:18 granted to the Gentiles repentance to life: This section begins a bold new step in the mission of the church. The Samaritans were part Jewish; the Ethiopian eunuch and Cornelius were Jewish proselytes. Finally the Jewish Christians that made up the early church understood Jesus’ commission to them: they were to bring the gospel message to the Gentile too (1:8).

Barnabas and Saul at Antioch

¹⁹Now those who were scattered after the persecution that arose over Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to no one but the Jews only. ²⁰But some of them were men from Cyprus and Cyrene, who, when they had come to Antioch, spoke to ^pthe Hellenists, preaching the Lord Jesus. ²¹And ^qthe hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and ^rturned to the Lord.

²²Then news of these things came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent out ^sBarnabas to go as far as Antioch. ²³When he came and had seen the grace of God, he was glad, and ^tencouraged them all that with purpose of heart they should continue with the Lord. ²⁴For he was a good man, ^ufull of the Holy Spirit and of faith. ^vAnd a great many people were added to the Lord.

²⁵Then Barnabas departed for ^wTarsus to seek Saul. ²⁶And when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. So it was that for a whole year they assembled with the church and taught a great many people. And the disciples were first called Christians in Antioch.

Relief to Judea

²⁷And in these days ^xprophets came from Jerusalem to Antioch. ²⁸Then one of them, named ^yAgabus, stood up and showed by the Spirit that there was going to be a great famine throughout all the world, which also happened in the days of ^zClaudius Caesar. ²⁹Then the disciples, each according to his ability, determined to send ^arelief to the brethren dwelling in Judea. ³⁰^bThis they also did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

Herod's Violence to the Church

12 Now about that time Herod the king stretched out his hand to harass some from the church. ²Then he killed James ^athe brother of John with the sword. ³And because he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to seize Peter also. Now it was during ^bthe Days of Unleavened Bread. ⁴So ^cwhen he had arrested him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four ¹squads of soldiers to keep him, intending to bring him before the people after Passover.

Peter Freed from Prison

⁵Peter was therefore kept in prison, but ²constant prayer was offered to God for him by the church. ⁶And when Herod was about to bring him out, that night Peter was sleeping, bound with two chains between two soldiers; and the guards before the door were ³keeping the prison. ⁷Now behold, ^dan angel of the Lord stood

11:19 This persecution began when Stephen was murdered for his faith (ch. 7). God often uses tough times to accomplish His will. Jesus said, “You shall be witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth” (1:8). God allowed persecution to be the impetus for spreading Christ’s witness throughout the land. Those who face such persecution will receive “great reward” in heaven (see Matt. 5:10–12). the Jews only: At this time it was primarily the Jewish believers who were being persecuted. Consequently, the Jewish Christians were the ones who were moving out and sharing the gospel of Jesus Christ in various regions. They shared the gospel with the Jews because they still met in the local synagogues and held on to many of the Jewish customs.

11:22, 23 Seleucus I founded the city of Antioch, naming it after his father. The city was cosmopolitan, attracting people of various cultures and ethnic backgrounds—including people from Persia, India, and even China. The gospel proclaimed in Antioch would have had tremendous potential for reaching other areas of the world. Moreover, because the city was culturally diverse, it was not controlled by one religious group, making the people there more open to hearing the truth of the gospel message. Barnabas, nicknamed “Son of Encouragement” by the apostles (4:36), was sent to discern what God was doing in the lives of the new converts. When Barnabas saw the grace of God in these converts, he was true to his name and encouraged them in their new faith. Purpose of heart describes a resolve of the will to make up one’s mind about one thing. The resolve here was to remain with the Lord.

11:25 Barnabas departed . . . to seek Saul: Because Barnabas was sensitive to the leading of the Holy Spirit (v. 24), God was able to bring Saul of Tarsus to his mind again. The disciples in Jerusalem were afraid of Saul and refused to believe that he was a disciple (9:26). Barnabas, however, had defended Saul before the apostles (9:27).

11:26 The believers were called Christians because they worshiped Christ, the Messiah. The historian Josephus called them “that tribe of Christians.” Tacitus, the Roman historian, referred to them as “Christians, a name derived from Christ.” Originally, the church called themselves “The Way.” But later they began to refer to themselves as Christians, despite the fact that the name most likely was originally used to ridicule the believers.

12:1–3 Herod the king is Herod Agrippa I, the nephew of Herod Antipas who murdered John the Baptist, and the grandson of Herod the Great who had the children of Bethlehem put to death in his search for Jesus. Herod was not a Jew but an Edomite. The Jews resented this fact, and Herod knew it. James was the first of the Twelve to die for the sake of the gospel, and the only one whose death is recorded in the NT. Being put to death with the sword meant being beheaded. Jesus had told both James and his brother John that they would drink the same cup of suffering He did (see Matt. 20:20–23). For James, this suffering was execution. For John, it was exile. The killing of James by Herod was an attempt to win the favor of the Jewish leaders.

12:5, 6 Peter was arrested and slated to be executed like James (v. 2). However, Peter’s execution was delayed because it was against Jewish law to have a trial or sentencing during the Feast of Unleavened Bread, better known as Passover. This was Peter’s third arrest (4:3; 5:18). During a previous incarceration, Peter had miraculously escaped with the help of an angel of the Lord who opened the gates of the prison (5:19, 20). This time Peter was placed under maximum security in the care of four squads of soldiers of four men each. The soldiers worked three-hour shifts. Both of Peter’s wrists were chained, and he had a soldier on each side. Outside Peter’s cell, two more soldiers stood guard.

by him, and a light shone in the prison; and he struck Peter on the side and raised him up, saying, “Arise quickly!” And his chains fell off his hands. ⁸Then the angel said to him, “Gird yourself and tie on your sandals”; and so he did. And he said to him, “Put on your garment and follow me.” ⁹So he went out and followed him, and ^edid not know that what was done by the angel was real, but thought ^fhe was seeing a vision. ¹⁰When they were past the first and the second guard posts, they came to the iron gate that leads to the city, ^gwhich opened to them of its own accord; and they went out and went down one street, and immediately the angel departed from him.

¹¹And when Peter had come to himself, he said, “Now I know for certain that ^hthe Lord has sent His angel, and ⁱhas delivered me from the hand of Herod and from all the expectation of the Jewish people.”

¹²So, when he had considered this, ^jhe came to the house of Mary, the mother of ^kJohn whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together ^lpraying. ¹³And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a girl named Rhoda came to answer. ¹⁴When she recognized Peter’s voice, because of her gladness she did not open the gate, but ran in and announced that Peter stood before the gate. ¹⁵But they said to her, “You are beside yourself!” Yet she kept insisting that it was so. So they said, ^m“It is his angel.”

¹⁶Now Peter continued knocking; and when they opened the door and saw him, they were astonished. ¹⁷But ⁿmotioning to them with his hand to keep silent, he declared to them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, “Go, tell these things to James and ¹⁸Then, as soon as it was day, there was no small ⁴stir among the soldiers about what had become of Peter. ¹⁹But when Herod had searched for him and not found him, he examined the guards and commanded that they should be put to death.

And he went down from Judea to Caesarea, and stayed there.

Herod’s Violent Death

²⁰Now Herod had been very angry with the people of ^oTyre and Sidon; but they came to him with one accord, and having made Blastus ⁵the king’s personal aide their friend, they asked for peace, because ^ptheir country was ⁶supplied with food by the king’s country.

²¹So on a set day Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, sat on his throne and gave an oration to them. ²²And the people kept shouting, “The voice of a god and not of a man!” ²³Then immediately an angel of the Lord ^qstruck him, because ^rhe did not give glory to God. And he was eaten by worms and ⁷died.

²⁴But ^sthe word of God grew and multiplied.

Barnabas and Saul Appointed

²⁵And ^tBarnabas and Saul returned ⁸from Jerusalem when they had ^ufulfilled their ministry, and they also ^vtook with them ^wJohn whose surname was Mark.

13 Now ^ain the church that was at Antioch there were certain prophets and teachers: ^bBarnabas, Simeon who was called Nîger, ^cLucius of Cyrene, Manaen who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. ²As they ministered to the Lord and fasted, the 12:11 delivered me from the hand of Herod: Why was Peter’s life spared while James’s life was taken? The answer is the sovereign will of God. If we believe that God is good and wise, we can trust that what He allowed to happen was part of His wise plan for the good of all of His people. When we place our complete trust in the goodness of God, we can find true peace. God is in control despite any appearance to the contrary.

12:15 You are beside yourself: It is interesting to note that those who were praying so fervently for Peter’s deliverance (v. 12) should regard as insane the person who informed them that their prayers had been answered. It is his angel: This statement may imply a belief in individual guardian angels being assigned to believers (see Dan. 10:21; Matt. 18:10).

12:20 It is unclear why Herod was so angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. Both cities were seaports, like Caesarea, the provincial capital of Judea. The dispute may have been an issue of seaport business, since competition was great. The important point was that the cities did not want the angry king to set an economic embargo against them. Through the royal official Blastus, the people of Tyre and Sidon received an appointment to present their case to the king.

12:22 The voice of a god: The Jewish historian Josephus also provides an account of this display, informing us that in an attempted appeasement of the king the people confessed that he was “more than a mortal.” Herod, instead of rebuking the address of deity, enjoyed the adulation—until he discovered the consequence of such blasphemy.

13:1 Prophets functioned in the early church as proclaimers of God’s revelation. Teachers explained the meaning of the revelation and helped the people apply it to their lives. In the early church the prophets were the preachers—the ones who communicated revelation directly from the Spirit of God. Evangelists, pastors, and teachers (see Eph. 4:11) took what was taught or declared and made it applicable for the daily nurture of people’s lives. Antioch was the base of operation for Saul.

13:2 ministered to the Lord: As the people carried out what God had given them to do as prophets or teachers, their ministry to the church became their ministry to the Lord. Whenever we serve each other, God accepts that service as directly unto Him (see Matt. 25:31–46).

Holy Spirit said, ^d“Now separate to Me Barnabas and Saul for the work ^eto which I have called them.” ³Then, ^fhaving fasted and prayed, and laid hands on them, they sent them away.

Preaching in Cyprus

⁴So, being sent out by the Holy Spirit, they went down to Seleucia, and from there they sailed to ^gCyprus. ⁵And when they arrived in Salamis, ^hthey preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. They also had ⁱJohn as their assistant.

⁶Now when they had gone through ¹the island to Paphos, they found ^ja certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew whose name was Bar-Jesus, ⁷who was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. This man called for Barnabas and Saul and sought to hear the word of God. ⁸But ^kElymas the sorcerer (for so

And immediately a dark mist fell on him, and he went around seeking someone to lead him by the hand. ¹²Then the proconsul believed, when he saw what had been done, being astonished at the teaching of the Lord.

At Antioch in Pisidia

¹³Now when Paul and his party set sail from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia; and ^oJohn, departing from them,

13:3 The laying on of hands was the church’s way of identifying with and affirming the mission to which God had called a particular person.

13:5 John was John Mark, the nephew of Barnabas (12:25).

13:6–12 Luke presents Sergius Paulus as the first Gentile ruler to believe the gospel. The island of Cyprus was a senatorial island, which means it was Roman-controlled. As a Roman official, Sergius was a Gentile. Unlike Cornelius (10:2), there is no evidence that Sergi-us attended the temple or was a God-fearer. This pagan government official was amazed at the power of God and believed the truth.

13:9 Saul, who also is called Paul: It was not unusual for a person to have two names. In Paul’s Jewish surroundings, the name Saul was used. But in his mission to the Gentiles, his Roman name Paul was used. The name Paul means “Small One.”

13:13 John, departing from them: Whatever the trouble was between Paul and John Mark, it was enough for Paul not to want returned to Jerusalem. ¹⁴But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Pisidia, and ¹⁵went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day and sat down. ¹⁶And ¹⁷after the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent to them, saying, “Men and brethren, if you have ¹⁸any word of ¹⁹exhortation for the people, say on.”

²⁰Then Paul stood up, and motioning with his hand said, “Men of Israel, and ²¹you who fear God, listen: ²²The God of this people ²³Israel ²⁴chose our fathers, and exalted the people ²⁵“when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with ²⁶an uplifted arm He ²⁷brought them out of it. ²⁸Now ²⁹for a time of about forty years He put up with their ways in the wilderness. ³⁰And when He had destroyed ³¹seven nations in the land of Canaan, ³²He distributed their land to them by allotment.

John Mark to accompany him on a later journey (15:36–39). John Mark would prove faithful later in Paul’s ministry (see 2 Tim. 4:11).

13:14 Why did Paul and his party pass through Perga without any reported sharing of the gospel there? Paul might have had some physical affliction that forced him from the lowlands of Perga to the cooler, higher altitudes of Antioch in Pisidia, some 3,600 feet above sea level. Later, when Paul wrote to the Galatian churches, he spoke about an illness (see Gal. 4:13). Paul’s affliction may have affected his eyes in some way. Some think Paul had malaria, which left him with disabling headaches, described by the ancients as like a red-hot bar thrust through the forehead. Possibly this was what Paul meant when he referred to his “thorn in the flesh” (see 2 Cor. 12:7). Antioch in Pisidia was a different city from the Antioch located just north of Palestine in Syria (11:22).

13:20 Some early manuscripts apply the four hundred and fifty years to the period before the judges referred to in vv. 17–19. In either case the intended extent of the time reference is vague.

13:22 David . . . a man after My own heart: What God saw in David was a deep desire to do His will. Throughout David’s entire life that drive never changed. Unlike King Saul, who was a self-willed man, David confessed his sins and quickly repented of them (see Ps. 51).

He put up with

(Gk. trophophorō) (13:18) Strong’s #5159

This Greek word, which occurs only here in the NT, means “to bear with.” But other manuscripts read “cared for” (literally “carried them as a nurse”). The two Greek words differ in only one letter: etrophophorēsen (meaning “nourished”) and etrophophorēsen (meaning “bore with”). Nourished is probably a quote from the Septuagint (Greek OT) translation of Deut. 1:31. With that as the reading, Paul in this sermon to Jews at Antioch was emphasizing God’s great care for the Israelites in the wilderness. Otherwise, Paul was using the expression He put up with as a graphic portrayal of God’s patience.

words might be preached to them the next Sabbath. ⁴³ Now when the congregation had broken up, many of the Jews and devout proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas, who, speaking to them, ^dpersuaded them to continue in ^ethe grace of God.

⁴⁴ On the next Sabbath almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God. ⁴⁵ But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy; and contradicting and blaspheming, they ^fopposed the things spoken by Paul. ⁴⁶ Then Paul and Barnabas grew bold and said, ^g“It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken to you first; but ^hsince you reject it, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, behold, ⁱwe turn to the Gentiles. ⁴⁷ For so the Lord has commanded us:

^j‘I have set you as a light to the Gentiles,

13:37 He whom God raised up saw no corruption: Paul argued that David could not have been speaking of himself in Ps. 16:10 (see v. 35). When David died, his body returned to dust just like everyone else’s (see Peter’s comments in 2:29–31). David was speaking of the Messiah, who would be raised from the dead as the final proof of His divine Sonship (see Rom. 1:4).
13:39 everyone who believes is justified: Justification is a legal term meaning “declared innocent.” It is a legal declaration that a person is acquitted and absolved. It is by justification that a person is righteous and acceptable to God. The death of Christ was the payment of our sin debt, so that we might be forgiven.

13:45 When Luke refers to the Jews, he is not speaking of all Jews. The Jews mentioned in v. 43, those who were urging Paul and Barnabas “to continue in the grace of God,” honestly wanted to know the truth. The Jews in this verse were the Jewish leaders, those in the positions of religious authority. When the Jewish leaders saw the crowds following Paul, they changed their minds about Paul and became filled with jealousy, especially since many of the people who had gathered were Jews.
13:46 judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life: A person who convinces himself that he does not need forgiveness from the Holy One has already condemned himself.

The Spread of the Gospel

After Stephen's martyrdom, the believers in Jerusalem were scattered over Judea and Samaria because of Jewish persecution of the Christians (8:1–3). Wherever the Christians went, they preached the gospel, obeying Christ's command to be witnesses to Him "in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth." The Book of Acts records the spread of the gospel throughout the Mediterranean world.

Destination	Travelers	Purpose of the Journey	Response	Reference
Samaria	Peter and John	In response to Saul's persecution and Stephen's martyrdom, the believers scattered throughout Judea and Samaria. Peter and John went to Samaria to preach to them.	The Samaritans listened to Philip and believed in Jesus. The whole city was filled with joy.	8:4–40
The Gaza road	Philip	The angel of the Lord told Philip to go to the Gaza road. There Philip witnessed to an Ethiopian.	The Ethiopian believed and was baptized.	8:26–38
Damascus	Paul	Paul was persecuting the Christians. Some Christians were staying in Damascus, so he pursued them there. However the Lord Jesus Himself appeared in a blinding vision.	Paul submitted to the Lord, and was eventually baptized by Ananias.	9:1–19
Joppa	Peter	Peter went to Joppa and raised Tabitha from the dead.	Many believed on the Lord.	9:36–43
Caesarea	Peter	In response to a vision, Peter went to the home of Cornelius, a Gentile, to preach the gospel.	The Holy Spirit was poured out on the Gentiles, and Peter baptized them as believers.	10:1–48
Antioch; Tarsus	Barnabas	The church at Jerusalem sent Barnabas to investigate the church at Antioch, because many Greeks were becoming Christians.	Barnabas encouraged the Christians, and then brought Paul to Antioch to teach them.	11:19–26
Cyprus; Pamphylia; Galatia	Barnabas; Paul; John Mark	The first missionary journey: The church at Antioch commissioned Paul and Barnabas for missionary work to preach the gospel.	Churches were established in the cities of Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch in Pisidia.	13:1—14:28
Jerusalem	Barnabas; Paul	Paul and Barnabas went to Jerusalem to settle the question of whether Gentile Christians should obey Jewish laws.	The Jerusalem council agreed that salvation was only through Christ.	15:1–29
Cyprus	Barnabas; John Mark	After a break with Paul, Barnabas took John Mark to visit the churches in Cyprus.		15:36–41
Galatia; Asia Minor; Macedonia; Achaia	Paul; Silas; Timothy; Luke	The second missionary journey: Paul and Silas revisited the churches in Galatia and then the Holy Spirit led them to go to Macedonia. Eventually Paul was able to preach in Athens.	Churches were established in the cities of Philippi, Thessalonica, and Corinth.	15:36—18:22
Ephesus; Achaia	Apollos	Apollos traveled from Alexandria to Ephesus, where he learned the gospel from Priscilla and Aquila. Then he went to Corinth and Athens to preach the gospel.		18:24–28; 19:1

The Origin of the Synagogue

In nearly every city in which we find Jesus or Paul in the NT, we also find a synagogue. Most scholars agree that the NT form of the synagogue probably began taking shape after the temple in Jerusalem had been destroyed and during the Exile. With their people scattered around the world, displaced Jews needed meeting places where they could learn about the faith and worship God.

By the time of Jesus and Paul, synagogues served as local centers of worship, education, and government in the Jewish community. According to tradition, a synagogue was established wherever there were as many as ten Jewish men. The rebuilt temple in Jerusalem remained the center for sacrificial worship and the site at which to celebrate appointed feasts. But the synagogue played an ever-increasing role in the religious instruction of the Jews.

At Iconium

14 Now it happened in Iconium that they went together to the synagogue of the Jews, and so spoke that a great multitude both of the Jews and of the ^aGreeks believed. ²But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles and ¹poisoned their ²minds against the brethren. ³Therefore they stayed there a long time, speaking boldly in the Lord, ^bwho was bearing witness to the word of His grace, granting signs and ^cwonders to be done by their hands.

⁴But the multitude of the city was ^ddivided: part sided with the Jews, and part with the ^eapostles. ⁵And when a violent attempt was made by both the Gentiles and Jews, with their rulers, ^fto abuse and stone them, ⁶they became aware of it and ^gfled to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and to the surrounding region. ⁷And they were preaching the gospel there.

14:1 Paul and Barnabas spoke with authority because they spoke the truth. The power of God is not in the person who witnesses, but in what is witnessed to.

14:8–13 The gods have come down: The Roman poet Ovid told of an ancient legend in which Zeus and Hermes came to the Phrygian hill country disguised as mortals seeking lodging. After being turned away from a thousand homes, they found refuge in the humble cottage of an elderly couple. In appreciation for the couple's hospitality, the gods transformed the cottage into a temple with a golden roof and marble columns. All the houses of the inhospitable people were then destroyed. This ancient legend may be the reason that the people treated Paul and Barnabas as gods. After witnessing the healing of the cripple, they did not want to make the same mistake as their ancestors.

14:14 tore their clothes: The tearing of robes was a Jewish expression of distress and grief.

14:15–17 The sermon by Paul in these three verses is a condensed version of his sermon on the Areopagus in 17:22–31. These Gentiles did not know or believe in the Scriptures, so Paul preached truths that were self-evident to all and led his listeners to biblical truth.

Paul's First Missionary Journey c. A.D. 46–48 (Acts 13:4–14:28)

ness, in that He did good, ¹⁸gave us rain from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with “food and gladness.” ¹⁸And with these sayings they could scarcely restrain the multitudes from sacrificing to them.

Stoning, Escape to Derbe

¹⁹Then Jews from Antioch and Iconium came there; and having persuaded the multitudes, ¹⁹they stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, supposing him to be ¹⁹dead. ²⁰However, when the disciples gathered around him, he rose up and went into the city. And the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

Strengthening the Converts

²¹And when they had preached the gospel to that city ²¹and made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch, ²²strengthening the souls of the disciples, ²²exhorting them to continue in the faith, and saying, ^a“We must through many tribulations enter the kingdom of God.” ²³So when they had ^bappointed elders in every church, and prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord in whom they had believed. ²⁴And after they had passed through Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia. ²⁵Now when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia. ²⁶From there they sailed to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work which they had completed.

²⁷Now when they had come and gathered the church together, ^cthey reported all that God had done with them, and that He had ^dopened the door of faith to the Gentiles. ²⁸So they stayed there a long time with the disciples.

Conflict over Circumcision

15 And ^acertain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren, ^b“Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved.” ²Therefore, when Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and dispute with them, they determined that ^cPaul and Barnabas and certain others of them should go up to Jerusalem, to the apostles and elders, about this question.

³So, ^dbeing sent on their way by the church, they passed through Phoenicia and Samaria, ^edescribing the conversion of the Gentiles; and they caused great joy to all the brethren. ⁴And when they had come to Jerusalem, they were received by the church and the apostles and the elders; and they reported all things that God had done with them. ⁵But some of the sect of the Pharisees who believed rose up, saying, “It is necessary to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.”

The Jerusalem Council

⁶Now the apostles and elders came together to consider this matter. ⁷And when

14:19 supposing him to be dead: The physician Luke may be saying that Paul did not die here. However, some believe that the text speaks of Paul's resurrection.

14:23 appointed elders: It is difficult to know whether these elders were appointed by Paul and Barnabas or by a vote of the people. However, the process outlined in 6:1–7 for selecting the seven men may provide a clue to the process used for selecting elders here. Both the assembly and the apostles were involved in the selection process.

15:1–4 Later those who taught the need for circumcision among new believers were known as Judaizers. They wanted the Christian faith to become a sect of Judaism. In other words, they wanted Gentile believers to become Jewish proselytes. As proselytes, the Gentile believers would need to be circumcised as a sign of coming into the covenant of God along with the Jews.

15:5 some of the sect of the Pharisees: These people believed in Jesus Christ but were still identified as Pharisees. Jews who became followers of Christ could still be Pharisees. The same could not be said for the Sadducees, for they denied that there was a resurrection, and thus could not believe that Jesus had been raised from the dead. It is necessary to circumcise them: This statement summarizes the problem. Is salvation granted through faith alone? Or does a person have to have faith plus the works of the law in order to be forgiven by God?

15:7 It was from the mouth of Peter that Cornelius and his Gentile friends heard the gospel of Jesus Christ (10:11–43).

there had been much dispute, Peter rose up and said to them: ^f“Men and brethren, you know that a good while ago God chose among us, that by my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel and believe. ⁸So God, ^gwho knows the heart, ¹acknowledged them by ^hgiving them the Holy Spirit, just as He did to us, ⁹*and* made no distinction between us and them, ^jpurifying their hearts by faith. ¹⁰Now therefore, why do you test God ^kby putting a yoke on the neck of the disciples which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? ¹¹But ^lwe believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus ²Christ we shall be saved in the same manner as they.”

¹²Then all the multitude kept silent and listened to Barnabas and Paul declaring how many miracles and wonders God had ^mworked through them among the Gentiles. ¹³And after they had ³become silent, ⁿJames answered, saying, “Men and brethren, listen to me: ¹⁴^oSimon has declared how God at the first visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name. ¹⁵And with this the words of the prophets agree, just as it is written:

The Jerusalem Decree

²²Then it pleased the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas, namely, Judas who was also named ^xBarsabbas, ⁷ and Silas, leading men among the brethren.

⁷ NU, M Barsabbas

15:10 Yoke here refers to the law (see Gal. 5:1).

15:11 we shall be saved in the same manner as they: These are the last words of Peter in the Book of Acts. He leaves us with the eternal truth that we are saved through faith by grace alone. The emphasis in the Book of Acts now moves from Peter to Paul, from the presentation of the gospel message among the Jews to its presentation to the Gentiles.

15:12 Barnabas and Paul reported what God was doing in changing the lives of Gentiles with the gospel of Jesus Christ. Their testimony at this council was critical.

15:13 The council listened to James because he was the first of the three pillars of the church (see Gal. 2:9). He was the leader of the church in Jerusalem until he was stoned to death at the insistence of the high priest in A.D. 62. James was the Lord’s half brother, the one who did not believe until the Lord appeared to him privately after the Resurrection (see 1 Cor. 15:7).

15:15–18 While the testimony of Peter, Barnabas, and Paul was important for the council in making their decision, something more than the experience of the Gentiles had to be taken into consideration. The council needed to know what the Word of God said. James pointed out that what was happening among the Gentiles was in full agreement with the OT (Amos 9:11, 12).

15:19, 20 The testimony of Paul and Barnabas—those who worked among the Gentiles—and most importantly the teaching of Scripture, indicated to James that God was truly at work (v. 18). In view of this, he suggested that a letter be drafted that alleviated Jewish requirements for Gentiles who placed their trust in Jesus. Though James did not want to trouble Gentiles with Jewish ceremonial regulations, he believed certain practices should be followed. He mentioned four issues: eating food offered to idols, sexual immorality, eating food from animals that had been strangled, and eating food with blood. If Gentiles continued such practices, there would continually be tension between the Gentile and Jewish Christian communities. There is a debate as to whether these requirements were ceremonial or moral in nature. If they were ceremonial, “things polluted by idols” would refer to food offered in pagan temples (see 1 Cor. 8–10). “Sexual immorality” would refer to the marriage laws of Lev. 18:6–20. The prohibition against eating blood preceded the Law of Moses and extended back to the contract God made with Noah (see Gen. 9:3, 4; see also Lev. 17:10–14). On the other hand, if these prohibitions were moral in nature, the food polluted by idols would relate to the problem of Rev. 2:14, 20. Evidently some Gentile Christians were attending the celebrations and banquets held in pagan temples that frequently involved sexual immorality.

15:21 For Moses has had . . . those who preach him: James may have been saying that since there were Jewish communities in every city, it would be wise to remain sensitive to Jewish convictions. He may also have been saying that since the Gentile believers would learn more and more about the Scriptures, the Spirit of God would cultivate godly convictions in their hearts.

15:22 it pleased the apostles and elders: It is interesting to note the process the council followed in resolving this conflict. First, the grace

(Gk. charis) (15:11; Rom. 3:24; 5:15; Eph. 2:5; Titus 2:11)
Strong’s #5485

The Greek word for grace is probably equivalent to the Hebrew word chesed meaning “lovingkindness,” a word frequently used by the psalmists to describe God’s character. In the NT, the word charis usually means divine favor or goodwill, but it also means “that which gives joy” and “that which is a free gift.” This is a noteworthy occurrence of the word grace, because while it was one of Paul’s favorite words for God’s free gift of salvation, here we see Peter using it in the same way.

23 They wrote this letter by them:

The apostles, the elders, and the brethren,

To the brethren who are of the Gentiles in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia:

Greetings.

24 Since we have heard that ^asome who went out from us have troubled you with words, ^bunsettling your souls, ^csaying, “You must be circumcised and keep the law”—to whom we gave no such commandment— ^dit seemed good to us, being assembled with one ^eaccord, to send chosen men to you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, ^fmen who have risked their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. ^gWe have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who will also report the same things by word of mouth. ^hFor it seemed good to the Holy Spirit, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things: ⁱthat you abstain from things offered to idols, ^jfrom blood, from things strangled, and from ^ksexual ^limmorality. If you keep yourselves from these, you will do well.

Farewell.

^{34,3} However, it seemed good to Silas to remain there. ³⁵ ^hPaul and Barnabas also remained in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

Division over John Mark

³⁶ Then after some days Paul said to Barnabas, “Let us now go back and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they are doing.” ³⁷ Now Barnabas ⁴was determined to take with them ⁱJohn called Mark. ³⁸ But Paul insisted that they should not take with them ^jthe one who had departed from them in Pamphylia, and had not gone with them to the work. ³⁹ Then the contention became so sharp that they parted from one another. And so Barnabas took Mark and sailed to ^kCyprus; ⁴⁰ but Paul chose Silas and departed, ^lbeing ⁵commended by the brethren to the grace of God. ⁴¹ And he went through Syria and Cilicia, ^mstrengthening the churches.

Timothy Joins Paul and Silas

16 Then he came to ^aDerbe and Lystra. And behold, a certain disciple was there, ^bnamed Timothy, ^cthe son of a certain Jewish woman who believed, but his father was Greek. ² He was well spoken of by the brethren who were at Lystra and Iconium. ³ Paul wanted to problem was clearly stated: Each side was presented in a debate. Second, the facts were presented by those who were acquainted with them. Third, the counsel was given by a person who was trusted for his objectivity and wisdom. Fourth, unanimity was sought in the decision. Fifth, the attitude of preserving the unity of the Spirit remained utmost on the council’s mind. This same formula would be helpful in resolving conflicts found within the church today. chosen men of their own company: The apostles and elders sent a representative from both sides of the dispute—a Judean (Judas) and a Hellenist (Silas)—along with Paul and Barnabas to bolster and confirm the ruling of the council.

15:38 Paul was adamant that John Mark not accompany him on his impending journey. Earlier John Mark had deserted Paul and Barnabas in Pamphylia (13:13). It is unclear why he did so. Some have speculated that John Mark returned to Jerusalem because he did not like the idea of Gentiles coming into the church by faith alone. Whatever the reason for the desertion, it is interesting to note that John Mark was reconciled to Paul and again helped him in his ministry. In 2 Tim. 4:11, Paul, who was in prison, writes, “Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is useful to me for ministry.”

15:39 the contention became so sharp that they parted: There was a heated argument between Paul and Barnabas over John Mark’s usefulness to them. Note that Luke does not assign blame for the disagreement. There are times when Christians will not agree on certain aspects of ministry. Perhaps the best course of action in some of those situations is to work separately. Barnabas left with John Mark, refusing to make the disagreement an issue before the church at Antioch. Barnabas had led the church in its early days (11:22–25). He was the church’s main representative at the Jerusalem council, but he did not use his prominence to seek a reprimand of Paul. Instead he accepted the situation and proceeded to faithfully serve the Lord.

16:1 Timothy was the son of Eunice, a Jewish woman of great faith (see 2 Tim. 1:5). Eunice had taught the Holy Scriptures to Timothy from infancy (see 2 Tim. 3:15). The NT’s silence about the faith of Timothy’s father suggests he was not a believer.

16:2 Well spoken of may be rephrased as “well witnessed.” In other words, people did not have to be told that Timothy was a Christian.

16:3 took him and circumcised him: In Jewish law, Timothy should have been circumcised and raised a Jew, even with a Gentile father. But in Greek law, the father dominated the home. The fact that Timothy was an uncircumcised Jew would have limited his effectiveness in ministering to the Jewish Christians. Salvation was not the issue here. Instead Timothy became circumcised so that God could use him to reach all people—even the Jews—with the message of the gospel.

have him go on with him. And he ^dtook him and circumcised him because of the Jews who were in that region, for they all knew that his father was Greek. ⁴And as they went through the cities, they delivered to them the ^edecrees to keep, ^fwhich were determined by the apostles and elders at Jerusalem. ^{5g}So the churches were strengthened in the faith, and increased in number daily.

The Macedonian Call

⁶Now when they had gone through Phrygia and the region of ^hGalatia, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach the word in ¹Asia. ⁷After they had come to Mysia, they tried to go into Bithynia, but the ²Spirit did not permit them. ⁸So passing by Mysia, they ⁱcame down to Troas. ⁹And a vision appeared to Paul in the night. A ^jman of Macedonia stood and pleaded with him, saying, “Come over to Macedonia and help us.” ¹⁰Now after he had seen the vision, immediately we sought to go ^kto Macedonia, concluding that the Lord had called us to preach the gospel to them.

And we were staying in that city for some days. ¹³And on the Sabbath day we went out of the city to the riverside, where prayer was customarily made; and we sat down and spoke to the women who met there. ¹⁴Now a certain woman named Lydia heard us. She was a seller of purple from the city of ^mThyatira, who worshiped God. ⁿThe Lord opened her heart to heed the things spoken by Paul. ¹⁵And when she and her household were baptized, she begged us, saying, “If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come to my house and stay.” So ^oshe persuaded us.

16:4, 5 The council’s decision (15:24–29) brought great joy and comfort to the Gentiles. Apparently the decrees from the Jerusalem council were considered reasonable and not burdensome.

16:10 sought to go to Macedonia: With both the southwesterly route and the northern path closed by the Holy Spirit (vv. 6, 7), Paul headed in the only direction left open to him—northwest—until he came to the Aegean port of Troas, where he could go no further. Paul was at the right place at the right time to receive the call to go to Macedonia. We: This is the first of four “we” sections in the Book of Acts (16:10–17; 20:5–15; 21:1–18; 27:1—28:16). This indicates that Luke, the author of Acts, accompanied Paul at least these four times.

the Spirit

(Gk. to pneuma) (16:7; Rom. 8:9; Phil. 1:19; 1 Pet. 1:11) Strong’s #4151

The Greek word for Spirit is derived from the verb pneō, meaning “to breathe” or “to blow.” It is sometimes used to refer to the wind and sometimes to life itself (see John 3:8; Rev. 13:15). It can refer to the life of angels (Heb. 1:14), demons (Luke 4:33), and human beings (7:59). Yet this word is also used for the Spirit of God (see 1 Cor. 2:11)—that is, the Holy Spirit (Matt. 28:19), the third Person of the Trinity, the One who lives inside believers (see James 4:5; 1 John 4:13). This same Spirit is called “the Spirit of Jesus Christ” (Phil. 1:19), and as the marginal note indicates, many older manuscripts have the title the Spirit of Jesus in 16:7. This title emphasizes the unity of action between Jesus and the Spirit that permeates this book and its companion volume, the Gospel of Luke. During the days of Jesus’ earthly ministry, the disciples were directed by Jesus; now, after His resurrection and ascension, by the Spirit of Jesus.

16:12 Named after the father of Alexander the Great, Philippi was a Roman colony loyal to the empire. The city itself was organized by the state of Rome and functioned as a military outpost. The people who settled the city were probably army veterans, who were given the rights of Roman citizens. Typically such a colony would possess an autonomous government and be immune from tribute and taxation. Because of its proximity to the sea as well as to one of the major roads to Europe, Philippi was a commercial center in Macedonia. Its influence throughout the region made it a good place to begin preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ.

16:13 where prayer was customarily made: According to Jewish custom, a congregation consisted of ten households. If ten male household heads could be found in a city, a synagogue was formed. If not, a place of prayer was established, usually near a river under the open sky. Paul’s habit was to go first to the synagogue of a new city. However in Philippi, he searched for a Jewish prayer meeting.

16:14 Thyatira was well known for purple dyes and cloth dyeing. Purple dye had to be gathered drop by drop from a certain shellfish. Because it was so expensive, purple dye was used on garments worn by royalty. As an artisan in purple dyes, Lydia was a wealthy woman who had come to Philippi to practice her trade. Paul preached the gospel, but the Lord opened Lydia’s heart to it.

16:16 Luke’s description of the slave girl in Greek indicates that she had a “spirit of Python.” The python was a mythical serpent killed by Apollo, who took both the serpent’s gift of predictions and sometimes its form. Apollo became known as Pythian Apollo. When it was said that one had a “spirit of Python,” it meant that the person was controlled by an evil force. Apparently those who knew the girl did not regard her as insane or fraudulent. Rather they viewed her ability to foretell events as genuine. People paid the girl for her divination services, earning her masters a lot of money.

16:17, 18 greatly annoyed: Paul was upset not because what the girl said was untrue, but because the girl was being viewed as the source of truth.

her.”^s And he came out that very hour.¹⁹ But ^twhen her masters saw that their hope of profit was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and ^udragged them into the marketplace to the authorities.

²⁰ And they brought them to the magistrates, and said, “These men, being Jews, ^vexceedingly trouble our city; ²¹ and they teach customs which are not lawful for us, being Romans, to receive or observe.”²² Then the multitude rose up together against them; and the magistrates tore off their clothes ^wand commanded them to be beaten with rods.²³ And when they had laid many stripes on them, they threw them into prison, commanding the jailer to keep them securely.²⁴ Having received such a charge, he put them into the inner prison and fastened their feet in the stocks.

The Philippian Jailer Saved

²⁵ But at midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them.²⁶^x Suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and immediately ^yall the doors were opened and everyone’s chains were loosed.²⁷ And the keeper of the prison, awaking from sleep and seeing the prison doors open, supposing the prisoners had fled, drew his sword and was about to kill himself.²⁸ But Paul called with a loud voice, saying, “Do yourself no harm, for we are all here.”

²⁹ Then he called for a light, ran in, and fell down trembling before Paul and Silas.³⁰ And he brought them out and said, ^z“Sirs, what must I do to be saved?”

³¹ So they said, ^a“Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and you will be saved, you

Paul Refuses to Depart Secretly

³⁵ And when it was day, the magistrates sent the ⁵officers, saying, “Let those men go.”

³⁶ So the keeper of the prison reported these words to Paul, saying, “The magistrates have sent to let you go. Now therefore depart, and go in peace.”

³⁷ But Paul said to them, “They have beaten us openly, uncondemned ^cRomans, and have thrown us into prison. And now do they put us out secretly? No indeed! Let them come themselves and get us out.”

³⁸ And the officers told these words to the magistrates, and they were afraid when they heard that they were Romans.³⁹ Then they came and pleaded with them and brought them out, and ^dasked them to depart from the city.⁴⁰ So they went out of the prison ^eand entered the house of Lydia; and when they had seen the brethren, they encouraged them and departed.

Preaching Christ at Thessalonica

17 Now when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to ^aThessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews.² Then Paul, as his custom was, ^bwent

16:20, 21 These claims were as false as those leveled first against Jesus and then Stephen. Those who desire to stop the truth of God are often unscrupulous about the truthfulness of their statements. Nothing Paul and Silas had preached remotely related to Roman customs or laws.

16:22 Before prisoners were beaten with rods, their garments were literally torn off so that their flesh would be exposed for the flogging. Paul experienced this particular Roman ordeal on three separate occasions. Later Paul would refer to this beating with wooden rods (see 2 Cor. 11:23, 25).

16:25 praying and singing . . . prisoners were listening: The word translated listening here means “to listen with pleasure,” as if listening to beautiful music. It is in times of darkness that the light of a Christian witness shines brightest (see Phil. 2:14–16).

16:26 immediately all the doors were opened: In ancient prisons each door was secured by a bar. The earthquake, as it passed along the ground, probably forced the doorposts apart so that the bars fell to the ground.

16:27 Under Roman law, a guard who allowed the escape of a prisoner was generally put to death. Believing that all the prisoners had escaped, the keeper of the prison assumed that death was certain for him.

16:30–34 what must I do to be saved: The events surrounding the arrest of Paul and Silas, the way they responded to suffering, and the mighty acts of God brought the jailer to his knees. He finally knew he needed God’s salvation. But how could he be reconciled to God? Paul and Silas’s answer was simple—just believe on the Lord Jesus Christ. No other work was needed. The jailer and his family placed their trust in God and immediately expressed that faith by being baptized.

16:37–40 Once the magistrates learned that Paul and Silas were Roman citizens, they realized that they were in danger of the wrath of Rome. It was unlawful to whip a Roman citizen or deny that person the right to due process. Paul refused to leave when he had the opportunity because he was protecting the infant church in Philippi. Because Paul and Silas were beaten in public, people probably believed that they had done something wrong. If Paul left quietly, then the perception would be that those associated with him, in particular the members of the Philippian church, had also done something wrong.

17:2 reasoned with them from the Scriptures: There was a great deal of evidence in Scripture that Paul could use in his argument. For example, Ps. 22, written over a thousand years earlier by David, describes the crucifixion of the Messiah. Paul could quote Is. 53 and in to them, and for three Sabbaths ^creasoned with them from the Scriptures, ³explaining and demonstrating ^dthat the Christ had to suffer and rise again from the dead, and saying, “This Jesus whom I preach to you is the Christ.” ^{4e} And some of them were persuaded; and a great multitude of the devout Greeks, and not a few of the leading women, joined Paul and ^fSilas.

Assault on Jason’s House

⁵But the Jews ¹who were not persuaded, ²becoming ^genvious, took some of the evil men from the marketplace, and gathering a mob, set all the city in an uproar and attacked the house of ^hJason, and sought to bring them out to the people. ⁶But when they did not find them, they dragged Jason and some brethren to the rulers of the city, crying out, ⁱ“These who have turned the world upside down have come here too. ⁷Jason has ³harbored them, and these are all acting contrary to the decrees of Caesar, ^jsaying there is another king—Jesus.” ⁸And they troubled the crowd and the rulers of the city when they heard these things. ⁹So when they had taken security from Jason and the rest, they let them go.

Ministering at Berea

¹⁰Then ^kthe brethren immediately sent Paul and Silas away by night to Berea. When they arrived, they went into the synagogue of the Jews. ¹¹These were more ⁴fair-minded than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness, and ^lsearched the Scriptures daily to find out whether these things were so. ¹²Therefore many of them believed, and also not a few of the Greeks, prominent women as well as

The Philosophers at Athens

¹⁶Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, ^ohis spirit was provoked within him when he saw that the city was ⁵given over to idols. ¹⁷Therefore he reasoned in the synagogue with the Jews and with the Gentile worshipers, and in the marketplace daily with those who happened to be there. ^{18p}Then certain Epicurean and Stoic philosophers encountered him. And some said, “What does this ⁷babbler want to say?”

Others said, “He seems to be a proclaimer of foreign gods,” because he preached to them ⁹Jesus and the resurrection.

¹⁹And they took him and brought him to the ⁸Areopagus, saying, “May we know what this new doctrine is of which you speak? ²⁰For you are bringing some strange things to our ears. Therefore we want to know what these things mean.” ²¹For all the Athenians and the foreigners who were there spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing.

Addressing the Areopagus

²²Then Paul stood in the midst of the ⁹Areopagus and said, “Men of Athens, I perceive that in all things you are very religious; ²³for as I was passing through

Zech. 12 to demonstrate that the suffering, death, and resurrection of the coming Messiah was predicted by the prophets. The OT abounds with evidence of the Messiah’s character and life that clearly matches that of Jesus (see Luke 24:25–27).

17:5 The Jews here refers to the Jewish leaders of the synagogue who felt threatened by the gospel because it contradicted their own teachings.

17:7 acting contrary to the decrees of Caesar: In A.D. 49 the Roman emperor Claudius expelled all Jews from Rome due to riots that were ignited by a group of zealous Jews. These insurrectionists were advocating revolution against Rome and were opposing the installation of a new king. Paul’s accusers were trying to paint him as a revolutionary who was bringing sedition to Thessalonica.

17:9, 10 had taken security from Jason: Taking security was similar to posting bond today. It was meant as an assurance that there would be no repetition of the trouble caused by the apostle Paul, and that he would not return to Thessalonica. Instead, Paul and Silas traveled 50 miles southwest to the city of Berea.

17:16 Paul was greatly distressed at the sight of numerous pagan temples and altars in Athens. In his letter to the Corinthians Paul explained why he was indignant (see 1 Cor. 10:20). The people’s offerings were being sacrificed to demons. By doing this, the Gentiles were having fellowship with the powers of darkness. For these people to be so deceived by the devil was deeply troubling to Paul.

17:18 this babbler: Some of the philosophers in Athens mocked Paul, calling him a “seed picker” or gutter sparrow, a small bird that snatches up scraps of food. Paul was being accused of grabbing at bits of knowledge without fully digesting or thinking through what he taught. Because Paul did not speak eloquently (1 Cor. 2:1), some philosophers in Athens arrogantly ridiculed him, arguing that he was not sophisticated enough to be taken seriously. Others thought that Paul was advocating foreign gods named Jesus and Resurrection, incorrectly understood to be a male and female deity.

17:19 the Areopagus: Just southwest of the Acropolis in Athens was a hill called the Hill of Ares (Mars in Latin), the god of war. This was where court was held concerning questions of religion and morals. In Athens, the gospel message was examined by the supposed experts of philosophy and religion.

17:22–31 Because the men of Athens had scant knowledge of the Hebrew Scriptures, Paul started with the general revelation visible in creation itself. In the sixth century B.C. it was said that a poet from Crete named Epimenides turned aside a horrible plague from among them. ³⁴However, some men joined him and believed, among them Dionysius the Areopagite, a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Ministering at Corinth

18 After these things Paul departed from Athens and went to Corinth. ²And he found a certain Jew named ^aAquila, born in Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla (because Claudius had commanded all the Jews to depart from Rome); and he came to them. ³So, because he was of the same trade, he stayed with them ^band worked; for by occupation they were tentmakers. ^{4c}And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, and persuaded both Jews and Greeks.

And many of the Corinthians, hearing, believed and were baptized.

⁹Now ^lthe Lord spoke to Paul in the night by a vision, "Do not be afraid, but speak, and do not keep silent; ^{10m}for I the people of Athens by appealing to a god of whom the people had never heard. An altar was built to honor this god, whom the Athenians now called the UNKNOWN GOD. Paul obviously knew of Epimenides; he quoted the poet in Titus 1:12. Thus Paul began his presentation of the gospel by appealing to natural revelation and to certain true statements of the Athenian poets. He has made from one blood: God sovereignly created one man, Adam. As Adam's descendants multiplied and formed nations, it was God who designed their course (see Dan. 2:20, 21). that they should seek the Lord: God has placed within each one of us the yearning to worship and seek Him. We grope for Him by creating images to worship. But Paul points out that God is not far away; we can have fellowship with Him. In fact, every day we depend upon Him for our life and breath. 17:32 Paul's reference to the resurrection of the dead ignited a reaction among the Athenians. The Greeks repudiated the idea of a bodily resurrection. Though they embraced the concept of the soul living forever, they were repulsed by the idea of a bodily resurrection because they considered the body to be evil, something to be discarded. This idea, known as dualism, was derived from the teachings of the Greek philosophers Socrates and Plato. It held that everything physical is evil and everything spiritual is good, and that it makes no difference what one does with one's body so long as the spirit is good. Tragically, the Athenians' adherence to this philosophy blinded them to the truth of the gospel.

18:1 Corinth was the political capital of Achaia. It was also a center for the worship of Aphrodite, the goddess of fertility, and it housed the major temple of Apollo. Because of the sensuous nature of the religious cult of Aphrodite, Corinth had a reputation for being a city of immorality. Beginning in the fifth century B.C., the Greeks used a word meaning "to act like a Corinthian" as a synonym for sexual immorality.

18:3 All young rabbinical students had to learn a trade. Tentmakers were leather workers. The province of Cilicia, from which Paul came, was noted for its cloth made from goats' hair. It is likely that Paul's skill involved making such cloth.

18:5, 6 Paul's custom was to go to the Jews first whenever he entered a new city. Thus in Corinth, he began his proclamation of Jesus in the synagogues. After several attempts to reach the Jews of Corinth (v. 4), attempts that had few results, Paul turned his attention almost exclusively to the Gentiles.

18:7 Justus: Most Romans had three names. This man's name was Titius Justus. Based on Paul's letter to the Corinthians, it is likely that Justus was the man called Gaius in 1 Cor. 1:14.

18:10 In view of the severe treatment he had received elsewhere, Paul must have been very comforted by Christ's statement that he would not be hurt or beaten in Corinth (16:22-24).

am with you, and no one will attack you to hurt you; for I have many people in this city.” ¹¹And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

¹²When Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews with one accord rose up against Paul and brought him to the ³judgment seat, ¹³saying, “This fellow persuades men to worship God contrary to the law.”

¹⁴And when Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were a matter of wrongdoing or wicked crimes, O Jews, there would be reason why I should bear with you. ¹⁵But if it is a ⁿquestion of words and names and your own law, look to it yourselves; for I do not want to be a judge of such matters.”

¹⁶And he drove them from the judgment seat. ¹⁷Then ⁴all the Greeks took ^oSosthenes, the ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgment seat. But Gallio took no notice of these things.

Paul Returns to Antioch

¹⁸So Paul still remained ⁵a good while. Then he took leave of the brethren and 18:12 In the spring of A.D. 52, a proconsul named Gallio was appointed by the Roman senate to govern the province of Achaia (Greece). Gallio was a brother of the famous stoic philosopher Seneca, who possessed great influence in Rome. The Jewish leaders thought they would take advantage of the new governor and rid themselves of Paul and the gospel of Jesus Christ. Bringing Paul before the judgment seat of the governor was a momentous event. If the Roman governor ruled Christianity illegal, it would set a precedent and encourage immediate persecution of all Christians.

18:14 Paul did not even have to open his mouth to defend the faith. God had already provided for Paul's defense; he had prepared Gallio to make the correct decision. No crime had been committed against Rome. Gallio considered Christianity to be a Jewish sect. Because Judaism was an established religion in the Roman Empire, this “sect” was not in violation of Roman law. Gallio had his bailiffs drive the accusers out of his presence. Once again the sovereign hand of God preserved the life of His faithful servant.

18:18 Paul had his hair cut as part of a Nazirite vow he had made (see Num. 6). Such a vow had to be fulfilled in Jerusalem, where the hair would be presented to God. Vows were made either in gratitude for God's blessing (like Paul's safekeeping in Corinth) or as part of a petition for future blessing. The vow involved abstinence from drinking wine and a commitment not to cut one's hair for a period of time. At the end of this set period, the hair was cut and then burned along with other sacrifices as a symbol of offering oneself to God (21:23–26). Paul redirected his entire travel schedule because he wanted to get to Jerusalem in time to make this vow.

sailed for Syria, and Priscilla and Aquila were with him. ¹⁸He had his hair cut off at ¹⁹Cenchrea, for he had taken a vow. ¹⁹And he came to Ephesus, and left them there; but he himself entered the synagogue and reasoned with the Jews. ²⁰When they asked him to stay a longer time with them, he did not consent, ²¹but took leave of them, saying, ²²“I ²³must by all means keep this coming feast in Jerusalem; but I will return again to you, ²⁴God willing.” And he sailed from Ephesus.

²²And when he had landed at ²⁵Caesarea, and ²⁶gone up and greeted the church, he went down to Antioch. ²³After he had spent some time there, he departed and went over the region of ²⁷Galatia and Phrygia ²⁸in order, ²⁹strengthening all the disciples.

Ministry of Apollos

²⁴Now a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man and mighty in the Scriptures, came to Ephesus. ²⁵This man had been instructed in the way of the Lord; and being ²⁶ fervent in spirit, he spoke and taught accurately the things of the Lord, ²⁷though he knew only the baptism of John. ²⁸So he began to speak boldly in the synagogue. When Aquila and Priscilla heard him, they took him aside and explained to him the way

Paul at Ephesus

19 And it happened, while ¹ Apollos was at Corinth, that Paul, having passed through ² the upper regions, came to Ephesus. And finding some disciples ³ he said to them, “Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?”

So they said to him, ⁴“We have not so much as heard whether there is a Holy Spirit.”

⁵And he said to them, “Into what then were you baptized?”

So they said, ⁶“Into John’s baptism.”

⁷Then Paul said, ⁸“John indeed baptized with a baptism of repentance, saying to the people that they should believe on Him who would come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.”

⁹When they heard this, they were baptized ¹⁰in the name of the Lord Jesus.

¹¹And when Paul had ¹²laid hands on

⁶ Acts 6:6; 8:17

18:19 Paul had tried to go to Ephesus before but was forbidden by the Holy Spirit (16:6). We are not told how or why, but during his second missionary trip, the Holy Spirit kept Paul from traveling the southwestern route, which would have taken him to Ephesus. Instead, Paul went northwest to the Aegean port of Troas, where he received the Macedonian call to take the gospel to Europe. If we will entrust our way to God’s timing as Paul did, we will end up at the right place at the right time.

18:22 Paul completed his vow (vv. 18–21) when he went to Jerusalem and greeted the church there. Paul then returned to his sending church in Antioch, completing his second missionary journey, one that covered over three hundred miles. he went down: Antioch was north of Jerusalem but lower in elevation.

18:23 he departed and went over the region: On his third missionary journey Paul traveled back through Asia Minor to visit the churches that had been established on his previous trips. The cities included Derbe, Lystra, Iconium, Antioch, and Ephesus.

18:24 Apollos, born at Alexandria: This Jew with a Greek name was from the second largest city in the Roman Empire. Alexandria was a seaport on the northern coast of Egypt. Founded by Alexander the Great, the city was very cosmopolitan. Egyptians, Romans, and Greeks all lived there; over a quarter of the population was Jewish. The Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures had been produced in that city about 150 years before the birth of Jesus. The city was famous for its great library and was considered the cultural and educational center of the world.

18:25 John’s baptism was a baptism of repentance in preparation for the coming of the Messiah. John’s followers had scattered throughout Asia Minor and into Egypt. Apollos was a disciple of John the Baptist. Apparently he did not know about the finished work of Jesus Christ on the Cross, the Resurrection, the Ascension, and the sending of the Holy Spirit.

18:28 he vigorously refuted the Jews: Many of the believers in Corinth were Gentiles and were easy targets for opponents who knew the Hebrew Scriptures. However, the arguments of these Jews did not stand up against the brilliance of Apollos, the new Jewish Christian apologist (v. 26).

19:2 These 12 men (v. 7) had been baptized into the baptism of John the Baptist, but they had never heard about the Holy Spirit. All they knew was that One mightier than John was to come. They did not know that Jesus the Messiah, the One mightier than John had already come. He had died for their sins, had been raised from the dead, had ascended to the Father, and had already sent the Holy Spirit. They needed to hear the rest of the gospel. As soon as this happened, these men could place their faith in Jesus and receive the Holy Spirit.

19:3 Baptism was a ritual used by the Jews as a picture of cleansing and purification. Gentiles who converted to Judaism would go through the rite of purification as their first act of worship. They would dip themselves in water as a sign of being cleansed from their old way of life. Before entering into the temple to worship, Jews would dip themselves in ritual bathing pools to show their desire for purification. But the dipping performed by John the Baptist was a call for repentance rather than mere ritual cleansing. His baptism was a call to people to turn to God and to identify with the coming Messiah who would forgive their sins (see Matt. 3:1–12).

19:5 in the name of the Lord Jesus: This phrase was a declaration of ownership, an identification with Jesus as Lord and Savior of one’s life.

19:6 laid hands on them: The Holy Spirit was received without the laying on of hands in 10:44–48. By laying on his hands here, Paul was demonstrating his apostolic authority. He was also affirming the unity of the new church in Ephesus with the church in Jerusalem, whose members were also were empowered by the Holy Spirit to speak in foreign languages (2:4, 11). This speaking in tongues was a sign to others that they were part of the body of Christ (see 1 Cor. 14:22).

them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and ^hthey spoke with tongues and prophesied. ⁷Now the men were about twelve in all.

⁸ⁱAnd he went into the synagogue and spoke boldly for three months, reasoning and persuading ^jconcerning the things of the kingdom of God. ⁹But ^kwhen some were hardened and did not believe, but spoke evil ^lof the Way before the multitude, he departed from them and withdrew the disciples, reasoning daily in the school of Tyrannus. ¹⁰And ^mthis continued for two years, so that all who dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.

Miracles Glorify Christ

¹¹Now ⁿGod worked unusual miracles by the hands of Paul, ^{12o}so that even handkerchiefs or aprons were brought from his body to the sick, and the diseases left them and the evil spirits went out of them. ^{13p}Then some of the itinerant Jewish exorcists ^qtook it upon themselves to call the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, ¹⁴“We ²exorcise you by the Jesus whom Paul ^rpreaches.” ¹⁴Also there were seven sons of Sceva, a Jewish chief priest, who did so.

¹⁵And the evil spirit answered and said, “Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are you?”

¹⁶Then the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, ³overpowered them, and prevailed against ⁴them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded. ¹⁷This became known both to all Jews and Greeks dwelling in Ephesus; and ⁵fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. ¹⁸And many who had believed came ^tconfessing and telling their deeds. ¹⁹Also, many of those who had practiced magic brought their books together and burned them in the sight of all. And they counted up the value of them, and it totaled fifty thousand pieces of silver. ^{20u}So the word of the Lord grew mightily and prevailed.

The Riot at Ephesus

^{21v}When these things were accomplished, Paul ^wpurposed in the Spirit, when he had passed through ^xMacedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, “After I have been there, ^yI must also see Rome.” ²²So he sent into Macedonia two of those who ministered to him, ^zTimothy and ^aErastus, but he himself stayed in Asia for a time.

²³And ^babout that time there arose a great commotion about ^cthe Way. ²⁴For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, who made silver shrines of ⁵Diana, brought ^dno small profit to the craftsmen. ²⁵He called them together with the workers of similar occupation, and said: “Men, you know that we have our prosperity by this trade. ²⁶Moreover you see and hear that not only at Ephesus, but throughout almost all Asia, this Paul has persuaded and turned away many people, saying that ^ethey are not gods which are made with hands. ²⁷So not only is this trade of ours in danger of falling into disrepute, but also the temple of the great goddess Diana may be despised and ^fher magnificence destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worship.”

²⁸Now when they heard this, they were full of wrath and cried out, saying, “Great is Diana of the Ephesians!” ²⁹So

19:8–10 From Ephesus, other churches were born in Asia Minor—in Colosse, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. Note the sequence of events. Paul tried explaining the things of the kingdom of God to the Jews in the synagogue for three months. After he was finally rejected, he took those who had believed and started a new “school” for the study of the Scriptures in the facilities of a philosopher named Tyrannus. During the two years that Paul conducted these classes, all who dwelt in Asia heard the gospel. This indicates that Paul and the students of the school did more than study; they must have witnessed to others as well.
19:11 God confirmed Paul’s apostolic authority by performing miracles through him. The writer of the Book of Hebrews helps us understand why miracles were accomplished through the apostles (see Heb. 2:3, 4). The miracles verified that the apostles represented God and that the gospel they preached was from heaven.
19:12 handkerchiefs or aprons: A handkerchief was a cloth used to wipe away perspiration and was usually worn tied around the head. The apron was tied around the waist. These were sweat rags used by Paul in his tentmaking trade as he worked with leather. Why would God perform healings in this way? Ephesus was a focal point for magicians and wandering priests. The city was filled with wizards attempting to exercise power over the dark forces. God may have used such unusual means in order to show that His miraculous power was greater than the powers of darkness.

19:13–16 to call the name of the Lord Jesus: The use of magical names in incantations was common in the ancient world. Jewish practitioners of magic enjoyed great prestige because they claimed to know the true pronunciation of the sacred name of God, and thus were able to release God’s full power. These practitioners had latched onto the name of Jesus to use as an incantation. overpowered them: The seven so-called exorcists found out that it was not enough to know the name of Jesus; they needed to know Jesus personally.
19:19 These books were filled with formulas, spells, and astrological forecasts. The volumes were expensive; fifty thousand pieces of silver would have taken 10 laborers 20 years to earn. Burning the books indicated real repentance on the part of those who had practiced magic.
19:24–27 Silver shrines of Diana refers to small shrines containing a miniature image of the fertility goddess of Ephesus. Sales of these idols were falling off as people were introduced to the truth of Jesus Christ.
19:29 into the theater: This amphitheater seated about 25,000 people.

the whole city was filled with confusion, and rushed into the theater with one accord, having seized ^fGaius and ^gAristarchus, Macedonians, Paul's travel companions. ³⁰And when Paul wanted to go in to the people, the disciples would not allow him. ³¹Then some of the ⁷officials of Asia, who were his friends, sent to him pleading that he would not venture into the theater. ³²Some therefore cried one thing and some another, for the assembly was confused, and most of them did not know why they had come together. ³³And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And ^hAlexander ⁱmotioned with his hand, and wanted to make his defense to the people. ³⁴But when they found out that he was a Jew, all with one voice cried out for about two hours, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!"
